University Club Smoker Begins Program Of Junior Organization

Broadcasts Planned as Part of Work.

Campus Leaders Address Freshman Class in Swain Hall; Affair May Be Annual.

GROUP TO SPONSOR RALLY

With Jimmy Fuller and his newly-formed orchestra supplying the music and a galaxy of campus leaders furnishing a peppy program, the University club smoker for Carolina's new freshman contingent inaugurated the junior spirit organization's 1934-35 program.

The freshmen heard words of advice, encouragement, and spirit by eight outstanding campus leaders, including Virgil Weathers, student body president, Harper Barnes, Jack Pool, J. D. Winslow, Lonnie Dill, Frank Abernethy, Agnew Bahnson, and George Barclay. Phil Hammer, University club president, acted as toastmaster.

Radio Program

A strenuous program of activity on and off the campus has been planned for the club during the fall quarter. A weekly radio program over station WDNC, Durham, is one of the many features.

A cheering section will be organized immediately in preparation for home football games, the first step being taken this afternoon when freshmen gather at Kenan stadium for cheer practice under the direction of Head Cheerleader Lester Ostrow.

The customary function of the group—that of welcoming visiting teams—will be administered by a special committee for the purpose. A definite budget for this work has been set aside.

First Affair

Last night's smoker was the first such affair sponsored by a student group for the new men. It is expected that it will become an annual event.

Membership to the University club is obtained only through selection by fraternities and dormitories of one candidate from each group for membership. There are 40 members in the organizations at present.

The first meeting of the group proper will take place Monday night in the club room in Graham Memorial at 7:15 o'clock.

Rehearsal Scheduled For University Band

Present enrollment points to a highly successful season for the University Band, which will conduct its first rehearsal Monday night at 7:00 o'clock in Hill music hall.

Director Earle A. Slocum urged yesterday that all old members and any prospective new members be on hand for the practice.

This rehearsal, together with another that will follow on Thursday, will be the only ones before the first football game here September 29 with Wake Worest, Slocum announced.

MEETING CALLED FOR ANNUAL BUSINESS STAFF

Students interested in trying out for the Yackety Yack business staff should report to the office of the publication in Graham Memorial this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, it was announced by A. H. Bahnson, business manager, yesterday.

Tar Heel Meeting

Last year's staff members of the DAILY TAR HEEL are asked to report to the office for work this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. Temporary assignments will be given until new men report and a reorganization meeting is assembled.

All freshmen wishing to try out for the staff are asked to call by the office, 205-6 Graham Memorial, between the hours of 3:00 and 4:00 o'clock next Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

SEIZE LINDBERGH KIDNAP SUSPECT

Alleged Kidnaper of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., Entered Country Unlawfully in 1923.

New York, Sept. 20.—(U.P.)—Police announced that the man who received $50,000 from Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, after promising to release the latter's kidnaped son, was under arrest here tonight.

Police Commissioner John O'Ryan said, "We have in custody the man who received the ransom money. His name is Bernard Richard Hauptmann, lives in the Bronx and came to this country as a stowaway 11 years ago. He is an alien and unlawfully in this country."

$13,750 was found in a garage near Hauptmann's home. The money was identified as part of the ransom which Dr. J. F. Condon tossed over the cemetery fence to a man who promised to return the baby.

O'Ryan believes the arrest will lead to the complete solution of the Lindbergh mystery. Condon was taken to the police station to confront Hauptmann late today but all actions were kept secret.

The police secretary said, "the prisoner was identified by witnesses."

DR. WILSON MADE DISTRICT HEAD OF PHI BETA KAPPA

Also Named on Two Committees At Cincinnati Conference.

Dr. Thomas J. Wilson, Jr., University registrar and dean of admissions, was elected chairman of the South Atlantic District of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic society, at sessions of the 18th Triennial Council of the organization which have just been held at Cincinnati. He succeeds the late President Chandler of the College of William and Mary.

Phi Beta Kappa chapters in the United States are divided into six districts, and the South Atlantic district, over which Dean Wilson will preside, is composed of Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida.

Dean Wilson was also named on two important committees, the committee on revisal of the ritual of initiation and the ad interim committee on revision of the constitution and by-laws of the United Chapters. The latter committee is composed of three senators of Phi Beta Kappa and one member from each of the six districts.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL STATES RUSHING ORDERS

Rushing Lasts From Sunday Through October 6 When Second Silence Period Starts.

GROUP ASKS CO-OPERATION

The 1934 regulations for fraternity rushing have just been posted in all dormitories and fraternities by the Interfraternity council. Harold Bennett, council secretary, in the absence of Will Sadler, who is attending law school in Alabama, has urged all fraternity men and freshmen to study carefully the regulations before the beginning of the actual rushing period Sunday.

12-Day Period.

A period of 12 days rushing will begin Sunday, September 23, and extend through midnight, October 6. Before this time, exists the first period of silence, during which no fraternity man is permitted to rush freshmen or new men. The hours of rushing will be from 2:00 until 4:00 o'clock and from 7:00 until 9:00 o'clock every day except Friday, Saturday and the last day of rushing, when the time will be extended until midnight.

Following the rushing season, there will be another period of silence last two days, from midnight, October 6, until October 8. This period is given to the new men in order that they may make a careful selection of the lodge which they wish to pledge.

Compulsory Attendance.

Rushing for the first day shall be done by invitation. These invitations, made by members of

TEXTILE WORKERS SHUN MEDIATION

Strike Continues Pending Decision of Executive Council; Marine Strike.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20—(U.P.)—The President's mediation board urged today that the labor unions call off the widely-flung textile strike pending the establishment of a series of boards to study conditions in the industry.

The White House made public officially today the report of the mediation board headed by Governor John Winant, of New Hampshire.

Leaders Decline

The strike leaders, after reading the Winant report, declined to call off the strike until the executive council had been consulted.

The report divided the industry into four sections and made specific recommendations for each.

In Easthampton, Mass., the National Guard was called to their first textile strike duty in the state, when a company came here to restore order.

Longshoremen Strike

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 20.—(U.P.)—Dollar Line officials today acceded to the demands of 200 striking longshoremen that 16 non-union men, employed on the liner President Taft, be discharged.

The strike was finally called off after the police had escorted the non-union men through 1,000 pickets.

MORE THAN 2512 IN FALL QUARTER THOMPSON SAYS

New Classes Formed for Freshmen; Many More to Register; May Reach 1930 Peak.

COUNT IS NOT OFFICIAL

Two thousand, five hundred and twelve students are estimated to be enrolled in the University, according to an unofficial count made after the registration booths closed yesterday by M. L. Thompson, auditor.

At the time of Thompson's computation, approximately 20 students were still standing in registration lines, and were not included in his reckoning.

To Reach 1930

A large number of students here are yet to register, according to University officials, and indications point to an enrollment approaching the 1930 peak. Freshmen had to be turned away from the registration desks Wednesday because there were no more first-year classes to which they could be assigned; and due to the Jewish holiday, a number of individuals have been granted privileges of late registration.

Before the registration period began University officials had approved applications from 960 prospective freshmen and 250 other new scholars who were transferring from other institutions.

At the regular freshman enrollment period Wednesday, 701 first-year men signed up for classes. Yesterday 30 additional members of the class of 1938 enlisted with the upperclassmen.

More first-year men are expected to register today and tomorrow, for 741 individuals took the English placement test Monday for entrance into the University, and officials have continued to quiz latecomers with the same examination throughout the week.

1801 Upperclassmen

Subtracting the 731 freshmen known to be registered in the University from the approximated 2532 enrollment leaves 1801 upperclasmen in school.

All the dormitories on the campus are filled to capacity, it was learned from business office officials late yesterday.

The number of students enrolled at present is higher than the total registration count made October 13 last fall. At that time 2410 individuals were in school.

At 4:45 o'clock yesterday during the upperclassmen registration period an estimation made by Auditor Thompson revealed that 2434 persons had enrolled counting the Wednesday freshman enlistment, but the lines were full at the time of the computation and the number signing up for classes jumped to 2512 in the next half-hour.

The rumor circulating around the campus that 300 students had come to the University from the Woman's College in Greensboro was pronounced to be false by G. K. G. Henry, assistant registrar.

Excuse It

The time of the tuberculin test, contrary to the story on page three, is from 9:00 to 4:00 o'clock today and from 9:00 to 1:00 o'clock tomorrow.

Council Re-establishes Exterminated Buccaneer

First Assembly Today

Dr. Edwin Mims, formerly professor of English at the University, will deliver the address for the opening convocation at 10:30 o'clock this morning in Memorial hall. Dr. Mims is at present a member of the Vanderbilt University faculty and is also author of a book, "The Advancing South."

Regular 11:00 o'clock classes will be deferred until 11:20 to lengthen the assembly period for Dr. Mims' talk.

COUNCIL CHOOSES BENNETT AS HEAD

L. C. Bruce Elected Secretary; Frank Rogers Replaces John Schiller as Treasurer.

The Interfraternity council met last night in its first formal meeting of the year for the purpose of electing a new president and discussing the rushing regulations.

Harold Bennett, Theta Chi, was elected from his previous offiice of secretary to the presidency to defeat B. C. Keeney, Sigma Chi. L. C. Bruce, Phi Gamma Delta, was unanimously elected secretary.

John Schiller, Zeta Beta Tau and treasurer of the council, tendered his resignation last night. The group accepted it and selected Frank Rogers, Phi Delta Theta, to fill the vacancy.

In a discussion of the coming rushing season which begins Sunday it was voted that rushing be suspended an hour Monday night in order not to conflict with a meeting of the Freshman Friendship council. The new hours will be from 8:00 to 10:00 o'clock Monday night.

Arrangements were made for this meeting at an informal gathering of the group Wednesday night.

CO-ED DORMITORY READY FOR EXTRA WOMEN STUDENTS

Women Will Occupy Graham Dormitory This Year.

Graham dormitory was opened Wednesday for girls in order to accommodate the 30 co-eds who applied to enter the University after Spencer hall was filled. Mrs. Holt from Lynchburg, Va., is to be the new hostess.

Only the first and second floors are now ready for students, but as the need for more space becomes greater the third floor will be put in order. Equipped for boys, Graham dormitory was first used for women graduate students last year. Most of the co-eds who have chosen Graham this year have completed their undergraduate studies.

The dormitory has 54 rooms and will accommodate 108 students. Little new furniture has been purchased.

Graham dormitory is under the same regulations as Spencer hall. Mrs. Stacy, dean of women students, stated yesterday that she will cooperate with Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Holt in an endeavor to make the students feel as much at home as possible and in creating for the students an enjoyable atmosphere.

GOVERNING BODY REVERSES RULING

Vote to Resurrect Humor Magazine Is Almost Unanimous; Editor on Probation.

NAME WILL BE CHANGED

The Buccaneer, exterminated by the student council, has arisen.

By an almost unanimous vote, the council Wednesday night reversed its decision of June 11 abolishing the campus humorous magazine and resurrected it, subject to the censorship of a board composed of one member elected from the student council and two appointed from the Publications Union board.

Pat Gaskins, editor, was put on probation by the council under penalty of "immediate and indefinite suspension."

Action of the June 11 meeting was upheld only in that the name, "The Carolina Buccaneer," should be banned. A new magazine, "dedicated to clean wit and humor," would be erected in its place, said the council.

No details, however, were evident as to how it should differ from the former publication except in name and lack of obscenity.

Called a week after the final issue of the Buccaneer had been distributed and after vacation had begun, the June 11 council assembled, it was felt, due to administrative pressure.

Council Influenced

Plea for its re-instatement on the part of students prominent in campus publications influenced the council in its meeting Wednesday night. A previous meeting had been held Tuesday night, when the students appeared before it.

Only four of the nine regular members elected by the student body were present at the June 11 post-vacation meeting.

Editor Gaskins was not present at the meeting. He knew the subject of discussion was to be the Buccaneer, he said, but did not attend because he understood Virgil Weathers, president of the student body and of the council, to say that no definite action would be taken on the matter at the time.

The council's objection to the issue included two items. Gaskins explained their presence by saying that he was hurried in getting enough copy for the magazine and read them only "sketchily."

Delay in Notifying

Delay in notifying that the Buccaneer had been suppressed was evidenced in a letter to Gaskins from W. B. Bradbury Co., national advertising service. The letter, dated September 13, stated that the advertising company "did not hear it was abolished until a short time ago."

Gaskins claimed that he was never notified by the student council of its action.

J. M. Lear, faculty advisor to the Publications Union board, also declared that notification from the student council was never made to him. On learning of the council's action, he said, he acted on his own authority in informing W. B. Pugh of the Orange Printshop that he need not purchase paper for the printing.

Possible suit for damages was averted in this way.

A Welcome To Freshmen

To the new student, entering the University for the first time, the elaborate preparations made for his orientation are likely to be a bit confusing. "Orientation" is a forbidding word, anyhow, and we can understand how all the hurry that goes along with it may make the newcomer wonder whether the University is really glad he is here, or is devising a sort of preliminary discomfort for him in preparation for the opening day of classes.

Now that it's all over, however, and the new students as well as upperclassmen have more time to become settled, we extend a sincere welcome to the class of '38. Speaking from our own experience, and hoping that they will share it, we think they have made no mistake in their choice of the University.

A Costly Oversight

Fraternity men the campus over are somewhat surprised over the fact that the interfraternity council failed to post fall rushing regulations in dormitories and fraternity houses during freshman week. Open rushing is rumored a common occurrence during the period of silence.

It goes without saying that administrative bodies are in a somewhat chaotic state immediately after a vacation period and a breach of duty in minor detail can be overlooked for this reason. But the failure to post rushing regulations—such posting being perhaps the most important function of the council—deserves immediate attention.

Despite the fact that Will Sadler, president of the interfraternity council, has changed schools and will not be here this year, the organization is grossly at fault for not having made arrangements for the distribution of the regulations to all freshmen for consideration and to all fraternity men as a reminder.

We learned that on one occasion during the past orientation week a fraternity man was present at one of the group meetings presided over by seniors ostensibly for the purpose of stealing a march on the rest of the Greek-letter lodges in the matter of freshman rushing. Clearly this state of affairs does not belong, and for the benefit of any other fraternity men, who may or may not realize that rushing is not yet legal, we emphasize that regulations are now in effect that forbid this practice.

The whole situation has put many fraternities at a disadvantage and obviously makes room for unfair practices that would be illegal even during the open hours of rushing following the period of silence.

How and How Much

Physiologists calculate that a person of twenty years, if he were to lie in bed for his entire natural life, thereby using as little energy as possible, would live to be a hundred. Not many of us would want to be centenarians at this price, but the fact that science claims it is possible shows that we all have more or less the same latent store of energy, or capacity for work. How we use it is the important thing.

During the recent freshman orientation week a good deal was said about the question of how to study. Its connection with the above might be facetiously referred to as having some bearing on the longevity of the college career, if the student decides to use the minimum requirement of energy and therefore prolong his four years by an extra summer school or two. But our point is that whatever is accomplished depends upon how wisely our energies are employed.

Effective study, like effective work of any other kind, depends neither on how much work is done nor how little. English Bagby of the psychology department indicated an instance of this when he said to a group of new students this past week that short, frequent periods of study, especially in the case of memorizing, were more effective than a single, lengthy period.

This is meant by no means as an exhortation to every student to become an amateur hermit for the sake of making Phi Beta Kappa. Good grades come in handy, however, and passing marks are essential in the long run. What we do urge is that every student consider the way in which he works. "It is not the man who acts; it is the method," and with a little thoughtful planning and budgeting of time, a lot can be accomplished.

Aging for Tradition's Sake?

Our first impulse, like that of a good many others, on reading that the Chapel Hill unit of the Greater University had saved the largest amount of its appropriation, totaling $40,000, of any state institution, was to wonder whether the business department had given up what must have been its expensive stationery or whether the faculty had gone off and found themselves jobs in the CCC camps.

As it turned out, Louis Graves gave one of his usually clear explanations of what was euphemistically and playfully called a "saving" by the budget bureau in the Chapel Hill Weekly:

> The so-called saving was merely the withholding by the state budget bureau of $40,000 from the $426,570 appropriated by the legislature. The state government withheld this money, and other moneys from state institutions and agencies, in an effort to balance the budget.

Mr. Graves goes on to explain that the "saving," which henceforth shall lie in quotation marks, did not come out of salaries and wages, but out of "upkeep and repair of buildings, care of the grounds, and laboratory and departmental equipment." He concludes by saying that "University buildings have suffered severely because of inadequate expenditures for maintenance; and classroom and laboratory equipment is insufficient and much of it in poor condition."

Mr. Graves has always been a staunch supporter of the University, and we can add nothing by way of comment on what he and other papers in the state realize is a terribly unfortunate situation.

One question does stick in our mind, however. If the enforced "saving" was larger at Chapel Hill than at any other state institution, are we to conclude that the University is the red-headed step-child, so to speak, in the family budget? Or simply that the state wants to add a few years to our already time-worn buildings?

Alive and Interesting

Dr. Charles A. Beard, the noted historian, confers no little distinction on President Graham when he names him on his list of the 25 most interesting men.

A man who compiles a list of "immortals" contemporary with himself, as some have done, seeking publicity or for some other reason, generally sets himself up as a target for dispute. Dr. Beard has wisely avoided entitling his list one of the "most famous" men. Posterity is the grim, if not infallible, judge of greatness.

So the fact that Dr. Beard has listed the 25 most interesting men of his time seems to us to be far more inspiring of confidence in his judgment. For evidently Dr. Beard is speaking mostly from his own personal experience, his own personal contact with the men whom he pays tribute to. Although he possibly did not have intimate association with some whom he lists, he certainly knew Frank Graham, if he singled him out as one of the 25 when so many more of that list are more widely publicized and therefore more apt to demand attention.

It is because of this that Dr. Beard does real honor to the President of the Greater University. A good many more men than his 25 will be famous a century hence, whereas Dr. Graham may not, but this contemporary appreciation of his uniqueness is worth more, in our opinion, than any future, and perhaps belated, praise.

Sign of Progress

To the average newspaper reader the consolidation of three separate educational institutions must be a rather hard process to follow. Although citizens throughout the state realize that President Graham is now head of the Greater University, that deans of administration have been appointed over the three units, little has been offered in the way of tangible evidence that the actual knitting together of these instituions under a carefully planned organization has been progressing successfully.

For this reason we welcome the remodeling of South building to care for the administrative offices of the Greater University. Not only are we gratified to see the machinery of consolidation in partial working order here, but we feel that the administration has gotten off on the right foot in the economy of time and efficiency which the new arrangement makes possible. A saving of steps on the part of office workers and an increased utilization of floor space makes possible, we are told by L. B. Rogerson, assistant controller, about a 25 per cent increase in efficiency.

And we again emphasize with Mr. Rogerson that funds for this remodeling came out of plant maintenance appropriations. Salaries and wages are fixed by appropriation of the state, so the University was justified in its expenditure by necessity and by the fact that it did not mean depriving any other department of this institution of its rightful necessity, also.

Consolidation, however, is not a matter of months but of years. While we are glad to see the above indication of its progress, we repeat the need that it has in its present stage of careful, patient co-operation throughout the years to come.

Student's Letter Written In 1824 Recalls Prominent University Men

Maurice Q. Waddell, Writing to John Watters at Chapel Hill, Mentions Judge "Mat" Manly's Studiousness; Writer Reveals Student's Interests.

The quill pen of a former student writing to a classmate in the year 1824 has brought to light a wealth of references to persons connected with the University at that time.

The letter, written by Maurice Q. Waddell from his plantation near Wilmington, to John Watters at Chapel Hill, was found by Mrs. J. H. Watters and her daughter, Miss Nannie Watters, who sent a copy of it to Dean R. B. House for preservation in the North Carolina collection.

Although 110 years old, the letter revives the names of many prominent Cape Fear families.

Matthias E. Manly, born in Pittsboro and graduated from the University in the year in which the letter was written, is spoken of by the writer. "How sorry I am to hear that Mat Manly is in such ill health," he records. "I begin to think now, John, that a person of weakly constitution had better let alone hard study and turn his attention to something that will advance his fortune and preserve his health." "Mat" Manly's studiousness, as commented on by the writer, probably had something to do with the fact that he was later a Supreme Court judge and prominent in North Carolina affairs.

Refers to Lafayette

Little is known of Maurice Quince Waddell, the writer, with respect to his years at the University. Dr. John W. Watters, who graduated in 1825, was very likely the brother of Maurice, and it is known that he was the owner of Belleville, the plantation from which the latter writes.

A good part of the letter is taken up with reference to the Marquis de Lafayette's visit to the state at that time. The French general stopped at Raleigh, Wilmington, and Fayetteville, the last named town having been named for him previous to his visit.

"We are making great preparations to receive General Lafayette in our town," he says, "but upon the whole I think it a burlesque. There is to be an address delivered on his arrival by Dr. Jno. Hill, who, no doubt, will perform handsomely as he is an admirable writer."

The Dr. John Hill referred to, according to Dr. R. D. W. Connor of the history department, is mentioned in "Cape Fear Chronicles" as well known for his literary attainments. He was furthermore an amateur actor, and is spoken of as having "trod the boards" in an account of the Thalian Society in the above work..

Student Interests Shown

Aside from references to Lafayette, whom he calls a "short little red-headed Frenchman that can hardly talk English," and to others who were students contemporary with the writer, Maurice Waddell appears to have had kindred interests with, possibly, a present-day student. He mentions deer-hunting:

"I must now give you a small account of the deer. I have actually shot twice when the deer was not more than 40 yds. from me without touching, and I have had many chances but I don't believe I shall ever kill another."

That he had only recently left the University is shown by his remark that he had "abandoned" the study of physics, which he had probably expected to continue at his home on the plantation Belleville. And a common problem of the student who has left college is evidenced in his search for an occupation. "A good many propositions have been made to me, but I have not acceded to any of them yet," he writes. "It is brother John's wish that I should go into some accounting house and enter into business of that kind, but I don't think that such business will suit me. From what I have said you can still see that I am undetermined."

SUICIDE IS HINTED IN PAULSEN DEATH

G. H. Paulsen, for 12 years superintendent of the University laundry, was found dead July 17 in a room over the garage at his home on Vance street.

Indications of suicidal intent were found but there was no direct evidence of suicide, according to Dr. S. A. Nathan, coroner. Nathan said at the time that there was a likelihood that the death was due to apoplexy or heart failure.

Funeral services were held in the Chapel Hill cemetery July 19.

Paulsen served 12 years as head of the University laundry but was replaced last March by John W. Humphreys. He had interests in town property, including the former Smoke Shop.

Nicknamed "Dean" Paulsen by students, he was well liked by University scholars and took great interest in athletics and other activities here.

Many Administrative And Faculty Changes Are Made

Robert House Made Dean Of Local Administration

President Graham Makes Promotion

John W. Harrelson Named Dean At Raleigh and Dr. W. C. Jackson at Greensboro.

TRUSTEES RATIFY ACTION

Robert Burton House, executive secretary of the University since 1926, was appointed Administrative Dean for the Chapel Hill unit of the Greater University of North Carolina July 2 by President Frank P. Graham after consultation with a committee of trustees named by Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus.

At the same time President Graham selected Professor John W. Harrelson as dean for the Raleigh unit and Dr. W. C. Jackson for the Greensboro division. These appointments were unanimously approved by the trustees.

Position Abolished

The office of executive secretary was abolished, but Dean House will assume the duties of his former position along with his new responsibilities.

Dean House, a native North Carolinian, received his A.B. degree from the University in 1916 and took his M.A. degree at Harvard the following year. As an undergraduate here House was president of Phi Beta Kappa and was active in extra-curricular work.

After seeing considerable service overseas in the World War, Dean House taught in the Greensboro high school, served as secretary of the North Carolina Historical commission, taught one summer at State College, and came here in 1926 as executive secretary under President H. W. Chase.

Jackson

Dr. Jackson, who came here from Woman's College two years ago to head the new school of public administration, was chosen to return to Greensboro as administrative dean, filling the place left vacant by the resignation of Dr. J. I. Foust, former vice-president of that unit.

Professor Harrelson has taken over the chief office at State College, replacing Dr. E. C. Brooks, former vice-president there. Harrelson was formerly director of the state department of conservation and development and a member of the faculty at State College.

The naming of the new officers further coordinates and merges the organization of the consolidated University and will allow President Graham to devote his full time to executive direction of the Greater University.

Administrative Dean

Robert B. House who was recently appointed administrative dean of the Chapel Hill branch of the Greater University of North Carolina.

GRAHAM HONORS THREE TEACHERS

Collier Cobb, M. C. S. Noble, and A. C. McIntosh Named Kenan Professors Emeritus.

Recognition of long years of faithful service to the University on the part of three men prominently known as teachers of its faculty was announced by President Frank Graham in a faculty meeting last Monday morning in Gerrard hall.

The president at that time made known the appointment of Collier Cobb, M. C. S. Noble, and A. C. McIntosh as Kenan professors emeritus.

All three of the appointees have been connected with the University for a long period, Professors Cobb and Noble having graduated from the University 42 and 36 years ago, respectively.

Professor Cobb was head of the geology department prior to his retirement two years ago, and Professor Noble was at one time head of the school of education, which was discontinued last year. Dr. McIntosh is a member of the law faculty. Their Kenan professorships emeritus mean that they will be connected with the University on a part-time basis.

The meeting was otherwise concerned with routine business and announcements in preparation for the University's one hundred and fortieth session.

Appointments of R. B. House as dean of administration and of L. B. Rogerson as assistant controller were officially announced by President Graham, among other faculty changes.

Professor L. C. MacKinney of the history department reported on work done by the committee on general courses in the social sciences, while Professor J. N. Couch of the botany department made report for the committee on general courses in biological sciences. This work is being carried on by the faculty as part of its curriculum revision investigation.

Berryhill En Route

Dr. W. R. Berryhill, infirmary physician, called to Scotland this summer to treat a former patient who liked his services so much that he insisted upon them again, is now en route from Scotland. He will dock in a short time and will be ready to continue his duties at the University.

TUBERCULIN TEST MADE AVAILABLE TO MANY GROUPS

Upperclassmen, Graduates, Faculty Members, Employees Are Now Eligible.

FRESHMEN GIVEN TEST

The University will sponsor this fall a tuberculin test in conjunction with the state sanatorium to be available to upperclassmen, graduate students, faculty members and their families, and University employees and their families, announced Dr. E. M. Hedgpeth of the infirmary staff.

Those of the above groups who want the test may secure it between the hours of 9:00 and 4:00 o'clock next Thursday and Friday, and between 9:00 and 1:00 o'clock next Saturday at the infirmary, said Dr. Hedgpeth.

Doctors Eason and Thomas, clinic physicians from the state sanatorium, will administer the test, which consists of an injection into the arm to determine whether or not there are active tuberculosis germs in the blood stream.

A positive reaction makes advisable a chest X-ray, for which there will be a charge of $1 to cover the cost of plates. X-rays will be given beginning Tuesday, September 25, from 9:00 until 4:00 o'clock at the infirmary. A positive reaction does not necessarily mean that the subject has tuberculosis, explained Dr. Hedgpeth; only the X-ray can determine that.

The University physician also urges those whose tests were positive last year to have another X-ray made, although he pointed out there was no necessity of their submitting to the test a second time.

For the first time all University freshmen were required to take the test this year as part of the routine physical examination made during freshman week.

INFIRMARY GETS TWO NEW NURSES

Painting Done During Summer; "Modern Hospital" Goal.

A new nursing staff, consisting of Miss Faye Choate of Charlotte and Miss Sally Vaughn of Hillsboro, has been secured at the University infirmary, it was announced yesterday.

Miss Choate trained at Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia, and Miss Vaughn at Watts Hospital in Durham.

Dr. E. M. Hedgpeth stated that the infirmary had also acquired some new cabinets and minor pieces of equipment. Painting and a thorough cleaning were done during the summer to improve the facilities that the University infirmary offers to students. "Our goal is to have the infirmary equipped like a modern small hospital," declared Dr. Hedgpeth.

Russell Quoted in Digest

Phillips Russell, well-known biographer and teacher of creative writing at the University, was quoted in the August number of The Reader's Digest under the department "More Picturesque Speech." The excerpt from Russell's travel book, "Red Tiger," "a German business man with a double chin on the back of his neck," was given as an example of this in contemporary writers.

LANIER REPORTS FERA FUNDS HELP MANY STUDENTS

700 MEN APPLY FOR WORK

Two hundred and eighty-nine needy University students are being employed on the campus through the $4335 monthly FERA grant, it was reported yesterday by Edwin S. Lanier, Y.M.C.A. self-help secretary.

Because of an increased monthly appropriation of $720 over the $3615 tendered the University last spring, the department has been able to provide positions for 48 more individuals more than it could last year, according to Lanier.

Because of increased burdens through the broadening of the FERA and self-help program on the campus, Lanier will work on a full time basis this year, instead of a half-time principle as he did last year. This promotion has been brought about through increased University appropriations to the self-help department.

Seven Hundred Apply

One thousand seven hundred students asked for FERA information during the summer and 700 individuals sent in applications to the office.

University scholars are at work under FERA in almost every department in school. The Chapel Hill high school and the Carrboro institution are also using a few FERA workers.

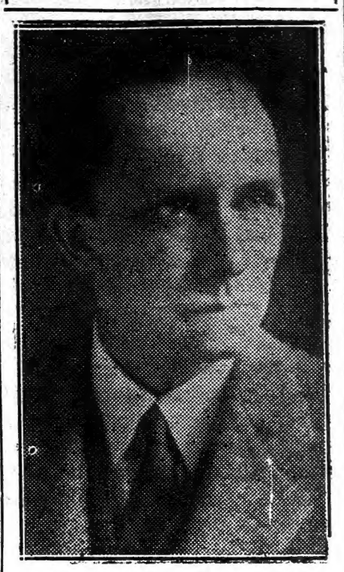
In order to be eligible for FERA aid, students must certify under oath that they can not remain in the University without financial help. According to the national relief authorities, "the student's financial status shall be such as to make impossible attendance at college without this aid."

The general type of work assigned is clerical, research, and labor on buildings and grounds.

The program of aid here is the result of activities of the Greater University student aid committee, which is represented in the Chapel Hill unit by Dean F. F. Bradshaw and Felix A. Grisette. Representing State College and the Woman's College in Greensboro are T. S. Johnson, C. M. Heck, and Claude Teague.

McKEE TO ASSUME DUTIES AS SUPPLY PASTOR SUNDAY

Dr. William J. McKee of the University extension division will take up his duties as supply pastor of the local United church on Cameron avenue Sunday morning.



McKee spent 15 years as an educational missionary in India prior to coming to the University, and during the past year has been preaching at the Community church in Greensboro.

The subject of Dr. McKee's Sunday morning service will be "A College Student's View of Life."

FIRST YEAR MEN TO HOLD MEETING

Cheer Practice Will Be First Step in Building New Cheerio Organization for 1934-35.

Freshmen will gather this afternoon in Kenan Memorial Stadium at 4:30 o'clock for the first organized cheer practise of the year under the direction of head cheerleader Lester Ostrow and his squad.

The practise will be the first step of the University Club in the formation of a gigantic Cheerio organization for 1934-35. Upperclassmen are urged to attend these early practises to supplement the freshmen contingent which will serve as a hub around which the cheering group will be built.

Ostrow yesterday revealed plans for the use of cards by the entire section as an additional feature this year.

This afternoon's session will be devoted to memorizing the words and accompanying motions to most of Carolina's cheers.

Ostrow said that a new group of leaders were to be selected early next week, as he has not been entirely satisfied with some members of the group.

It is hoped by University Club officials that the cheering organization will be well trained in time for the opening football game with Wake Forest next week-end.

Tentative plans also include the purchase of Cheerio costumes, megaphones, and noise-makers.

Second Oldest Building on Campus Will Be Remodeled With FERA Funds.

Work on the reconstruction of Person hall, second oldest building on the campus, which was left in ruins last spring after CWA funds for making the edifice into a museum were depleted, is being resumed through a special appropriation of $3,000 from the state relief organization.

The grant will go to build the roof and put windows and doors in the structure, according to H. D. Carter, supervisor of construction. Carter said that the remainder of the appropriation would go as far as possible on other repairs in the building. The roof will be of steel and gypsum covered with tin.

Not Regular Fund

The $3,000 is not the regular FERA allotment that can be used for untrained labor, and only skilled workers may receive employment, according to Mrs. O'Berry, head of the state relief organization.

"We are limited to 24 hours a week," stated Carter, "so it will probably take five weeks to finish the job."

Gaping windows in the sides of the structure have been filled wth brick during the past week, and work will soon be started on the roof. A concrete floor will replace the wooden one taken out last spring if the funds are sufficient.

Construction on the hall was begun last winter through CWA and FERA funds but the edifice was left without roof, floor, or doors and windows, after funds were stopped.

Person hall was presented to the University in 1797 by General Thomas Person. It has been used as a meeting place for the Di and Phi literary societies, a chapel, chemistry department, medical building, book exchange, and as a storehouse for Playmaker scenery.

Freshmen Begin Classes As Orientation Finishes

The beginning of regular classes today will mark the end of the four-day orientation program which has been conducted this week for the benefit of the incoming class of '38 by a group of student counsellors under the supervision of Jack Pool, president of the senior class.

Pool, who was the leader in a group of meetings last spring which resulted in the new plan of student management of Freshman Week, was aided in the project by 30 seniors, each of whom acted as a team leader and had assistants and sub-assistants chosen from the junior and sophomore classes.

Leaders Responsible

The new feature about the present plan of orientation is the fact that each freshman will belong to one of the 31 different teams, whose leaders will be responsible throughout the year for the members of their teams and will keep in touch with them by private interviews.

Freshman Week began Monday, following the pre-college retreat which the Y.M.C.A. sponsored over the week end for a part of the incoming class. The first class meeting took place at 1:30 o'clock that afternoon in Memorial hall. Following that, each group met with its leader in individual rooms assigned in Murphey and Saunders. At 3:30 o'clock the English placement test was given to the class. At 7:30 o'clock that evening the new men met with the deans of their respective schools.

Physical examinations and French and Spanish placement tests were given Tuesday morning, and the President's reception took place that evening in Graham Memorial.

Registration

Registration began Wednesday morning and a general placement test or intelligence quiz was held at 7:30 o'clock that night.

Wednesday the incoming class heard student government lectures and yesterday was taken by groups on library tours. A second meeting by schools with the individual deans at 8:00 o'clock, and a class smoker at 9:00 o'clock in Swain hall under the auspices of the University club ended the day.

The program today includes the opening assembly at 10:30 o'clock in Memorial hall, a class cheer practice in the stadium at 4:30 o'clock, and various social programs at the different churches this evening.

UNKNOWN NEGRO ROBS FRESHMAN

Thief Gets Watch and $65; Student Threatened by Knife Held to His Throat.

Waylaid and overpowered by a negro, Frank Wilson Neely, freshman from Hendersonville, was robbed in Hayti, Durham's negro quarter, last Saturday night just after he had arrived from his home to enter school at the University.

Neely's unknown asailant relieved him of $65 in cash and a watch which he valued highly as a present.

The Carolina freshman was with a friend who had arrived with him from Hendersonville. The two of them started in opposite directions in Durham, and Neely lost his way beyond the underpass on Chapel Hill street, becoming stranded in the negro quarter of town.

Negro Armed

"I was walking along—it was after ten o'clock that Saturday night," said Neely, — "and the negro sneaked up on me. We fought awhile until he drew a knife and held it against my throat. Then I gave in."

Neely is a self-help student, having secured an FERA job which he partly relies on to keep him in school. He had worked in a tourist camp this summer in Hendersonville, he said, and had earned enough money to support himself, together with the help of his job, throughout his first year.

The student arived in Chapel Hill penniless, but fortunately unhurt. His father, R. E. Neely of Hendersonville, came to Chapel Hill when he heard of the student's encounter.

Asked if he could identify his assailant if he saw him again, Neely said he thought he could. "The negro had a peculiar voice for one thing," recalled the student. "It was unlike any I ever heard. Sort of low and calm, not at all excited like a man who was struggling at the time."

Neely reported the robbery to the Durham police, and every effort is being made to secure the arrest of his asailant.

PICTURE RECEIPTS MAY BE OBTAINED

Juniors and Seniors Urged to Make Appointments at Once.

Juniors and seniors who did not make appointments at registration to have their pictures taken for the 1935 Yackety Yack, may secure their photograph receipts and appointments at the Yackety Yack office between 2:00 and 3:00 o'clock any afternoon next week.

Photograph receipts given out at registration with the appointment time on them must be presented to he photographer at Wootten-Moulton's it was announced yesterday by Agnew H. Bahnson, manager of the yearbook, in a statement urging all upperclassmen to co-operate in keeping their engagements with the picture makers.

Owing to more exacting terms of this year's printing contracts under the NRA, it will be necessary to complete the taking of junior and senior photographs at a much earlier date than last year.

OPERATING HOURS NAMED FOR UNION

Graham Memorial to Open Daily At 10:00 O'clock.

Harper Barnes, present director of the Graham Memorial, student union, yesterday announced the hours which the building would be open to the student body.

According to Barnes, the building will be open from 7:00 o'clock in the morning until 10:00 o'clock at night on all days except Fridays and Saturdays, when the closing hour will be 11:00 o'clock.

The game room and bowling alley will have the same closing hours as the rest of the building but will not be opened for use until 12:00 o'clock noon.

Upperclassmen Urged To Have Photos Taken

staff, will assume the courses formerly taught by Dr. Chadbourn.

In the Geology Department, Dr. Huddle replaces Dr. John G. Douglas, who resigned to accept a commercial position in South America. In the School of Commerce Dr. C. T. Murchison is on leave to serve as head of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in Washington. His work has been transferred to Prof. R. S. Winslow, and Professor Winslow's work assigned to Mr. McNairy. The same is true in the Engineering school, where Prof. Colin Carmichael will assume the courses formerly taught by N. P. Bailey, resigned, and Professor McLean will take Professor Carmichael's place.

Absent

Several members of the University's instructional staff, in addition to those mentioned above, have been granted leaves of absence: Dr. Herman G. Baity, Dean of the Engineering School, continues on his indefinite leave to serve as State Engineer of the PWA. M. S. Breckenridge, of the Law School, will be away for the first semester to carry on work for the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington. Granted leaves for one or more quarters to pursue research and graduate study are: Profs. Raymond Adams, W. D. MacMillan, and R. P. McClamroch, English; H. D. Wolfe, economics; and Minor Gwynn, education; T. Smith McCorkle, music; Edgar W. Knight, education; L. C. McKinney, history.

The new head of the physics department, Dr. Ruark, has had considerable experience in research laboratories and leading universities in this country. He holds three degrees from Johns Hopkins: A.B. in 1921, M.A. in 1923, and PhD. in 1924. He was with the Bureau of Standards in Washington from 1922 to 1926 and was assistant professor at Yale for one year. Since 1927 he has been connected with the Mellon Institute and the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Ruark has published more than forty papers about his researches in atomic physics. He is the author with Mr. Urey of Columbia, of "Atoms, Molecules and Quants." His coming to the University will allow considerable expansion in the physics department, especially in the fields of radio-activity and atomic physics. Among American physicists, Dr. Ruark has high standing in these fields of research.

Dr. Haydon, who becomes head of the music department, has been a member of the music faculty of the University of California since 1920. He received his A. B. degree at the same institution in 1918 and his M.A. in 1921. Later he studied in Paris under Eugene Cools and Perier of the National Conservatory of Music and won his Ph.D. degree at the University of Vienna in 1932. He is the author of "A Graded Course in Clarinet Playing," "Studies in the Fundamentals of Music," "The Evolution of the Six-Four Chord," and other articles.

UNIVERSITY YMCA SPONSORS THIRD ANNUAL RETREAT

Comer Says Conference Largest In Three Years of Existence; Divided into Four Groups.

103 STUDENTS ATTEND

The third annual pre-college retreat, bringing 103 first-year men to the campus before the regular freshman orientation week, was sponsored here last week-end under the auspices of the University Y. M. C. A.

The conference was the largest in the three years of its existence, according to Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the local association.

Beginning with a supper banquet in Swain hall Friday at which Robert House, dean of administration, spoke, the convention continued through Sunday night.

Four Discussion Groups

The program of the institute was built around four discussion groups, led by faculty and student leaders, at which topics were taken up relative to life at the University.

"Scholarship and Intellectual Development" was the topic of the discussion led by Dr. English Bagby of the psychology department and Lonnie Dill, editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL. Rev. Donald Stewart, new pastor of the Presbyterian church, and J. D. Winslow, president of the "Y," were in charge of the group on religion and spiritual development. J. Maryon Saunders, alumni secretary, presided over the "Friendship and Social Development" forum; and Harper Barnes, manager of Graham Memorial, discussed "Campus Activities and Development in Citizenship."

Devotional services were presented Saturday and Sunday before breakfast, and Rev. Stewart delivered a special sermon to the retreat men Sunday morning in the Presbyterian church.

Patterson, Gardner Speak

Simmons Patterson and Ralph Gardner were the principal speakers at a mass forum which officially closed the retreat Sunday afternoon. Patterson summed up the conference, and Gardner explained the organization and work of the Monogram club.

President Frank Graham entertained the retreat delegates Sunday night at his home with a reception at which other University officials were present.

Jack Pool, chairman of the convention, presided at the mass meetings and made a brief speech of welcome at the opening banquet Friday night following Dean House's address.

Recreation was provided delegates in the game rooms of Graham Memorial.

BOOK STORE UNDER NEW MANAGERSHIP

Elizabeth Johnson, graduate of the University last year, has taken over the managership of the Bull's Head book store in the Y. M. C. A., succeeding Mary Dirnberger, who has successfully directed the concern for the past three years.

Miss Dirnberger, granted a leave of absence, has accepted a position in Greenville and the surrounding community instructing groups of teachers in a project community drama, sponsored by E. C. T. C. and the federal government.

Miss Johnson was active in student activities in the University, working on the DAILY TAR HEEL and other organizations.

the various fraternities, will be delivered to the new men tomorrow. It is compulsory that each freshman visit each fraternity from which he has received an invitation. Failure to do this will be considered a violation of the rushing rules.

The only change in the regulations from those of last year is one section of the by-laws. This section reads: "The term 'Freshman' or 'New Man' includes freshmen and transfers from another institutions. Upperclassmen, or men who have previously attended the University of North Carolina, may be pledged at any time after the opening of school in the fall. Men who attended the University of North Carolina only in the summer school, shall have the same status as a freshman entering for the first time."

EVERETT TO TRY NEW HOUSE PLAN

Experiment Under Direction of Mayne Albright, Formerly Student Body Head.

A modification of the "house-dormitory" plan is being inaugurated this year in Everett dormitory under the supervision of Mayne Albright, former director of Graham Memorial.

The project, which at first called for the admission of only freshmen and a few sophomores to residence in the building, has been altered so that members of all classes will be included.

The change came about because the unusually number of applications for dormitory rooms made it necessary to assign every available room immediately without waiting until after the beginning of school to assemble a group of special students.

Student Advisors.

However, Albright stated, the the original plan will be followed in most of its other specifications, including the provision for having two student advisors on each floor. These advisors will not be monitors and will have only one vote in the election of officers and in the drawing up of house rules. The social room will be equipped and some provision will be made for a quiet hour.

Ed McRae, Tom Hawthorne, and Ed Waldrop are three of the advisors who have already been selected. Clyde Barber will be in charge of the collection of the laundry, Lex Moser will be the representative of the buildings department, and J. W. Austin will manage the store.

Any freshmen or sophomores who would like to move into Everett in case any vacancies appear are asked to leave their names at the office of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

STUDENTS ENGAGE IN STORY CONTEST

Eron Cheek, Foster Fitz-Simons Represent University.

Eron Cheek and Foster Fitz-Simmons were the contestants who qualified from this institution in the first nation-wide college short story contest conducted recently by the magazine, "Story."

The prize story which was written by James Laughlin IV of Pittsburgh, Class of Harvard '36, and one of the editors of the Harvard Advocate appears in the October issue of this magazine. The story, "Melody into Fuge," is one of a bourgeois German family under the Nazi regime. Laughlin has made frequent trips to Europe and is well qualified to write on a subject of this nature.

The second prize story as written by Madelene Cole of New York University will appear in the November issue.

One hundred and forty colleges in forty states competed in the contest, only two entries being permitted each college. A second contest is being planned for this school year.

Lost. Wednesday. Four assignments in German 3 correspondence course. In envelope addressed to R. C. Page, Jr. Finder please return to DAILY TAR HEEL office or Phi Delta Theta house.

Carolina's Four Man Track Team Wins Western Laurels

LeGore, Williamson, Hawthorne, And Abernethy Feature in Western Meets.

A quartet of Tar Heel track stars took heed to Horace Greeley's advice, "Go west, young man," and made a real success of their tour. Their accomplishments gained real fame for the University of North Carolina and their coaches, "Coach Bob" Fetzer and Dale Ranson.

Their first stop after the transcontinental trek was in Los Angeles to attend the National Intercollegiates. The cream of the crop of all trackdom was present for these games in which two of the Tar Heel group showed their real ability.

LeGore Features

Ralston LeGore, co-captain of the 1934 state and Southern Conference champs, led the scoring when he tossed the javelin more than 213 feet to place third among the nation's best spear flingers.

Harry Williamson, crack quarter and half-miler for the 1934 team and captain of the 1934 cross country squad, turned in an equally brilliant performance. After failing to place for the finals in a close finish in one of the heats of the half-mile, he came back the next day really to stretch out in the mile. He finished fourth, but what a fourth, behind the trio of aces, Bontron, Cunningham, and Venzke, in a record breaking pace. Harry's time was 4:15 minutes.

Then the Tar Heels moved on north but back east a little to Milwaukee where the National A. A. U. carnival was held. There all four of the Fetzer fellows placed.

LeGore turned in the best performance at the Wisconsin meet. He threw the javelin 216 feet plus to win that event. This was the best throw LeGore ever has made, exceeding by two feet his previous best mark during the regular Carolina track season. This toss also chalks up a new University record in the javelin throw which was held by LeGore.

Williamson Cops First

Williamson also came through in the AAU by winning first place in the junior division of the 1500-meter run.

Tom Hawthorne, co-captain of the 1935 track team, stepped off a third place in the junior low hurdles.

Frank Abernethy, vice-president of the student body, likewise took a third, his being in the junior high hurdles.

The individual success of this quartet in the head-line track meets of the year was a striking finale to a highly successful outdoor season. Losing only to Dartmouth in an early meet, the "Flying Tar Heels" swamped under William and Mary, Virginia, Georgetown, Duke, and Navy.

Carolina tallied more points than the total of all the rest to win the state crown. In the S. I. C. meet they more than doubled the score of the runner-up to win the conference title and to present one of the strongest, best-balanced title teams in years.

The players themselves turned in no less than fourteen records. LeGore led the field with four new records—Penn Relays, conference, state, and University. Charlie Hubbard, co-captain of the 1935 team, set two records in the broad jump; Williamson, two in the half-mile; and Abernethy, two in the high hurdles. Ed McRae, co-captain of the 1934 crew, set a conference indoor record; Odell Childers, a state best mark; J. O. "Red" Drake, and Hawthorne, a university new mark each.

MURAL ATHLETIC BILL ANNOUNCED

CWA Work May Cause Curtailing Tag Football Program, Says Director Schnell.

Intramurals, the division of the athletic department which attracts most sudents, will begin as soon as possible, according to Director Herman Schnell. A full program is scheduled to make this year the best yet.

Tag football, as usual, will head the fall program, assisted by the cake race, tennis (probably), wrestling, and boxing. The boxing meet is scheduled definitely for the fall quarter.

There is some doubt about tag football. The new fields used by the intramural department for football are not quite ready and it may be impossible to get them in condition. A definite announcement will be made soon. CWA equipment is now on them.

Tennis may again break into the headline as a leading mural fall sport. There is a possibility that the Duke-Carolina mass tennis meet will be held this fall.

For first year men and other newcomers to the campus, all the sports sponsored by the intramural department are opened to everyone. Every dormitory and every fraternity is privileged to have its team in any sport. There is a dormitory league and a fraternity league in football, basketball, and baseball, the winners of each division playing for the campus championship. Most of the other sports are based on individual performances, with each player casting his score to the score of his team.

The object of intramurals is to get every University man out for some sport. The games not only provide the fellows participating with a big time, but also enables the coaching staffs to look over the common horde and pick out any "unknowns" who would make good frosh or varsity material.

Cross Country Gossip

Co-captain Ed McRae of the 1934 track squad will return to school this fall, eligible for one more year's competition in cross country and indoor track.

Together with McRae, the harriers will boast such crack distance runners as Captain Harry Williamson, Ed Waldrop, Haywood Curlee, and Fab Haywood.

Work-outs for the current season will begin Monday on Emerson field under the direction of Coach Dale Ranson. Both varsity and freshmen calls will be issued.

Frosh who are interested in this cross country type of running are requested to get in touch with Coach Ranson as early as possible.

BOYS, IT'S THIS WAY——

Here we have Coach Carl Snavely with some of his proteges, explaining to his boys just how it should be done.

Vandy's Material Appears Encouraging To Uncle Dan

Col. Dan McGugin Predicts No Southeast Team to Cop All Its Games; Good Ends and Punters in Vandy Camp.

"No team in the Southeastern Conference with a representative schedule can expect to win all its games" declared Col. Dan McGugin, the Vanderbilt mentor in commenting on the unusually large number of good teams in the conference this year.

The Commodore head coach made no prediction as to the laurels his own team would annex. The improvement of the sophomores over last year is perhaps the most encouraging sign: "We had a lot of sophomores last year, who are now a year older and who in the first few days of practice give evidence of having learned quite a lot of football last year and during the spring practice. The men have an added year of age and this will be helpful, particularly as our sophomores were unusually young last year.

Fine End Play

"We should have good end play this year" continued uncle Dan. The end berths at present seem pretty well cinched by Dick Plasman, the giant sophomore from Florida, and by Matt Carloss, of Lebanon, Tenn., who as a sophomore played every position in the line, but found a niche at left end in which he fitted during the Alabama game last year, and seems certain to hold down as a regular this year.

Besides improved end play, "we should have good punting and will do our best to develop a passing and running attack," concluded Coach McGugin. Rand Dixon, the spark-plug of the Vandy machine last year certainly has his old time punting ability. He is booting them his usual forty-five and fifty yards in practice just as though he had not had a nine months vacation.

CAVALIERS NEED PLENTY PRACTICE AND EXPERIENCE

Coach Tebell Not Optimistic About Early Showing; Only Five Regulars Return.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

University, Va., Sept. 20—Neither Gus Tebell, head coach of Virginia football, nor any members of his staff are sorry that the Cavaliers are not one of the Southern Conference teams scheduled to start the 1934 season next Saturday.

Coach Tebell's chief regret is that half of the pre-game practice period of the Cavaliers has passed and that one week more remain before his charges have to go into action in Scott Stadium against a Hampden-Sydney team that is rated as considerably stronger than the one that held Virginia to a 7-7 tie last September.

The Virginia head coach has expressed the belief that he and his assistants may be able to develop a fairly good team by the last of the season, provided the strength of the squad is not too greatly cut by injuries.

Coach Carl Snavely Has Many Problems in U.N.C. "New Deal"

New Carolina Mentor Finds General Lack of Reserves for Hard Schedule.

MERRY FIGHT FOR POSTS

Carl Snavely, exponent of Carolina's "New Deal" in southern football, will have his problems in developing an effective gridiron machine for the Tar Heels.

Despite the fact that the former Bucknell University coach has inherited 18 lettermen from C. C. "Chuck" Collins, Snavely and his cohorts have been laboring with the gridsters since Labor Day, trying to build up reserve strength, a pair of good passers, another guard, and a consistent punter.

The outlook at Carolina would appear bright, just to scan the long list of veterans. This is not so, however, for the foes the University will meet this fall appear to be equally well fixed in regard to seasoned talent. Duke, despite its loss of Fred Crawford and his supporting linemen, will have a good club built around the efforts of a stellar group of sophomores and the remnants of last year's great eleven.

At N. C. State, "Hunk" Anderson, late of Notre Dame, finds an abundance of material. The problem for Anderson and his lieutenant, Reese, is to build up morale. Carolina will find tough foes not only in the state but in Tennessee, Georgia, and Georgia Tech. All three promise to have great clubs.

The Tar Heels will find two veteran ends, Gene Barwick and Bill Moore, rising juniors, who will have to fight for their berths with Dick Buck and "Buck" McCarn, sophomores, who displayed real promise last year as yearlings.

The tackles are strong with a hard fight ensuing between Jim Tatum, senior; Tom Evins, junior; and John Trimpey, sophomore. All three are big and fast on their feet, hard chargers and good offensive men. Evins and Tatum are lettermen.

One of the finest linemen in Dixie football history, George Barclay, Carolina captain, heads the list of guards. Barclay has all the essential drive, speed, and power—plus an ardent love of the game. Last season, he was given All-Southern and landed on many All-American selections.

Barclay's running mate, Eddie Kahn, is one of the finest guards in all Dixie. Both boys have made the center of the Carolina line a proverbial "rock wall." Jim Stephens, a monogram man, brings up the list of the guards.

Cerney to Notre Dame

Coach Bill Cerney, whose 1933 Carolina freshmen won runner-up honors for the state title, has gone to Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind., to coach the Irish yearlings.

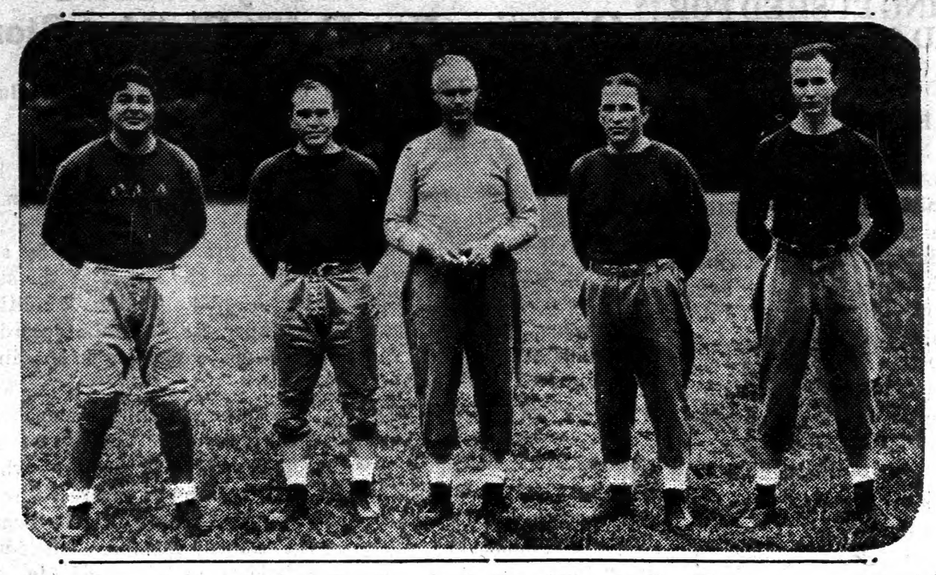
Coach Cerney was first assistant to Coach C. C. "Chuck" Collins, and "Coach Bill" was one of the most popular members of the University coaching staff. While at Notre Dame, Cerney won all-American mention for his great work in the backfield. Cerney played under the immortal Knute Rockne.

Emmett "Punchy" Joyce, one of the most promising of last year's sophomores who won their "NC," will not return to school this fall. His loss will leave a gap in the potential reserve strength.

At center another merry fight is going forward. "Babe" Daniel and Ralph Gardner, veterans, are scrapping along with Murray Kanner, soph, for the pivot post.

The first string backfield, which Snavely has been finding effective has Charlie Shaffer, Herman Snyder, and Don Jackson, all veterans,—plus the help of Jim Hutchins. Jackson was hurt in one of the recent scrimmage sessions and his place has been taken over by the diminutive "Slippery" Dick Dashiell.

Charlie Woollen has been working out with the varsity; he was last year's first string quarterback with still another season's eligibility. If he fails to land a job now under consideration, Woollen will return to school.



Jim McCachren, Mac Bell, George Moore, Harry Montgomery and Ed Martin bring the total number of backfield lettermen to nine.

Coach Snavely's problem lies in building up the Warner system here at Carolina before the Wake Forest tilt, September 29, to instantaneous and almost unconscious precision. The reserves must be built up to take care of the withering attack of the strong Southern Conference and Southeastern Conference opponents.

CAROLINA'S "BRAIN TRUST"

Above we have the reorganized Carolina football coaching staff. These men are intent upon delivering a "New Deal" for University football.

Left to right: Ellis Fysal, former all-southern guard at Carolina; Walter Skidmore, former Center College star on the famous "Praying Kentucky Colonels" club and Charlotte high coach for the past seven years; Carl Snavely, head coach, formerly of Bucknell; Max Reed, who has assisted Snavely with his line at the Pennsylvania school and now line coach here; and George K. James, great Bucknell end who won fame for his strong Jersey Shore, Penna., high school team. James and Fysal are to take care of the freshmen here at Carolina.

Duke's Jack Alexander To Play Double Role For Wade

"Jack the Scooter" Alexander to Play Fullback and Act as Field General for Duke.

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Durham, N. C., Sept. 20—To "Jack the Scooter" Alexander, of Asheville, will probably be assigned the double duty of serving as fullback and acting as pilot of Duke university's 1934 football team.

Alexander called the signals and did the line plunging for the first team in spring maneuvers this spring and got the call from Coach Wallace Wade at that position when practice opened.

Unusually Light

Weighing only 165 pounds, an unusually light man for the fullback position, Alexander does not use the line-crashing tactics of a heavier man, but has the ability to slip through small holes.

He did some outstanding work as a member of the second team last year. In the opening game of 1933 against V. M. I., he went through guard for 49 yards and a touchdown. He also served well in calling signals on the second team although he did not take up these duties until late in the season.

Perhaps the high spot of his 1933 performances was against N. C. State when he was sent into the game replacing the regular fullback, Bob Cox, who sustained an injury.

Alexander clipped off an average of four yards each time he carried the ball and was given much credit for Duke's one-touchdown win over the 'Pack. He scored the touchdown.

While Alexander has the inside track for the job, Paul Whitener, a reserve last season, who starred for Hickory high school a few years ago, and Jim Boyd, a sophomore, are still in the running for the post. Both Whitener and Boyd are several pounds heavier than Alexander.

Chi Omegas Move

Changing their location from 108 University Drive, the Chi Omegas are now at home at 108 Hillsboro Street. Formerly they had a chapter room with Mrs. George W. Heinitsh, who will be their house mother again this year. They expect to have six members in their home on Hllsboro Street. The Chi O coeds returned the first part of this week so that they could have time to get their house in order before the regular school curriculum begins.

Rogers Has Brilliant Season With Kinston

University, Va., Sept. 20—Orlin Rogers, captain-elect of the Virginia baseball team for 1935, has returned to take up his studies after a most successful summer pitching for the Kinston team which won first place in the Coastal Plain League of North Carolina.

During the regular season Rogers won 20 out of 21 games. His only defeat came at the end of a contest in which he had fanned 15 batters. Like some of the major league hurlers he won 16 victories in a row only to drop the possible seventeenth. This was in a postseason contest which was lost 2 to 1.

Rogers played on the team that was managed by Bunn Hearn, coach of the North Carolina varsity nine. In the lineup there were many Southern Conference stars from Carolina, Maryland and elsewhere.

"War or Peace" Is Subject of Series; Prevention of Conflicts To Be Discussed Later.

"War or Peace" will be the subject of a series of discussions during the fall quarter in the sophomore and junior-senior Y.M.C.A. cabinets this year, it was announced yesterday by the second year "Y" program committee.

During the month of October the sessions will deal with modern trends towards war. The November and December meetings will be given over to prevention of armed conflicts, according to present plans of the committee.

The entire program will be submitted to the cabinets for approval at the first meeting of the year Monday night. At intervals throughout the fall period there will be joint sessions of the cabinets to vary the program, and at these convocations prominent speakers from other institutions will be presented.

To Study War

"Psychology of War" is the subject for the first of the series, scheduled for October 1. Following this "Capitalism and War" will be studied. The October 15 meeting will be a joint session of the "Y" groups, and discussions will follow on "Nationalism—Is It the Way Out?" and "Defense by Militarism."

In studies of the prevention of war, special attention will be given to the problems confronting the United States today. The November sessions will be opened with the topic, "Is Socialism a Cure for War?", and on the Monday following Armistice Day all the cabinets will assemble to consider "Should Christians Support War?"

Discussions will follow on "Disarmament," "Should the United States Give Up Her Policy Of Armed Intervention?", and "International Co-operation." The last meeting of the year will be another united assembly for all "Y" groups December 10.

Plans Made in Summer

These topics on war were drawn up by the program committee during the summer with the assistance of Dr. C. H. Pegg of the history department and J. D. Winslow, "Y" president.

Attempts will be made in studying the subjects to depart from the regular class room procedure. The majority of the topics will be presented by students and will later be discussed by the cabinet members informally.

Members of the University faculty will be invited to sit in the forums with the students to help guide the discussions, but only occasionally will outside speakers be brought in to lecture.

MRS. W. S. BERNARD BEING PUSHED FOR U.D.C. PRESIDENCY

Local and District Groups Endorse Candidacy.

Mrs. W. S. Bernard, wife of the eminent professor of Greek at the University, who in her own right is serving as convention chairman for the annual State meeting of the United Daughters of the Confederacy here October 9, 10, 11, is being strongly endorsed for the state presidency by local and district groups throughout the state, according to reports reaching here.

It was not until September 1 that Mrs. Bernard consented to allow her friends to urge her candidacy.

An unusual record shows that Mrs. Bernard has taken an active part in U. D. C. work before and since she has made her home here. She was in office in New Bern and was chairman of the Jefferson Davis Memorial at Fletcher.

She has served as president of the Chapel Hill chapter for two terms as director of the seventh district, state chairman of the Text Book Committee, state chairman of the Historical Fund and as a member of the Jefferson Davis Memorial Foundation.

Heads Of Student Dry Cleaners Organize Non-Profit Clothing Store

Concern Is Opened for Students' Benefit in John Sprunt Hill Building; Membership Fee of $1.00 Entitles Individuals to Savings of from 10 to 38 Per Cent.

A student non-profit co-operative clothing store, organized for individuals connected with the University by directors of the Co-operative Dry Cleaners association, has been opened in the John Sprunt Hill building where Alfred Williams and Company was located last year.

The enterprise has been organized primarily for faculty and students, but others may join. A membership fee of $1.00 entitles individuals to all privileges in the store.

Savings for members are from 10 to 38 per cent on shoes, socks, shirts, ties, sweaters, and other furnishings, according to managers of the establishment. On nationally organized lines the shop follows the Harvard co-op idea. Clothing is sold at regular prices, but a profit - sharing coupon is given the customer at the time of purchase which is redeemable at the end of the month in goods or cash.

Nationally-advertised lines, such as Arrow shirts, Interwoven socks, Crosby Square and Bostonian-made shoes, and standard types of custom tailored clothing are featured in the shop.

No profits are made by anyone, and the object of the store is to make living conditions cheaper for students, according to Irvin Boyle, one of the directors.

Prices at the store are not sale prices but permanent. The organization is located where rent is low and where all overhead is reduced for the benefit of student members. Self-help students will be used in the shop, and the student audit board will keep the records.

Manager of the concern is P. S. Randolph, who played football on the famous University 1922 team and who has been in the clothing business ever since, working in Chapel Hill and Asheville.

Harry Montgomery, Carolina quarterback and brother of Cliff Montgomery, who was captain of Columbia's Rose Bowl team, is assistant manager.

Important policies of the clothing plant are controlled by the board of directors, which is composed of Haywood Weeks, president of the student body 1932-33; Harper Barnes, president of the student body last year; Irvin Boyle, twice president of the Inter-fraternity council; and Bill Anglin, vice-president of the law school last year. The directors do not receive any pay.

Last spring 1100 students of the University entered into a co-operative movement in connection with the non-profit dry cleaners establishment, and savings of 36 per cent on cleaning and 50 per cent on pressing were made.

ORIENTATION COMMITTEE 10:30 O'CLOCK 206 GRAHAM MEMORIAL

VOLUME XLIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1934 | NUMBER 2

EDWIN MIMS GIVES EDUCATION NEEDS IN ADDRESS HERE

President Graham Welcomes Students as Assembly Opens 140th Year of University.

DEAN R. B. HOUSE SPEAKS

Dr. Frank Porter Graham, president of the Greater University of North Carolina, in introducing Dr. Edwin Mims of Vanderbilt University, officially opened the one hundred and fortieth session of the Chapel Hill branch at a convocation of the entire student body in Memorial hall yesterday morning.

Dean R. B. House, administrative head of the Chapel Hill branch, called the assembly to order and addressed a few remarks to the incoming freshmen and students who have transferred to the University from other schools for their first year here. Dean House presented President Graham.

President Graham also welcomed the newcomers to the campus. He then presented Dr. Mims, the principle speaker for the occasion, speaking of him as a wanderer come back home, the inspirer of many students in the pursuit of intellectual adventures, and an interpreter of the people and literature of the south.

Needs of Education

Speaking eloquently for 40 minutes, Dr. Mims, formerly of old Trinity college, later of the University of North Carolina, now of Vanderbilt University, stressed what he regarded as the essential needs of modern education.

These he described as a disciplined and vigorous mind, power of hard work and concentration, accuracy and clearness of mind, a good memory, ability to think straight, power of discrimination, imagination, consciousness and appreciation of beauty, and a sense of the infinite in religion and philosophy.

He asked the question, "What difference is there in the freshman entering college and the senior graduating from that college?" The remainder of his address was devoted to answering this question.

He first stressed the importance of training the memory. He gave as an example the manner in which Abraham Lincoln repeated in his own words anything which he had read or heard to be sure that he had a clear understanding of it.

Stresses Clear Thinking

Dr. Mims next spoke of the great importance of clear thinking. He related this to memory.

He thought it especially necessary that one know how to discriminate in his thinking. He said that one should be able to distinguish between the extreme right and the extreme left and to be able to choose a wise middle course. He said that America has the right to expect clear, right, and wise thinking from its men and women who are graduates of institutions of higher learning.

Dr. Mims went on to speak of imagination. He told how the true meaning of the word is more often than not misunderstood. He endeavored to express what is to him the true significance of the word. As thought of by him proper use of the imagination enables one to go to

LIBRARY SCHOOL ROLL INCREASES OVER LAST YEAR

Twenty-one Students Enroll for Library Science as Division Enters Fourth Year.

The school of library science begins its fourth year this quarter with an increased enrollment over last year, announced Dr. Susan G. Akers, head of the school.

The enrollment this year consists of 21 students, as compared with 19 students last year. Of the 21, two are from the Duke University library staff, and one is from the extension division of the University.

Represent Seven States

Twelve of these enrolled in the school are from North Carolina, one is from China and the rest come from Virginia, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Kentucky, South Carolina, and Florida. These students represent 15 colleges, seven of these being in North Carolina.

Of the 19 graduates of the school last year, 12 already have positions doing library work. Half of these 12 are working in North Carolina. The school has a record of placing 70 per cent of its graduates so far, over half of these doing work in this state.

FALL ENROLLMENT MOUNTS TO 2567

About 200 More Students Expected to Enroll Before Registration Closes Wednesday.

Total registration for the fall quarter was announced last night to be 2,567, after a count made in the registrar's office of students who registered Wednesday and Thursday.

Approximately 200 more individuals are expected to enlist in the University before registration for credit courses closes Wednesday.

Four hundred and forty-four special students are reported to be enrolled in school and 2,123 other scholars, according to a statement issued late last night by Dr. Thomas J. Wilson, Jr., dean of admissions and registrar.

One hundred and sixty-five persons are enrolled in the graduate school, it was reported by Dr. Wilson. In the law school there are 127 individuals, in pharmacy 78, and in medicine 74.

Almost 800 Freshmen

The University registrar estimated that between 700 and 800 first-year men signed up for courses here. It is doubtful, though, that as many as 800 freshmen have enlisted, even taking into consideration that before registration opened here officials had approved 960 prospective freshman's applications for entrance.

Due to the fact that first-year men enlisted with upperclassmen Thursday, there has been no way to find out exactly how many freshmen are enrolled here.

Included in the enlistment, however, are more than 1,000 new students, but approximately 200 of these are transfers from other institutions.

Crane to Return

Dr. Harry W. Crane will return Monday from Halifax, Canada, where he has been spending his vacation for the past two months.

MAGAZINE STAFF TO BE ORGANIZED TOMORROW NIGHT

Editor Joe Sugarman Will Present New Plan for Independent Monthly Publication.

NEW WRITERS INVITED

Old and new contributors to the Carolina Magazine are requested to attend the first organization meeting of the year in 213 Graham Memorial at 6:45 o'clock tomorrow night.

The meeting will be restricted to upperclassmen. A special meeting for freshmen desiring to contribute to the publication will be called for Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock in the same place.

Tomorrow night's meeting will be limited to a half-hour. During this time Editor Joe Sugarman will present his plans for the year, emphasizing the advantages of the new format to be issued monthly.

The Publications Union board, meeting at the end of last year, approved Sugarman's plan for an independent monthly publication in regular magazine form.

Entirely New Policies

The editor is especially anxious that everyone who contributed to the Magazine last year be present at tomorrow night's meeting for his program will perhaps represent a distinct departure from previous policies.

Everyone interested in the new plans for the Magazine but who failed to contribute last year is urged to attend and listen to the plan. The editor also wishes to have personal interviews with all students who attend the meeting.

At the freshman meeting Wednesday the Magazine's relation to the freshman writer will be the chief point of discussion. Plans for selecting a group of capable freshmen and training them to write in the style of the projected Magazine will be explained at that time.

FRESHMAN YMCA GROUP TO MEET

Friendship Council to Elect Officers and Explain Work at Dinner Monday Night.

To elect officers and make plans for the year, the Freshman Friendship council will meet at a dinner Monday night at 6:30 o'clock in Graham Memorial. The program of work to be accomplished during the school term will be explained to new members.

Francis F. Bradshaw, dean of students, will be the principal speaker. President Frank P. Graham, the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A., and campus leaders will be present.

All freshmen who are interested in becoming members of the council, and especially Hi-Y members, are invited to attend. Those planning to be present are asked to leave their names at the Y. M. C. A. today or Monday. There will be a charge of fifty cents a plate for the dinner.

Over 100 persons are expected to attend the dinner.

Haydon Visiting

Dr. Haydon, head of the music department, is spending the week-end at his home. He will return to Chapel Hill in time for classes Monday.

HUDSON ASSISTS EDITING VOLUME

Professor Also Writes Introduction to Collection of Poems.

Dr. A. P. Hudson is the assistant editor for a volume of poems entitled "Mississippi Verse" which was recently edited by Alice James and published by the University press.

Hudson, who is a professor of English in the University, also wrote an eight page introduction and made one contribution to the volume.

Among the native Mississippians, or residents, whose poems are included are William Faulkner, William Alexander Percy, Stark Young, and Muna Lee.

CHEERIOS STAGE INITIAL PRACTICE

Cheerleader Ostrow Pleased with Organization Meeting of Cheering Section.

The first efforts to organize the Cheerios for 1934-35 were carried out successfully yesterday afternoon as several hundred freshmen crowded together in Kenan stadium and yelled vigorously to the arm-motions of Lester Ostrow and his cheerleaders.

Mimeographed copies of Carolina cheers, including three new ones written by Ostrow, were given each member of the group. The freshmen are expected to provide the bulk around which a giant Cheerio organization is planned to be developed.

Conflict with Gym

An unfortunate conflict with compulsory freshmen gymnasium almost upset the plans of the cheer-leaders, but the practice went off at a later hour than scheduled in a manner satisfactory to Ostrow.

A mass practice will take place in the stadium Tuesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock, when it is expected that the University band will be on hand.

END OF TEXTILE STRIKE IS SEEN

Peace Depends Upon Acceptance By Industrial Leaders of Recommendations.

Washington, Sept. 21. (UP)—The textile strike will probably be called off within 24 hours if industrial leaders accept the recommendations of the mediation board headed by Gov. John Winant of New Hampshire, the United Press learned tonight from an official source.

An eleventh hour row of warring factions threatened, however, to delay a peaceful settlement longer.

President Makes Appeal

President Roosevelt appealed to the strikers to return to work and to mill managements to reinstate workers without discrimination. The silk institute accepted the settlement plan.

George A. Sloan, head of the Cotton Textile Institute, stated that he would "give serious consideration" to any plan proposed by the President and recommended that close mills open as soon as possible.

Union chiefs retorted that it was not within Sloan's province to order strikers to return to work, which meant some dissension in the ranks of organized labor.

STATE SYMPHONY GOES TO WINSTON

North Carolina Symphony Orchestra Moves Winter Headquarters from Chapel Hill.

The North Carolina Symphony orchestra, which has been presenting concerts all over the state during the summer through a $45,000 grant from federal relief agencies, made its winter headquarters at Winston Salem last week.

Symphony headquarters for the first six weeks of the summer months were made at the University here, but the musicians later moved to Asheville.

Due to a misunderstanding with the music department of the University, the orchestra was unable to procure the music building in which to practice after school re-opened, and expecting to receive more money in other sections, the organization moved to Winston Salem.

Headquarters will be kept there until the federal grant is depleted. Officers of the group then plan to apply for another donation from the government.

Local Officers Inactive

Administrative affairs of the symphony are being handled by E. A. Ewing, business manager. Felix A. Grisette, local alumni loyalty fund director and secretary of the group, has received little correspondence from the orchestra officials; and Robert Linker of the University French department, treasurer of symphony, has handled none of the money.

Converts in Knoxville, Richmond, Danville, Lynchburg, Spartanburg, Greenville, and other communities have been scheduled by Ewing since the orchestra stationed itself in Winston Salem. Lamar Stringfield, conductor, has also announced that noted directors from the east, including Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony orchestra in Washington, D. C., and Henry Hadley, will assist in conducting the band.

Concerts have already been given in Charlotte, Greensboro, Wilmington, Raleigh, Salisbury, and other large State centers.

Statement Expected Within Twelve Hours

Strong Circumstantial Evidence Indicates Hauptmann Actually Snatched Baby from Home.

IS WEAKENED BY ORDEAL

Kamenz, Saxony, Sept. 21.—(UP)—A firm belief in the innocence of her son was expressed tonight by Frau Hauptmann, aged mother of the 35-year-old German suspected of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

Hauptmann, who was imprisoned here on a theft charge, broke out of the Kamenz jail. He was sentenced to serve a term of four years. Hauptmann's father is dead.

New York, Sept. 21.—(UP)—Police officials hoped tonight that they will have within 12 hours an important statement from Bruno Richard Hauptmann—possibly the confession that he kidnaped and murdered the curly haired young son of Charles A. Lindbergh.

Preponderant evidence, although circumstantial, marked Hauptmann as the man or one of the men who snatched the Lindbergh baby from his crib in the spring of 1932.

Police felt that the 35-year-old German prisoner, who came to this county an alien stowaway, was weakening under the strain of a sleepless night and interminable hours of questioning.

Hauptmann Dazed

Hauptmann seemed like a man in a trance. He was wholly indifferent to the gruelling ordeal that he had been through. In the course of the questioning he admitted that he had not worked since April in the year that the kidnaping took place, and confessed that he had speculated in Wall street frequently.

Hauptmann's wife was permitted tonight to return home with their 10-month-old son, Mannfried.

Following the ordeal a police escort took Hauptmann to the Bronx for arraignment on an extortion charge of securing $50,000 from Col. Lindbergh. He pleaded not guilty.

Before night-fall the prisoner was taken to the office of Samuel Foley, district attorney of Bronx county. Detectives were sent to the financial district to verify Hauptmann's stock market transactions. They found that he had opened a brokerage account in April, 1932 before the body of the kidnaped baby had been found.

Seagirt, N. J., officials will ask the extradition of Hauptmann only after a thorough study of the case is made, according to Gov. Guy Moore. The Governor stated that he thought hasty action would be unwise.

Maybe it will be a good thing when the America's Cup races are over. We'd probably be a nation of speech defectives if we had to go on saying "spinnaker" and "Genoa jib" much longer.

Whether or not textile products are going to be on the increase, it's certain that cotton underwear will continue to creep up.

Proceedings of A Rump Parliament

An unwritten constitution is often spoken of as an admirable feature of any government because, perhaps, it is associated with inherent self-control and self-restraint and an unwritten regard for the rights of the governed. Such, at least, is the basis on which the constitution of England has endured, and such is the basis on which any group living under a like law has a right to expect that their unwritten constitution should endure.

The action of the student council in abolishing the Buccaneer at its post-vacation meeting on June 11 is highly in conflict with this principle. Student government has prospered here, attained a freedom that is enviable to other campuses. A notable feature of the supreme governing body, the student council, is that it has remained unfettered by a written constitution. No quorum of members is prescribed in writing; no ordained circumstances of meeting are set forth in a document as assurance that action will not be unduly taken. The fine thing about student government here seems to be to us the absence of this "thou-shalt-not" principle. In its absence, however, the student body has imposed on the student council a tacit trust which guarantees the legality of their actions.

It is open to question whether the suppression of the Buccaneer on June 11 is an action which can be recognized by the student body. Only four of the nine regular members were present and voting; nearly all students had gone home for vacation. There was no assurance either that all those elected to act for the student body would vote on the measure, or that their action would be subject to the response of those who elected them. Yet the student council pronounced its action of abolishing the Buccaneer in a post-vacation meeting of four members a legal one.

The dangers of this sort of procedure to the rights of the student body are too apparent to need pointing out. It is our opinion that the best thing the council could have done under the circumstances would have been to ignore the decision of June 11 entirely in its reconsideration of the Buccaneer's status. As it now stands there is some doubt in the minds of the campus as to whether the council was not too susceptible to influence, first from the administration and then from the students who appeared before it. Be that charge just or not, the decision of June 11 should serve as a reminder that the students cannot be expected to, and will not readily swallow, the proceedings of a rump parliament.

Standing In Line

Now that registration is over, the whole school is sitting back and sighing with relief. After the ordeal of standing in line for an hour or two only to be referred to another straggly line of students, and so back and forth across the expanse of the Tin Can—the administration would be wise to give another three-months vacation.

It ought to be possible to make registering for the fall quarter a simpler process. Other colleges don't seem to go in for such mass headaches for both faculty and students. Although our own ideas are derived from having been on the receiving end for a number of years, it seems to us that those who have been dishing it out could devise a method that would be a little less helter-skelter. Some change is especially needed in such large schools as Liberal Arts and Commerce. As one weary student remarked to another, "We stand in line when we get in, and we stand in the breadline when we get out."

Maybe some change would make our student body a little more hopeful, anyway.

Patience and Careful Building

As the Carolina football team approaches another season, the usual warning is in order: Beware of too much optimism. It is particularly appropriate this September because of the expectation in certain quarters that the coming of a new coach should accomplish miracles worthy of the Old Testament.

The idea behind the engaging of Coach Carl Snavely was, to be sure, that he would give Carolina winning football teams. However, the idea that his work could be done in one short year was far from the minds of those who were instrumental in bringing him to Chapel Hill.

Building a championship football team is much like building a great business. It takes thoughtful planning, time, and well-directed effort. It is not a thing that can be done overnight. Our alumni need only to consider our own experience with new coaches and our observations of other schools to be sure of that. Every coach needs at least one year to lay the foundations of a new system. Coach Snavely will need the same amount of time. Meanwhile, the teams he puts out at Carolina undoubtedly will show improvement. None can doubt that knowing the record he made before he came to Carolina or having seen his 1934 team in action.

However, as Mr. Snavely stated in an informal talk last spring, he and his fellow coaches intend to build slowly, patiently, and thoroughly, so that what they build will not be a temporary thing, but a solid and substantial structure.

There is one fact to bear in mind. Improvement may be apparent immediately, and again it may take time. Our former football players are in the best position to appreciate the vast difficulties involved in erecting a new football system on the ashes of the old. They have become proficient in one style of play. Suddenly there comes along a new coach who says, "No, not that way. This way." For a time it is rather confusing. Old habits and old ways of doing things assert themselves. The new way is strange.

The Carolina team has been taught a tremendous amount of material in a few short weeks. Much of this is still new to the players. It will take time for them to assimilate the new system to the point that they execute it intuitively. As a result their showing may not be so impressive for a time as it was under the old and familiar conditions. All of this should be taken into consideration during the early games of the schedule.

But the way the team performs in early season is not the all-important thing. To look fine in pre-season practice and to sweep through the early contests triumphantly may mean little or nothing if, failing to continue its improvement, it suddenly cracks and suffers inglorious defeats in its big games. It's the finish and not the start of the race that counts.

There are alumni who are easily discouraged by the trivialities of the early season. If they are told that some of the players have suffered slight injuries or that the team did not click in a scrimmage, they are immediately plunged into despondency and begin complaining about the pessimistic tidings that come from Kenan stadium. They prefer rosy and glowing reports, perhaps, but if the team is enabled by looking bad in September to win some games later in the season, by all means let the hills around Kenan stadium echo with pessimistic reports, As we said before, it's the finish and not the start that counts.

The Students Have Spoken

The Student Welfare board, composed of selected students and faculty administrators, will meet today at noon to discuss and, perhaps, take some sort of action on the student council's reestablishment of the defunct Buccaneer which, the council decided, should appear under a new name and a probationed editor.

That this board or any other board ought to dictate to the student body on the question of whether or not such a magazine should be published is a matter for conjecture. But experience has proved that the stand taken by any one of the several "student honorary activity" committees holds considerable weight when any of the matters upon which it passes a verdict is actually and officially acted upon.

An independent group of students prominent in publications and executive life on the campus presented a signed opinion to the council last Tuesday night advocating a new deal in the campus humor magazine, taking the stand that this university was capable and worthy of producing a periodical of high standards in content and purpose. It is possible that the opinion of these students aided the council in making its decision to re-establish a humor magazine on the higher plane, but, whether it influenced the members or not, it should have a direct bearing on the action, whatever it may be, by the Student Welfare board.

This board considers problems involving the effects of a change not so much on the publication so changed, but on the student body as the particular publication affects it. It is only natural to imagine, therefore, that the opinion of the student leaders as presented before the council will be considered by the board today on its claims that this student body can and will support a clean and clever humor magazine. If this is so, the "Battle for the ex-Buc" is as good as won, for this board, a group representative of a loyal student body, must have enough pride in the ability of Carolina students to realize that this University is not so inferior to other institutions as to be unable to publish a humor magazine of clean purpose and content.

Dr. Russell Makes Study in England

"England seems much more prosperous than it has been. They seem well out of the depression over there," said Dr. J. C. Russell of the history department of the University who has recently returned from England.

Dr. Russell continued his researches on the biographies of the writers of thirteenth century England at Oxford and London. He received a grant for his researches from the American council of learned societies.

While in England Dr. and Mrs. Russell were the guests of Professor F. M. Powicke, president of the Royal Historical society, at the annual garden party of the society.

They returned to the United States on the steamship Alaunia by way of Montreal.

Tar Heel Football Club Ends Week With Tough Scrimmage

First Team Shows Power in Scoring Four Touchdowns; Shaffer Stars.

RANDY COONER RETURNS

Initial Lineup Fairly Well Settled Except for Two Positions, Tackle and Halfback.

Coach Carl Snavely sent his entire grid squad through a long hard scrimmage yesterday afternoon at Kenan stadium before releasing it for a rest over the week-end. The first string continued to show plenty of power and counted four touchdowns over a second and third outfit.

The varsity also was strong on the defense, holding the reserves' running attack almost at a standstill. Charlie Shaffer was again the big gun on offense. The right halfback tore off gain after gain and crossed the line for two of the touchdowns.

Dick Dashiell, who has been working at left halfback on the first team since Don Jackson injured his knee, also looked good in the running attack, besides getting off several fine passes.

Coaches View Deacons

The coaching staff will go to Wake Forest this afternoon in a body. The Deacons, who will be Carolina's first foe, open today with Guilford, and the Tar Heel mentors are expecting to get an eye-full.

The close of the third week of practice this morning found Carolina's starting lineup fairly well settled except for two positions.

One of the two positions which remained undertain today was right tackle. Coach Snavely is still unable to choose between Tom Evins, speedy 190-pound veteran, and John Trimpey, mammoth 220-pound sophomore.

The other is left halfback. Don Jackson was tentatively slated for the post, but has been laid up this week with a knee injury. In the meantime, two veterans, Charlie Woollen and Eddie Martin, and two sophs, Randy Cooner and Dick Dashiell, are waging a merry battle for his place.

Jackson is expected to be ready to go again the first of next week. However, he has missed some valuable practice, and while he has been idle, his rivals have made definite gains. Whether he can overcome their lead and regain the post promises some interesting competition.

Cooner's return to camp Thursday helps considerably in the backfield. The Asheville boy is thought to have worlds of na-

DUKE GRID LINEUP STILL UNCERTAIN

Only Five Posts Are Filled by Returning Regulars While Other Places Indefinite.

Durham, N. C., Sept. 21.—Excepting the five positions which will be occupied by last year's returning regulars, Duke University's No. 1 team is still indefinite after almost three weeks of practice.

Coach Wallace Wade is giving every man a chance at the six open posts in his effort to get the best player possible and is making shifts in the No. 1 lineup.

While Earle Wentz, veteran from last year is considered a certainty at one flank, the other remains a toss-up between Ed West and Ab Jones, 1933 subs, Dick Taliaferro and Frank Liana, sophomores. Liana is at present taking light work due to a slight cut over his eye.

Guard Post Open

Jim Johnston, 1933 sub, has been running at the guard post pairing with Captain Jack Dunlap since practice started but this week Roy Phipps, a 1932 letterman at tackle, broke into the lineup at that position. It is still considered wide-open.

Tom Power, sophomore hopeful, broke into the "first" team lineup after the first week of

EIGHTY OUT FOR FROSH FOOTBALL

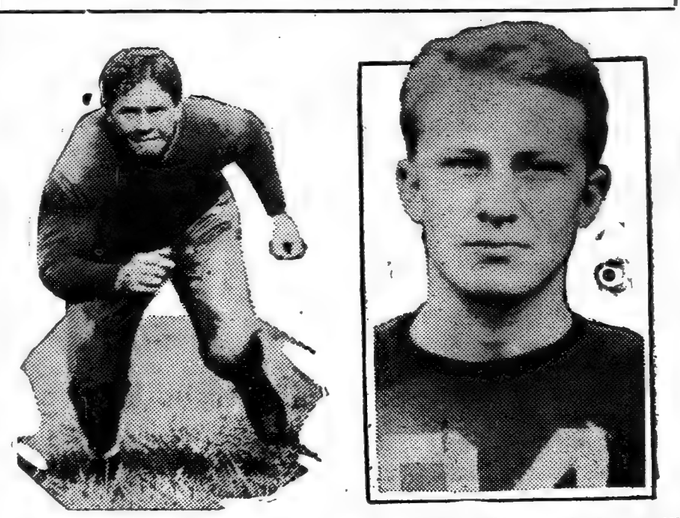
Hefty Bunch of First Year Men Take Easy Drill in Second Day of Practice.

About four score yearling football men reported to Coaches James and Fysal yesterday on Emerson field in the second practice of the season.

The afternoon's work-out consisted only of light drills in tackling and blocking, including various exercises to get the men in shape.

Hefty Bunch

The eighty gridironers are probably the heftiest bunch of first year men the University has seen in many years. If this beef and brawn is mixed with speed and brains, the yearlings shall have a highly successful year.



The coaches will take it slowly for several days in order to give the fellows the proper warming up, but early hard work-outs are expected.

The schedule will contain probably the same games as were played last year, in which the Tar Babies lost only one game. The list will include matches with Duke, Virginia, N. C. State, and Oak Ridge.

Tuberculin Tests

X-ray tests for all students whose vaccination gave evidence of a presence of tubercular germs will be given from Monday through Friday of next week.

TAR HEEL PIVOTMEN

Above are two reasons why the middle of Carolina's line will be well taken care of. Babe Daniel, right, and Ralph Gardner are both letter centers with weight and experience. The two will likely alternate during the season at the pivot position.

Cardinal Rookie Gets Masterpiece over Brooklyn as St. Louis Wins Double Header.

DIZZY PITCHES SHUTOUT

New York, Sept. 21.—(UP)—Paul Dean, younger member of the famous St. Louis pitching brothers, took his place with the baseball immortals here today as he blanked the Brooklyn Dodgers without a hit in the second game of a double-header. The Cardinals won the contest, 3-0. The feat was even more remarkable because Paul is serving his first year in the major leagues.

Paul's bigger brother, Jerome "Dizzy," twirled the first tilt for the Red Birds and got a shutout, limiting the Dodgers to only three hits. The double victory enabled St. Louis to gain another half-game on the Giants bringing it within three games of the Champions in the race for the National league pennant.

New York kept step with the Cardinals as far as possible, downing Boston, 8-1. Fred Fitzsimmons was on the mound for the Giants and held the Braves to nine scattered hits while his teammates played errorless ball on defense.

INTRAMURAL RUN TO TAKE PLACE IN THIRTY DAYS

Director Herman Schnell Announces Annual Cake Race.

Director Herman Schnell announced yesterday that the annual cake race would be held in about thirty days.

All students are eligible except members of the varsity cross-country squad and track monogram men.

Out of the one hundred and fifty entries last year fifty received prizes. The winning teams were rewarded with cakes.

The race affords Coach Dale Ranson an opportunity to look over prospects for the freshman cross-country team. Gardiner, Gammon, and Allen who tied for first place last year were the mainstays of the freshman hill and dalers.

OFFICES CHANGED IN SOUTH BUILDING

First Floor and Basement Re-Modeled to Provide Effective Use of Floor Space.

Remodeling of the basement and first floor of South building was completed in time to accommodate the offices of the Greater University before registration began yesterday. Actual construction ceased a few days prior to the first arrival of freshmen.

The changes that have been made mean a 25 to 30 per cent more effective use of floor space, L. B. Rogerson, assistant controller, said yesterday in an unofficial estimate.

Another improvement about South building was noticeable in the paving of the drive and parking space surrounding the building and in front of the Y. M. C. A. The hard surfacing of tar and gravel was laid down with the aid of FERA funds, with only a very small cost to the University in the renting of equipment.

Cost $3,000

Approximately six partitions were erected in the remodeling, only one of these being in the basement. The entire cost, which Mr. Rogerson revealed as $3,000, was financed through plant maintenance funds, as opposed to those which are appropriated for salaries, he said.

The new arrangement will care for the central administration of the Greater University as well as for the administrative offices of the Chapel Hill unit.

President Graham's offices remained unchanged. R. B. House, newly appointed dean of the Chapel Hill branch, has been given an office in the southwest corner of the building: C. T. Woollen, controller, also remains on the first floor.

The offices of Mr. Rogerson; G. M. Hill, supervisor of purchases and stores; Cashier T. H. Evans; J. A. Williams, in charge of student loans; and part of the registrar's office—all are located on the first floor of the building. Ben Husbands, assistant registrar, and Registrar T. J. Wilson, Jr., have separate offices there.

In the basement are the registrar's clerical staff, which occupies the offices formerly used by the mailing and duplicating department; the mailing and duplicating department; and the offices of M. L. Thompson and his accounting staff.

CHASE SCHEDULES MUSICAL TRYOUTS

Profit Sharing Group to Be Organized for Demonstrations.

Under the auspices of the Institute of Folk Music a student group of fiddlers and dancers will be organized this fall to give programs of square dance figures and other forms of American country dancing, English country dances, sword and Morris dances, and American mountain music.

Try-outs for students who are able to play fiddle tunes will be held from Monday to Friday at 5:00 o'clock in 209 Graham Memorial. Ability to keep time and to carry a tune or the playing of any stringed instrument are the only qualifications necessary.

The group will consist of six men, six women and the band. Their training will be under the direction of Richard Chase and will be given without charge.

Profits from demonstrations given here and in near-by schools and communities will be shared by the dancers and the band.

"DAMES"

Here are four, but there are 296 more of Busby Berkeley's beauties in Warner Bros. latest musi-gal production, "Dames," playing at the Carolina theatre today.

TALK WILL BEGIN PLAYMAKER YEAR

Fantastic Melodrama, "R. U. R.," Being Considered for First Public Production.

The Carolina Playmakers' new season will open with an illustrated lecture by Professor Frederick H. Koch on "Adventures in Playmaking," September 27. The lecture will be followed by a meeting of all those who are interested in the theatre and in Playmaker activities.

Although the plans are not completed, it seems likely that the first production will be Karel Capek's fantastic melodrama "R. U. R." (Rossum's Universal Robots). The play is a satire written as a hair-raising melodrama and contains many social implications.

The second major production of the fall quarter will be a full-length original play. Loretto Bailey, who wrote "Strike Song," is now working on a play which may be finished in time to be presented at this production.

Operetta Considered

During the winter quarter a period costume play will be presented, probably one of the famous Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. This will be followed by a bill of six original one-act plays written by students in Prof. Koch's playwriting class.

Another production of six original one-act plays will come in the spring quarter, and will be followed by the Forest Theatre presentation.

Each quarter there will be two bills of experimental plays open to all who are interested in the growth of the native drama.

This year season tickets will cost $1.50, and will admit the holder to six Playmaker productions. They may be obtained either from student salesmen or from Harry Davis at the Playmaker Theatre.

Two 175-pound veterans, Herman Snyder and Charlie Shaffer, and a 190-pound sophomore, Jim Hutchins, round out the first team backfield.

ARTIST TO OFFER PAINTING COURSE

Lena Alice Tuttle to Conduct Art Classes Three Days a Week In Peabody Hall.

Lena Alice Tuttle, native of North Carolina and winner of numerous prizes in portrait painting including the Graham Memorial silver cup, will give art classes this fall in her studio on the first floor of Peabody hall.

Classes will be conducted on two afternoons a week and on Saturday morning. Arrangements will be made so as not to offer any conflict with the student's schedule. Courses will concern painting in all its media.

Miss Tuttle comes here after teaching art for several years in Southern Pines. Her training for this work was received from Breckenridge School of Color in Gloucestor, Mass., Grand Central School and Loss School of Sculpture in New York city, and Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia, Penn.

fall training at the expense of Jim Boling, 133 reserve, but the sophomore is not considered a certainty at the position by any means.

At the halfback post pairing with Corky Cornelius, there have also been shifts. Jule Ward, 1933 sub, continues to run on the No. 1 team there but Clarence Parker has been used in the post some. Parker's punting ability may win him a berth on the first team.

Jack Alexander, sub fullback last season, has shown much spirit this season at that vacant berth and he may win him a berth on the first team. However, Paul Whitener is also working hard as fullback on the second team and may crash into the varsity lineup. Elmer Tarrall and Sam McCaskill are the blocking backs, with Tarrall having the edge at this time.

McNary Gets Position

L. G. McNary, former graduate student of the school of commerce who was appointed to the faculty of the school last year as instructor, has gone to Washington as assistant economist in the department of foreign and domestic commerce.

UNION OFFICIALS HEED PRESIDENT; TO END WALKOUT

Order Comes Through Executive Council; Influenced by Work of Mediation Board.

STRETCH-OUT ABOLISHED

Washington, Sept. 22.—(UP)—America's greatest labor uprising was ended today when union leaders called off the textile strike after three weeks of bloodshed and sabotage which resulted in 16 deaths and almost unparalleled peace-time troop movements.

Answer Plea

A call to 500,000 textile workers to return to their looms and spindles Monday morning was issued by the United Textile Workers in response to President Roosevelt's plea yesterday to end the walkout.

The order came through the textile worker's executive council, which was strongly influenced by the settlement plan of the President's mediation board headed by Governor Winant of New Hampshire.

Industrialists finally acceded to the plan, which abolished, among its three points, the stretch-out system, so hated by the striking workers.

The cost of the walkout is estimated to be between 50 and 75 million dollars, including lost wages, property damage, and national guard mobilizations.

RUSHING STARTS THIS AFTERNOON

Freshmen Must Visit All Fraternity Houses to Which They Receive Invitations Today.

Visiting hours for today, the initial day of the twelve day fraternity rushing season, have been set from 2:00 to 12:00 o'clock.

Most of the invitations have already been delivered but in some few cases due to changes of address it has been impossible to reach the new men. Invitations will be distributed to them by this afternoon. Any freshmen not receiving their cards may call by Dean Bradshaw's office on Monday.

Due to a shortage of printed cards it was necessary that some invitations be written in longhand. These are just as valid as the printed form.

Freshmen are again urged to acquaint themselves with the rushing regulations, remembering that it is compulsory that each invitation be acknowledged by a personal visit and also that they are not to make more than two dates in succession with any one fraternity.

CHEERLEADERS CALLED

All men interested in trying out for positions on the cheerleading squad are asked to report to Kenan stadium at 4:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

No steps have as yet been taken in the formation of the squad, according to Head Cheerleader Lester Ostrow. "Each man trying out is assured of a fair chance," Ostrow stated.

Infirmary

The following students were confined to the University infirmary yesterday: Don Jackson, Robert Puig, and Robert Holt.

University Club

The first official meeting of the University club will take place tomorrow afternoon at 5:00 o'clock in the club room in Graham Memorial. According to the president, it is absolutely necessary that every member be in attendance.

Plans for the Cheerios and several pep rallies will be discussed, work will be started in preparation for the season's radio programs, committees will be announced, and reports from several project committees will be made.

POLICE DISCOVER HAUPTMANN AIDE

Friend Used Same Type Certificates as Lindbergh Ransom to Return to Germany.

New York, Sept. 22.—(UP)—The baffling kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby in the spring of 1932 took rapid strides toward solution today when it was learned that Isador Fisch, friend of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, chief suspect in the case, used gold certificates of the same type as was used for the Lindbergh ransom to pay part passage to Germany from the United States.

Fisch, who left this country in 1933, died in Germany soon after. Part of his passage was paid in 10 and 20 dollar notes.

Hauptmann Weakening

Investigators tonight continued to pile more and more evidence against Hauptmann, who was said to be weakening under the constant pressure of questioning. An important break in the case was believed near as Hauptmann was questioned at the office of District Attorney Samuel Foley and ordered returned to jail for the night.

The investigators tonight turned their attention to trailing others whom they believe concerned in the case. Further information from official sources is being kept secret.

Lindberghs Returning

It was learned, however, that Colonel Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh would return here next week from the west coast where they have been taking a business and good will tour, ostensibly to take part in the investigation.

The case which has been under constant investigation by federal authorities, and which was in a large measure responsible for the passing of the federal kidnaping act broke into the headlines Thursday when police announced that the man who had received the $50,000 ransom payment made by the Lindberghs was under apprehension.

Part of the money was found in a garage near Hauptmann's home in the Bronx. The prisoner, who entered the country illegally in 1923 as a stowaway, was fleeing from jail in Germany where he had been incarcerated on a theft charge.

Folk Dancing

Freshman tryouts for the folk dancing group will be conducted in room 209 Graham Memorial daily at 5:00 o'clock, beginning tomorrow and continuing through Friday.

SUGARMAN CALLS MAGAZINE STAFF INITIAL MEETING

Gathering Scheduled for 6:45; Will Extend Only 15 Minutes Into Rushing Hours.

FROSH MEET WEDNESDAY

The first meeting of the Carolina Magazine staff is scheduled for tonight at 6:45 o'clock in 213 Graham Memorial. The meeting which will last for one half an hour, will extend only 15 minutes into the rushing period.

General Policy

The general policy of the magazine, which will be announced shortly, will be to the effect that the publication will be something more than a campus literary organ. Joe Sugarman, the editor, will present his plans briefly at the meeting tonight.

The meeting is for upperclassmen only. The editor is especially anxious that graduate students, co-eds, and students from all the various schools of the University attend the meeting in addition to the regular members of the staff.

The editor will endeavor to schedule private interviews with all interested persons attending the gathering.

Freshman Meeting

Freshmen will have an opportunity to meet with Sugarman Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock at the same place. At this meeting the relation of the magazine to freshmen will be discussed and plans will be made to train a group of freshmen writers for work on the publication.

The P. U. board last year decided to publish the Magazine in a new format, and independent from the DAILY TAR HEEL. It will be issued monthly and in regular magazine form.

GLEE CLUB WILL MEET TOMORROW AFTERNOON

The University Glee club will have its first meeting of the year at 5:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Hill Music hall. Old members and all students interested in joining the club are asked to be present.

Plans for the year will be discussed, providing for extensive trips and concerts. H. Grady Miller will direct the group.

BATTERY OF TEN ASPHALT COURTS NEARLY FINISHED

To Have Courts Completed Within Two Weeks Unless Bad Weather Prevents.

LONG DELAY EXPLAINED

By MARION ALEXANDER

Students who are interested in tennis will welcome the news that prospects are bright for the immediate completion of a battery of 10 additional asphalt courts.

Work on the foundation and drainage was completed and the final grade reached last Friday. The workmen have been held in readiness each day since to proceed with the pouring of the several coats of tar and asphalt necessary to finish the surface, but weather conditions have forced a lay-off on the work.

Officials estimated yesterday that the work could be finished in two weeks of good weather, and said that everything was set to rush it to completion as soon as there came a break in the rainy season.

Foundation Done

The foundation and drainage have been completed for another battery of 14 asphalt courts and about half of the work on the final grade. It is estimated that it will take about three days of good weather to finish this grade in addition to the time necessary to apply the tar and asphalt.

This would give the University a total of 26 all-weather courts for the use of all students in addition to the four clay courts which are reserved for the varsity.

The work of rebuilding the courts was undertaken on the strength of a grant from the Civil Works Administration. It was abruptly halted last spring by the discontinuance of the CWA.

Since that time officials have been doing everything in their power to make possible the completion of the work, but handicaps and difficulties standing in the way of their efforts have caused unavoidable delays.

A proposal to carry on the work with the University labor and funds was blocked by a government ruling. The materials which had been purchased with CWA funds, it seems, could not be used if private labor were

Enter The Finjan

By PAT GASKINS

The new name selected for the University humor publication is the Finjan. The etymology is Arabic and the word itself is taken literally from the Arabic. The definition, as given in Webster's International dictionary, is "a small coffee cup without a handle."

Not only does this new name possess distinction but it also has an authentic historical background. The story goes that in the year 1820 A. D., there lived in Arabia a wealthy coffee merchant called Sa'id, whose son Hafiz ibn Sa'id, resided in his household.

The father decided that the United States at that time represented a great potential field for the sale of coffee. This country had endeared itself to him by taking the name for that commodity from the Arabic name, kahveh.

The son, arriving in this country and being a person who was interested in the newer ideas which were to be found among students, made a tour of the leading universities in the country, including the University of North Carolina. He found to his amazement that the coffee cups in the boarding houses and university commons, especially at this University, were minus handles.

Upon his return to Arabia he informed his father of this strange custom prevalent in the new civilization. His father took the matter up with the proper authorities on philology in the country and the word finjan was coined for these handleless cups.

It is therefore with the sincere wish to perpetuate the beloved memory of Hafiz ibn Sa'id that the new publication is solemnly christened the Finjan.

Dillinger Henchmen Use Toy Pistols

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 22.—(UP)—A daring attempt to escape from the death row of the state penitentiary today resulted in the death of Charles Makley, killer for Dillinger, and the wounding of Harry Pierpont, also a Dillinger henchman. The gangsters were shot down after they broke from their cells armed with toy pistols.

BOARD APPROVES BUCCANEER MOVE

Student Advisory Board Supports Decision of Council in Forming New Comic.

The Student Advisory board yesterday approved the action recently taken by the student council in abolishing the Buccaneer and creating a new comic magazine devoted to clean humor.

The board took this action in a motion which recommended to the administration that it continue to sponsor a student humor magazine, insomuch as it has already collected the fees which would have gone to the old Buccaneer.

No Appeal

At the same meeting, the board recommended to the administration that the decision of the student council in cases involving honor be considered final and subject to no higher appeal.

The question which caused this action to be taken was the case of the student who was found guilty of cheating at a meeting of the council last spring and again this fall when his case was re-opened. It came up for the board's consideration as a result of the student's appeal to President Graham.

The Advisory board also disapproved of any plan to put three students in a dormitory room.

To set up program plans for the coming year, the sophomore and junior-senior Y. M. C. A. cabinets will convene separately tomorrow night at 7:15 o'clock in the "Y" building.

The program for the regular weekly cabinet meetings for the fall will be outlined in the sophomore group by the program committee and specific duties of members of the council will be explained by Phil Kind, president of the cabinet.

PARAGRAPHICS

The Buccaneer, says Pete Ivey, is now being published under an assumed name.

Now that South Carolina has gone wet, the governor probably looks across dry North Carolina to His Excellency in Virginia and observes that it's a long way between drinks.

Washington's investigations and probes have their place, after all. At least they bring to light a lot of senators you'd never have known were up there otherwise.

Apples in The Barrel

The major problem of a college fraternal group is not in the process of obtaining additions to its membership, but in assimilating its pledges, in stimulating them mentally, physically, morally, and spiritually, so that in the process the benefit is mutually the fraternity's and the pledges' themselves.

Freshmen join fraternities for various reasons peculiar to each individual. The lodges also have their particular measuring standards by which they judge prospective brothers, differing in the more irrelevant features but essentially based on the spirit and congeniality and common good resulting from the union. That an immense and almost complete social change is incurred in the mere act of pledging a freshman to a fraternity is a fact both interesting and significantly instructive.

The pledge, of course, invariably discards the title of "commoner" and immediately is swept away into the realm of Rho Rho Rho. His college interests undergo an amazing transformation. Rho Rho Rho supplants the Alma Mater as the focal point of his collegiate attention. His closest friends are his fraternity brothers; his pride in achievement divides itself between personal satisfaction and fraternity honor; his alumni contacts are broadened in number but limited in scope; his entire college career is thrust along synonymously with the perpetual career of his lodge.

The fraternity is affected also, for whereas the student may veer from his fraternity's course, the lodge cannot head in any direction other than that determined by its members. That direction, whether or not it is best for the group or for the pledge, is maintained as a matter of individuality by the group. So the new apple must at least match, else it is open to question by the fraternity whether or not it is rotten. Some degree of similiarity in interests and personality is essential to harmony.

Fraternities are by no means necessary to healthy college life, but a healthy fraternity life is absolutely necessary to the fraternity itself. There must be, as it were, godliness in the apple tree and cleanliness in the barrel.

Better Pay, Better Teachers

Louis Graves' survey of salary restitutions among the faculties of seven universities may bring a gleam of hope to the teaching profession when it is learned that restorations of five per cent have been made at Kentucky and Virginia this year, but this good news to faculty members throughout the south who may hope that similar restorations will be made at their institutions, does not on the whole eliminate the greatest problem that the profession has to face.

We refer to the balance that must be maintained in any institution of higher learning between teaching and research. Naturally, this problem is more acute in the face of salary cuts than in normal times. Schools are put on the map either by a good football team or a faculty that is eminent in research. Sad though it may seem, the day when they were known through the number of all-wool-and-a-yard-wide teachers is rapidly disappearing. The man who is content to teach no longer comes in for his share of glory. Research and the publication of its fruits is all too often the channel of success for the teaching profession. And teaching and research are not altogether compatible in that one is likely to suffer from the other.

Our own hope that restitutions may be forthcoming as a general good is bound up with this consideration. Better teaching will follow when it becomes a profession that is more attractive financially.

Study in Paradox

While the apprehension of the Lindbergh baby's kidnaper gives the law a long lead in its race with crime, it is nevertheless an interesting sidelight on the workings of justice that a 35 year old German could evade the law in one of the most sensational hunts in history and remain free to enjoy the blood money which he harvested from his crime. Agents of the law are not to be censured at this time, but congratulated on the triumph of justice that they have effected, however.

The intriguing side of Hauptmann's case is the way in which confusion piled itself on confusion to delay his apprehension. The great amount of publicity given to the crime which, although it was sensational news, was an invitation to "informants" and "go-betweens" to chisel in and hamper the work of authorities; the apparent simplicity of tracing the German from the note that so readily betrayed his origin; the fact that he was unlawfully in the United States; the very daring of the crime; —all these confused authorities and delayed his apprehension. As to his ransom note, the peculiar German-English mixture in which it was written led authorities to believe that a master criminal, instead of an uneducated German alien, was the kidnaper and was attempting to throw them off the track. But if our quotability serves us rightly, it was Seneca who wrote that "nothing is so odious to wisdom as too great shrewdness."

Dillinger's apprehension, paradox though it may seem, was in a way more easy in comparison. Melvin Purvis, department of justice agent, recognized the back of his head although his face was altered so as to make identification difficult. Here the law expected cleverness and knew how to deal with it.

Hauptmann's capture is not only a victory for the law, but a reminder of the obstacles which it encounters in its workings. In many respects it is surprising that Hauptmann moved so freely for two years, speculating in Wall street and otherwise enjoying his ransom loot, but the arrest of the kidnaper is now the important thing. And the delay and confusion that preceded his final apprehension should be one more page in the law's book of experience with high crime.

Under the Microscope

The eyes of an interested campus are focused on Everett dormitory, experimentation laboratory, where University officials expect to analyse in a thoroughly sympathetic manner the ability of dormitories to govern themselves and the capacity of a mildly tutorial or advisory system to provide an improvement in the present layout of student rooming houses on this campus.

Everett, of course, is not filled with special student martyrs who will act as human white rats upon which the psychologist and sociologist will work. The occupants are everyday students residing in Everett because it is a rooming house, not because it is Everett the experiment. On each floor are stationed two advisors selected from the senior class or graduate school who will be on hand to help the undergraduate inmates as the occasion arises. The government of the dormitory will evolve itself through the efforts of the students themselves to provide the best possible living conditions and will be adapted to the particular needs of the inhabitants as a group and as individuals.

Residents of Everett dormitory will have a nicely furnished social room for lounging and gathering. Students may recall that all local dormitories formerly contained this feature but it was only a matter of time in most cases before the inmates had purloined most of the upholstered furniture for themselves and so thoroughly discouraged the officials that the idea was abandoned. Now that Everett is well equipped with such a room and self-government will be given a chance, it is extremely probable that the feature will remain indefinitely and prove a successful and popular spot for the inhabitants.

As Mayne Albright, director of the project, remarked yesterday, the type and form of government resulting from the Everett population's efforts to make their surroundings most livable, will bear influence on the possible evolution of dormitory self-government on the entire campus as an additional cog in Carolina's great machine of student administration. Testing through induction and analysing by deduction will provide ample material upon which a more complete and effective system of representative administration can be based. At any rate, the inhabitants of the test-tube dorm can at least have the satisfaction of pioneering the effort.

That dormitories need absolute regulations on the actions of their inhabitants is probably untrue but that certain restrictions are healthy is essentially correct, restrictions such as the infliction and maintenance of quiet hours, for instance. Everett's actions along this line, manifested as the result of the students' initiative to improve their conditions, should be influential in the future handling by the administration of the campus rooming situation.

AIR-CONDITIONED

During the hottest of the summer's heat waves a friend of ours was seduced by the facts and figures and frosty looks of a Frigidaire, and had one installed. But within the first month his electric bill shot up alarmingly, way out of proportion to the salesman's estimate. He called up the service and raised merry hell, and the puzzled salesman sent a mechanic around to see if some faulty connection couldn't be causing the trouble. While the mechanic tinkered with the wires, black, buxom Bella, our friend's cook, was an interested spectator.

Observing her interest, the mechanic asked Bella what she thought of the machine.

"Ah likes it fine," replied Bella, fanning herself. "It sho' is a relief to have that do' open to cool this hot kitchen off these here days."

LACONIC YANKEE

And on Nantucket, an island which your map will tell you juts out beyond the mainland of the United States below Cape Cod further than anything but the northern tip of Maine, there is a sign we think you ought to know about. It points toward Wiasconscet, a little settlement on the ocean tip of he island. It reads: "'Sconscet — 3 miles; Spain—3,000 miles."

A LA NORMA SHEARER

While we had the chance, we thought we'd find out exactly what a "riptide" is, remembering the tune and the movie most of you heard and saw last spring. We learned that it occurs when two tides come together at angles, causing a suction. That is, it's not one tide going in and another out, but two tides going the same way from different directions. And that "riptide" is a perversion of the real name—"tide-rip."

SOUTHERN ACCENT

Then there is the one about the junior who came down a few days early and nearly started a fight in front of the bus terminal after a few drinks in celebration of the beginning of school. As he passed the terminal, it seems that one of the darkies lounging around in search of transfer business yelled "Trunk man?" at him. The gentleman in question got pretty mad about it. He thought the negro was yelling "Drunk man."

BLUE EAGLE BROTHERHOOD

Of course no first column of the year would be complete without a freshman story. Ours concerns the member of the Class of 1938 who was looking carefully through the handbook in the presence of his senior advisor. He looked up from one of the pages on intramural athletics, and asked the senior seriously, "Say, what fraternity is this FERA, anyway? I see here where they beat Sigma Chi."

TWO-EDGED SWORD

Another of the crop concerns a bull session on religion. Everybody concerned, including a few upperclassmen who, deigning to friendship with several of the new men, were expounding their views in a fashion worthy of Aimee McPherson, was dragging in quotations from the Book of Job in incongruous juxtaposition to the latest "isms."

Our quiet freshman, patiently waiting his turn, had plenty of time to realize that what he was about to say must carry no little weight of sophistication and daring. Out of the smoke-filled room he finally piped up:

"And I," he said impressively, "am an atheist—thank God!"

NATIONAL EVENT

A young lady of our acquaintance was expecting a child early in the fall, and naturally her friends, most of them still unmarried, were must interested in exactly when the blessed event was expected. We happened to be on hand when one of them called up to ask. The lady on our end drawled into the phone:

"Yes, Anne? . . . On Labor Day, we think. GOODbye."

WAKE FOREST OPENS "BIG FIVE" GRID SEASON WITH 62-0 VICTORY

BAPTIST TROUNCE GUILFORD ELEVEN IN SCORING ORGY

Captain Swan, Kitchin, and Edens Lead Deacons' Grid Machine to Win.

VICTORS IMPRESS SNAVELY

(Special to the DAILY TAR HEEL)

Gore Field, Wake Forest, N. C., September 22.—Wake Forest's gridiron machine rolled over a much smaller Guilford eleven here this afternoon to score a top-heavy 62-0 victory.

With Walton Kitchin, son of Wake Forest's President Thurman Kitchin, quarterback of the Baptist steam roller, the Demon-Deacons turned on all their power to display a powerful offense and equally effective defense.

Kitchin, Edens Star

Young Kitchin combined with "Tex" Edens, giant fullback, in many long gains through the Quakers' line, smashing through the line easily.

Kitchin's passing ability rifling long and short passes through the impotent Guilford defense was without peer.

Captain Pat Swan starred in the line for Wake Forest.

Coach Jim Weaver's proteges looked strong for an early season contest, and the victors showed the results of good coaching.

The DAILY TAR HEEL interviewed Coach Carl G. Snavely, North Carolina mentor, last night following the Wake Forest triumph. The Tar Heel coach was favorably impressed with the Demon-Deacons' eleven.

"Those boys have a mighty good team, and we'll find them hard to beat next Saturday. They have a bigger line, weighing—I should say, over 200 pounds. Their backfield is also heavy and especially effective, using the kicking and passing game. I believe their passers and kickers surpass my boys. Wake Forest has a strong team."

The Carolian coaching staff went over to scout the Wake Forest club which will open the University's season Saturday in Kenan stadium.

Grantland Rice Says—

New York, Sept. 22.—Grantland Rice, noted sports writer and commentator on various athletic subjects, lamented here tonight the resignation of Col. Dan McGugin as head football coach at Vanderbilt. McGugin is to become Director of Athletics, and his resignation will not be in effect until the termination of this season.

In regard to McGugin, Rice paid a striking tribute to the "Grand Old Man" of Dixie gridom. He said: "In the resignation of Dan McGugin as head football coach Vanderbilt not only loses one of the ablest football coaches of all time but also an unusual human being.

"McGugin for thirty years has been something more than one of the finest coaches in the game. He has had a marvelous influence over thousands of young men. An influence that counts heavily later on in after years. As a builder of character he has had no superior in the history of the game."

Rice concluded with: "His resignation will not only be a big loss to Vanderbilt University but also to the game itself as he has always stood for the best and finest in sportsmanship."

Ends May Prove N. C. Success

Two juniors and two sophomores who guard the flanks of the Carolina line may hold the key to the success of the Tar Heel machine this fall.

The center, guard, and tackle positions are well fortified with veterans and regulars from last year. If the play of the ends is up to par, Carolina should definitely have a strong rush-line.

Here They Are

The leading candidates for the important flank positions are Bill Moore and Gene Barwick, who won their letters as understudies with the varsity last fall, and Dick Buck and Buck McCarn, who manned the ends for the freshman eleven.

Moore and Buck, who weigh around 175 pounds, have been running first string. Barwick and McCarn are slightly heavier.

Buck has distinguished himself especially for his pass-receiving and heady defensive play at left end. He is also proficient in blocking.

McCarn's work in the blocking drills of late has been particularly good. He is a big, powerful boy, but Moore's experience and all-round ability still give him a slight edge over McCarn at the right flank.

Barwick is another big, strong boy, weighing around 185 pounds, who played some good ball last year and who is looked to for much service this fall.

The Carolina ends are being drilled intensively, along with the other lineman, as Coach Snavely seeks to lay a defense for Wake Forest's massive line and hard-running backs.

Dan McGugin Expects To Retire As Vanderbilt Football Mentor

"Grand Old Man" of Dixie Grid Coaches to Become Commodore Athletic Director.

By JAMES E. CHAPPELL
(Birmingham News)

Daniel Earl McGugin, who came to Vanderbilt as football coach in September, 1904, will retire from active coaching duties at the close of the 1934 football season, after completing his thirty-first successive season in that capacity.

He will remain as Athletic Director of Vanderbilt University, according to announcement of the Athletic association today, with "general supervision over all athletic activities of students, responsibility for schedule-making, including the development and supervision of the intramural program." He will also

Rainbow Wins Again

Newport, R. I., Sept. 22.—(UP)—Harold S. Vanderbilt skippered Rainbow, sleek U. S. defender, to another victory over T. O. M. Sopwith's blue-hulled British challenger, Endeavor, today. But the New York Yacht club racing committee received a protest from the challenger following the race.

The victory for the U. S. entry evened the count in the series for the most famous of the yachting trophies, the historic America's Cup. The Endeavor won the first two contests, and the Rainbow rallied to tie the count. Four out of seven wins are necessary to win the cup.

DUKE BACKFIELD ABOUT SETTLED

Cornelius, Tarrall, and Alexander Pretty Sure of Positions For Opening Game.

Durham, N. C., Sept. 21.—With the exception of one position, Duke university's starting backfield against V. M. I. in Lexington, Va., a week from tomorrow appears to be about set.

Of course there may be changes but, according to the way things look now, the blocking back post will be occupied by Elmer Tarrall, sub end and blocker last season, one halfback berth by Corky Cornelius, that great side-wheeling halfback, and the fullback job by Jack Alexander.

The lone place that is still very much indefinite is the halfback job pairing with Cornelius. The two chief candidates are Jule Ward, sub back last year, and Clarence Parker, sophomore.

Looking for Punter

Parker may get the call due to his ability to punt. Ward has worked hard this fall and has looked good, but Parker has any other man on the squad and the Duke mentor may be forced to start him. The punting has been poor at Duke this fall.

Alexander, the midget fullback, has shown much fight this fall and has been performing his duties well. In addition to his line-busting job, he also has the signal calling assignment. Little is known about his field generalling.

Tarrall has been running at the blocking back post most of the time since practice started but he still has a candidate close on his heels—Sam McCaskill, 1933 reserve—and Coach Wade may elect to make a shift there at any time.

THREE VETERANS AT VIRGINIA ENDS

Cavaliers Have Little to Worry About at Flanks.

University, Va., Sept. 21.—The one member of Virginia's varsity coaching staff who has little to worry him is Bob Lawson, who is tutor of the ends.

The Cavaliers have three veteran flankmen, John Leys and Cully Wilkin, who are playing in their old positions, and Ken Morton, who has been shifted down the line to guard where material is badly needed.

Wier Tucker and Don Fitzhugh, regular ends on the '33 freshman eleven, have been filling the second string wings, with Jim Peabody, George Wood and Henry Hundley fighting their way up. Coach Lawson thinks that Wood may make a name for himself before the mid-season has rolled around.

Two of these ends, incidently, have come the longest distances to play on the Virginia squad. Wilkin is from Salt Lake City, Utah, and Wood from Littleton, Colorado.

DURHAM PLANNING FOR GEORGIA TECH GAME IN OCTOBER

Chamber of Commerce and Embassy Club Work on Plans For Tech Invasion.

Durham, N. C., Sept. 22.—Plans for the largest downtown celebration in the history of Durham on the morning of the Duke-Georgia Tech football game, October 13, have been made by officials of the local chamber of commerce and the Embassy club.

The two organizations plan to co-operate in extending visitors a rousing before-game welcome. Manufacturers and merchants will be asked to furnish floats for participation in a mammoth parade.

Winning Float

According to the plans, the winning float will parade around the football field between halves with the Yellow Jacket and Blue Devil sponsors leading the procession. Three bands—the Durham high school, Duke and Georgia Tech aggregations—will take part in the parade.

Interest is also high in this and other states. The athletic and alumni offices report the largest advance reservation of tickets this far preceding a contest in the history of the university. Hundreds of alumni are expected to return for the annual alumni Home-coming Day program.

Aromatic Turkish tobacco

On the sunny slopes of Smyrna..in the fertile fields of Macedonia..from the shores of the Black Sea..that's where the best kinds grow.. the kinds used in making Chesterfields.

THERE are about as many kinds of Turkish tobacco as there are kinds of apples—but they all have a spicy aroma and flavor which seems to "season" a cigarette better than any other kind that grows.

The right Turkish is costly—but it adds something to Chesterfield's milder better taste.

When you go on your next cruise, stop at Smyrna and visit our tobacco factory. We think you will find it interesting.

Dan McGugin Expects To Retire at Vanderbilt

nominate all coaches and assistants and outline their duties and requirements and in general occupy the position at Vanderbilt University which his brother-in-law, Mr. Yost, occupies at the University of Michigan.

McGugin said in his formal letter of resignation that he tendered it with great reluctance, saying, "Football coaching is hard work. It draws pretty heavily on the physical, particularly upon the nerves. I believe one should cease this arduous service while still in good health. Besides thirty years is long enough. Another man is entitled to a chance sometime."

In coaching McGugin's emphasis was always on character, leadership, sportsmanship. As he points out in his letter he has coached about twelve hundred boys during his thirty seasons at Vanderbilt. Many of these men are accepted today as leaders in all walks of southern life. Unanimously they attest McGugin's influence on their characters and lives. There are probably few men who have exerted such tremendous influence on so many at periods in their lives when influence meant so much. A high type of sportsmanship has always characterized McGugin-coached teams, for they were always taught that some things were more important than winning.

McGugin-coached teams at Vanderbilt have won 193 games, tied 19 and lost 52. During McGugin's first four years at Vanderbilt no southern team was able to tie or defeat a Vanderbilt team, and only one, Sewanee, succeeded in scoring on Vanderbilt. Sewanee was also the first southern college both to tie and defeat a McGugin-coached team, tying in his fifth year and winning in his sixth.

employed. The labor would have to be supplied by the Emergency Relief Administration.

The scope of the latter agency was not nearly so large as that of the CWA, which it supplanted, and its emphasis was on relief instead of on the completion of worthwhile projects and improvements.

Chapel Hill and Orange county being a rural community, the number of unemployed needing relief work through the summer was reduced considerably. Consequently, the allocation of funds for the county was too small to provide the necessary labor.

A definite grant has now been secured from the FERA to provide the labor. With a little good weather, officials have every reason to believe that the ten courts can be completed and opened to students within the next few weeks, and an additional 14 courts opened a little later.

FRESHMAN YMCA COUNCIL SELECTS HEADS FOR YEAR

Coan President; Simmons, Vice-President; Andrews, Secretary; Henderson, Treasurer.

NEW MEMBERS WELCOMED

Election of officers for the coming year and talks by upperclassmen featured the Freshman Friendship council organization banquet meeting last night in Graham Memorial.

Jim Coan was elected president of the group; Gene Simmons, vice president; Graham Andrews, secretary; and Cranmer Henderson, treasurer.

Bradshaw Speaks

Among the speakers on the program was Francis F. Bradshaw, dean of students, who spoke on the challenge facing college students of today.

Jack Pool, president of the senior class and chairman of freshman Y. M. C. A. work, presided at the convocation and gave a brief welcome to the new men. Work of the council for the year was outlined.

Ministers of the town and members of the Y. M. C. A. board of directors were introduced at the session. Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the association, gave the closing benediction.

Over 100 freshmen were present at the session, a number far surpassing the organization meeting last year.

PHI PLANS FIRST MEETING TONIGHT

Smithwick to Name Committees; Bills Concern Strike Control And Late Buccaneer.

In the first session of the year, called by Speaker Robert Smithwick, the Philanthropic assembly will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in New East.

Smithwick urges that all old members of the society be present as a number of committees will be appointed to serve during the quarter. All new students and non-students who have received letters from the Phi or who are interested in debating are also asked to attend.

Two Bills

Two bills of interest to students will be discussed—Resolved: That the state of North Carolina should not have ordered national guardsmen to the strike areas; and Resolved: That the action of the student council in the case of the Buccaneer be commended.

The Phi assembly is one of the oldest college debating societies in the country. It was organized in 1795 and since its early organization has been influential in student life and the promotion of campus projects.

The following students were confined to the University infirmary yesterday: C. M. Burke, Don Jackson, N. A. Jennings, C. W. Sutton, Vincent Sexton, William Wheat, and M. L. Shaffer.

New Finjan Staff Will Meet Tonight

The Finjan staff will have its first meeting at 7:15 o'clock tonight in the office of the publication on the second floor of Graham Memorial.

Former members of the Buccaneer staff, freshmen and upperclassmen not previously connected with the humor magazine, who wish to try out for the staff are asked to be present. The meeting will be short to avoid interference with rushing activities.

Plans for the publication of the Finjan throughout the year and the editorial policy will be discussed. Assignments for the first and second issues of the year will be made so that work may begin on both simultaneously.

FLYING SQUADRON CLASSES LIST 110

Four English 1 Sections Composed of Those Who Did Exceptional Work on Test.

About 110 freshmen whose English placement tests showed that they might be able to do superior work were tentatively placed in "flying squadrons," advanced English 1 sections, it was announced yesterday by Dr. A. P. Hudson, chairman of the first-year English department.

Of the 703 students enrolled in freshman English up to 1:00 o'clock yesterday, 87 were put in English "A", 558 in English 1, and 58 in English 3. These figures include all divisions except the engineering school.

26 Sections

English 1, the normal course for entering freshmen, is composed of four "flying squadron" sections enrolling 110 first-year men, and 22 sections of 448 students whose tests indicated average preparation and ability.

English "A," composed of three sections, is made up of freshmen whose tests showed unpreparedness to do work of a college level. "These students, unless they show by their work that they did not do themselves justice on their placement tests, will be kept for one quarter's work designed to help them remove their disability," stated Dr. Hudson. "For them some of the ablest and most experienced instructors have been chosen."

"English 'A' men have everything to gain by making better showings on class work that they did on their first tests. Middling men in English 1 have a chance for promotion to flying squadrons. Conversely, all English 1 students run the risk of demotion. Classification is not final until after the first ten days or two weeks of the quarter," Dr. Hudson continued.

English 3 Crowded

English 3 sections are made up of upperclassmen who got behind one quarter on their freshman English and of transfer students who have had the equivalent of English 1 and 2. Accepted registrants in this group will have to make good at the outset and maintain themselves or be dropped from the course, for the two sections are badly crowded.

Unionists Threaten Courthouse If Jobs Are Not Given Back

GORMAN URGES PATIENCE

Washington, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Union leaders moved swiftly tonight to silence the angry mutterings in textile areas where thousands of employees rose in vigorous protest because mill owners refused to re-employ them because of their participation in the nation-wide strike.

Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the textile strike committee, urged the protesting workers, who were scheduled to go to work this morning, to be patient. Gorman also stated emphatically that the union would not tolerate discrimination against strikers.

As a clinching argument, he pointed out that President Roosevelt himself had urged industrialists to re-employ strikers without discrimination.

Concord, N. C., Sept. 24.—(UP)—North Carolina unionists marched on the courthouse here today claiming that their jobs had been filled unfairly and threatened to occupy the building until they were re-employed.

R. R. Lawrence, president of the North Carolina Federation of Labor, charged that 10,000 workers had been discharged on the grounds of their union membership and participation in the textile walkout.

WOLFE RELEASES NOVEL TO PRESS

Second Work by Author of "Look Homeward, Angel" to Appear.

Thomas Wolfe, '20, author of "Look Homeward, Angel," has placed in the hands of his publishers, Charles Scribner's Sons, the manuscript of his second novel, which will be called "Of Time and the River," with the subtitle, "A Legend of Man's Hunger in His Youth."

As the manuscript runs to 450,000 words, the publishers are uncertain as to when the book will be ready for publication. Scribner's already have in hand a collection of long stories by Wolfe, but this will not be published until after the appearance of the new novel.

Mystic Oriental Symbols Bring Ghosts Of Pharaohs To Co-eds

By MARGARET E. GAINES

Mystic symbols of death and re-birth, perpetuated from the time of the pharaohs, contrast strangely with the usual furnishings of Spencer hall, but Miss Hester Barlow, who comes from Egypt, is very much at home in her surroundings.

Miss Barlow, who lived in Egypt with her father, is at the University for the purpose of doing research work for the Rockefeller Foundation. And quite in keeping with the bizarre background in which she lives, the co-ed is studying means of preventing a long, very-hard-to-spell, disease—billharziasis, which about 97 per cent of eastern populations contract from an impure water supply.

A large red Persian tapestry is the first thing that confronts the visitor to her room. This exotic work of art is a sight that is not easily forgotten. In its center is pictured the tree of life, which the Persian religion, Miss Barlow explained, as well as Buddhism uses to symbolize the immortality of the soul. Woven on either side of this life-tree is a phoenix, the mythological bird which, consumed by fire, rises from its own ashes and thus represents re-birth into another life. Geometric symbols on the tapestry depict man's life-stages, and the entire tapestry is beautifully bordered in palm leaves.

"It was used as a belt 350 years ago in Sheraz, Persia," remarked Miss Barlow. "Little boys working for two and one-half cents a day made it."

Phil Hammer Resigns Position As University Club President

Coach Will Address Freshman Assembly

Coach Carl G. Snavely, University football mentor, will address freshman assembly this morning at 10:30 o'clock in Memorial hall.

Snavely, who was selected University football coach by the Carolina athletic council last winter, is a popular speaker and addressed the first-year men last year in one of the most humorous talks of the season.

A native of Arkansas, the new coach mixes Virginia anecdotes in his discourses on football in a humorous manner.

Snavely has been coaching 18 years, teaches a modified Warner system, and came to Carolina from Bucknell University. Pop Warner rated him last year as one of the best coaches in the country.

SUSPECT AWAITS LINDY'S SCRUTINY

Lindbergh Will Appear Wednesday to Try to Identify Hauptmann as Ransom Receiver.

New York, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will attempt to identify Bruno Hauptmann as the man whom he saw outside the Bronx cemetery when the ransom money was handed over the fence in the spring of 1932, it was learned here tonight.

Colonel Lindbergh, who was reported at Winslow, Ariz., yesterday, is expected to arrive in New York Wednesday in order to appear before the Bronx county grand jury.

Jersey To Ask Extradiction

New Jersey authorities today announced that they will ask extradition of the German immigrant probably next week in order to bring trial against him on kidnaping and murder charges.

Hauptmann, refreshed after a day's rest, was today arraigned in the Bronx magistrate's court on a charge of extortion in the Lindbergh case.

Case Adjourned

Magistrate Mogilesky at the request of Assistant District Attorney Andrew C. McCarthy adjourned the case until Monday, October 1. The entire procedure lasted but three minutes.

James M. Fawcett, attorney for the prisoner, today said that he has startling information which is being carefully investigated and if true will split the case wide open.

Colonel Henry Breckenridge, the Lindbergh attorney, is expected to appear before the grand jury Tuesday or Wednesday. The jury is at present examining seven witnesses in the case.

Grail Meeting

The Order of the Grail will meet at 10:00 tonight on the second floor of Graham Memorial.

All new men interested in trying out for the DAILY TAR HEEL staff are asked to call at the office of the publication on the second floor of Graham Memorial between 3:00 and 4:00 o'clock today, Wednesday and Thursday.

Willingham Assumes Duties As Successor

Plans for Quarter Include Weekly Broadcasts Begun by Organization Last Spring.

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED

Phil Hammer, elected president of the University club last spring, resigned his position at the first meeting of the organization which took place last evening. Frank Willingham was elected to succeed Hammer, who assumed the position of president ex-officio.

Hammer, who served as the president of the organization for two months during the last school year, was forced to give up his office because of lack of time due to working as a part-time self-help student and to other campus activities. He therefore felt an inability to do full justice to his office. He is serving at present as chairman of the editorial board of the DAILY TAR HEEL, and until last night acted as secretary of the Y. M. C. A., a position from which he resigned last night.

Outline Plans

The skeleton outline of the club's plans for the fall quarter which were presented to the organization includes weekly radio broadcasts, organization of the Cheerios, entertainment of visiting athletic teams, and the decoration of the campus for the homecoming day.

LIBRARY EXHIBITS BOOK COLLECTION

Volumes Among First Illustrated after Invention of Printing; Part of Hanes Collection.

The University library has placed on exhibition in the lobby a number of fifteenth century illustrated books. The volumes shown are among the first books to be illustrated after the invention of printing.

Some of the books in the exhibit are illustrated editions of such classics as Livy, Virgil, and Dante. There are also illustrated Bibles and other religious works, and several books on astronomy.

Histories

The exhibit also includes five histories of the world, two of them editions of the famous Nuremberg Chronicle, considered one of the most profusely illustrated books of the middle ages.

These volumes are part of the Hanes collection on the history of writing and book making. The library is planning a number of interesting exhibitions this year, according to R. B. Downs, librarian of the University. The exhibitions will be changed about every five weeks.

Di Meets Tonight

The Dialectic senate will convene tonight at 7:15 o'clock on the third floor of New West building, it was announced yesterday by Mason Gibbes, president.

All members of the organization last year are urged by President Gibbes to attend. A talk by the president will be presented and one bill will be discussed.

PARAGRAPHICS

One solution to the problem of governmental finance would be to plow under every third FERA worker.

Upton Sinclair's program for California may be EPIC, but it sounds suspiciously like a Hollywood movie blurb to us.

A textilist is the only man who has a right to go fishing and come home happy because he didn't get a single strike.

Spirit of College Humor

When in the course of the humorous events that have recently transpired on this campus, it becomes necessary to resort to etymology to provide a comic monthly with a name, there is something in this declaration of independence from its former status that strikes us as being very, very amusing.

We are by no means opposed to Editor Pat Gaskins' choice of "Finjan" for the name of the "new" magazine that will supplant the Buccaneer. To us, in fact, it suggests a college comic, which is highly desirable in so far as it purports to be the name of a college comic; and, without groping for a simile, we should say off-hand that it is every whit as euphonious as, for instance, the Alabama Rammer-Jammer.

But leaving this idle speculation, we resume the course of humorous events that have followed in the wake of (alias) the Buccaneer. From the student council's unfortunate, though righteous, encounter with this publication to the administration's sleepless nights over its contents, the career of the late Buccaneer has been one long laugh. Yet even this is as it should be, for what else is the purpose of a monthly humorous magazine if it is not to make its audience laugh?

Our only query now that the status of the magazine has been settled apparently to the satisfaction of all concerned, is: Why was it necessary to change the name of the magazine at all? Why should its declaration of independence from filth have required a change from Buccaneer to Finjan?

Our only answer finds its roots in the thoroughly human desire to put a new label on a cracked bottle. "Buccaneer" is a horrid old word, suggestive of lurid cartoons and sexy wisecracks. But "Finjan"—what else does it connote but the purest of intentions, the most docile of humor, and sweetness and light?

Fewer Appeals For Justice's Sake

At its first meeting of the year the student welfare board made a recommendation to the president of the Greater University that should prove a far-reaching precedent in the matter of the appealing of honor cases tried by the student council.

This decision was prompted by the fact that the student council had recently tried a student for cheating and had unanimously found him guilty. The student was tried twice, once by the committee of the student council which passes on routine cases, and once by the entire council, a trial which the student accused can demand if he protests the decision of the committee. In both instances, we repeat, he was unanimously found guilty. Yet that student desired a further appeal, and the substance of the welfare board's decision was that it should not be granted.

This recommendation to the administration also advised against appeals in general. In the past they always have been a source of trouble; the so-called boards of appeals have only had a temporary, appointive status; and dissatisfied students have abused this privilege by prolonging unnecessarily what was often a clear case of guilt. Furthermore, a disgruntled student, suspended from school yet remaining in Chapel Hill on the something-for-nothing chance that his case may be cleared, can do the student council a great deal of harm by questioning its judgment.

We do not mean to say that new evidence is not grounds for an appeal; the student council has always recognized this as only fair. But past experience has proved that most appeals cases have no legs on which to stand and only require the time and trouble of others in reveiwing them. For the sake of fair trials and speedy justice, we hope that the advisory board's recommendation to the president will establish the precedent of discouraging such groundless appeals.

Century Of Progress

Farers at Swain hall in particular and at the dining halls of other colleges in general may take heart from a recent article in the New York Times entitled "Better Food for the College Man." "A new idea has been set up in most colleges," says the writer; "it aims at sound health and mental and physical efficiency built in part upon the right combination of foods and their preparation."

The food at college dining halls has improved enormously compared with the early days of our American institutions of higher learning. The Times recalls "the good old days." Early Harvard students revolted against unclean hasty pudding and mackerel too nearly au naturel. Breakfast for more than a century, we are told, was bread and beer, "both often sour," while dinner consisted of salt beef and supper of bread and milk. At Yale in 1828 occurred the Bread and Butter Rebellion, on the occasion of which a student penned the following eloquent distich:

O who, some with a quaking heart, e'er looked
On wormy cabbage; though by Homer cooked.

Even the most confirmedly dyspeptic student, in face of this testimony, could not stare down the fact that there has been, gastronomically speaking, a century of progress.

Pardon Our Southern Accent

Grant and Lee and all the old boys would really be tickled to death to glance down the roster of University students; there, besides the names of a considerable portion of Carolina's student body, they would find home ports listed from far and beyond that fickle Mason and Dixon line, home ports whose local sons have trekked southward to the land of the Tar Heel to mix and mingle and be educated.

Northerners and westerners, with brogues and accents and drawls and twangs, flock to this campus for a multitude of reasons: financial, intellectual, social, adventurous, and nebulous. And what they are doing to the element of the southland when they bring their customs, their opinions, and their habits is interesting in its very effect not only on the southerners but on themselves also.

To become truly Tar Heels, they should shuffle their way along, drawl slowly, consume the least possible amount of energy, and drowse lazily in the warm southern sunshine. And for the Tar Heel to become a true Newarkite, he must snap about importantly, look busy, master the commanding brogue, and consume every possible amount of energy. But neither the northerner nor the southerner has any idea of forsaking the traditions of his race, so each adopts a part of the other's repertoire and the result is amazingly satisfactory.

Tar Heels polish up the shuffle into a walk of almost decent briskness, while Hoboken slows down to a respectable trot; drawls snap into an intelligible diction while brogues mellow themselves into pleasant tones; southern faces look even intelligent and northern countenances unwrinkle and appear sublimely oblivious of the weight of the world; the Carolina gentlemen is now a half-breed, Tar Heel born, Yankee fed, and when he dies, he's a dual personality gone the way of all good American citizens.

This heterogeneousness is a healthy condition. It's a wise and provincial bird who knows he's from Schenectady nowadays.

Profitless Kidnaping

Arthur W. Roebuck, attorney general of Canada, has conceived a trenchant means of stopping kidnaping before it gets started. Canada's first major kidnaping, the abduction of John Labatt, millionaire brewer, may be said to be the "start" of this insidious racket in that country. Roebuck is determined to put a stop to it before it gets well under way, and his means of doing it is, to say the least, unusual.

The attorney general plans to ask the next Ontario parliament to pass a law which will prevent the payment of ransom. Canadians may follow the letter of their laws more closely and more conscientiously than Americans, but from this country's experience with laws that seek to counterpoint private liberties, notably the prohibition law, our own judgment would be that a law to prevent ransom payments would be a hard one to enforce. In the hysteria that follows a kidnaping and the anxiety on the part of relatives to do all in their power to secure the release of the kidnaped, it will be a problem to prevent.

While it might entail some relinquishing of its vaunted freedom on the part of the press, our own consideration of the matter leads us to believe that soft-pedaling the fact that ransom payments are made would be a more effective means of discouraging the incursions of new-comers into the racket. At least, the kidnaping of Labatt, whose release was secured through the as yet unproven statement that no ransom was paid, shows that kidnaping, through the co-operation of the press, can be advertised as an unprofitable business.

The median of all tests scores, the upper 100, and the lower 75 were computed by officials to determine the high, middling, and low sections.

Placement testing has continued all during the past week for late-comers, after the first scheduled examination Monday. It is calculated that the total registration in freshman English for the colleges of liberal arts, applied science, commerce, and pharmacy will run to approximately 730 students by the end of the registration period.

birth, figures prominently in the decoration of Miss Barlow's oriental room. Embroidered on one of her sofa pillows, it forms part of the copy of a pattern commonly found on the walls of Egyptian tombs. A second pillow is a representation of the wall of an Egyptian temple and pictures one of the pharaohs riding in a chariot. The kings of that early civilization are often used to decorate rooms, according to Miss Barlow.

The deep concern of the Egyptians over their after-life is in evidence even down to the decorative features of the smallest piece of bric-a-brac. A hint of the elaborate ritual prescribed in the mystic "Book of the Dead" is contained in the figure of one of the eighteenth dynasty pharoahs (about 600 B. C.) which stands in the center of Miss Barlow's desk. It was the custom, she relates, to put these figures on possessions in the royal tombs—possessions buried with the deceased owner—in order that he might have all his property with him in the "Kingdom Beyond the Seas." Had one of the kings failed to identify himself in this way, he would have remained propertyless in the other world.

The wood on which this curious little statue stands came from the supporting beams of the tomb of Tutmoses III. Cast in bronze, the pharaoh miniature wears the familiar headgear of ancient Egypt.

On either side of the statue are two small lamps which Miss Barlow found on the edge of one of the largest cases in Egypt, the Fayoum. Curiously enough, these lamps are made of mud. They were once used to lighten the gloom of desert nights, but now have been converted by Miss Barlow into attractive bookends.

Weapons used for ornamentation in the room are curious witnesses of African lore. At one side of the entrance to Miss Barlow's room are two steel spears and a silver Soudanese dagger. The dagger's sheath is made of crocodile hide, which stands for strength in the minds of the natives according to Miss Barlow; interwoven with it is gazelle leather, representing swiftness.

"The spears are used in a strange African custom," explained the co-ed. "Two men, standing about 25 feet apart, throw them at each other in a sort of duel. They defend themselves from the deadly throws only with a kind of 'shield'—in reality a stick about three inches wide and three feet long. If one is wounded, his family brings suit against the thrower, since the honor of the wounded man would be degraded if this was not done. The British courts have had no little trouble with these suits for what they term 'blood money.'

Miss Barlow sometimes wears a crude silver Soudanese ring. "Native women wear from one to two rings like this one on each finger," she remarked humorously," and use them for both ornaments and weapons of defense. One of the oldest forms of the brass knuckle there is, I suppose!"

Strange customs and strange workmanship go hand in hand with what seems the almost illimitable number of decorative objects that Miss Barlow has brought with her from Egypt. A Persian belt from Teheran, a mirror of Arabic design—these and many other curios from the Near East make the co-ed from Egypt "at home" in Spencer hall, where Kipling's twain, of all places, choose to meet.

Coach Snavely Drills Varsity Long, Hard In Secret Practice For Battle With Wake Forest

Wake Forest to Bring Formidable Team Saturday; Fast Offense, Tight Defense.

WORK ON PASS DEFENSE

Varsity to Scrimmage Yearlings Today at Emerson; Frosh to Use Deacon Formations.

Coach Carl Snavely sent his Carolina grid squad through a long workout on Emerson field behind closed gates yesterday afternoon in preparation for what is almost a certain battle when the Tar Heels take on Wake Forest in the opening game here Saturday.

The Deacons established themselves as a powerful and dangerous team as a result of the 62-0 victory over Guilford last Saturday and reports say that they didn't show anything but straight plays and passes against the Quakers.

After witnessing the Wake Forest offense Coach Snavely devoted most of yesterday's work on defense, especially for the aerial game.

Tackling Practice

The new Carolina mentor is still not satisfied with the tackling and opened the work with a short tackling practice. The first two sets of backfields and ends were then sent through a long tag game in which pass-defense was stressed. Coach Snavely continued to experiment with the passers in an effort to find a capable man to fill the injured Jackson's shoes.

Bobby Stewart, sophomore back, took a shot at passing and did fairly well, while Dick Dashiell, Jim McCachren, Jim Hutchins, and Eddie Martin also worked on passing.

Coach Snavely sent his squad through a long dummy scrimmage and a snappy signal drill before releasing them for the night. The squad will probably take a scrimmage this afternoon against the freshman squad which worked yesterday on Wake Forest's formation and plays.

First Team Intact

Coach Snavely still likes his first string composed of Buck and Moore, ends; Tatum and Trimpey or Evins, tackles; Barclay and Kahn, guards; Daniel, center; Dashiell and Shaffer, halfbacks; Snyder, blocking back; and Hutchins, fullback.

However, the Carolina coach is still trying to find some capable reserve material. Lex Moser, big tackle from Charlotte, was moved up to second string tackle in place of Wrenn, while Chilly Childers played on the first reserve team in place of Barwick, who is taking it easy because of a slight injury.

The second backfield which worked was made up of McCachren at fullback; Dunham, blocking back; and Martin, Montgomery, Moore, and Stewart alter-

Rainbow Gets Win And Now Leads, 3-2

Newport, R. I., Sept. 24.—(UP) — Rainbow, Harold S. Vanderbilt's trim America Cup defender, scored its third straight triumph over T. O. M. Sopwith's English challenger Endeavor today, defeating the British entry by four minutes and one second.

Vanderbilt's sleek craft needs only one more victory to clinch the series and retain the historic yachting trophy for the United States. Sopwith's yacht won the first two races but has been trounced in close matches by the American craft since.

OLD LINERS LOOK GOOD IN PRACTICE

Terps Well-Balanced Except for Ends; Plenty of Lettermen And Rising Sophs.

College Park, Md.—After two weeks on the field in two sessions a day, it appears that if the University of Maryland can develop a couple of capable reserve ends and teach some of its "green" backs the art of secondary defense it will be well fixed to combat its tough ten game football schedule.

The Old Line squad is well balanced, except for the needed wingmen, and contains plenty of poundage and speed to make its outlook the brightest since its great 1931 eleven.

If Maryland had to put a team on the field right now, it could present the following array of letter men: Louis Ennis and Bernie Buscher, ends; Ed Minion and Charles Callahan, Brooks Bradley and John Simpson, guards; Harry Gretz, center and Dick Nelson, Earl Widmyer, Joe Crecca and George Sachs, backs. All of these were regulars last year, except Gretz, Crecca and Sachs and they were near-regulars.

Strong Reserves

Insignia winners to back them up who are on hand are Bill Garrott and Luther Goldman, linemen, and Charlie Yaeger, back, who won their letters last fall, and Norwood Sothoron, back, and Al Farrall, tackle, who were 1932 regulars but who did not play last season.

Vic Willis, 6 foot 5 inch 190 pounder, who was on the 1932 freshman squad but who was out of school the first semester of 1933, is likely to be one of the end reserves. Garrott has been shifted from guard to take a shot at the wing job and promises to fill the bill. Others also will be tested at this position.

Bill Guckeyson, who never played football until as a Terp freshman last fall but who bids fair to be a shining light, Jack Stonebraker, Coleman Headley, Charles Ellinger, Ed Daly, and John Gormley are products of the yearlings who join with the seasoned talent to give Maryland the best backfield array in quantity and quality combined that it has boasted at one time.

Charles Zulick, John Birkland, Robert Lenzen, Ed Quigley, Bill Edwards, and Ed Fletcher also are a half dozen linemen who will make the 1933 regulars step.

Maryland also has fine center prospects in Bill Andorka, who was ineligible last year. He tips the scales at 170 pounds, and is rangy and agile. Gretz is a fine little pivot man but he weighs only 156 and made his letter last fall in backing up Tom Webb, the 1933 regular who left school last February.

New Orleans Wins Baseball Playoff

New Orleans, Sept. 24.—(UP) — The New Orleans Pelicans won the Southern Association championship here today by defeating Nashville 2-0 in the fifth and deciding game of the play-off series. Nashville won the first half of the pennant race while New Orleans came out ahead in the second half.

The victory gave New Orleans the right to meet the winner of the Texas league playoff in the Dixie Series which will start Wednesday. Galveston and San Antonio are now playing for the Texas title.

TAR HEEL LEADERS

Coach Carl Snavely and Captain George Barclay who will have the first chance to demonstrate their ability as leaders of the Tar Heel football team this Saturday when Carolina meets Wake Forest in Kenan stadium. Coach Snavely will introduce his modified Warner system for the first time at Carolina, while Captain Barclay will make his first bid for all-American honors this year.

MANY COLLEGIANS STAR ON DIAMOND IN COAST LEAGUE

Tar Heels Perform on League Leading Kinston Team, Managed by Bunn Hearn.

GUY FLETCHER IS BANNED

The Coastal Plain League which operated on the sands of eastern Carolina diamonds this summer looked very much like an intercollegiate conference.

Managed by Bunn Hearn, Tar Heel maestro of the past highly successful seasons, the Kinston nine was composed mostly of college stars of the Southern Conference. They played ball, and so well, that they copped the first place honors for the league. But by a league ruling they had to play the second place team for the privilege of claiming the championship. Kinston played Greenville and the latter club added another scalp to their belt.

Fast Ball

There was some fast ball played down on these coastal lots this summer and the Kinston club did more than its share of the shining. The Hearn-managed infield consisted of "Red" Hayworth, Virgil Weathers, Tommy Irwin, and Gene Zaiser. Jim Tatum took the duties behind the plate while Orlin "Lefty" Rogers, and Ted Bolger took the brunt of the mound attack. Thurman Vick and Sandy Peele were the stand-outs of the outer gardens.

The all-star team picked by the New Bern paper placed five of the Kinstonians. Weathers, Irwin, and Zaiser were put at second, short, and third, while Rogers and Bolger rated as pitchers. The Kinston paper, which chose two men for each position, placed nine of the home talent on their all-star selection.

Four from Carolina

Four Tar Heels worked with the team during the summer.

Virgil Weathers played the first month with the Asheville team in the Piedmont League and then moved east to join the Kinston nine. Tommy Irwin, flashy sophomore shortstop this past season, played all season with Coach Hearn as well as Thurman Vick, captain of the 1935 nine. Jim Tatum received some valuable training behind the bat, a position which he will be called on to hold down next year.

Guy Fletcher, star of the Carolina frosh mound work, pitched the the Kinston team to ten victories before the Greenville club argued his eligibility. He was declared a pro and henceforth will be lost to the University team.

FROSH FOOTBALL SQUAD PRACTICES WITH SCRIMMAGE

Yearlings Learn Wake Forest Plays; Look Fairly Good in Short Skirmish.

TEAM HEAVY AND FAST

A light scrimmage featured the opening practice of the week for the Tar Baby gridironers, as Coaches James and Fysal with the aid of Assistant Varsity Coach Skidmore began the gradual weeding out of the best prospects.

The mentors drilled the yearlings on Wake Forest plays and formations most of the afternoon which are to be used against the varsity today in a scrimmage. The "A" and "B" teams looked fairly good as they used these Deacon attacks against a "C" squad.

The first two teams chosen are by no means the best in the bunch. Several of the fellows on the defense team looked good and stand a fine chance of rising. Coach James stated that during the afternoon he noted several men who will be promoted and vice versa.

Heavy Squad

The squad as a whole is one of the heaviest first year groups ever assembled here on the Hill. The best looking prospects or the cream of the crop will average a little over 180 pounds. Juliper, a tackle who has shown up well, steps the scales heavier than anyone else with his 215 pounds.

The fellows who seem to be showing the most promise to date include: Avery, Ax, Bartos, Berchack, Bucklemyer, Burnette, Coffey, Crowell, Ditt, Dixon, Dunlap, Fields, Gaydos, Gordon, Graves, Hudicka, Israel, Juliper, Kaluk, Kenney, Leake, Lloyd, Moffitt, Nickaluk, Palmer, Peiffer, Rice, Roth, Scherer, Smith, Thomas, Tyson, Walborn, and Wolfe.

The first game of the schedule is with Wake Forest Frosh on Friday, October 12 here.

ST. LOUIS PICKS UP HALF A GAME

Cardinals Whip Chicago While Giants Are Idle; Yankees Lose All Hope.

St. Louis continued its fast pace in the race for National league pennant honors and moved within two games of the league-leading Giants as a result of a 3-1 win over the Chicago Cubs while New York was idle.

The Cardinals now have six more games remaining to play while the Giants must meet four opponents before the season closes. This leaves St. Louis still in an excellent position to overtake the Champions.

Lefty Walker, a former star with the Giants, was on the mound for the Cardinals and held the third place Cubs to one run and seven hits. His mates got on the usually effective Warneke for 11 safe blows and three runs. The win with Walker in the box gives Frankie Frisch a chance to send the Dean brothers against Chicago in the next two games.

The New York Yankees lost all hopes to overtake Detroit in the American loop race as they went down before Boston 5-0. The loss put New York six games behind the Tigers. The Yankees and Detroit each has only five tilts to play before the season closes.

No More Gesundheit

State officials "cracked down" on beer wholesalers who had been selling beer with a percentage in excess of the 3.2 prescribed by law last week.

The result has been to make unavailable any such brands such as Ram's Head, Boar's Head, and Piel at any Chapel Hill restaurants. The fine for selling these beers is $1,000.

Seven Lettermen Report For First Cross Country Practice

Captain Williamson, Ed McRae, And Ed Waldrop Expected To Be Aces of Team.

TO RUN TENNESSEE FIRST

Opening Meet Scheduled for Kenan Stadium October 6; Conference Battle Here.

The return of seven lettermen plus a number of sophomores and capable reserves spells optimism in the Carolina cross-country camp this fall.

Led by the versatile Captain Harry Williamson, the Tar Heel harriers are expected to go places this season. Ed McRae and Ed Waldrop are expected to share honors with Captain Williamson.

McRae, who has starred on Carolina track teams for the last three years, set a new Southern Conference record for the indoor mile and also won the conference outdoor mile last season. An injury kept him from participating on the cross country team last year. Waldrop is remembered as a consistent distance performer, who surprised track fans by winning the Southern Conference two mile last spring.

Open Against Tennessee

The harriers will open the season against Tennessee on October 6, while the Tar Heel football team is entertaining the Vols in Kenan stadium. Other cross country meets have been arranged with State, Duke, Davidson, and possibly Washington and Lee. The season will close with the Southern Conference meet being held in Chapel Hill.

A list of those reporting for cross country includes: Captain Williamson, McRae, Waldrop, Curlee, Haywood, Conte and Goldman, lettermen; Neel, a re-

Hobbs Explains New Curriculum As Applied To Upperclassmen

Require Four Courses In Only One Language

Two Courses in Latin or Greek May Be Taken for Freshman Math Requirements.

FRESHMAN SCIENCE ADDED

Curriculum changes as they apply to freshmen and sophomores were explained yesterday in a statement from Dr. A. W. Hobbs, dean of the liberal arts school.

This year freshmen and sophomores may elect to take the new curriculum, but juniors and seniors cannot gain any advantage from the new set-up as passed by the University faculty last spring. Next fall all freshmen will be required to pursue their studies under the new plan.

May Omit Math

In the college of liberal arts under the new curriculum, four college courses in one foreign language will satisfy the first and second-year requirements, provided the other requisites of the set-up are met. Two college courses in Latin or Greek may also be taken instead of freshman mathematics.

Next year freshmen will take five courses a quarter, each meeting three hours a week. A freshman science in the first year will be the chief addition on the program.

When the new set-up goes fully into effect, the curriculum program for the first-year in the University will be: English 1, 2, 3, three hours a week as now; social science 1, 2, 3, three hours a week as now in freshman history; foreign language, three courses, three hours a week; math or Latin or Greek, three courses, three hours a week; freshman science 1, 2, 3, three hours a week.

EVERETT ELECTS LEADERS TONIGHT

Bradshaw to Speak at Meeting of Experimental Self-Rule Dorm In Graham Memorial.

Everett dormitory, scene of the University's experimentation in dormitory self-rule, will have a smoker tonight at 9:15 o'clock in Graham Memorial in order to finish the election of officers.

Francis Bradshaw, dean of students, will be the principal speaker at the meeting.

At this time the nominations committee which was selected at the first organization meeting last Saturday will present a list of nominees for the offices of president, vice-president, council men, and athletic manager.

At the organization meeting Saturday it was voted that the period of quiet should begin at 8:00 o'clock every evening except Saturday. On that evening it will not begin until midnight.

Mayne Albright, former director of Graham Memorial and present director of the Everett experiment, announced yesterday that a wicker suite and subscriptions to two newspapers and one magazine have already been obtained for the dormitory social room.

The list of advisors for the dormitory includes Ed McRae, Ed Waldrop, Henry Connor, Tom Hawthorne, Tom Leath, and Emmet Willis.

INTER-SCHOOL RELATIONS COMMITTEE WILL MEET

Billy Yandell, chairman of the inter-school relations committee of the University club, announced yesterday that the group will meet tomorrow night in the club room at 8:00 o'clock. Discussion of plans for the Wake Forest game will comprise the business for the evening.

The members of the committee are Tom Fawcett, George Hux, Arthur Simkowitz, Gayle Rogers, Tom Evins, Paul Allen, and Bill Fletcher.

MEDICAL SCHOOL OPENS 44TH YEAR

Students Unusually Well Prepared, According to Dr. Mangum; Building Renovated.

The University medical school has opened for the forty-fourth session with a full class of unusually well prepared students, according to Dr. C. S. Mangum, dean of the school.

During the summer, the medical building was renovated, rewired, completely repainted inside, and equipped with new and modern electrical fixtures throughout. The third floor of the building is being re-arranged and developed as a well-equipped department for the housing of dogs, with store rooms and operating rooms for animals.

"This removal of the dogs to the third floor and into quarters, the walls of which are padded, ought to materially decrease if not entirely remove the nuisance which the dogs have created in past years to those living near the medical building," said Dr. Mangum. It will probably be a few weeks before the new quarters will be ready, but the authorities plan to effect this change as soon as practical.

Two Added

Two additional men have been added to the University medical faculty recently, Dr. Mangum announced. They are Dr. A. S. Rose, who will become associate professor of anatomy, and Dr. W. R. Berryhill, who will be associate professor of pathological physiology and physical diagnosis.

Dr. Rose is an alumnus of Davidson college and the University medical school, and received his M.D. at Harvard University. He won a teaching fellowship in anatomy at Harvard, and was also an instructor in anatomy there. During the past year at Harvard, he taught clinical neurology.

Dr. Berryhill is an alumnus of the University, received his M.D. from Harvard University, and for three years was an instructor in the Department of Internal Medicine at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio. For the past year he has been in charge of tht infirmary.

Staff Tryouts

All students interested in trying out for the staff of the DAILY TAR HEEL are requested to report to the editorial offices this afternoon between the hours of 3:00 and 4:00 o'clock.

The Eagle Scout club will convene tonight at 8:00 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

FERA GIVES JOBS TO 2,446 NEEDY IN N. C. COLLEGES

Twelve Per Cent of Students in Accredited State Institutions Last Year Get Aid.

289 ARE HELPED HERE

Over 2,446 students, 12 per cent of the 20,300 individuals enrolled in accredited North Carolina colleges last year, are receiving help from FERA in accredited state institutions this year, according to figures released by federal relief authorities this week.

$15 Per Month

Averaging $15 a month for each student, these 49 accredited colleges in North Carolina are receiving $36,675 each month from the federal funds. For the nine months school term the sum will exceed $330,075. This figure approximates the entire cost of operating the Chapel Hill unit of the University of North Carolina for the same length of time.

Last year 241 Carolina men were aided by federal funds in a similar manner. This was 10 per cent of the enrollment for October 1933. At present 289, or 12 per cent of last October's enrollment, are to be given this help. At $15 per month, the Chapel Hill unit total alone amounts to $4,335 each month. For the 1934-35 school year the figure will near $40,000.

12 Per Cent

Early instructions concerning FERA funds held the colleges to allotments on the basis of the student body, actually 12 per cent, and provided that "there shall be an equitable division between sexes—in proportion to the enrollment of each in the particular school." Difficulties arose, however, when it was discovered that in co-educational schools the pro rata share of the girls was not used up and

SMITHWICK NAMES FOUR COMMITTEES FOR PHI ASSEMBLY

Group Discusses Action of Student Council in Buc Case.

In the first meeting of the year for the Phi assembly, four new committees were appointed by Robert Smithwick, speaker of the group.

C. A. Poe was made chairman of the entertainment committee which consists of Vick and Gilliam; the initiation committee is made up of Winslow, chairman, Ellis, Britt, Henderson and Young; the special constitutional committee, which will consider revisions of the Phi constitution, has Griffin as chairman, and Grimes and Kellar; the committee on inactive membership included Al McAnally, chairman, Frink and Thompson.

During the course of the meeting, several prospective freshman members were introduced and welcomed. Information as to membership was given by Treasurer Fairley.

The rest of the meeting was devoted to discussion of the two bills on the roster. These were: Resolved, that the Philanthropic society condemn the action of Governor Ehringhaus in sending troops to the strike area, and Resolved, that the Philanthropic society commend the action of the council in the case of the Buccaneer.

POLICE DISCOVER SCRIBBLED NOTE IN KIDNAP HOME

Note Tacked in Closet Clinches Guilt of Lindbergh Kidnap Suspect, Say Authorities.

LINDBERGHS ARRIVE EAST

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 25.—(UP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh arrived here tonight and departed immediately for New York by automobile.

New York, Sept. 25.—(UP)—A scribbled notation of the address and telephone number of Dr. John F. Condon, the go-between of the Lindbergh case who signed himself as "Jafsie," was found on a board ripped from a closet wall at the home of Bruno Richard Hauptmann tonight, and convinced Bronx county authorities that the kidnaping case has finally been completely solved after mystifying police for two and one half years.

Ladder Nails Found

Nails which have been found in Hauptmann's house are identical with those used in construction of the ladder which was employed by the kidnaper in reaching the second floor of the Lindbergh home, where the nursery was located, and where Charles Lindbergh, Jr., was snatched from his crib.

Hauptmann admitted that he had written the notation on the board because he was "interested in the case."

The case was brought to public attention again last Thursday, when Hauptmann was incarcerated as a suspect in the world famous kidnaping. Certificates recognized as those paid in ransom by the Lindberghs were found in a garage near Hauptmann's home in the Bronx.

Later developments included the tracing of a friend of Hauptmann who used some of the certificates to pay part passage to Germany where he died shortly after.

Hauptmann entered the country illegally in an attempt to escape from the German authorities.

University Club Group Will Convene Tonight

The arrangements committee of the University club will meet this afternoon in the club room in Graham Memorial at 4:30 o'clock. Jake Snyder, chairman, will lead a discussion of plans for the annual Homecoming Day of which this committee will have charge.

J. Maryon Saunders of the alumni association, "Bo" Shepard of the athletic office, and Harper Barnes, director of Graham Memorial, will be present and help draw up plans.

Members of the committee are Irving Suss, Claude Rankin, Tommy Irwin, Francis Fairley, Bill Dixon, and Ed Joyner.

LAW CONVOCATION

The law school will hold its first convocation in freshman room, Manning hall, at 10:30 o'clock today. Dean Van Hecke and President Herb Taylor will speak on law problems and the new year in the law school. Miss Elliot, the law school librarian, will give a short talk on the library of the law school.

Reorganization Of NRA Begins With Resignation Of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson

President Expects to Continue Prohibition of Child Labor, Establishment of Maximum Hours and Minimum Wage, Fair Trade Provisions, and Limited Industrial Self-Government.

Washington, Sept. 25.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today began a program of reorganization of the National Industrial Recovery Administration by accepting the resignation of General Hugh S. Johnson.

General Johnson took office June 16, 1933, when the National Industrial Recovery Act became effective. Since that time his actions have occupied the front pages of newspapers throughout the country.

Internal dissension and dispute among NRA officials within the past eight months have slowed the pace of the once speedy organization immensely until today its center found itself operating in uncertainty and confusion.

Many believe the initials "NRA" themselves will disappear in the plan of reorganization begun by the step taken by President Roosevelt today in accepting General Johnson's resignation.

Regardless of the nature of the changes to be brought about, President Roosevelt intends to perpetuate the recovery administration's achievements under General Johnson's leadership, including (1) prohibition of child labor, (2) establishment of maximum hours and minimum wages for industrial workers, (3) some of the fair trade provisions, and (4) a limited degree of industrial self government.

President Roosevelt was at Hyde Park when he accepted the General's resignation. The resignation will become effective October 15.

In his letter to the President, Johnson said, "We are in agreement upon the general form of reorganization, and I hope you'll now also see eye to eye with me on the subject of my resigning my job, which now seems altogether superfluous."

ENGINEERS HAVE NEW PROFESSORS

Leaves of Absence and Resignations Make Additions Necessary This Year.

There have been three major changes in the faculty of the engineering school.

John C. Geyer, who comes here directly from Harvard, will fill the vacancy made by Dr. G. P. Edwards as instructor of sanitation engineering. Edwards has accepted a position as laboratory director for the Massachusetts State Board of Health.

B.S. from Michigan

Geyer received his training at Drury college, Springfield, Mo. and at the University of Michigan, where he secured his degree of bachelor of science in civil engineering in 1931. Since then he has been at Harvard University teaching and studying graduate courses in sanitation engineering. Last year he was awarded a masters degree in civil engineering at that institution.

John D. Watson has been granted a leave of absence for one year in order that he may teach and do research work at Lehigh University in Pennsylvania. He was replaced by James R. Marvin, a graduate student of last year and member of the class of '33 in electrical engineering.

Changes in the mechanical engineering department were brought about by the appointment last spring of Neil P. Bailey to head the mechanical department at the Iowa State University. Bailey assumed his duties at that institution this fall.

Colin C. Carmichael has taken over Bailey's duties and J. A. McLean, who graduated here with a B. S. in mechanical engineering in 1933, will substitute for Carmichael.

PSYCH 21 CLASS IS OVERCROWDED

Dr. J. F. Dashiell, head of psychology department, announced that through an error in the registration procedure the department was swamped with an excessive enrollment in psychology 21.

An emergency arrangement was made whereby Dr. Bagby is giving an extra set of lectures to a new class meeting at 8:30 o'clock. Dr. A. G. Bayroff, who took his degree here in '31, is employed to handle the extra laboratory sections.

According to Dr. Dashiell an increased interest in the more advanced courses in this department is shown by the fact that psychology has eleven graduate students majoring in the department.

SUGARMAN CALLS FROSH GATHERING

Nelson Lansdale to Direct Meeting Scheduled for 3:45 O'clock In Office of Magazine.

Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, has called a meeting of all freshmen interested in writing for the publication today at 3:45 o'clock in the magazine office in Graham Memorial.

The meeting will be under the direction of Nelson Lansdale. The general plans for the magazine for the coming year will be outlined to the first-year students, and tentative proposals will be made whereby the freshmen will be taught to write for the magazine.

The fact that the freshman meeting is being held separately from the upperclassmen's meeting this year does not mean that there will be any discrimination of first-year men, according to the editor.

Upperclassmen may confer with the editor every afternoon, with the exception of today, between 4:00 and 5:00 o'clock, and Saturday mornings from 11:30 until 1:00 o'clock.

Copy for the publication may be left at the magazine office, mailed to box 710, or brought to the T. E. P. house, 216 E. Rosemary street.

PARAGRAPHICS

The du Ponts ought to stick to manufacturing paint. At least they could give somebody a decent shellacking that way.

If there's no other way to get rid of Huey Long, why not sell Louisiana back to the French? Then we could call the war debt square, if they'd take it.

And it goes without saying that Governor O. K. Allen would make a swell rubber-stamp congressman.

Progress And Prosperity

"Wasn't the Depression Awful?" and kindred propaganda based more on optimism than fact is hardly calculated to raise the spirits of those who must stare a not-too-promising reality in the face. But if there is one time when we feel justified in optimism, it is at the opening of this year's session of the University.

Just as the number of automobiles in circulation, being a non-necessity themselves, is an index to prosperous times, the amount of money which the people of the state can afford to spend on higher education is also an indication of better times. That the University's enrollment this year has reached a peak unattained since 1930 we are inclined to regard both as a sign of more prosperous times and as an auspicious beginning to the progress of the Greater University.

Five Years of Administration

Robert W. Madry, head of the University news bureau and of the American College Publicity association, wrote for state papers a timely account of the beginning of President Graham's fifth year as president of the University. In those five years of the Graham administration there have been effected:

> Advancement of the consolidation program of the Greater University, with a minimum of friction; an emergency student loan fund of more than $100,000 that kept 500 boys from returning to bankrupt homes and jobless towns; changes in the curriculum designed to give greater emphasis to training for citizenship in keeping with the original purpose of the founding of the University, and an improved code of student morale and conduct that has reached its highest peak under most trying circumstances. . . .

President Graham's policies during that time have been constantly under fire, but this record of his administration controverts anything, we believe, that might be charged against his effectiveness as both president of the University and head of the Greater University. A still more impressive sign of the beginning of his fifth year is the fact that he has had the unqualified support of every student body that has entered under his administration. This is not a blind, unquestioning loyalty, either; it is simply the respect for a man in one of the most responsible positions in the state who refuses to compromise with the principles by which his life is ruled.

As to criticism of his policies, it is an inevitability with a man who will not subordinate what he thinks is right to the easier way of playing the practical politician. We can understand the opposition that he has encountered, but how any of his opponents can fail to respect him as one of the most outstanding liberals of his generation, is hard to conceive.

Flying Squadrons

The name "Flying Squadrons" for those freshman English courses in which students above the average in the subject are placed has been a source of mild apprehension among those who were fortunately advanced enough to be enrolled in them. "Flying Squadrons" no doubt calls to mind visions of a process of whisking the student through what his other classmates cover in twice the amount of time, thereby jeopardizing his chances of passing the course.

These fears are mostly engendered, we believe, by the all-too-picturesque name which the course has been dubbed. It has been our own experience that the "Flying Squadron" has been a sort of terrorizing legend passed on from class to class. The catch-phrase is in that respect unfortunate.

Greeks Have A Name for It

As fraternity rushing settles down to the serious business involved in making the final decision of choice, it would be well to study the picture which the whole process of lodge affiliation presents in order that the look-before-you-leap attitude is well impressed upon those who have occasion to use it.

There is one point which must be emphasized again and again, one measuring stick by which freshmen must judge the effects of joining one or another fraternal band. This point is that congeniality is the most desired and unquestionably the most essential feature of a fraternity, congeniality between the present members and the prospects of the freshman's congeniality with the group with which he decides to affiliate. Plush sofas and V-16's are very satisfying to the pledge for a few weeks because he is in a new world, a veritable empyrean of his college career; but the lasting quality which will determine his happiness and efficiency as a part of a group is the harmonious condition which his presence perpetuates.

The manifestation of this feature in the fraternity and not the "mud" it slings during rushing; the likeableness of the men and not their ability to "high pressure"; the capacity of the group to offer enduring bonds of friendship—these are the gauges which should be considered in the serious business of becoming a Greek and which, if properly weighed to the advantage of all concerned, will doubtless lead to a happy connection.

A Bowl Of Cherish

It is better to make a life than to make a living, opines the Hon. William E. Russel, former governor of Massachusetts. Every college man and woman, adds Dr. Frank S. Hickman of Duke University, faces the question "as to what his college education is to produce in his life. So many of them say that when you get down to the bottom of it, college education is to be measured by the amount of salary it will produce."

It is essential that institutions of higher learning should have in mind the fact that the student must make a living and that his college work should very definitely help equip him to that end. Where the mistake is made is in the process of so equipping him. The "cash-value" theory, product of an age of prosperity followed by an age of depression, is fallacious in its tenets, positively detrimental to the best interests of the youth of today and the men of tomorrow. That the goodness which a college bestows can be measured in economic returns is the unfortunate theory, nevertheless, that thousands of students are advocating.

This demand for "practicality" is self-defeating. From the standpoint of a truly practical training for business, the students are asking the wrong things of the colleges. Dr. Edwin Mims of Vanderbilt University hit at the very core of the problem at a recent address here when he stressed the human culture aspect of an education, the value to the student of letting his college career have time for generous enthusiasms, the play of the mind, and interest in great causes.

The business of the world, except in certain professional careers, is learned through apprenticeship. One seldom realizes that the four years at college are often the only periods in a modern man's life when he can revel in the possibilities of life, languish in the theory of good living, soak up the thoughts and philosophies of those who have made a career of making life a success. Narrow practicality has no place in the order of things in modern colleges; you cannot be a successful banker if you know every fact in the banker's repertoire and still have not that cultural experience which breeds personalities of sincerity and character.

The student in college or in collegiate school of business should not be robbed of his great opportunity to come, for once in his life, into contact with pure, impersonal, disinterested science. America has the right, stated Dr. Mims, to expect clear, right, and wise thinking from its men and women who are graduated from institutions of higher learning in this country—and this type of thinking can result only from an effort on the part of the men and women while they are in college to make a life and not to allow making a living to be the goal and essence of their careers.

Attempting to prove to his class in political science at the University of Tulsa the theory "that no average man could win against a political machine," Colonel O. W. Hoop entered the race for police commissioner of Tulsa as an independent candidate. To his surprise and embarrassment he was swept into office by a large majority.—Virginia Tech.

Miami University is now offering a course in the culinary arts for men, which meets once a week for three hours, and receives two hours credit for graduation.—Ohio State Lantern.

SPEAKING the CAMPUS MIND

Editor the DAILY TAR HEEL:

The Glee club of the University of North Carolina anticipates a highly successful season for the coming year. Concert tours throughout the state are pending, and a program of songs will be prepared to please every taste.

But obviously, a glee club cannot exist without singers. Its success depends upon a bountiful supply of men who are willing to come regularly to rehearsals. Therefore, we invite all those who are interested to turn out.

The Glee club admits that it asks a good deal of its members in requiring them to give up an hour of their time, three afternoons a week. But it feels that it offers a great deal in return.

The trips alone repay the drudgery of rehearsals. Anyone who has seen the club take a girls' college by storm will indorse this statement heartily. Secondly, the student becomes familiar with fine music, from the stately melodies of the great masters to the charming folk-tunes of all nations. Thirdly, latent talent is constantly being uncovered and developed along right lines. And finally, the novice is welcomed into the fellowship of the club, which is an ancient and honorable estate and remembered pleasantly after graduation, as any old glee club man will tell you.

Even if the student has never sung in a group before, let him turn out! Whether he joins to have a good time on the trips, or to get in with the "gang," or as a delightful means of self-improvement, the club welcomes him and believes that it has a great deal to offer him.

at the same time there was an over-demand for the boy's part. Under these conditions the early ruling was waived.

The latest instructions regarding the disposal of each school's allotment allows more than the 12 per cent number to be given employment if cases should arise where two would work for less than the average $15 per month. Carolina will be allotted only $4,335 to spend monthly. If Edwin Lanier, self-help secretary, can spread this allotment over 400 boys at $10 each instead of 300 at $15, he is allowed to do so.

Hobbs Explains New Curriculum to Students

ulum is made up of five courses, each meeting three hours a week throughout the year: English, social science, foreign language, natural science, and an elective.

Freshmen or sophomores who are here now may qualify for the revised curriculum by substituting botany 1 and zoology 41 for the freshman science and by taking a second science in the sophomore year together with a social science.

Students May Qualify

First-year men this year qualify for the revised curriculum by meeting the requisites under the old plan—1½ courses of English, 1½ courses of history, three courses of foreign language, two courses of mathematics—and, then, in their second year by following the new outlined sophomore curriculum and by substituting botany 1 and zoology 41 for the new curriculum freshman science.

Courses in foreign language for those who present no preparation in a language will be five or six hour courses in the first-year instead of the regular three hour periods.

Since the requirement in language for new curriculum students has been cut down to four University courses, instead of three college courses in two different languages, sophomores this year have the opportunity to take the revised curriculum. Second-year men after completing four courses in one language qualify for the new type of work by taking the other regular sophomore studies, as prescribed under the old plan, and then by making up for the new curriculum freshman science by substituting zoology 41 and botany 1 for the other units of language which he is no longer required to pursue under the new plan.

Varsity Grid Squad Takes Hard Scrimmage Against Freshmen

Tar Heels Score Four Times in Fast Scrimmage; Snavely Wants Better Blocking.

DASHIELL LOOKS GOOD

Wake Forest Will Have Full Strength for Battle; Coach Weaver Is Pessimistic.

Coach Carl Snavely sent his varsity football squad through another hard workout behind closed gates yesterday in preparation for the battle with Wake Forest here Saturday.

The Tar Heel squad spent most of the afternoon in a fast and tough scrimmage against a big tough freshman outfit, counting four touchdowns over the still very green yearlings.

The first string running attack looked plenty good against the loosely organized Tar Babies and counted first downs almost at will. The varsity drove down the field for two straight touchdowns during the opening ten minutes of play.

Blocking Still Weak

However, Coach Snavely was still far from satisfied with the blocking and stated that most of the ground gained was because the frosh outfit was fooled. The new mentor was pleased with the way the yearlings charged and tackled.

Slippery Dick Dashiell was the big gun in the Tar Heel running attack. The sophomore halfback dashed off tackle and around end for gain after gain, one run going for fifty yards and a touchdown. Dashiell also tossed several nice passes.

Charlie Shaffer continued his fine play at the other half, while Randy Cooner, sub half, threw several beautiful passes. Both Hump Snyder, blocking back, and Jim Hutchins, fullback, also did well in the first string backfield.

Defense Strong

The Carolina defense was almost perfect against the few plays the first-year team tried. Dick Buck, sophomore end, especially showed up besides continuing his uncanny ability to receive passes.

The reserves still looked just fair and were held on almost even terms by the yearlings.

Coach Snavely stated last night that the rest of the week would be taken up mainly on defense work. Little time has been spent so far on the defense in preparation for the powerful Wake Forest offense. The yearlings will probably be scrimmaged again today using the Deacon formations.

Reports from Wake Forest state that the Deacon team came through the Guilford tilt with only a very few injuries and would have all their strength available for Saturday's opening Big Five game.

In spite of a line averaging around 200 pounds and a set of very fine sophomore backs, Coach Weaver is pessimistic over his chances to take Carolina. The Wake Forest mentor makes the statement that his outfit has been highly overrated by the newspapers.

Don Jackson, Carolina halfback, is still bothered slightly with his knee, but is expected to be in good enough condition to play Saturday if he is needed. Gene Barwick, letter end, is also still taking it easy as a result of an injury.

Co-ed Tennis

All girls, old or new, interested in playing tennis this fall are asked to sign the paper on the first floor of Spencer hall or give their names to Margaret McCauley.

WENTZ AND WARD LEAD DUKESTERS IN HARD WORKING

Coach Wallace Wade More Than Pleased with Improvements In Wentz, Durner, Ward.

DUKE VS. V. M. I. SATURDAY

Durham, Sept. 25.—While Coach Wallace Wade has had his disappointments this fall, there are several candidates for the 1934 Duke University team whose performances have been much better than was showed by them in spring practice.

At the head of the list stands Earle Wentz. An all-conference end last season, the Danville, Va., boy has been doing excellent work this fall, showing all-around improvement.

If Wentz continues in the games this fall the same style of play he has shown in practices, the Duke mentor expects him to be as good as Tom Rogers. Rogers, great 1933 flankman and now an assistant freshman coach at Duke, is rated by Coach Wade as one of the greatest ends he has ever seen.

Durner Shines

Gus Durner, regular right tackle as a sophomore last year who has been shifted to all-American Fred Crawford's old left tackle post, is another of the squad who has shown improvement. The Asheville boy has been outstanding in every scrimmage contest this fall.

Probably no player on the squad has shown more fight for a position than has Jule Ward who was a second team halfback last season. Ward stayed on the first team at a halfback post until last week and then, to make room for a punter, was shifted to the second backfield for a day. Another shift brought him back to the first eleven at the blocking back post and if he does good work at that post he will solve one of the biggest problems facing the Duke mentor.

To date Coach Wade has no definite team which will take the field this Saturday against V. M. I. By their recent showing in practices, Wentz and Taliaferro seem to have the edge on the end berths. Durner will hold down one tackle while Cardwell and Power are fighting for the other position. The same Power and Johnston are battling for one guard post, the other being held down by Captain J. Dunlap. E. B. Dunlap has the pivot post in the bag.

The first string backfield consists of Ward at quarter, Parker and Cornelius at the halves, and Alexander at full.

SNAVELY SPEAKS

The freshman class heard Coach Carl Snavely, University football mentor, address them at the assembly yesterday morning.

Running true to form as a head coach, he disclosed very little inside information about the team, but admitted that a very hard schedule faced the squad.

Relating several humorous anecdotes about football as it was played in the "good ole days," he kept the freshmen in an uproar practically the whole period.

Church Reception

A reception will be given on the lawn of the Presbyterian church Friday, October 5, from 8:00 until 10:00 o'clock to introduce Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stewart to the community. Members of the faculty, their wives, and residents of Chapel Hill are cordially invited.

'DESE DEMON DEACONS

MARION CHETTY "TACKLE

"STORK" SWING — END

When Coach Weaver brings his Baptist boys over here Saturday, he will have a forward wall averaging well to 200 pounds. The stand-outs for this hefty line are the above gridiron stars, Marion Chetty at tackle and "Stork" Swing at end, together with all-State Captain Pat Swan.

Both Marion and "Stork" are gridsters of experience, being the stalwarks of last year's tight defensive team. In the opener this season, both fellows stood out in the Wake Forest attack which resulted in a 62-0 win over the weaker Guilford College Quakers.

Rainbow Takes No. 4 To Cop America's Cup

Newport, R. I., Sept. 25.—(UP)—Rainbow, United States entry skippered by Harold S. Vanderbilt, successfully repulsed the most dangerous challenge in 83 years against the New York Yacht club for the historic America's Cup here today when the trim racer defeated T. O. M. Sopwith's gallant British sloop Endeavor in the sixth race.

Rainbow's victory was her fourth straight. Today's tilt was the closest of the series, only 55 seconds separating the two yachts at the finish.

Sopwith withdrew a protest against Vanderbilt's maneuvering made earlier in the day. The Englishmen had won the first two races of the first-four-out-of-seven series, but Vanderbilt was successful in nosing out the sportsmen from across the Atlantic in the last four encounters.

Enthusiasm has run highly on both sides since Mr. Sopwith, wealthy British manufacturer, announced he would build a new boat in order to regain the trophy which is the most coveted in the yachting world.

On this side, Vanderbilt defeated Charles Francis Adams as the wheel of Yankee, owned by a syndicate of Boston sportsmen, to gain the right to represent America. Throughout the early part of the racing season for Class J yachts on Long Island Sound, it was generally conceded that the Yankee was the faster and more consistent boat but in the elimination series, Vanderbilt's speedy craft showed her stern to win the competition rather easily.

BAPTISTS HEAVIER

Wake Forest is reported to be bringing one of the heaviest and most powerful teams in the south to the Kenan premises this week-end. The Deacon's starting line last week averaged 199 pounds and its backfield 179½ pounds.

The Tar Heels average for the line is 188 pounds with Evins at tackle or 192 with Trimpey, while the backfield scales 178 with Jackson at half or 175 with Dashiell.

Captain Pat Swan, all-state tackle, leads the Baptists with his 230 pounds against the "all-Anything" Captain Barclay and his 185 pounds.

Carolina's ball-toters will feature two sophs in Dick Dashiell and Jim Hutchins against two Deacon soph ball-carriers, Tex Edens and Walt Kitchin.

413 React Positively To Tuberculin Test

Infirmary records up to late yesterday afternoon showed that 413 persons had reacted positively to the tuberculin tests which have been given to all freshmen and to many upperclassmen and townspeople.

All those who showed positive reactions were advised by authorities at the infirmary to have an X-ray made to determine for certain whether they have tuberculosis. Sixty people had been X-rayed by yesterday afternoon.

CARDS WIN, GAIN ON LOSING GIANTS

Elder Dean Brother Annexes No. 28 over Pirates; Phillies Get Win Off Fitzimmons.

CARDS ONLY ONE BEHIND

With Jerome "Dizzy" Dean pitching superb ball to chalk up his 28th victory of the season, the St. Louis Cardinals moved up to within one game of the leading New York Giants who lost in the free-for-all in the National League championship race.

The Cards downed Pittsburgh, 3-2, while the lowly Phillies blanked the Terrymen, 5-0.

Dean allowed the Pirates one more hit than his own team could gather, but scattered them. Freddie Fitzsimmons took the brunt of the attack from the Philadelphia bats which netted eleven hits.

After yesterday's games, the Giants have only three more remaining on the regular schedule, while the Cards have yet to play five. The two teams are now even on games lost. With the regular games off and the standings of the two teams too close, a play-off of those games rained out during the season will be necessary to decide the closest National race in years.

MURAL FOOTBALL OPENS SCHEDULE NEXT THURSDAY

Wrestling and Boxing Also Featured; Mass Duke-Carolina Tennis Meet Probable.

MANAGERS MEET SCHNELL

Important announcements concerning the intramural sports program for this fall were given to press yesterday afternoon from the office of Director Herman Schnell, and surplanted the many rumors, especially those in regard to the tag football situation, that had found their way over the campus.

Director Schnell, after consultation with "Coach Bob" Fetzer, stated that barring weather conditions which may possibly delay the conditioning of the fields, the games would start next Thursday. The fields have yet to receive their final touches and to be marked off and, should it rain on Saturday, the cars parked there by attendants at the Wake Forest game would certainly cause considerable damage.

Team Managers Meet

Team entries from both the dormitory and fraternity groups will close Tuesday afternoon at the Emerson stadium office of Schnell, with a very important meeting of the team managers taking place at the same location that evening at 9:30 o'clock.

Last year 39 teams took part in the annual tag football race and the department hopes to find even more squads fighting it out this fall for the campus championship, won last season by Mangum over the fraternity winners, Beta Theta Pi. Each team will play seven games according to the drawings, as it would be impossible to bring about the champions through a round-robin system of competition.

Upon being questioned concerning the mass tennis competition between Duke and the University of North Carolina, Schnell stated that he hoped the matches could be staged this

SPRING QUARTER REGISTERED 2206

Spring Figures Released by Ben Husbands Show Decrease in Enrollment over Winter.

Two thousand, two hundred and six students were enrolled in the University in the spring quarter last year, according to a survey released yesterday by Ben Husbands, assistant registrar.

Two hundred and thirty-five co-eds and 1,971 men were enlisted in school at the time.

Figures show that enrollment over the whole 1933-34 school year dropped gradually each quarter. In the 1933 fall period there were 2,416 individuals registered and in the winter 2,294.

Daily Enrollment

The average daily enrollment also showed decreases as the year progressed. The average daily enrollment in school in the fall period was 2,398.18; in the winter, 2,271.66; and in the spring, 2,188.07. The average daily enrollment for the year was 2,292.32.

The spring quarter, however, showed an increase in the number of co-eds attending the University. Two hundred and thirty-three were registered in the fall, 218 in the winter, and 235 in the spring.

In the school of liberal arts last spring there were 720 men and 137 women. Next to the A.B. school came the school of commerce with 482 men and five women.

Applied science had a total of 183 individuals enlisted, and engineering had 190 students, all of them men.

Enrollment in the other schools was: public administration, 11; pharmacy, 73; graduate, 203; law, 121; medicine, 64; and library science, 17.

HIGH WILL HAVE BEAUTY CONTEST

To Take Place October 8; Merchants Lend Assistance.

A beauty contest to which only high school girls will be eligible will be sponsored October 4 at 8:00 o'clock in the auditorium of the Chapel Hill high school, it was announced yesterday.

The athletic association of the school, aided by a number of the Chapel Hill merchants, will sponsor the contest, each merchant entering a contestant. The audience will act as judge.

The winner will go to a state teachers' convention which will probably be held in Raleigh, and there will be entered in a series of eliminations, the winner of which will be crowned the high school beauty queen of North Carolina.

The admission charge will be 15 and 25 cents.

Grail to Have Dance In Tin Can Saturday

The Order of the Grail met last night in the first meeting of the year in its newly-renovated club room in Graham Memorial.

The organization inaugurates its regular series of dances Saturday evening in the Tin Can. The orchestra has as yet not been decided.

These dances are an annual feature of the Grail's activities. In the past, it has been the custom not to allow freshmen to attend the affairs until the end of the year. It has decided, however, that first-year men will be admitted to the dance Saturday.

During the fall, the dances are usually held after every home football game. Tickets for the affair, which will be one dollar per couple, may be secured at Pritchard-Lloyds.

GROUP WILL PLAN STUDENT-FACULTY JAMBOREE TODAY

Date Will Be Official, Annual University Holiday.

A special student committee composed of Phil Hammer, J. D. Winslow, Lonnie Dill, Albert Ellis and Jack Pool will meet today at 2:00 o'clock in Graham Memorial to discuss plans for an annual Student-Faculty Day which is tentatively planned for this fall.

The same group last spring drew up plans for an annual affair of the same name, originally scheduling it for May 20 of last year. After the idea was rejected by the faculty, however, due to the inconvenience of the date because of proximity to examinations, the idea was temporarily abandoned.

The committee is anxious, nevertheless, to sponsor such an affair this year. Immature plans include programs of interest to both students and faculty, open house by fraternities and dormitories, a street carnival, various sport competitions between faculty members and student leaders, and other features. If the plan goes through, the day set aside will become an official and annual University holiday.

The committee will act also on a suggestion that the day scheduled for the affair be the Friday immediately before Homecoming Day, at which time Carolina meets Kentucky in a football game in Kenan stadium. The idea as presented calls for a gala week-end, with all sorts of entertainment on both days.

ORDER OF GRAIL REMODELS ROOM

Decorating of the meeting place of the Order of the Grail in Graham Memorial into a room modeled after a hall of King Arthur's time is nearing completion.

Ross Crane, nationally-known interior decorator, has supervised the remodeling of the room, and members of the society have assisted.

New acquisitions include blue drapes which harmonize with a deep-red rug, a walnut round table, attractive pictures of knights, a Holy Grail cup, and other features.

The walls are being painted, and the room is expected to be ready for use in a few days.

News Magazine Quotes Marlowe in Article

A Sunday feature story on FERA work here, written for the state papers by Otis Marlowe, Carolina senior working in the University News bureau, was quoted in the September 15 Literary Digest.

Marlowe's story on work done in the library, on campus trees, and in the physics, geology, and chemistry departments, was chosen by authors of the Digest article as typical of FERA labor performed throughout the nation.

"Uncle Sam's Call to College," the title of the article, mentioned the tree surgery performed on the campus by George Dickinson.

DEANS WILL ADDRESS FROSH THIS MORNING

Freshman assembly in Memorial hall at 10:30 o'clock this morning will be confined to members of the school of commerce where Dean D. D. Carroll will preside.

Freshmen in the other schools will meet their deans as follows: college of liberal arts, with Dean Hobbs in Gerrard hall; school of applied science, with Dean Bost at 206 Venable; and school of engineering, with Acting-Dean Miller at 206 Phillips.

CO-ED RECEPTION

An informal reception will be held today at Spencer hall from 4:00 to 6:00 o'clock in honor of the new girls. This annual tea is given by the Woman's association in order to help the new women to get acquainted. All co-eds are cordially invited.

Band

The members of the band will not appear before the freshman assembly today as originally planned.

Band Meets Thursday

The University band, under the direction of Earle A. Slocum, will have the final rehearsal before the Wake Forest game Thursday evening at 7:00 o'clock in the Tin Can.

The first rehearsal of the group took place Monday evening in the Hill music hall. Approximately 60 prospective band members were present.

Dr. Haydon, the new head of the music department, spoke to the members about prospects for the coming football season. He expressed his appreciation to the members for their co-operation, and assured them of a fair deal during the coming season.

INFIRMARY

The following students were confined to the University infirmary yesterday: Sterry Branning, C. M. Burke, N. A. Jennings, C. W. Sutton, Vincent Sexton, and M. L. Shaffer.

Don Jackson, who has been temporarily disabled, was permitted to attend classes today.

The nurses state that all physical examinations for the co-eds have been completed.

Graham Asks State To Increase Appropriation By Half-Million

Would Make Salary Increases Possible

Graham States Greater University Does Not Ask for Preferential Consideration.

PRESENTED PLAN TUESDAY

An increase of slightly more than a half-million dollars in the appropriation for the Greater University was requested by President Frank Graham in the budget which he presented to the State Advisory Budget commission at its meeting Tuesday in Raleigh.

This increase, if granted, would make possible a 25 per cent increase in the salaries paid to the faculties and other employees of the three units and would bring the total appropriation to within another half-million of the 1928-29 allotment.

Will Co-operate

In asking for the additional appropriation President Graham stated that the University has been and is willing to co-operate with the state in its present financial difficulties.

Emphasizing the fact that the University is interested in the common good, Graham said:

"We place this budget in your hands to be considered on its merits in fair relation to all the other institutions, departments, and great public agencies of the people. We ask for fair, not preferential, consideration. We realize the needs of . . . all others in the public service in North

OSTROW SELECTS NEW CHEER MEN

Four New Cheerleaders Will Co-operate with University Club In Pep Rally Organization.

Chief Cheerleader Ostrow made known at a late hour last night the names of the cheerleaders for the coming year.

The men chosen to fill the positions are: Hoge Vick, of Selma; Francis Campbell, Wallace; Ben Witherington, Goldsboro; and Pete Hinnant, Micro.

Originally 12 Men

The selection was made after ten days of intensive practice under Ostrow's direction from a group of 12 men.

The cheerleaders this year will co-operate with the University club in the organization of the Cheerios. Work toward that end has already been done.

It is planned to have a card system for the cheerio section of the stadium so that letters and figures can be formed. The entire University club is aiding in this project.

Cheering practice will be scheduled from time to time by the cheerleaders with the co-operation of the junior spirit organization, and pep rallies will also be organized by these groups.

Ostrow has reduced the number of cheerleaders to a satisfactory size. "A cheer leading group should be small," he said, "so as to permit perfect synchronization, impossible with a large squad.

"The cheerleaders have their work cut out for them this year. We're going to put everything we have into it, so as to make the Cheerios as famous as in the days of Kay Kyser," Ostrow added.

Address Listed?

Students who failed to write their addresses on their registration cards during enrollment in the Tin Can last week should leave their addresses in the Y. M. C. A. office today.

Students who leave no record of their residences will not have their addresses in the "Y" directory, according to Helen Hodges, office secretary.

EVERETT NAMES THREE OFFICERS

Election of Councilmen for Each Floor Deferred Until Meeting To Be Called Later.

Everett dormitory officers for the coming year were elected at a smoker for the members of the experimental rooming house last night in Graham Memorial.

John Ramsey, a freshman, was elected president; Jack Bryon, also a first-year man, vice-president; and Clyde Barber, athletic manager.

Bradshaw Speaks

Among the speakers on the program was Francis F. Bradshaw, dean of students, who spoke briefly on "The Everett Experiment," setting forth the project which is being tried this year in the dormitory.

Mayne Albright, former director of Graham Memorial and at present in charge of the dormitory, presided at the convocation.

Haywood Weeks, dormitory secretary and president of the Carolina student body two years ago, spoke on "Dormitory Councils."

House Rules

A report of the Everett committee on house rules was presented and rules and resolutions were adopted.

After the serving of refreshments, opportunities for using the Graham Memorial game room were granted the roomers.

Election of councilmen for each floor of the dormitory was deferred until a later meeting.

Advisors for the dormitory include Ed McRae, Ed Waldrop, Henry Connor, Tom Hawthorne, Tom Leath, and Emmett Willis.

INFIRMARY GETS TWO NEW NURSES

Office Hours for Fall Quarter Are Given Out.

The new nursing staff of the infirmary for the coming year includes Miss Faye Choate of Charlotte, head nurse, a graduate of Pennsylvania Hospital training school, and Miss Sally Vaughn of Durham, a graduate of Watts hospital.

All sophomores who showed a positive reaction to the tuberculin tests last year are advised to have their chests re-X-rayed as a check on their physical conditions. This may be done today, Friday, or Saturday.

The following students were confined to the infirmary yesterday: Sterry Branning, Luther Dixon, Lewis Hagood, Billy Robinson, Bragden Spence, C. W. Sutton, Vincent Sexton, W. L. Shaffer, Margaret Siceloff, Miss A. Simms, and William Wheat.

Office hours for the fall quarter will be as follows: morning, 8:30 to 11:00 o'clock; evening, 4:00 to 6:00 o'clock.

TEXTILE WORKERS THREATEN STRIKE; PRESIDENT ACTS

Names Relations Board to Act as Supreme Mediator Between Bosses and Workers.

PLEADS WITH EMPLOYERS

Washington, Sept. 26.—(UP)—Moving swiftly midst angry demands from textile centers for the resumption of the nation-wide walkout, President Roosevelt tonight named a labor relations board which will act as the supreme power in the adjustment of disputes between textile workers and employers.

Threats of the resumption of the strike were due to the discrimination of textile employers against those who had taken part in the country-wide walkout September 1.

Appeals to Leaders

The president appealed to the heads of the industry to re-employ the strikers without discrimination.

The board is composed of Walter P. Stacy, Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme court, chairman; Admiral Henry A. Wiley, and James Mullenbach, Chicago labor arbitrator.

The board will have full authority to investigate alleged violations of section 7a of the National Recovery Act, and parts of any code of fair competition or agreements which include this section.

The original strike was ended by textile workers September 22 in answer to an appeal from the President. The Executive council of the United Textile Workers was strongly influenced at this time by the settlement plan offered by the President's mediation board headed by Governor Winant of New Hampshire.

The industrialists agreed to this plan last Saturday which abolished, among other things, the stretch-out system, for long a sore point of contention.

KOCH WILL GIVE ANNUAL LECTURE

Illustrated Talk Scheduled for 7:30 O'clock in Playmakers Theatre; Meeting Follows.

State Views

Views from all parts of the state which were the scenes of many plays will be shown. Professor Koch will tell about these plays, their authors, and the places where the scenes of the plays were laid.

The audience will see pictures of Barrett Clark, Sir Philip Ben Greet, Percy MacKaye, Lynn Riggs, and Lennox Robinson,

New Ec Instructor Comes to University

Charles M. Anderson, formerly a resident of Spray, N. C., has come to the University as instructor in Economics.

Mr. Anderson is a graduate of Johnson Bible College at Knoxville, Tenn.; and obtained his M.A. degree at the University of Michigan. He previously served as head of the department of business administration at Oklahoma A. & M., and as instructor in political economy at the University of Chicago.

"I find the splendid academic atmosphere here conducive to study," remarked Mr. Anderson, who was free in his praise of the campus life at Carolina. "The treatment of all department heads has been not only adequate but delightful," he further stated.

All Hail Rameses III!

All hail Rameses III, the Ram of Rams and the pride of Carolina!

The burly Tar Heel idol will pull into Chapel Hill tomorrow for the tremendous mass pep meeting in front of South building tomorrow night and when Rameses gets peppy, it's look out Wake Forest and Hark the Sound!

Frank Willingham, new University club president, just got back from Ram's Head last night and couldn't wait to tell the news that Carolina's great spirit mascot, instigator of trouble, and friend of Charley Smith's, will be on hand for the big rally before the Demon Deacon grid contest and will strut his rammy stuff in Kenan stadium Saturday afternoon.

"It's just what we need," yelled Les Ostrow, head cheerleader, when Frank bubbled the news to him, "There's nothing like a little Jamaica Ram to pep up the boys."

Rameses' presence is not the only feature of the big pep celebration planned by the University clubites for tomorrow night. There will be speeches and yelling and music and oceans of pep. The cheerleaders will be on hand to hold down the noise and the band will be there to start it up again.

Every student is urged to be at South building's north side tomorrow night in the first rally of the year. "Down the Demon Deacons" will be the battle-cry. Ram 'em, Rameses!

FRESHMEN HEAR MAGAZINE PLANS

Sugarman Names "T" Daniels as Official Magazine Secretary.

The first meeting of freshmen trying out for the Carolina Magazine was held yesterday in Graham Memorial at which time Joe Sugarman, editor-in-chief, outlined the plans of the magazine for the coming year.

This is the first time that a separate meeting of the freshmen has been held and the purpose is not to discriminate between them and upperclassmen but to make the machinery of the publication more efficient in that freshmen will be given a chance to become well-acquainted with the work.

Sugarman explained the new policy of the magazine and the change in emphasis from fiction and poetry to highly-readable articles.

All freshmen who are interested in trying out for the Magazine but who were not present at this meeting are asked to see Nelson Lansdale at the Carolina Magazine offices between the hours of 2:00 and 4:00 o'clock this afternoon.

Miss "T" Daniels was made secretary of the Magazine.

LINDBERGH MAKES DRAMATIC ENTRY

Authorities Find $840 Additional Ransom Money Hidden in Hauptmann's Garage.

EXPLANATION COLLAPSES

New York, Sept. 26.—(UP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann was today indicted for extortion of the $50,000 ransom money in the Lindbergh kidnaping episode three hours after Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh made his dramatic appearance before the Bronx County grand jury.

While the famous aviator was telling his story to the grand jury, detectives uncovered an additional $850 more of the ransom money which was concealed in the garage of Hauptmann's home, making the total found in his possession $14,590.

Story Collapses

The discovery of this additional money exploded Hauptmann's tale of how he got the yellow backs already found from his friend Isador Fisch. He had insisted that Fisch had left $14,000 in the Hauptmann home before departing for Germany.

Fresh evidence accumulated hour by hour against the prisoner.

District Attorney Samuel J. Foley said that Hauptmann is to be arraigned before the Bronx County court tomorrow morning for indictment. The trial date

TWO NOMINATED AS 'Y' DIRECTORS

Cabinets Hear Plans for 1934-35 Season; Change in Constitution Is Discussed.

Acting dean W. J. Miller and C. P. Spruill were nominated at the joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. cabinets, Monday night, to succeed Dr. English Bagby and Dr. A. C. McIntosh who recently resigned their posts on the board of directors.

Should no further nominations be made, these men will be automatically elected at the next joint meeting of all the Y. M. C. A. cabinets, scheduled for October 15th.

Plan for Year

The Monday night session heard the plan for "Y" work for 1934-35 as presented by the president, J. D. Winslow and adopted the program unanimously.

Don McKee discussed the sophomore cabinet program as outlined by Philip Kind and himself. A motion to adopt the program was carried.

The board of directors suggested that a junior, preferably the ex-treasurer, should serve on the board after he had become a senior. This would mean that B. S. Smith, present treasurer of the "Y" and a member of the junior class, would serve on the board of directors next year.

This method would insure a student member with experience every year. Because of the necessity of an amendment to the constitution, the cabinets deferred action on the board's suggestion until the October meeting.

The regular meetings of the various cabinets will be held Monday, October 2.

A Readable Magazine

At his reorganization meeting in preparation for the publishing of the Carolina Magazine in a new format, Editor Joe Sugarman veered from the traditional tenor of a literary editor's remarks and announced that the Magazine this year would be built around the article, with a minimum of short-stories, verse, and with no experimental prose.

The new editor has apparently hit the nail on the head in his attempt to fathom campus taste. The bane of every Carolina Magazine editor has been to insure that his publication will be readable and acceptable to the student body—which goal, in our own opinion, had seldom to any extent been achieved before the administration of Don Shoemaker, Sugarman's predecessor. Proceeding on the logic with which the present editor argues, that the campus does not care to read half-baked literary efforts, we are inclined to think that his ideas will have a salutary effect on campus writing.

For one thing, it will eliminate a good deal of the tea-aestheticism by which the Magazine has been characterized in the past, much to prejudicing its acceptance by the student body. A timely article is a valuable piece of writing, upon which latter-day magazines depend for the staple of the diet which they offer to the public. The only proviso, which it seems to us Editor Sugarman must make, is that they have a great deal of bearing on student interests; no college publication can afford to appeal entirely to the variety of interests which a widely circulated magazine, sold from the news stands, can.

Former Editor Shoemaker suggested to his public last year that the porous paper on which the Magazine was printed made an admirable bath-mat. This was not altogether justified, even in the humorous vein in which it was offered, and we are confident that this year the Magazine will serve a still more useful purpose —that of being read by students for whom it was intended.

Meeting The Demand

Upperclassmen will remember the hullabaloo last spring when the administration and the faculty got their heads together and tried to form a more perfect union, with the objects of domestic tranquility and public and personal welfare resulting from the curriculum in mind.

The new curriculum as explained in yesterday's issue by Dean Allan W. Hobbs of the school of liberal arts is the initial manifestation of the results of their efforts. Many view it as only a beginning; still others believe that the new curriculum, in affording a division between the first and second half of the college career, is self-sufficient and only needs a complete application to make it a thoroughly efficient and satisfactory arrangement.

Of course, until it is put into effect wholly, there will always be dissatisfaction on the part of some students. Many sophomores have the opportunity at the present to comment unfavorably on the arrangement. These second-year men would like to transfer to the new curriculum for the advantages offered in making the last two years a selective and fairly specialized period, but find it a little disadvantageous to do so.

In the first place, those who have completed four units of a language can shift over to the new curriculum only by taking zoology 41 and botany 1. But these same students have signed up for a sophomore science under the old plan and must continue two courses in it before they get the true value of the subject. As a result, they are taking four science courses and consequently leave themselves less time for other subjects which they want.

In the second place, many of them began a second language during their freshman year and do not feel that they should give it up until they have completed a certain amount of work in this subject. They are therefore using valuable time to complete this work.

Nevertheless, the new curriculum is that for which students have been fighting for a long time and represents a definite effort to better equip the modern college student for the life which he must lead after graduation. That the curriculum has been offered as a finished product is hardly true; it represents to most of us a natural change concurrently meeting the changes in the demands of young Americans craving education.

Just Clean Wholesome Fun

Among the many things which one may not say to a college student with impunity, one is particularly outstanding. It is a phrase seldom used except by hardy souls, ready to kill their man and eat him too, if need be.

"Don't be collegiate!" It is another way of saying: "don't stick your chin out," "mind your elders and watch your step," don't air your ignorance in the presence of those better informed," "go to hell," and other hunting expressions.

The word "collegiate" has passed through many interesting changes of meaning. Back in the days when Stover went to Yale (presumably), the college man was held in high esteem on account of his exceeding scarcity, and also on account of his supposed virtues of chivalry, honest, and noblesse oblige. Although he indubitably studied occasionally, the public in general thought of him as wearing a turtle-neck sweater, smoking a bulldog pipe with his class numerals on the bowl in silver, lounging, hands in pockets and bicycle cap on the back of his head, oozing slang and aphorisms, drinking beer in the company of his peers, or in the act of doing or dying for dear old Mackerel U. on the gridiron.

A war came and went, and suddenly for no good reason, the college man had accumulated a coonskin coat, a roadster, a silver flask, and a pennant on a stick. He was always to be found in the front row at a burlesque show, was noisily present at football games, and never failed to get the best of his professors in a battle of wits. He was pictured as a loafer, a wastrel, a ne'er-do-well, whose mission in life it was to squeeze as much money as possible from his parents and then spend the same as quickly and as foolishly as possible. He was made the stooge of a thousand feeble wits; "Joe College," in various disguises, moved across the pages of America's humorous magazines in one huge comic strip.

During these changes, no matter whether the college man has been canonized or damned, he has been nothing more nor less than a young man with a job to do, performing it well or badly, according to his ability or inclination. But the term "collegiate" which, in its Websterian sense, could just as well be applied to a piece of chalk or a desk, retains a trace of ridicule. "So you've made a public ass of yourself?" Most college men do not like the term.

The Man And the Machine

General Hugh S. Johnson knows when he has done a good job. "We are in agreement upon the general form of reorganization," he wrote President Roosevelt in resigning, "and I hope you'll now also see eye for eye with me on the subject of my resigning my job, which now seems altogether superfluous." Characteristically, General Johnson didn't mince matters in giving up the most important position in American public life; he was aware of the fact that he, as an organizer, was through.

The recovery administration now has the immense task before it of perpetuating General Johnson's achievements, achievements which have a definite basis in a revolutionary code of economic control. What ex-President Hoover calls "regimentation" is a part of the set-up which General Johnson has left and to which America is looking still as the means by which national recovery must become more or less permanently effected.

The immense organization which was NRA will probably evolve itself into more alphabet soup, but it is apparent that the same bases for recovery will be maintained in the continuance of any such program. Now the administrator is the leader in the national movement, not the organizer, and as General Johnson takes his bow, we can only offer words of commendation for his dynamic efforts and pray that his successor as recovery head has the same ability in keeping a well-oiled machine running efficiently as Johnson did in putting it together.

That internal dissension and dispute among NRA officials slowed up the pace of the organization is obvious; what is imminently essential now is to clean the bearings before the consumers dependent on the machine's output get a trifle upset about the whole thing and start looking for monkey-wrenches with which to break it up entirely.

LONG WILL PLAY FOR FIRST GRAIL

Freshmen Will Be Admitted to Dance; Patterson Has Charge Of Tin Can Decorations.

Johnny Long and his Duke Collegians will play for the first Grail dance of the year Saturday night in the Tin Can, it was announced yesterday by Frank P. Abernethy, president of the society.

The affair will last from 9:00 until 12:00 o'clock, and freshmen will be admitted, Abernethy said.

Tickets to the dance will sell at one dollar per couple and may be secured at Pritchard-Lloyd's.

First Dance

The dance will be the first one of the year. Officials of the Order of the Grail plan to present four more dances this quarter. The majority of these affairs will be scheduled after home football games.

Decorations for the fete are under the supervision of Simmons Patterson, treasurer of the organization.

Additional dances will be given throughout the year, approximately nine affairs being scheduled by the organization at its regular session Tuesday.

Hauptmann Indicted; Guilt Seems Evident is to be set then.

Seek Accomplice

Washingon federal agents tonight believed that they were close to the trail of the suspected Hauptmann accomplice. Indications were that the authorities hoped to nab the suspect shortly. No positive knowledge of this fact is available, however, as their actions have been secret.

The Lindbergh case which was the center of public interest at the time of the kidnaping two and one half years ago, again was brought to the fore in national and international interest recently when facts were disclosed which pointed to the guilt of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, German immigrant who fled Germany after breaking prison there.

The chain of evidence pointing toward the guilt of Hauptmann was brought to a climax Tuesday with the discovery of the scribbled address and telephone number of Dr. John F. Condon, intermediary in the case, on a board in the Hauptmann home. Also written on the board were the serial numbers of certain bills.

Nails similar to those used in building the ladder used in reaching the nursery of the Lindbergh home where baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., slept were also found in the Hauptmann garage.

The real climax to the case came today with the appearance of Col. Lindbergh before the Bronx County grand jury to face the man to whom the long months of search and waiting pointed as the kidnaper of his son.

Presented Tuesday

The proposed budget for 1935-36, as presented Tuesday, calls for a total expenditure of $3,354,332 for all the requirements of the consolidated institutions. This would necessitate an appropriation of $1,385,768, as compared with $832,330 for the current year. The new budget would would mean an increase of 23.8 per cent over the present budget of $2,707,071.

The requested budget for 1936-37 calls for a total expenditure of $3,393,694, or a 25 per cent increase over the current budget.

The state allotment in 1928-29 was $1,810,415, as compared with the $1,385,768 requested for 1935-36 and the current $832,330.

who have all participated in dramatic presentations on the campus. Scenes in which Sheppard Strudwick, now with the Theatre Guild, and Eugenia Rawls, leading actress in Clare Tree Major's company, will be shown on the screen.

After the talk, there will be a meeting on the stage of all students who have come to the University in order to take part in Playmaker work. This meeting will be informal and will give the new students the opportunity of meeting the Playmaker staff and the drama students who have been here previous years.

Capital Unperturbed Over NRA Resignation

Washington, Sept. 26.—(UP)—Washington was unperturbed today by the resignation of General Hugh S. Johnson from his position as head of the National Recovery Administration.

President Roosevelt pushed forward his plans for the reorganization of the NRA and for making a shift in the New Deal's high command. He said that some time might elapse before he is ready to disclose the details of the new set-up.

RECORDINGS TO BE PUT AT STUDENTS' DISPOSAL

Dr. Haydon, new head of the music department, has announced that plans are being made whereby the record library will be at the disposal of all students.

A special room and attendant in the Hill Music building will be devoted to this new department.

LONG TO PLAY AT DANCE

Johnny Long and his Duke Collegians will play for a dance at Lakewood auditorium in Durham next Thursday.

This dance, "Opening College Hop," is semi-formal and will begin at 9:30 o'clock. A limited number of tickets have been placed on sale at $1.10. Those wishing to secure passes may see Wilson Hopkins at the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

MOSIER RETAINED

In a meeting of the directors of Graham Memorial yesterday Dave Mosier was elected as carry-over member of the board. Other business included the renewal of the building's subscriptions to the various magazines it has offered in the past together with several new subscriptions.

FRESHMAN GYM

Gym classes, which, because of the surfacing work which is being done on the road and parking spaces surrounding the gymnasium, have not met yet, will probably begin Monday. Notices will be circulated soon giving the exact date of the first classes.

DEAN ADDRESSES LEGAL GATHERING; WINSTON ON HAND

Miss Elliott, Law School Librarian, Also Speaks at Convocation; Advice Given.

LIBRARY HOURS STATED

Addresses by Miss Lucille Elliott, Dean M. T. Van Hecke, and Judge Robert Watson Winston at a convocation of law students in the freshman room of Manning hall yesterday morning hall yesterday morning ing marked the official opening of the ninety-first session of the University Law school with the largest enrollment in the history of the school.

Herbert Taylor, president of the law school association, presided at the meeting and introduced the several speakers.

Miss Elliott Speaks

Miss Elliott, law librarian, was the first to speak. She addressed her remarks to the entire body of law students in general and to the freshmen just entering the school in particular. She urged constant use of the library and its facilities on the part of all students.

The announcement was made that under a new arrangement the upstairs reading room of the law school will be open at all times except during certain hours on Sunday, and the downstairs reading room will be open at all times. This arrangement has been made as a result of a request to this effect from the student body last year.

Dean Van Hecke presented a few statistics concerning the law school enrollment as an introduction to his remarks. He announced that the enrollment of 129 students so far this fall is a record not previously attained by the law school. He went on to say that of this number 74 have received college degrees. He pointed out the significance of this fact as it indicates that the law school is rapidly becoming a graduate school.

Advice

The remainder of his talk was devoted to advising and cautioning the students. His first caution dealt with the matter of making passing grades. He also warned students taking up the study of law with no intention to practice to guard against a lack of interest in technical courses. He stressed the importance of regular attendance to classes. He said that although attendance is not compulsory, it is decidedly to the best interests of the student to attend.

Dean Van Hecke concluded his remarks by urging the law students to be thoroughly prepared before attempting to pass the state bar examination.

Judge Robert W. Winston, colorful University graduate, lawyer, judge, and author, was called on to close the convocation with a few words to the students. The Judge rounded out the advice given by Dean Van Hecke. He particularly urged the students "to stop majoring in week-ends, dances, and girls and to begin to major in the law." He said, "Woman is but a piker when viewed beside the law."

Tar Heel Football Squad Takes Last Hard Work Before Opening Contest With Deacons Saturday

Coach Snavely Sends Varsity Through Only a Touch Drill As Result of Injuries.

WORK ON PASS DEFENSE

Both Wake Forest and Carolina Expected to Start Game with Four Rookies in Lineup.

Carolina's varsity football team took its last hard workout yesterday afternoon on Emerson field, before the opening battle with Wake Forest Saturday.

With several injuries bobbing up, Coach Snavely limited yesterday's scrimmage with the freshmen to the touch kind. However, the varsity got a good chance to see the Wake Forest formation in action as the freshmen were able to execute it.

Both George Barclay and Jim Tatum, stars at guard and tackle, were nursing sore knees. However, both are expected to be ready to go by Saturday. Coach Snavely filled the two veterans' shoes in the first line with Paul Pendergraft and Lax Moser.

Work on Defense

Coach Snavely was mainly interested in the Tar Heel defense although he spent quite a bit of time on the offensive work, especially the blocking. The two initial strings worked a long time on pass defense against the freshman passers. The first string knocked down most of the flings but the second outfit found trouble in stopping the yearling air attack.

Punting also came in for a long workout. Charlie Shaffer showed up well, getting off several fine punts against a fast charging first year line.

Both Don Jackson, ace halfback, and Gene Barwick, letter end, are expected to remain on the sidelines during Saturday's game. Both boys are mending fast but the coaches do not wish to take chances on rehurting the injuries.

Hard Contest Expected

As a result of Wake Forest's excellent showing against Guilford the contest is scheduled to be one of the best of the season. Both teams have big powerful lines and a dangerous set of backs.

The Deacons, like Carolina, are expected to start the game with sophomores in two line positions and two backfield posts. The Wake Forest rookies will be at the guard posts, Joe Swan and Ed Rogers, while Walt Kitchin, a great passer, will be at quarter, and Tex Edens, an excellent punter, will hold down one of the half positions.

The Tar Heels will open with their sophomores Dick Buck, at end, John Trimpey at tackle, Jim Hutchins at full, and "Slippery Dick" Dashiell at half. All the Deacon sophs looked good against the Quakers, especially

Number of Threats In Deacon Backfield

Dave Holton and Roy Myers, seniors at Wake Forest, are a pair of blockers that will stack up against the best. The other threats that the Deacons have to offer in the broken field are Bill Martin, a senior from Hamlet, and Dallas Morris, 145-pounder from Charlotte. Tex Edens, 195 pound fullback, is a fair runner but is best at kicking. Walton Kitchin, son of President Kitchin, is the quarterback, and although not so fast is a dangerous man to the opposition in that he can throw the football far and accurately. Jug Allen, a soph, is another good blocker and signal caller.

HEARNMEN OPEN FALL WORK SOON

Several Stars Finish Last Year But Prospects High for Another Successful Season.

MANY VETERANS BACK

Baseball practice, which was to get under way this week, has been delayed because of the illness of Coach Bunn Hearn at his home in Wilson.

The Tar Heel diamond artists, who won both the Big Five and Southern Conference titles last season, have a fine chance of repeating the same stunt this year.

Most of the Carolina baseballers kept in rare mid season form by playing on Coach Hearn's Kinston team this summer. The Kinston aggregation, managed by Coach Hearn and composed largely of Carolina players, was rated as the best team in the Coastal Plain league. However in the series they lost the pennant to Greenville.

Fletcher Ineligible

It was this same Greenville team that delved into Guy Fletcher's past and found him to be ineligible to participate in collegiate and semi-pro baseball. Fletcher was the star mound performer on last year's freshman team. His loss will greatly weaken the Tar Heel pitching staff.

Perhaps Coach Hearn's greatest discovery was that of Jim Tatum's ability as a catcher. Big Jim also had nineteen home runs to his credit at the close of the season.

Gene Zaiser, star outfielder of the 1933 Tar Heel team, also played with Kinston and is expected to be back with the Tar Heels next spring.

Several Stars Gone

George Brandt, Norman McCaskill, Nate Andrews, and Virgil Weathers were lost by graduation last spring; however, there will be capable men out to fill their places next season.

Among the men Coach Hearn will have to choose from next spring are Tatum, Yeager, and Cooke, catchers; McCarn, Rand, Irwin, Womble, Dashiell, and Leonard, infield; Zaiser, McIver, Shapiro, Captain Vick, and Groome, outfield; and Crouch, McKeithan, Wright, Hearn, and Manley, pitchers.

Frosh Cross Country

Coach Dale Ranson issues the call for cross country to all freshmen who are interested in or who have had training in this longer distance running.

All men are to report to Coach Ranson at Emerson field at 4:00 o'clock this afternoon.

Frosh work in the hill and dale type of running will include working out for the cake race.

DEACON CAPTAIN AND SOPHS

Here are some of the aces of the Wake Forest Deacons who will face the Tar Heels in Kenan stadium Saturday. In the top left hand corner is Captain Pat Swan, veteran tackle who was mentioned quite a bit last year for an all-state tackle position. Next to Pat is his brother, Joe, who is one of the sophomores starting at guard. The lower boys are Tex Edens and Walt Kitchin, ace sophomore backfield men. Edens plays a half and is one of the best kickers in the state. Kitchin is a star at quarterback and an excellent passer.

JOYCE REPORTS FOR GRID WORK; JACKSON IS OUT

Letterman at Guard Will Add Strength to Middle of Line; Four Veteran Guards.

BARCLAY GETS INJURY

Emmett Joyce, who split duty with Eddie Kahn at right guard for Carolina last fall, reported for the first time yesterday, giving the Tar Heels four letter guardsmen and strengthening their line considerably at this key position.

The husky junior from Chicago may come in for some good service if he can get in shape in time for the Wake Forest game here Saturday. Captain George Barclay turned up with a stiff knee yesterday, and while he is expected to be ready to go, Coach Carl Snavely will be anxious to rest the Tar Heels' brilliant leader as much as possible.

Jackson to Be Out

Wake Forest's hopes for a victory in the crucial opening game of the Big Five race mounted higher and higher with the announcement yesterday that Don Jackson would not start Saturday. The star left halfback's leg injury was much improved. However, the coaches are fearful of the risk of aggravating the injury and having him laid up for two or three more weeks.

"Slippery Dick" Dashiell, whose clever broken field running and passing have featured the last several scrimmages, is being groomed to take Jackson's place, with Randy Cooner, Eddie Martin, and Harry Montgomery held in reserve.

Dashiell becomes the third sophomore to crash a place in the varsity lineup. Dick Buck with his clever and effective all-round play at end and Jim Hutchins with his hard driving at fullback had already won their places. John Trimpey, 220-pound soph tackle, is another possible starter.

The varsity has shown con-

INTRAMURAL RUN WILL TAKE PLACE HERE OCTOBER 18

Eleventh Annual Staging of Cake Race Will Be Over a Course 1.9 Miles Long.

SIX WORKOUTS REQUIRED

Another announcement in regard to the development of this fall's intramural sports program was handed down yesterday afternoon by Director Herman Schnell to the fact that the annual cake race would take place on Thursday afternoon, October 18, with the starting time set for 4:00 o'clock at Emerson stadium.

This will be the eleventh annual staging of the race, which will be run over a course of approximately 1.9 miles, and should attract one of the largest entry lists in its history. The 1932 event found 88 participants, while last year's total soared to 109.

The spoils of victory will consist of medals to the first five finishers, cakes to the first five teams, a cake to the team having the largest entry and fifty individual prizes to those finishing within that number.

The computation to decide the winner will be figured on the following point basis: Entering a team—25; first five teams with most entries—25 down to 5; first 15 finishers—15 down to 1; first five teams—25 down to 5. The grand total will decide the final rating, with the team winner being figured by the same method as cross country scoring.

The rules governing training for this race state that in order to enter, the competitor must have had at least six workouts over a distance equal to that of the course. This may be accomplished, until the official course is announced, by running over the regular cross country course once or eight laps on the Emerson stadium track per workout.

Good Prospects For Harriers As Vast Material Limbers Up

FOOTBALL

FACTS AND GUESSES
By
Bill Anderson

Saturday will officially open the football season at a score of colleges and universities throughout the nation, although many fans got their first taste for enthusiasm last week-end. Speaking more locally, thousands of Carolina students will watch with keen interest the result of the Tar Heel-Wake Forest game and Coach Snavely's debut. The former Bucknell University grid mentor certainly has the faith of the student body and many rabid alumni who believe that he can carry the Carolina colors into the Promised Land.

But Coach Snavely's first hurdle in so doing is the unusually heavy and scrappy Wake Forest eleven. The Baptists, undoubtedly, will provide hard opposition for the Tar Heel eleven, because the Demon-Deacons not only have a powerful but a well-balanced eleven. Coach Jim Weaver has not only a bag full of tandem plays but many trick formations which were good enough to spell finis last week.

We are not reading the high Requiem Mass for Carolina, for, in the first place, we are confident that that is not necessary. What is bothering us, however, is how the Tar Heels will come out of the fray. Will we have enough capable reserves to meet Tennessee on an equal footing next week? This must be considered when we speak of Snavely's duties which are hard and seem to get more complex daily.

So Carolina's trouble for the season will be reserve strength, as many sports writers have already pointed. We've seen N. C. State work out and know of Duke's potentialities, and of them all, Carolina, we believe, has the best first starting eleven. Snavely's starting line-up is plenty good, but when the Tar Heel coach begins to think of substitutions, more grey hairs will be sure to pop out. Reserve strength will be the unknown quantity with U. N. C.

And now that we have got this

Seven Lettermen and Numerous Sophomores Take Opening Workouts for Tennessee.

OPEN SEASON OCTOBER 6

Team Boasts Such Men as Williamson, McRae, Waldrop, Curlee, Allen, Gammon.

With fine weather prevailing the past few days, the varsity cross country squad has been taking some hard workouts to get in shape for their first meet of the season with the University of Tennessee here October 6.

Most of the seven lettermen, sophomores, and reserves seem to be in fairly good shape after just several days of distance running and jogging. With the harriers improving as they should, hopes for a successful year on the hill and dale soar high.

Among the seven lettermen are several of the best distance runners in the south. All are veterans of last year's team which ran a perfect race against N. C. State and lost only to Duke in both dual and conference meets.

Williamson Outstanding

Captain Harry Williamson will lead the Ranson runners this season. On this year's state and conference champion outdoor team, Williamson turned in some of the smoothest and most thrilling races in the middle distances ever seen in Dixie trackdom. This summer in California he ran a 4:15 mile in the National Intercollegiates.

Ed McRae and Ed Waldrop also add to the chances for the team. Both men were stand-bys on the 1934 track crew, McRae in the mile and Waldrop in the two mile. McRae was captain of the team and star miler, while Waldrop is remembered by his remarkable win over Dunaj and Bird in last season's conference two mile run.

Other lettermen are Haywood Curlee, who ran regularly up with the Sullivans last year; Fab Haywood, Louis Conte, and Jerry Goldman.

The sophomore leaders are Graham Gammon, Marvin Allen, and Bob Gardiner. Gammon and Gardiner are shorter distance men than Allen, but all three are swell runners for the cross country course. This trio tied for

ST. LOUIS, GIANTS BOTH LOSE GAMES

Hoyt Holds Cardinals to Two Hits and Whips Paul Dean; Schumacher Hit Hard.

St. Louis and New York continued neck and neck in the race for the National league pennant honors as both were defeated in yesterday's baseball battles; the Cardinals lost to Pittsburgh, 3-0, while New York was being defeated by Philadelphia, 5-4.

Paul Dean, of no-hit fame, failed to come through for St. Louis as he hooked up in a great pitcher's contest with Waite Hoyt. The veteran Pirate hurler held the Cardinals to only two hits and whitewashed them with ease.

Dean pitched excellent ball also, holding Pittsburgh to one run in the first seven innings. Wild Bill Hallahan took over the mound duties during the last couple of innings and was nicked for a brace of markers. The Pirates got six hits in all.

Schumacher Also Fails

Schumacher, usually effective for the Giants, was unable to stop the Philadelphia attack and Carl Hubbell, ace southpaw, had to finish the game. The Phillies counted five times on 16 blows. However, New York did some hitting on their own part scoring four runs off of Moore and Johnson on eight bunched hits.

St. Louis will move to Cincinnati today for the final four games of the season. The Giants rest two days before taking on Brooklyn in their final two tilts. As things stand now both pennant contenders have lost the same number of games, while New York has won two more than St. Louis.

Chance to Even Things

Should the Cardinals take the first couple of games with the Reds they will be all even with the Champions for the final two days of the race. Lefty Walker or Tex Carleton will probably start for St. Louis today with the mighty Dizzy Dean being held in reserve.

Should the two teams finish in a tie none of the postponed games of the season will be played to decide who is winner, but the two clubs will meet in a three-game series. The team to win two games first will get the title.

Detroit, winner in the American league, began tuning its bats a bit for the championship series by getting 26 hits and scoring 22 runs in a double bill with Chicago. Incidently the Tigers won both tilts, 12-10 and 10-3.

Buck, Carolina, is expected to develop into one of the finest ends in the state. He has already distinguished himself as a pass receiver. Trimpey tips the scales at 220 and should be valuable because of his weight.

Jim Hutchins, 18-year-old 190-pounder, has so far in practice done some very nice line plunging besides being a nifty stepper in the open field. Dashiell is being groomed to do the Tar Heel passing. He is also an excellent broken field runner.

Other sophs who should come through are Jack Bowers, W. W. Daniels, Jack Lynch, and Marcus Aderholt.

The season will include meets with Tennessee, State, Duke, Davidson, and possibly Washington and Lee, climaxing with the S. I. C. meet.

Wake Forest game stored safely away, let's consider some of the other games along the Dixie battle front. Alabama heads the heap of the Southeastern conference teams and will not find any competition at he hands of Howard University. Watch out for the 'Tide rolling this year; not since the time of Wallace Wade & Co., have the 'Bama boys had such choice prospects for another trip to the Rose Bowl.

Kentucky and Washington & Lee will present an inter-sectional game between the Southeastern conference and the Southern group. Both elevens have been rated highly and not without due reason. Kentucky is starting a new regime under Chet Wynne, whereas Tilson at W. & L. looks like he has another fighting team as good as last year's which presented such a fine front to Princeton and many other sterling elevens. Kentucky has the weight, and we pick them to "powerhouse" the Generals.

L. S. U. vs. Rice, Vandy vs. Mississippi State, and Tennessee vs. Centre are three real problems for the would-be win pickers. We give Rice, Vandy, and Tennessee the edge.

Tulane, decidedly crippled by the loss of Captain Joe Loftin and Dick Weston, will still be able to easily take Chattanooga. The Green Wave has such a galaxy of backfield aces that the loss of Loftin and Weston will not materially injure the Greenies' hopes for the year.

"Hunk" Anderson, at N. C. State, is slated to take Davidson into camp, Saturday night at Greensboro. The Presbyterians will give the Anderson eleven a hard tussle, but the Techs should get their first victory for their new coach without much inconvenience. And this same squib could go for the Duke-V. M. I. contest . . . Wade's proteges will win.

Virginia's lean prospectus should get a jolting at the hands of the strong Hampden-Sydney club. If the Tigers lick Virginia, Saturday, it will be the first time in the history of the small Presbyterian college. They look to have the club this year which can do just that, but Gus Tebell, coaching the Cavaliers, is hard to beat at any game, football, bridge, jack rocks or what have you.

V. P. I. has a fast but light club this fall and should be meat for the Temple University Owls. And Maryland will take St. John's into camp.

Band Practice

The University band will hold its final rehearsal before the Wake Forest football game tonight at 7:00 o'clock in the Tin Can.

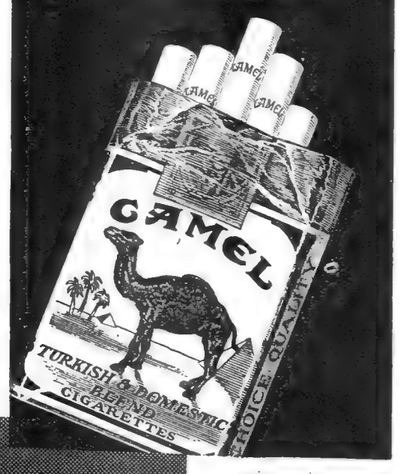
siderable power and more deception in its first scrimmages with the husky but green freshman team this week. It is an open question, however, whether the Tar Heels can pierce Wake Forest's 200-pound veteran line or hold its driving backs.

The student body as well as the team appear to realize the importance of getting off to a good start in the first game under the new coach and are making intensive preparations to give the players their utmost support. Interest has run high since Wake Forest's 62-0 rout of Guilford, and heavy advance ticket sales indicate a crowd.

RICHARD WHITNEY, '35—Majoring in chemistry. "A Camel tastes simply swell," he says, "and what is more important, it refreshes my energy."

A PLEASURE that drives away fatigue and listlessness!

"I'm specializing in chemistry, which means a large amount of 'lab' work," says Richard Whitney, '35. "It's interesting—but a tough grind. After a long, hard session, a Camel tastes simply swell—and what is more important, it refreshes my energy and I feel 'fit as a fiddle' in short order. I've smoked a lot of Camels and never yet have they ruffled my nerves."



Everyone is subject to strain—whether physical, mental, or emotional. So it's important to know that Camels do release your stored-up energy.

The findings of a famous scientific laboratory have confirmed Camel's "energizing effect." So begin today to enjoy Camels. Enjoy their wholesome and delightful "lift." Enjoy their mildness and rich, good taste. Enjoy them often! Camel pays millions more for finer, more expensive tobaccos, and the costlier tobaccos in Camels never jangle the nerves.

● SPORTSWOMAN PILOT. Mrs. Cecil Kenyon, of Waban, Mass., says: "Speaking of cigarettes, Camels are the mildest cigarette I know. Morning, noon, and night I can smoke them steadily—without a touch of upset nerves."

ALL TOBACCO MEN KNOW: "Camels are made from finer, More Expensive Tobaccos—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand."

UNIVERSITY CLUB TO STAGE SERIES OF PEP RALLIES

Plans Official Presentation and Reception for Rameses III During Half at Game.

WILDER NEW TREASURER

At its second meeting of the school year last night, the University club made final preparations for a pep rally tonight before the Wake Forest game. The club also elected Roy Wilder as treasurer to succeed Harry Montgomery, who resigned because of activity with the football team.

According to officers of the club, the pep rally tonight will be one of an elaborate series planned for the football season, during which they expect to equal the fine efforts and success made by the University club last year.

To Welcome Rameses

One of the first actions made by the club in preparation for this year was to bring back Rameses III, beloved mascot of the Tar Heel teams. Rameses will be unofficially welcomed at the rally tonight, with the official welcome waiting until the half-time at the game tomorrow when he will be officially presented to the student body by Jack Pool.

The radio program committee of the club will attempt to prepare a Tennessee game program for station WDNC of Durham. This program will be broadcast Thursday beginning at 5:00 o'clock and lasting either 45 minutes or an hour.

Preparations were also made for the sale of song sheets at the game tomorrow. The songs will be on sale for ten cents, and contain all three Carolina songs, both words and music.

'GREEN PASTURES' TO APPEAR HERE

Marc Connelly's Negro Drama To Open Student Entertainment Bill October 8.

The first offering on the Student Entertainment program Monday, October 8, will be a presentation of Marc Connelly's famed play, "The Green Pastures," with the original New York cast.

The fifteen hundredth performance of this great drama will be celebrated tonight in Norfolk, Va. The players, except for two substitutes, are the ones who appeared on the opening night in New York four years ago.

The play is based on the southern stories of Roark Bradford, which appeared in the book, "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun." In its eighteen scenes, "The Green Pastures" depicts the rise and fall of mankind as seen through the eyes of the Negro.

Famous Original Cast

The huge cast is headed by Richard B. Harrison, who gained world-wide fame by his sympathetic and reverent interpretation of "de Lawd." Daniel L. Haynes, remembered for his excellent work in the motion picture "Hallelujah," plays the part of Adam. An integral part of the presentation is the Hall Johnson Heavenly choir, consisting of more than a score of mixed voices.

Prominent Chinese Scholar Disapproves American Plan

Noted Educator on Visit Here Says American Gets Scanty Education in College.

By BILLY HUDSON

"Frankly, I do not approve of the American educational system," said Dr. Francis C. M. Wei, president of Central China College, in an interview yesterday at the home of Dr. Edgar W. Knight, with whom he is spending two days.

"The A.B. degree confers no scholarly prestige; its holder has only a smattering of knowledge about each of many different subjects. American college students come to college too early, in the first place. They should not come until they are at least 18 years old.

"In their college work they scatter their energies over too many different fields; they should specialize more."

Little Learning Dangerous

Dr. Wei, who holds his Ph.D. degree from the University of London and his M.A. from Harvard University, believes that the smattering of knowledge that American college students acquire about each subject they study is, in an intellectual sense, dangerous to them.

First, having delved into a subject slightly, they think they know all about it. Second, the slight foretaste of a subject which they get in the average college course often kills their interest in that subject.

The 46-year-old Chinese scholar is Jeffersonian in his conception of education. He believes that there should be three levels of education. The primary level, which is training in citizenship, should include everybody; but only those fitted for the higher levels should receive training in them. "You Americans," he said, "seem to think that the Almighty created everybody to get an A.B. degree. The Almighty did not do that."

On Lecture Tour

Dr. Wei, who has studied at Oxford University, the University of Berlin, and the Sorbonne, in addition to Harvard and the University of London, is in the

JOHNSON'S PLACE FILLED BY BOARD

Roosevelt Creates New Committee to Take Over Ex-Administrator's Duties.

Washington, Sept. 27.—(UP)—President Roosevelt shook up the New Deal from top to bottom tonight by naming a board to take over the duties abandoned by General Hugh S. Johnson and appointing a committee to formulate the policies of all the alphabetical agencies of the administration.

Donald R. Richberg, co-ordinator of the New Deal recovery activities, was named director of the emergency recovery committee. The committee also includes Frances Perkins, secretary of labor; Chester Davis, administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Act; Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator; and the chairman of the new NRA board, yet to be elected.

Culmination of Plans

President Roosevelt has been formulating plans for the reorganization of the NRA for some time, particularly since the resignation of General Johnson his action in this direction having coming to the fore.

Until today the President has been silent as to what the nature of these changes is to be. His action tonight was the first of his steps to be made public.

It has been thought for some time that Richberg would be the one to step into the place that would be left when General Johnson should resign, as the action of the General was not at all unexpected.

Richberg has remained silent to all questions, following the policy taken by President Roosevelt.

KELLAM TO HEAD STATE'S LIBRARY

Former Circulation Librarian Here Is Promoted.

Several changes in the administrative staff at the library have been effected during the summer months.

W. P. Kellam, formerly head of the circulation department, was appointed librarian at N. C. State College, and took up his work there July 1.

Kellam was replaced as head of the circulation department by O. V. Cook, who until that time had been document librarian.

The position vacated by Cook was filled by W. W. Smiley, whose former job as an assistant in the circulation division was in turn filled by G. F. Shepherd.

AUTHORITIES RUSH KIDNAP SUSPECT TO WITNESS BOX

Colonel Lindbergh, Disguised, Scrutinizes Prisoner; Extradition Appears Imminent.

PRISONER DENIES GUILT

New York, Sept. 27.—(UP)—According to indications tonight Bruno Richard Hauptmann will be taken to New Jersey at the soonest possible moment to stand trial for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Meanwhile, District Attorney Samuel Foley of Bronx county has expressed the conviction that Hauptmann wasn't the "lone wolf" in the abduction.

The German has steadfastly maintained his innocence despite the steadily rising mountain of evidence against him. He has broken down only once during the long and gruelling days of questioning to which he has been subjected. That was on Wednesday night in his prison cell.

Col. Lindbergh, disguised in cap and glasses, viewed the prisoner for ten minutes today without his being recognized. This was the first time that he had confronted the accused man.

New Jersey and New York officials were in secret conference with indications pointing to extradition on murder charges.

Other Charges Wait

Hauptmann is being held in New York on extortion charges alone. The maximum sentence for extortion is 20 years imprisonment. But extortion is not the only charge that faces the German alien, the "bad boy" of Kamenz.

In New Jersey the more serious charges of kidnaping and murder await him.

Jersey officials are preparing their case carefully and painstakingly so that there will be no loopholes.

Whether or not the extortion trial comes first, officials have indicated, depends on the events of the next few days.

Attorney General David Wilentz of New Jersey said that under no circumstances will the Balmy Climate And Famed Cooking Of South Pall Upon New Jersey Lads

"We Just Came Down to See How We Liked It," Say Three Ex-Freshmen En Route Back to New Jersey; One in Infirmary.

The sunny south and its long-lauded cooking have failed to meet the approval of at least four members of the class of '38 who are tired of the heat and the eats and are now headed north—that is, except for one of their number whom measles and Dr. Berryhill are detaining in the University infirmary.

"We're not used to the kind of food you have here," they said. "It's too hot and we just came down temporarily anyhow."

Therefore the three who are able have packed their trunks and turned towards their respective homes in New Jersey where the sun shines less warmly and spaghetti and non-kosher food are served three times a day.

Make Trial Visit

Dean Bradshaw said yesterday that he had seen each boy who had decided to leave and that they all reported that they had come to the University for only a week or so to see how they would like it.

But he does not think that such incidental matters as food and climate had everything to do with their decision to return home. "I believe the chief reason is homesickness, not the climate, or their not being used to our eating," he said.

"However," Bradshaw added, "I think that the boy with the measles will be with us for a while, and we may be able to encourage him to stay."

Can't Take Heat

In listing other conditions which influenced their decisions, two of the gentlemen from Jersey said that they had arrived in the midst of a downpour of rain which was followed by a spell when the weather was too hot for them to endure.

Too much noise in the dormitories, poor ventilation in fourth floor rooms, and stomach aches were also given as reasons for a trek northward.

UNIVERSITY GETS GRANT OF $1,000

Gift of J. Claude Bedford Will Further Alunite Research, Supervised by Cameron.

J. Claude Bedford, prominent Philadelphia lawyer, has just made a gift of $1,000 to the University for a research fellowship in alunite to be carried on under the general supervision of Dr. Frank K. Cameron, professor of industrial chemistry, according to an announcement made yesterday by Felix A. Grisette, director of the Alumni Loyalty Fund.

The grant will be used to pay the salary of E. O. Huffman, graduate student in the University from Hickory, designated to carry on the work under Dr. Cameron's supervision, and for incidental expenses necessary to the success of the experiment.

Year of Research

Huffman has been at work on the problem for a year and Dr. Cameron, seeing its possibilities, used his influence in obtaining the grant.

Alunite is a natural mineral containing alumina and potash in the form of sulphates. It is found in large quantities in the Tushar mountains in southern Utah and deposits at Tolfa, Italy, have been famous since Roman times.

During the World War potassium sulphate and alum were made from the Utah alunite but the mineral methods were too expensive to permit commercial use in normal times. Last year Huffman made a study of the methods used during the war with the result that it is believed a new method can be developed which will permit the mining of the metal on a large scale and will be cheap enough to permit its development on a commercial scale.

MEDICAL SOCIETY TO GIVE BANQUET

Dr. Foy Roberson Will Speak At Affair Tonight.

The Richard H. Whitehead Medical society will give a welcome banquet to the first year medical students at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Graham Memorial, according to E. W. Phifer, president of the society. Dr. Foy Roberson of Durham will be the guest of honor.

Dr. Roberson is well-known to the students here, and is an interested alumni member of the Athletic association. An ex-captain of the football team of 1905, Dr. Roberson has been for a number of years an enthusiastic supporter of Carolina athletics.

Dr. Roberson has served for a number of years as a surgeon to the Carolina teams, and in the period immediately preceding Dr. Berryhill's regime, served as director of the University infirmary.

RUSHING STOPS 8:00-8:30

All Carolina will assemble at the north side of South building tonight at 8:00 o'clock for a gigantic pep demonstration before the Wake Forest-Carolina game in Kenan stadium tomorrow.

Led by Lester Ostrow, head cheerleader, and members of the University club, the affair will be the first pep rally of the year and will offer several spirited features in addition to the noise from the fire engine, the Cheerios, the bell of Old South, and the University band.

Rushing Suspended

An announcement yesterday advised that fraternity rushing will be suspended from 8:00 until 8:30 o'clock in the fraternity houses, but will continue immediately after the rally. Fraternity members are requested to bring their visitors to the rally for the half-hour pep period.

Rameses III, famous Tar Heel mascot, will be on hand to kindle the enthusiasm of the multitude. He arrived unexpectedly yesterday afternoon in a cloud of wool and is all set and rarin' to go.

In addition to the parade and several speeches by members of the football team and others, the University band will add to the festivities with its first public appearance of the year.

Auto Procession

The automobile parade will begin at the fire house and led by the fire engine, proceed around the campus several times before coming to rest at South building. All available cars will

Barometer of The Commonwealth

"It was the first time the University had been made the barometer of the commonwealth," says the Greensboro Daily News in referring to President Graham's speech before the advisory budget commission Tuesday in Raleigh. If by "barometer" the News intimated that the president was talking about the weather, the remark contains more truth than statistics, for the Greater University faces a stormy time, against the coming of which increased appropriations are the shelter. The Greater University, during these first years of its existence, needs more than ever before the co-operation and good-will of the state.

This, however, was not altogether the sense in which the News meant the comparison nor that in which President Graham meant it. The University, without a doubt, is the barometer of the spiritual, intellectual, and moral life of the state. "It stands, falls, or goes forward with the people of North Carolina," the commission was told.

President Graham was faced with a situation which, though hard to handle, he was absolute master of in his presentation of the University's case. He realized, he told the commission, the strenuous times that forced retrenchment were unavoidable. Nevertheless, he came before the commission to ask them for an increase of one-half million dollars over the current appropriation—which, he pointed out, was nearly one-half million dollars below the 1928-29 appropriation. That, we submit, is as eloquent a picture of the shortage of funds which the University has labored under in the past five years, as will be heard in official circles. That it had its effect is undoubted; that it will be heeded is our hope.

Honor to An Alumnus

Another signal honor was tendered one of the University's most prominent alumni Wednesday when Chief Justice Walter Parker Stacy, '08, of the North Carolina Supreme Court, was appointed chairman of a new board by President Roosevelt to adjust the recurring labor struggles in the textile industries.

The personnel of the board includes those men who also comprised the Steel Labor Relations Board which was named several months ago by the president to settle the disputes between employees and employers of the steel industry. That they have been selected again for the delicate task of straightening things out in the intricate warfares is a masterful tribute to these experienced public servants.

Chief Justice Stacy forms the third member of the University's outstanding contributions to national public affairs during the Roosevelt regime. Dr. Frank Porter Graham has appeared in various capacities in Washington, not the least of which was his membership on the Consumers' National Advisory board. Dr. Claudius T. Murchison was appointed last May as director of the bureau of domestic and foreign commerce. And there have been others who have been called to serve in state and national circles during the era of recovery.

Chief Justice Stacy has had a brilliant career since leaving the University with an A.B. degree in 1908. As head of the state's highest judiciary he has attained a reputation for legal acumen and human justice that has at the least marked him as one of the state's leading men of affairs. His most recent appointment is, as the Raleigh News and Observer commented, "his most difficult and interesting assignment."

Having already served on a number of arbitration boards named to settle labor difficulties on various railroads, Justice Stacy is well-equipped to tackle his new task. The University will watch with interest a brilliant alumnus handle an enormous assignment for President Roosevelt.

Tar Heels On Hand

Tonight in front of historic old South building the echoes of a thousand lusty voices will mark again the return of another football season for America's oldest state university. Once more the spirit of a student body will manifest itself as cheerleaders will draw forth the vocal support that has lent the quality which has made football games, and not football itself, America's national sport.

This University has luckily escaped the hysteria of football-mad fans which seems to invade so many colleges of the south and the nation, but it is beyond doubt that there exists on this campus a deep and enthusiastic spirit that is second to none anywhere. Carolina rooters go into the thing because they are interested, vitally interested, in the team on the field and the University which it represents.

Tomorrow will inaugurate the regime of a new coach at this institution with a game against determined and unusually powerful opposition. Not only will it be a test of the coach and his new system and the boys who play the game, but it will be a trial for the spirit which backs Coach Snavely and his method. That this spirit of loyalty to anything for which the University stands will flinch is never imagined. The cheering will prove that.

Under the auspices of the alert University club, things are going to hum tonight and tomorrow afternoon. Even Rameses III seems to feel that that famous old Blue and White spirit is as intense and vigorous as ever. Pep talks may stir a student body on to momentary enthusiasm but only a deep-rooted love for good sportsmanship and red-blooded action can ever determine the endurance of such support. And the Demon Deacons tomorrow will feel that not only eleven North Carolinians but two thousand more in the south stands will be fighting every minute of a clean game to prove that the Tar Heels are on hand with pep, vim, and vigor.

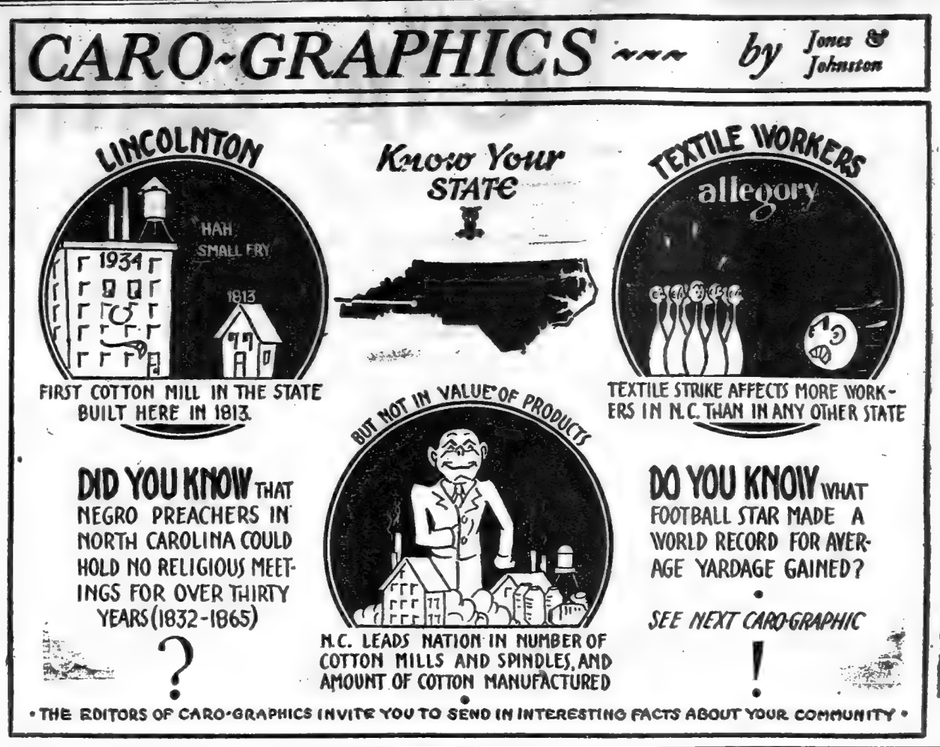
Education And the Budget

Dr. Leon Meadows, acting president of Eastern Carolina Teachers' College, one of our lesser neighbors and fellow sufferers down in Pitt county, almost succeeded, though apparently unwillingly, in shifting the budget spotlight from President Graham at the meeting with the state advisory budget commisssion Tuesday.

Representatives of E. C. T. C., appearing before the commission with a request for a drastic increase in their budget, immediately were counter-attacked by members of the commission with charges of non-compliance with the act passed by the 1933 General Assembly specifying a tuition charge.

Dr. Meadows based his defense argument on the fact that the act required a "nominal tuition" charge. This nominal tuition he claimed to be included in the other costs and fees levied on the students, and asserted that by utilizing this type of tuition, the total cost to the student remained the same as it had been in former years.

The action taken by Dr. Meadows and the board of trustees in turning a technicality of a state law into a practical asset for their school, while possibly questionable, is definitely an indication that they are striving for education for education's sake, and this indication was strengthened when the commission took exception to the fact that E. C. T. C. had a graduate school, though primarily intended to be a teachers' college, such action pointing to a desire on the part of the college to raise itself to the standard of a university.



Rushing And Rushing

Even before the present rushing season is half over, we hear countless mutterings on the part of fraternities and freshmen alike derogating the present rushing system in one breath and advocating the deferred plan in the other.

There is, to be trite, lots to be said on both sides. It is only too apparent that trying to become thoroughly acquainted with those who will possibly be bosom friends for the rest of your life in two short weeks, or really, five or six short hours, is a virtual impossibility. It takes time and plenty of it to make your choice on a group with which you must associate at the least for four years at school and in most instances, the entirety of your life.

On the other hand, fraternities realize that lots of sub rosa rushing would go on if three months were allowed before pledging and not only that, but that freshmen would tend to isolate themselves into groups, and consequently place a barrier between themselves and upperclassmen.

The present rushing season presents a picture for study with this problem in mind. The problem should be carefully considered before another period of bewilderment cruises around.

PRESIDENT GRAHAM'S SPEECH

"The University Stands, Falls, or Goes Forward with the People Of North Carolina," President Tells Budget Commission.

Following is the complete text of the speech:

The University of North Carolina in presenting this budget wishes to co-operate with the state to the utmost of its resources in working through the present financial difficulties. The sacrifices of its faculties and the whole spirit of the three consolidated institutions, along with the state and all its public servants, tell their own story of co-operation and determination. The university stands, falls or goes forward with the people of North Carolina. We place this budget in your hands to be considered on its merits in fair relation to all the other institutions, departments and great public agencies of the people. We ask for fair, not preferential, consideration. We realize the desperate situation of the public school teachers, the employes of the highway department, the needs of the public health service and public welfare departments, the needs of the workers and the inmates in the humanitarian institutions, all the employes in the state departments, and all others in the public service in North Carolina. We have some understanding of the state's fiscal problems, the difficulties of solving them.

Increase Needed

In this spirit we present this budget. In view of cumulative salary cuts, deeper than previous falling living costs, and in view of the present rise in prices, we consider that an increase in the salary scale of 25 per cent of the present rate is needed for the well-being of the public service. This increase of state sales is also needed, we believe, to give a truer expression to the aroused sense of intellectual, moral and spiritual values of the people of North Carolina. Public budget making gives expression both to the financial capacity and to the soul of the people.

The University of North Carolina in its combined units is asking for an increase in total operating cost of 23.8 per cent for the first year of the biennium, and an increase of 25 per cent for the second year of the biennium.

Requested for 1935-36 $3,354,332 for total requirements. Current budget 1934-35 $2,707,971, for total requirements. $646,361 an increase of 23.8 per cent.

Requested for 1936-37 $3,393,694 for total requirements. Current budget 1934-35 $2,707,071 for total requirements. $686,623, an increase of 25 per cent.

State appropriations for the three units of the new consolidated university: 1928-29 $1,810,415. 1934-35 $832,330. Requested for 1935-36 $1,385,768.

Below 1928-29 Sum

This requested appropriation is around one-half million dollars above the current appropriation, and is nearly one-half million dollars below the appropriation in 1928-29.

The true basis for the comparison of the budget of the University of North Carolina is with the budgets of other universities. The high and wide range of the needs and services of a university of the people puts heavy and various strains on the university budget, which are in the very nature of its purpose and life in serving the youth and the people of a state. A consolidated university budget has to run the entire range of the costs of a college in all its divisions, of a statewide extension division, of great libraries which serve the whole state, of the professional and technological schools, and over them all a distinguished graduate school.

A comparison of the budget of the University of North Carolina with the budgets of other universities reveals low cost to the state, wide value to the people, and highest standing in the nation.

A free people who know what they own themselves will preserve and develop on the highest level the university of the people in answer to their own needs, in protection of their own freedom and in the fulfillment of their own democracy.

Step Forward

The budget here presented is a step in building on the fine foundations already here, a woman's college of the first rank and fully worthy of the women of North Carolina; a school of agriculture and forestry, a textile school and an engineering school, all scientifically, socially-scientifically and culturally reinforced for the upbuilding of this state on a better balanced basis of agriculture and industry; and the college of liberal arts and sciences in all its divisions and schools, professional schools and graduate schools—in a three-fold mobilization and utilization of the economic, social, intellectual and spiritual resources of a people in the adventurous and hopeful program of building a nobler and happier state.

We present this budget with a high sense of responsibility to the youth and the people of North Carolina. We feel sure that you will consider it with a high sense of responsibility. In the making of the budget you are helping to make the quality of the life of the state, the opportunities of the people, and the hopes of their children.

Snavely Polishes Grid Outfit For First Game

Tar Heels Take It Easy For Tilt Saturday With Deacons.

Coach Carl Snavely began polishing the 1934 Carolina football squad yesterday afternoon for its opening game here tomorrow against the Wake Forest Deacons.

The new mentor gave the Tar Heels only a light workout and spent most of the afternoon lecturing and giving instructions for the first Big Five contest.

During the afternoon the squad took drills in kicking off, returning kickoffs, punting, kicking and blocking extra points, and setting themselves on defense against the various Deacon formations.

Work on Passing

The squad also took a long dummy scrimmage to polish its offense, working especially on the passing attack. Both Slippery Dick Dashiell and Jim Hutchins looked good tossing for the first team, while Dick Buck and Bill Moore, ends, and Charlie Shaffer, halfback, did some nice receiving.

Captain George Barclay, ace guard, continued to take it easy because of a stiff leg but will be ready to do his part in the opening tilt. The Tar Heel captain will have three positions to play in the battle, playing guard on offense, center on defense, and also calling the plays on offense.

Joyce Is Out

"Punchy" Joyce, letter guard and alternate with "King" Kahn at a regular position last year, reported for the first time yesterday. He only took it easy and will likely not be in condition for the Deacons.

Coach Snavely will give the squad only a short, light drill today before excusing it until game time.

The contest, in which Snavely will make his debut as a southern coach, is scheduled to bring together two of the heaviest teams in the state. If anybody is the favorite it is the Deacons who had a fairly easy time mopping up Guilford 62-0 last Saturday.

The Wake Forest line, which averages close to 200, will outweigh the Carolina forward wall by some 10 pounds to a man. However, the Tar Heels are rated to be faster.

Blocking Important

Coach Hunk Anderson, new mentor at State, stated to the press that he expected the two teams to put up a great battle of power against power and that the best blocking outfit would win. He was inclined to give the Carolina club a slight advantage in the blocking department.

Reports from Wake Forest say that Dallis Morris, speedy sophomore back, was suffering with a cold and may not be able to play. Morris is just a second stringer but he made several long and clever runs against the Quakers.

The rest of the Wake Forest squad is in top condition. Carolina will be without the services of Don Jackson, halfback, and Gene Barwick, end, who are injured, and Joyce, who just reported.

Underwood Wants Addresses

Students who have not filled out DAILY TAR HEEL directory cards or who have changed their addresses since filling out these records are requested to fill in new cards in the business office of the publication in Graham Memorial this afternoon or Saturday, it was announced yesterday by Circulation Manager George Underwood.

DUKEMEN DEPART FOR V. M. I. BATTLE AT LEXINGTON, VA.

Sophomores Break Into Starting Lineup in Wade's First Game; Duke Great Favorites.

CADETS HAVE STRENGTH

Durham, N. C., Sept. 27.—Completing preparations in their final workout this afternoon, Duke's 1934 edition of Blue Devils will leave here tomorow at 1:00 o'clock for Lexington, Va., where on Saturday they open their campaign with V. M. I.

The starting lineup against the Cadets was still uncertain in several places as the Blue Devils ran through their final work today. Joe Cardwell, husky sophomore, may be at the right tackle berth in a shift that will send Tom Power, another sophomore who has been filling the place all fall, to left guard.

Sophs Star

Three sophomores are practically certain to start the game.

They are Power, Dick Taliaferro, right end, and Clarence Parker, halfback. Parker has made a fine showing at Duke during the past week—his punting having improved greatly.

The Blue Devils can see only a tough game Saturday. The Cadets are rated to be far stronger than they were last year and are said to be "loaded for bear."

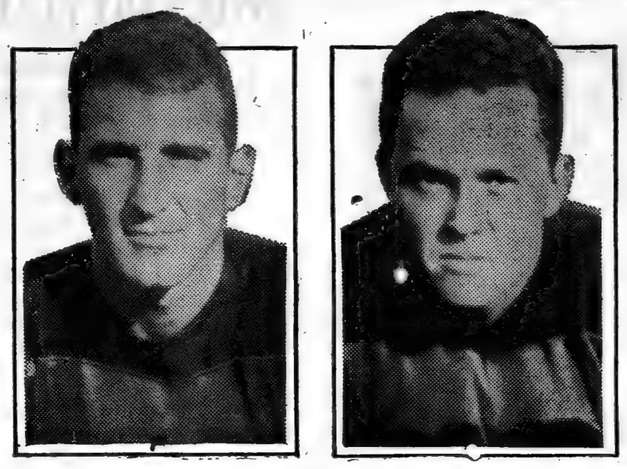
The quite probable lineup for the Wademen will be as follows: ends, Wentz and Taliaferro; tackles, Durner and Cardwell; guards, Capt. J. Dunlap and Power; center, E. B. Dunlap; quarter, Ward; halfbacks, Parker and Cornelius; and fullback, Alexander.

VIRGINIA BATTLES STRONG HAMP-SYD

Only Three Cavalier Veterans; Same Strong Tigers Which Tied Virginia Last Year.

University, Va., Sept. 27.—When Virginia lines up for the kick-off against Hampden-Sydney College Saturday afternoon the Cavaliers will be opening the 47th season since they took officially to intercollegiate football in 1888.

Gus Tebell, Virginia's new coach, will be making a sort of bow to the football fans. Coach Tebell has been backfield assistant to other Cavalier grid tutors for four seasons, but tomorrow's game will be the first played by a team developed under his full charge.



In the game against the Tigers the public will have a first chance to watch the new "military huddle and shift" from which the Cavaliers are running their attack this fall. Those who have watched this worked in practice scrimmages are enthusiastic over it.

Two Backfield Stars

Only Captain Tommy Johnson at halfback and Spencer Berger at fullback will be playing the same places they filled last fall. And Johnson won't be calling signals, which he did a year ago.

Ken Morton is the only man left from the line that started off the 1933 season, and he has been shifted from end to guard. All of the other forwards will be new, for Coach Tebell and his staff are having to develop the front wall upon rebuilt foundations.

DEAC BALL-CARRYING STARS

The above men are two of the spark plugs in the Wake Forest attack, fast on offense and steady on defense. Bill Martin (left) weighs only 158 pounds, being the lightest fellow on the squad, but much dynamite and power are stacked in that little package. The fullback is David Meyers (right). This Demon Deacon is a real driver with his 180 pounds of speed and brawn.

Both Martin and Meyers are regulars and together with Edens and Kitchin round out probably the best backfield that ever played for the Black and Gold.

Sophs, Fifteen Lettermen Form Bright Track Hopes

Cindermen Have Prospects to Repeat 1934 Season; Nine Record Holders Return.

WINTER PRACTICE STARTS

The "Flying Tar Heels," who left only a blazing trail in Dixie trackdom wherever they went last year, have written on the books for them another season quite as successful, or at least that is the way things look at the present.

With fifteen lettermen returning and a selected group of sophomores in line, Coach Bob Fetzer and Dale Ranson have a nucleus of ace material on which to build up another state and conference championship crew for the cinder paths.

Winter practice will begin in several days to get the men in shape for the indoor season, the highlight for the winter being the conference meet in the Tin Can.

Last season the tracksters lost only to Dartmouth in an early meet and then took into camp William and Mary, Georgetown, Virginia, Duke, and Navy. They piled up more points in the state meet than the combined total of their opponents. In the S. I. C. meet they more than doubled the score of the runner-up.

Previous to the outdoor session, the Fetzer fellows had captured the conference indoor title.

Fourteen Records

Individually, the men set fourteen records which go down on the history pages of the Penn Relays, Southern Conference, N. C. State Intercollegiates, and the University.

The graduates took with them five of these marks. Ralston LeGore made four himself to set the pace, scoring record throws in the javelin event in each of the four divisions mentioned above. Edwin McRae set a mile mark indoors in the conference meet.

That leaves nine of these best marks among the stars returning to school. These are shared by Hubbard, Hawthorne, Williamson, Abernethy, Drake, and Childers.

The captains for the cindermen are Tom Hawthorne and Charlie Hubbard. Hawthorne is a crack low hurdler and also a good high hurdler. He was a consistent winner in his event, setting a University mark of 24 seconds for the lows.

Hubbard Tops Scoring

Hubbard was high scorer for the Heels last season. Scoring points in both century dash and board jump, he was far ahead of the best of the men. He set his records in the broad jump. He

NEW TOUCH RULES FOR MURAL GRID

N.C.A.A. Revised System of Tag Football Rules to Be Used, Says Director Schnell.

The rules for this fall's touch football, which will start next Thursday and for which team entries will close on Tuesday afternoon, have many changes from the previous years. Copies of the new rules will be handed out to team managers and then discussed by that group at their initial meeting on Tuesday evening.

This season's rules are those recommended by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, of which Carolina is a member. Intramural Director Herman Schnell is chairman of the North Carolina board and states that other institutions in the state are trying them out this season. The purpose of these rules is to have a uniform code and to contribute toward reducing the number and severity of injuries occurring in touch football games.

The most important change from last year's regulations finds that "a touch (tackle) occurs when an opponent touches the ball carrier with both hands simultaneously." The previous rule required only a slap to down the carrier. This should liven up the game considerably and will also stress the necessity of more efficient blocking.

Zone System

Instead of having the fields marked off in 5-yard units, the playing area will be divided into five zones, with a team having four downs in which to advance to the next zone no matter where it gains the ball. Should the team take the ball ten yards from the next zone line, it will have four downs to make the distance, and likewise should it have only one yard to go.

Unlimited substitutions will be permitted, with the game consisting of two periods of twenty minutes each. Another new regulation states "that a forward pass may be made from any point behind the line of scrimmage."

A rule in an effort to eliminate injury has been set down in regard to fumbles, in "that a player shall not be permitted to leave his feet while in the act of recovering or attempting to recover a loose or fumbled ball. The weight of his body must be squarely on his feet throughout." In connection with blocking in the open, no part of the blocker's body, except his feet, shall be in contact with the ground throughout the block.

CARDS VICTORIOUS AND ADVANCE ON IDLE TERRYMEN

St. Louis Comes to Within Half Game of Giants for Lead; Dizzy Scheduled Today.

GIANTS PLAY TOMORROW

The fast-stepping National league baseball team from Missouri took the advantage offered them yesterday and gained one half-game on the leading New York Giants.

While the Terry crew was taking the day off, the Cardinals were swamping under the lowly Cincinnati Reds in a tight ball game by the score, 8-5. "Lefty" Walker took his turn at the mound for the rising Cards and came through.

The Ohio team got to Walker for thirteen hits, just two more than the Cards could get, but three costly errors and their failure to hit in the pinch put them on the lower side of the score.

Chance to Tie Giants

Their victory yesterday gives the Cards more than an outside chance of capturing the National flag. Today the Cards play the Reds, while the Giants remain idle again. The Giants have two more games on their card, both with Brooklyn, who would give anything to rob their local rival of the pennant. The Cards likewise have a pair of games to play.

Today Jerome Dean, the elder of the famed pitching pair, will more than likely get the call to fling them as the Cards attempt to crawl up into the top seat with the Giants. "Dizzy" pitched three days ago and his call is scheduled today. He will oppose Freitas, probably.

Should both the Giants and the Cards win their remaining games, they would end the regular season in a tie for top honors, which would necessitate a play-off series of best-two-out-of-three games.

Cake Race Entries To Take Workouts

The annual mural Cake Race is just three weeks off and practice for this free-for-all will begin today on Emerson field.

All entrants who will be eligible to run on the date of the race must first complete six workouts under the supervision of cross country Coach Dale Ranson. Practice opens this afternoon from three to six o'clock at Emerson field. An assistant will be stationed at the main gate to check in and out all men.

These workouts are quite necessary, because training and practice are quite important in the final results. In the past those who finished among the first were those who had taken the many workouts.

The race is run over a 1.9 mile course. The entrants are registered by teams, and the prizes go to the individual and team winners.

Yearling Gridsters Work Hard; Scrimmage Early Next Week

Coaches James and Fysal Put Squad Through Blocking And Signal Drills.

FIRST STRING IS HEAVY

Initial Game with Wake Forest Frosh Here October 12; Little Deacons Reported Strong.

The first step towards the gradual selection of the probable A-ranking team for the 1934 yearling gridiron team was taken yesterday in the frosh camp, as the first week of hard drilling came to an end and a scrimmage expected early next week.

Strenuous working in blocking, tackling, and other fundamentals of the game are still being stressed as the men rapidly round into shape. Sharp signal practices were also being held. During the week the team learned the Wake Forest formations and used these against the varsity.

The coaching staff has gradually weeded out the best men on the lot, the fellows who have shown the best work to date. The group they have selected looks mighty and full of promise. A team which could go on the field immediately and do well by itself averages 190 pounds in the line and 180 in the backfield. Every day men are brought up to the select group because they have shown they have the stuff.

Outstanding Flankmen

There are several men who have shown outstanding work so far and have taken the lead over the rest. At ends, Kenney and Bershak seem to have the edge over the remaining. Both fellows are hefty and shifty, good blockers, with Kenney a good pass receiver. Lloyd, Pineburg, Leak and Crowell are other leading ends.

The big "Man of the Mountain," 215 pound Juliper and Maffitt are the first ranking tackles. Both men, fast for their size, would add much strength to practically any line. Other tackles are Hudicka and Bartos. Gatus and Scherer have the advantage on the guards, but just ahead of Ax and Dunham.

The pivot post is held down by the steady Avery. Israel and Dunham are also leading center candidates.

Probably the leading backfield man to date is Burnette, quarter and also a halfback. His general playing has made him the star of the practices. Running with him on the "A" quartet are Thomas and Snisback at halfbacks and Ditt at full.

Other backfield men are Hoffer, Kaufman, Graves, and Whitnact, quarters; Tyson, Oliver, and Fields, halves; and Partin, Walfourn, and Wolfe at full.

The Wake Forest frosh are reported to have a very strong and fast eleven which will come to Chapel Hill October 12.

KOCH SKETCHES GROWTH OF ARTS

Chief Playmaker, in Lecture, Depicts Progress in Drama During Past Few Years.

In a lecture last night at the Carolina Playmakers Theatre, Professor F. H. Koch pointed out the progress made in the last few years in the field of the arts, especially the drama.

Emphasis was placed on the fact that during the depression particularly the esthetic sense of the people has asserted itself in the form of numerous developments such as the Little Theatres and State Symphony orchestras.

Professor Koch stressed the great strides made in our own state during the last fifteen or twenty years, citing especially the institution of the Carolina Playmakers, which had its beginning seventeen years ago.

Drama in State

At that time, the speaker stated, there was no more barren field for the dramatic art than North Carolina. Producers in New York had even struck the state off lists for advertising. But largely due to the efforts of the pioneers here at Chapel Hill, a promising literary and dramatic colony which is nationally known has arisen.

Professor Koch cited the numerous courses in dramatic expression available at Carolina and also the four volumes of plays which have been published by undergraduates here as examples of the great progress made.

During the course of the lecture, Dr. Glen Haydon, new head of the music department, was introduced and welcomed.

The remainder of the talk was devoted to the showing of illustrated slides depicting the beginnings of drama in the Middle West, where Koch worked for many years as a member of the faculty of the University of North Dakota.

After the lecture, refreshments were served, and the audience had an opportunity to meet the members of the Playmakers organization.

Scholar Disapproves American Plan

United States to give lectures at Yale, the University of Chicago, Dartmouth, Harvard, and several other large universities.

"I call myself a Christian Confucionist," said Dr. Wei, who is an authority on Confucionism. About seventy-five per cent of the 120 students of Central China College are Christians.

Dr. Wei says that a college student should interest himself in some extra-curricular activity and not be just a book-worm; but he thinks that athletics and other outside activities are greatly over-emphasized in American college life.

"Last Yacht's" Beach Comber Quartet

These ex-socialites have gone melodiously native in RKO-Radio's musical extravaganza, "Down to Their Last Yacht," now playing at the Carolina theatre. The lavish production boasts several song hits, the work of six of Hollywood's ace composers. Mary Boland, Polly Moran, Ned Sparks, Sidney Fox, and Sidney Blackmer are featured.

TWELVE ARE ILL

The following students were confined to the University infirmary yesterday: Sterry Branning, S. P. Barham, Woodrow Blackman, Norwood Cox, Luther Dixon, Billy Robertson, Everett Richardson, Brogden Spence, R. N. Magill, C. W. Sutton, Vincent Sexton, and Margaret Siceloff.

Unless it is of absolute necessity everyone is requested to visit the infirmary only during office hours.

Y.M.C.A. COMMITTEE PLANS INTER-CHURCH COUNCIL

In a meeting yesterday afternoon, the church relations committee of the Y. M. C. A. discussed methods of organizing a religious workers' council. The council is planning to bring churches of Chapel Hill into closer contact with each other in relations with students.

Details of the plan will be worked out at a future meeting, to be called within a few days.

BERRYHILL TELLS INFIRMARY RULES

University Physician Addresses Freshman Assembly on Policies of Hospital.

Dr. W. R. Berryhill, head of the infirmary and chairman of the health and sanitation committee for the University, explained the functions and policies of the infirmary in a speech yesterday morning at freshman assembly.

According to the physician, each freshman is urged to come to the hospital for medical attention when sick, although he may have only a cold, for it is unfair to other students for him to attend class with a contagious disease.

Tuberculin Test

The tuberculin test -was introduced into the University last year and was given to all freshmen this year. Those who had X-ray pictures taken need not come to the infirmary unless notified.

Addresses Wanted

Students who did not give a complete Chapel Hill address when registering last week are asked to telephone or call by the Y. M. C. A. office. The addresses are wanted for the annual Student Directory.

Students in town should give, in addition to the street address, the name of the person at whose home they are living, so the telephone number will be available.

Fifteen Letterman Are Track Hopes

leaped 23 feet 7 plus inches to set a University and state record. He was also a 10 second man.

Harry Williamson is one of the best middle distance men in the south or "southeast." He set marks for the half mile for both state and University with his run of 1:56.4 minutes. He was also a constant winner in the quarter. This coming season he may take on the mile run, which will be vacated by the stand-by last season, McRae.

Frank Abernethy was beaten only by Everett of Virginia in the high hurdles and set a state and University record in this event. His best mark was 14.8 seconds.

Odell Childers, fast sprinter and good broad jumper, set a state mark in the 220-yard dash.

J. O. "Red" Drake turned a surprising win in the quarter mile race in the conference meet and likewise set a mark for the University.

Other lettermen back are: Barney Keeney and Red Montgomery, middle distance runners; Fab Haywood, miler; Ed Waldrop, distance runner; Tom Evins, weight man; Don Jackson, pole vaulter; Frank Armfield, javelin tosser, and Higby, star broad jumper of several years ago, but out of school last year.

Rising sophs include Graham Gammon, Bob Gardiner, Marvin Allen, Jack Bowers, and others. Napier, soph who was out of school last year, has returned and adds much strength to the squad.

FERA AUTHORIZES FOLK ART WORK

Research to Preserve Native Songs and Dances in Chapel Hill Will Be Conducted.

Projects for the preservation of folk music arts have been set up here by the FERA, under the auspices of the University institute of folk music, it was announced yesterday by Richard Chase.

Research in the interest of preserving traditional songs and dances will be carried on at Chapel Hill and the work will be concerned with gathering information on the entire field of American folk music. All collections will be kept at Chapel Hill, and later photographic recordings will be made.

Demonstrations in State

Teaching of both American and English folk music arts will be carried out in various state institutions and schools through student demonstrations, which are being organized.

Two workers are to handle the project, a director and a musician-assistant. Any violinist without work may apply for the musical position through box 842, Chapel Hill, according to Chase.

PRESIDENT HEARS RECOVERY BOARD READY TO WORK

Administration to Proceed Cautiously in Future Industrial Affairs of Nation.

NRA PROGRAM TO STAY

Washington, Sept. 28.—(UP)—The new recovery board today informed President Roosevelt that it was organized and ready to begin work.

The first official act of the board was to retain Colonel George A. Lynch as administrative officer of the NRA.

After this act, came the assurance by Donald Richberg, the director of the new emergency committee, that the present NRA set-up would not be scrapped.

Richberg described the new recovery organization as a trial institution which will remain in force pending action by the 74th Congress.

DEFER EXECUTIVE ORDER

An indication that the administration will proceed cautiously in future industrial innovations came from the White House tonight.

Roosevelt suspended for two weeks the effective date of the executive order reducing the working week in the cotton garment industry from 40 to 36 hours.

At the same time, the President directed an impartial three man committee to study the working wage conditions of that industry.

FEATURES ADDED TO 1934 PROGRAM

Will Use More Action Photos; To Inaugurate "Hero of the Day" Page in This Issue.

The 1934 football programs published by the University Athletic association will be slightly different from those of last season, it was announced by Marion Alexander yesterday.

The covers will be more attractive and the appearance of the entire publication has been improved. The cover for the Wake Forest-Carolina issue portrays the contrast of a modern football player and a present-day football crowd with a player and a crowd of many years ago.

Many Photos

Appearing in this number are pictures of faculty members in the administrative spotlight; a bird's-eye view of Kenan stadium; a picture of "Coach Bob" Fetzer; football action snapshots; a layout of the new coaching staff; and last year's sports as portrayed by the Yackety Yack. Many more action pictures are being used this year.

A new feature inaugurated this year is the "Hero of the Day" page, on which tribute is paid to the University football player who stands out in the game. A committee of coaches and sportswriters will select one man for this honor in each program. Captain George Barclay is praised in the first issue.

Addresses Wanted

The complete addresses of students who did not give them at registration are wanted for the annual student directory at the Y. M. C. A. Students are requested to come by or telephone the "Y."

Oldest Structure In Chapel Hill Destroyed During Vacation Period

Bottle of "Old Nick," Found in Razing Building, Described As "Mighty Mellow."

The oldest building in Chapel Hill, probably older than the University itself, was razed during the summer. The history of the two-story frame building which stood next to the Standard filling station on Franklin street is a record of progress in Chapel Hill for nearly a century and a half.

Originally, the structure—which had neither name nor number— had a wide frame veranda across the front, approached from a broad flight of wooden steps. At the bottom of the steps were hitched the carts, carriages and saddle horses of the people who came into the store to buy and to exchange tidbits of village gossip.

Corn Whiskey Relic

A number of relics of the "good old days" were found when the building was torn down. One was a bottle of "Old Nick Corn Whiskey, made in Williamston, North Carolina in 1879, for family use only." A gold medal seal on the bottle testified that it was eight years old when released. The negro carpenter who drank it said that it was "mighty mellow."

Workmen also discovered several boxes of white, fingerless lady's gloves, elbow-length, and some of the old-fashioned high white collars, long straight stiff cuffs and white dress bow ties which were worn by gentlemen of quality in those days. There were about fifty law books, too, used by students who lived in the building from time to time.

Nobody knows exactly when or why it was built. The oldest native of Chapel Hill, Mr. Marion Cheek, says that it was an old building when he was a boy, 75 years ago. R. A. Eubanks, now postmaster of Chapel Hill, said, "I don't know when it was built. I kept a store there for 44 years, and it must have been more than 100 years old when I moved in there."

When Mr. Eubanks opened his store it was the only place in Chapel Hill which sold cigars. The favorite brand then was Linco's, a brand which has long since passed off the market. The top shelf running all the way around the main room of the store was stacked the five feet to the ceiling with these cigar boxes. Our informant added that Mr. Eubanks smoked most of these himself.

Pegs Used for Nails

The massive beams which formed the skeleton of the building were ten inches square, and were fastened together with wooden pegs. The only nails used in the building—in the floor and the ceiling of solid ten-inch pine boards—were made by hand. It was built on a sturdy foundation of hand-picked square rocks which can still be seen.

When Franklin street was widened, the steps were sunk back into the porch, dividing the veranda in half. When the pavement was laid, the porch was torn down, and the steps were sunk back into the main building. In recent years the old building looked something like the adjoining structure which now serves as the local express office.

It has been used for almost

STADIUM SPIRIT

Ram Butts Rival For Horning In

Ram Fool Rolls in Dust Butt Wins $2.37.

Rameses III is a champion in his own right, a battle-scarred veteran who is just a little bit bored with this spirit thing down here because there's not enough bloodshed. You ought to see HIM when ill-winds blow him no ramn good.

A special report was brought into the office of this publication yesterday by a breathless messenger from Hogan's farm. A look of downright terror was spread over his (her) face. Her (his) hand shook visibly as she (he) handed the message to a blank DAILY TAR HEEL reporter.

Letter from Hogan

It was from Glenn Hogan, Rameses' fond owner. It was a note of fire and rammy ferocity telling of a tremendous combat in which Rameses III gained a bloody victory.

Here is the gory story (almost ad verbatim):

"It was Thursday evening at setting sun when that . . . . . ram met a rival in mortal combat and laid him low with a flying tackle. Rameses Jr. (ed. note: it should be Rameses IV) witnessed his illustrious old man roll his enemy in the dirt . . . His combat was the termination of a year old grudge. He got one of his enemy's horns last Thanksgiving." (Ed. note: it wouldn't blow very well so he gave it back magnanimously on the Fourth of July).

As a post script to the note was Rameses' own word, the modest word of a real champion: "I rammed my way to a swell flying tackle. We rolled in the dirt and I won $2.37. Hope the Carolina team does likewise. All my love. Baaaaa!"

COMMITTEE HAS FIVE PROGRAMS

"Green Pastures" Is First on Entertainment Series.

Five events have been selected for the student entertainment series this year, Dr. J. P. Harland, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced yesterday. A sixth engagement will be made for the spring quarter.

The entertainment schedule as it now stands is as follows:

October 8, "Green Pastures;" December 6, Nini Theilade, Danish dancer, in conjunction with the Whitney string quartet; January 16, DeWolf Hopper in a Gilbert and Sullivan opera (either "The Mikado" or "Pinafore"); February 12, Russian Symphony Choir; and April 25, Zimbalist, the Russian violinist.

Students who do not pay the regular entertainment fee and others connected with the University may purchase season tickets for three dollars at Alfred Williams.

LAW ENROLLMENT HITS NEW RECORD

Over 50 Per Cent Have Degrees; Nine Students of 130 from Out of State.

The ninety-first year of the law school of the University opened this fall at the close of the registration period, with an aggregate total of 130 students, the largest enrollment so far as available records show in the history of the school.

There are fifty students in the first-year class; forty-six in the second year class; and thirty-four in the third-year class.

Many Have Degrees

Of the 130, 73 or 56 per cent have received college degrees. Of the senior class of 34, 29, or 85 per cent of the class have college degrees. This is the second largest senior class in the history of the school, the previous high mark having been reached by the class of 1929 with thirty-nine seniors.

All of the 130 students in the law school are residents of North Carolina except nine, of whom two are from Connecticut; one from the District of Columbia; one from Louisiana; one from New Jersey; one from South Carolina; two from Massachusetts; and one from Wisconsin.

Breckenridge on Leave

Just before the opening of school, Professor M. S. Breckenridge was given a leave of absence for the fall semester in order to enable him to become counsel for a sub-committee of the committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of the House of Representatives in Washington which is investigating various aspects of the petroleum industry.

A part of Mr. Breckenridge's teaching duties have been taken over by Mr. Edwin M. Perkins of Brevard, a graduate of the law school in 1933, who has since been serving as an assistant in the Institute for Research in Social Science.

Tickets for the dance are for sale at one dollar per couple at Pritchard-Lloyd's.

Plans Of Suicide Or Jailbreak By Lindy Suspect Are Broken

Accused May Plead Insanity As Defense

Disappearance of One of Hauptmann's Meal Spoons Causes Suspicion; Found in Cell.

LOOK FOR ACCOMPLICES

New York, Sept. 28.—(UP)—Discovery of a broken and sharpened soup spoon in the cell of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, alleged kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby, today indicated that the accused was either planning to commit suicide or attempt a jailbreak.

The spoon disappeared after one of Hauptmann's meals. Jailers searched his cell today and found the spoon broken in four pieces and concealed in a drain pipe. Hereafter, only paper utensils will be served Hauptmann, and the guard at his cell door will be strengthened.

Witnesses Questioned

Meanwhile, a steady stream of witnesses flowed into District Attorney Samuel J. Foley's office for questioning on various phases of the case.

Department of justice agents, New York detectives, and New Jersey officials are co-ordinating their efforts in a swift drive to bring in every shred of possible evidence.

Reports persisted that the investigation is concentrating on searching for possible accomplices of Hauptmann.

James W. Fawcett, Hauptmann's attorney, said that a psychiatrist will examine his client tomorrow, thus indicating an insanity defense.

In New York state, Hauptmann is being tried only on extortion charges. In New Jersey, however, he faces the more serious charges of kidnaping and murder.

RUSHING SUSPENDED

Rushing will be suspended today until 7:00 o'clock tonight, according to a ruling passed yesterday by the Interfraternity council in special meeting. This rule prohibits any rushing during the Wake Forest-Carolina game.

Bob Fetzer Explains Passbook Regulations

Passbooks to Be Used Only by Persons to Whom Issued.

By "COACH BOB" FETZER

We are making a special appeal to students to comply with the regulations concerning the use of student passbooks to athletic contests.

It will be necessary to take up all passbooks which are presented by any person other than the student to whom they were issued.

We are compelled to enforce this rule rigidly if we are to have the support necessary to continue our present broad program of intramural and intercollegiate athletics.

Source of Revenue

Our revenue comes from two sources: student fees and outside ticket sales. The student fee has been held to a minimum price, approximately 25 per cent of the total cost of single admissions for outsiders to the same events.

A student who permits an outsider to use his passbook deprives the Athletic association of 3-4 of the price of the admission. At the same time he cheats himself and his fellow students by reducing the amount of money which can be put into the University's athletic program.

University Policies

The University has maintained its policy of large squads, generous provision for equipment, and attractive heavy home schedules even during the depression. We hope that you will help us with your co-operation in continuing these policies.

Students will continue to occupy the center section on the south side entering at gate 6. May we ask, as a courtesy to our visitors, that you come to the game early. We are proud of our student section and should like to have it filled before the kickoff. This would also avoid the congestion caused by a last-minute rush.

LECTURE SERIES BEGINS TUESDAY

H. K. Russell to Be First Bull's Head Speaker.

The new series of lectures to be given at the Bull's Head bookshop in the "Y" will open Tuesday at 4:30 o'clock, with Dr. H. K. Russell of the English department making the opening address.

The topic of Dr. Russell's discussion has not yet been announced, but it is understood that he plans to use as part of his material, Paul Engle's new book entitled "American Song."

Elizabeth Johnson, director of the Bull's Head, announces that a complete program for regular Tuesday afternoon lectures during the school year is being outlined.

WARDLAW PLAYS ON CBS NETWORK

Alumnus Now Located on Steel Pier in Atlantic City; Has Seventeen Piece Band.

Jack Wardlaw and his Carolinians have been broadcasting during the past week over the Columbia network through WPG, Atlantic City, where the band has been playing in the Winter Garden on the Steel Pier. Freddie Rich and other Columbia broadcasting bands have recently preceded the Carolinians.

Jack is now carrying a band composed of 17 musicians and little Miss Mae Parrish, seven-year-old torch singer, formerly of Durham.

Affiliated with C. A. B.

Along with Isham Jones, Glen Grey's Casa Loma, and other well known bands, Wardlaw is now affiliated with Columbia Artists Bureau, a division of the Columbia Broadcasting system.

Following this week in Atlantic City, Wardlaw will probably go into another spot under this firm's direction and broadcast regularly over the CBS chain.

Jack Wardlaw started in the band business six years ago here in the University where Hal Kemp and Kay Kyser first started. Since that time he has made rapid progress in the musical world. He and his orchestra have made several trips to Europe.

PARAGRAPHICS

Add similes: as little subtlety as a Camel ad. As nervy as ditto.

The Y. M. C. A. And Its Program

The program outline of the activities which the University Y. M. C. A. will attempt to follow for the coming year is the most ambitious and vigorous program ever scheduled by the organization on this campus. Extensive planning for participation in the program has already begun under a committee system inaugurated by the president.

It has become increasingly apparent that projects purporting to effect spiritual, moral, mental, and educational amelioration on a student campus demand student administration rather than faculty or older organization heads as the leaders. The expression and initiative necessary to put over these projects must proceed in most part from the students themselves. The older administrators, of course, are essentially advisors and sharers of experience, guides for the students to heed and follow.

There are four major divisions or interests comprising the Y. M. C. A. outline, with the emphasis rightly placed on the first—religious and spiritual interests. Instead of merely stating that the organization will foster an attitude of religious inquisitiveness, the leaders have set forth definite programs, including student devotions, forums, inter-church work, religious clubs, conferences, and literature dissemination.

Other interests include campus welfare and service, extension work and service off the campus, and social, moral, and ethical education and stimulation. Under the last title are included such important projects as the quadriennial Human Relations institute, inter-racial co-operation work, and state social service programs.

It is not only gratifying but also extremely noteworthy, this program which the Y. M. C. A. has set for itself. At last we can say, we hope, that this organization is more than the geographic heart of the University campus.

Tar Heels And the NRA

With the appointment announced yesterday of S. Clay Williams to serve as a member of a board of five which will succeed General Hugh S. Johnson in the administrative control of the NRA, the second Tar Heel in two days has been called to national prominence to aid President Roosevelt in his reorganization program.

Williams, an official in the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company of Winston-Salem, follows Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy into the limelight of Washington. Justice Stacy, of the class of '06 here, was named Wednesday as the impartial chairman of the non-partisan Textile Labor Relations board.

It is commonly agreed that the appointment of Williams stamps him as one of the nation's pre-eminent industrialists insofar as relationship with the government is concerned. It is not his first large administrative position in the capital, for he is still chairman of the business advisory and planning council of the NRA of the department of commerce and has been second chairman of the Industrial advisory board of the NRA.

The Old North State is justly proud of the accomplishments of two of its most outstanding men of affairs.

Intramurals As a Policy

A colorful group stands on the grassy lawn between the dormitories. Various stages of undress for athletic purposes are represented; some of them are even bare to the feet. Then yells of profanity, and in an instant the orderly group is in frantic motion. Selected portions of a pig float through the air, and then there is jubilation on one side and humiliation on the other, as a practice game for intramural football gets briskly underway.

The intramural program at Carolina has received commendation from some of the ablest minds in the country. Since, obviously, everybody cannot make the varsity in any one sport, the system of intramural athletics was inaugurated to supplement varsity sports. That it has been a success cannot be doubted; it is difficult to find a student who has not at one time or another participated in intramurals of some kind.

Statistics show that Carolina has a larger per capita participation in athletics than even the typical small college of three or four hundred students. That a university of its dimensions should have managed to do this speaks well for the sponsors of the system, and also proves that, pessimists to the contrary, Carolina manages to turn out a pretty well-rounded type of college graduate.

Keeping Things Under Cover

No longer does the picture of serious schoolboys with dainty little notebooks under their arm confine itself to the elementary grades; Dean Van Hecke's lads of the law have thrown aside all precedent for what is termed utility's sake and today may be seen gallantly striding to and from Manning toting compact little books of observation notes.

Prior to this season, men of the law school have had no definite form to follow in taking notes on their cases. The old method of note-taking was not too convenient for the barristers-to-be. The ordinary paper used in briefing cases in law is lined so as to allow space for briefing the case on the larger side of the sheet, which is divided by a red line. This leaves only a minimum amount of room upon which to take observation notes, which are considered essential to well-rounded notes. But as the notes had to be crowded into so small a space, lots of errors were probably due to the jumble resulting.

The law school administration's action in making notebooks compulsory—notebooks containing printed forms for notes and room for handily pasting the notes between their covers—reveals a splendid acumen for details which is so necessary in the legal profession. Of course, undergraduates on this campus have enjoyed such a liberal policy tending to develop their own initiative in such instances that they have not been forced to use a standard type of notebook; but we realize that the older you get, the more apt you are to slip in your tottering state and jumble up notes regardless of your latent initiative or anything else. So we think the Van Hecke innovation is a great thing.

Then, too, the inconvenience caused by trying to crowd a cramped handwriting into a narrow margin is nerve-wracking at best. It's funny the notebook idea was never thought of before. Sociologically speaking, this is certainly a changing world.

New Deal for The Classroom

Editor the DAILY TAR HEEL:

As a student of one of the social sciences and feeling that time has a value and should be properly utilized, I wish to protest against the method of classroom procedure which I find in general use in my department. Is there not a better method of teaching than that by which the professor reads his notes, without question or comment by either the student or himself, while the student, hurriedly, illegibly, and too often with a vague and doubtful grasp of the meaning, struggles to record what he hears?

If the class period is to be occupied solely with taking dictation then it is wasted. Would it not be better for the professor to prepare mimeographed copies of his lectures and distribute these to each member of the class. This would enable each member to read beforehand the topic of the day and would give him time to think and reflect upon it. With this done he could come to the class prepared to ask questions concerning the more difficult aspects of the subject and to contribute a thoughtful opinion.

This method would neither preclude new and recently discovered material bearing on the course, nor would it necessarily lead to the stereotyped course of action usually endured in the use of textbooks. Such newly discovered materials could be presented to the class by either the teacher or the student. Further this method would avoid the exasperating monotony of writing until one's hand felt paralyzed. Why not let the typewriter or the printing press perform the dull work of copying and leave to the valuable time of the class the opportunity of discussing, of questioning, of clarifying, and of explaining? Would the cost of such mimeographed sheets be a deterrent? I think not. Not many students would hesitate a moment at the expense if they could avoid, by a few dollars, the wasted time and energy, the many mistakes in taking lecture notes, and experience, what is far more important, a deeper understanding and appreciation of the subject under study.

SUPERLATIVES

This week's rushing story concerns the freshman who was playing ping-pong with one of "the dear brothers in the lodge." "Say," he said seriously, as he batted the ball through the open door for the third successive time, "this fraternity has the largest number of national chapters of any fraternity on the campus, hasn't it?"

"No, it hasn't," came the surprised reply. "What makes you think so?"

"Well," replied the rushee, "I've been to six other houses and they all said they have, so I guessed you had too."

ABNORMALITY

An English paper—we'd hate to specify the course—referred to the verdant aspect of Chapel Hill in this way: "The town is well shaded by trees, some natural, some planted."

NOT GERTIE

It's been our good luck to hear a great deal about a very remarkable North Carolina lady who is old enough to be a great-grandmother. The latest anecdote concerns a sultry summer day when she drove her Cadillac down through the eastern part of the state to inspect some farms, with only a young boy for company. On the return trip, some distance from any civilization worth the name a clunking noise disturbed the lady. She stopped the car, got out and raised the hood, and saw that the fan-belt was broken. After a few minutes reflection, she reached down and took off a gay pink silk garter, replaced the fan-belt with it, and nonchalantly drove the fourteen miles into civilization.

WRONG NUMBER

The Co-operative Cleaners were not organized last year in time to get their telephone number in the current issue of the Chapel Hill Directory. This story concerns a student who dialed information and asked for their number. She gave it to him, and he thought he dialed it. Somebody on the other end said, "Hello."

"Will you please send down to the Alpha Alpha house and get some clothes?" asked the student.

"What do you want me to do with them?" answered a mild-voiced lady, who snickered and hung up.

ALL WET

The official beginning of the football season today reminds us that one of the best football stories we ever heard has never, as far as we know, been chronicled.

It seems that several years ago, the Duke game was played in a pouring rain. Everybody was wet and uncomfortable until a drunk in the stands whooped out: "This is the —est day for a football game. Anybody with any sense would've stayed at home. I'm damned glad I did."

Nobody felt quite so wet after that.

Carolina And Deacons Battle In Opening Grid Game At Kenan Stadium

Kickoff for Rival Big Five Clubs to be called at 2:30 O'clock; Coach Carl Snavely Will Make His Debut as Tar Heel Mentor and Will Present Warner System; Close Tilt Expected.

Dashiell	161	L.H.	Edens	198
Shaffer	173	R.H.	Holton	170
Hutchins	191	F.B.	Myers	180

Coach Carl Snavely will exhibit his first Carolina team to football fans this afternoon when the Tar Heels battle Wake Forest in Kenan stadium. The kickoff for Carolina's opening game of the 1934 season is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

The contest may develop into one of the best of the season as both teams are rated to have about the same strength. If either club is a favorite it is Wake Forest as a result of its easy victory over Guilford last Saturday.

Deacons Heavy

The Deacons with their 200-pound veteran line will outweigh the Tar Heels by some ten pounds to a man. Wake Forest is led by Pat Swan, giant tackle, and will be featuring two of the best sophomore back prospects in the south, Tex Edens and Walt Kitchins.

Edens, who weighs close to 200 pounds, is an excellent kicker while his weight will add power to the backfield. Kitchins, who prepped with Edens at Oak Ridge, stars at passing but is also a fine runner.

Warner System

In making his debut as a southern coach, Snavely will also present his modified Warner system at Carolina for the first time. The system depends upon blocking for about nine-tenths of its success. However, Coach Snavely has also developed several fine plays which will be worth watching.

Probably the most important position in the Carolina backfield is the blocking back. Although he does little carrying of the ball, the man at this post leads the interference in the majority of the plays.

Hump Snyder, who probably did the best blocking for Carolina last year, will be at this post and his work may be the decid-

Kenan Blanketed

Due to threatening weather and rains, Kenan field was covered last night with the huge canvas protector to keep the field from becoming wet and soggy for today's game.

The canvas covers the whole playing field, from goal post to goal post and from side line to side line. It enables the University to provide a fast and dry gridiron for the opening kickoff.

ST. LOUIS DOWNS REDS, TIES GIANTS

"Dizzy" Dean Blanks Cincinnati, 4-0, as Cards Go into Leadership Tie; Paul Today.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 28.—(UP)—The ace of the St. Louis Cardinal pitching staff, Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean, was in his usual form here today as he twirled his team to a 4-0 win and into a tie for top honors with the idle New York Giants.

Their win today gave the Missouri nine an equal standing with the Terrymen at 93 games won against 58 lost.

This elder member of the Dean Bros. pitching act who was incidentally winning No. 29, allowed the cellarite Cincinnati Reds only seven hits and was seldom in danger of being tallied upon. In the meantime his own team was swatting the sphere for a dozen hits to push over the necessary runs. Both teams played errorless ball.

Brilliant Late Playing

The victory today climaxed one of the greatest and most spectacular late season winning streaks ever staged in the annals of America's pastime. With the Giants playing only mediocre ball during the last several weeks, the Cards have been steadily winning and gradually decreasing the early season lead which Manager Terry and his Giants had built up.

Today everything is in a deadlock. Each team has a pair of games on its schedule. St. Louis plays two more with the Reds, and the New York nine takes on its neighbor, the Brooklyn Dodgers, a very deadly rival.

Younger Dean to Pitch

Paul Dean, of no-hit fame, will get the call to the mound tomorrow for the Cards, while any of the Giant pitchers may take duty. The New York team has been idle several days and all their twirlers are in shape. Freddie Fitzsimmons looks like the best bet.

Should the two leading teams go through the pair of games in the same manner, the tie, which would be, would have to be played off in a post-season series. Should the series go to three games, the World Series would more than likely be postponed a day.

LET'S GO, TAR HEELS

The above men are those fellows who will form the starting lineup for the Blue and White as it meets the Black and Gold of Wake Forest College today on the Kenan gridiron. The kickoff is scheduled at 2:30 o'clock.

Middle row: Babe Daniels, center; Jim Tatum, Tom Evins, and John Trimpey, tackles (Tatum and Evins will start, but Trimpey is sure to see much action).

FROSH HARRIERS TAKE FIRST WORK OF FALL SEASON

Many Good Prospects Report for Initial Workouts; Three Hard Meets Are on Schedule.

ROUND INTO CONDITION

The freshman cross country candidates have been circling the oval at Emerson field daily for the past five days, flattening out ample waistlines, well expanded by a restful summer.

Under the expert tutelege of Coach Dale Ranson, most of the boys have already acquired that long easy loping gait which is so essential to successful hill and dalers. The outlook for this year's team is bright.

Three Tough Meets

The Tar Babies face three stiff meets, two against Duke and one with State. The outcome of these meets will give a good idea as to the quality of next year's varsity.

LEAKSVILLE TOPS CHAPEL HILL HIGH

Locals Outplay Visitors, But Lose, 6-0; Touchdown Comes From Intercepted Pass.

The local high school gridsters were taken down by Leaksville in their initial game yesterday by a score of 6-0. The Chapel Hill team, however, clearly outplayed the invaders, totalling ten first downs to four for the visitors.

The lone touchdown of the game came as a result of an intercepted pass by Vernon, Leaksville half, who took the ball on the opposing 40-yard line and sprinted down an open field to the tally.

Carl Snavely, son of the Tar Heel mentor, remained true to family gridiron traditions, making his debut on the football field at right guard for the Chapel Hill club.

GA. TECH MEETS STRONG CLEMSON

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 28.—(UP)—Georgia Tech's squad, somewhat below par because of casualties, polished up on signals and passing yesterday and took a light workout today to get in shape for the hard game with Clemson tomorrow.

Injuries spelled near doom to the camp. Carl Shaw, first string center, sprained an ankle in yesterday's scrimmage, joining fullback Jack Phillips and halfback Bill Street on the injured list.

ANNUAL VIRGINIA MEET

North Carolina's supremacy on the tennis courts appears in no danger of being interrupted this year with another well-balanced set of players already tuning their respective games on the courts.

Coach Kenfield is pleased with the large turnout but urges all other prospective tennis candidates for either the varsity or the freshman team to work out daily.

Captain Levitan Leads

The team shapes up as another world-beater with the nucleus of last year's varsity back for more active competition. Heading the group is Captain Walter Levitan, third ranking player, from whom many things are expected. Harvey Harris, top ranking man on last year's squad, has also returned and is striving to hold his position as the college's leading player. Other veterans back in the fold are Ricky Willis, number two, Lawrence Jones, sixth, Bob Lovill, Jimmy Johnston, Myron Whitaker, Mark Lynch and Bill Minor.

Minor will not be eligible until the spring quarter, however. He played varsity tennis last year and was the fifth ranked on the team, but an ankle injury forced him to stop playing.

Strong Sophomores

Additional strength comes from a strong array of 1933 freshman stars. Heading the group is the flashy Eddie De Gray, whose game has caused much comment. De Gray, who hails from New Utrecht high school in New York city, and Byron Abels, number three frosh, are looked to as varsity material.

Following in order of their former standing are Archie Henderson, Sid Weinstein, Joe Grier, John Dowd, Morty Singer, and

WOLFPACK, CATS BATTLE TONIGHT AT GREENSBORO

State Favored as Hunk Anderson Makes Debut; Davidson Depends on Mackorell.

KICKOFF AT 8:00 O'CLOCK

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 28.—The local Memorial stadium will be host to several thousand football fans tomorrow night as the powerful teams from N. C. State College and Davidson College meet here at 8:00 o'clock.

This battle will be one of the two headliners being played tomorrow and many of those who see the Carolina-Wake Forest match in the afternon will journey here to see the night affair.

All figures and statistics place the Wolfpack as favorites, although the lighter Cat eleven may catch its stride and take the Raleigh boys into camp.

Cats Work under Arcs

The Wildcat mentors are prepared for a well-rounded attack and are not to play a defensive game as early reports stated. The squad worked out at Robbie's field in Charlotte the other night for the first arc playing many of the men had ever done.

Davidson boasts one thing — Johnny Mackorell, elusive, triple-threat, heady quarterback. His passing, punting, running, and signal calling may prove the doom for the 'Pack as it did last year. Backing up this Hickory flash in the backfield are Verble, Pittman, Yarborough, and Hutchins.

The state school will have several veteran stars to try and stop these Wildcat ball-carriers. The end runs will find Kenneth Stephens and Ray Redding, co-captains, a mighty tough assignment for the interference. Line plunges will meet the veterans, Carl Isaacs at tackle and Steve Sabol at the pivot post.

Frank Shore, who topped the freshman squad for the past year, has not returned to school, but there is hope that he may in the near future. This would bolster an already powerful group of racquet wielders.

Byron Abels is the recent victor of the Greensboro doubles title. He teamed with his brother to cop the crown. All these former freshmen are bound to give the varsity standbys quite a struggle before conceding position to them.

There are two outstanding events on the tennis calendar for the fall quarter. Tomorrow afternoon a two man team will leave the University bound for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to compete in the Middle Atlantic intercollegiate championship meet.

This tournament is essentially a doubles tournament and the probable U. N. C. representatives will be Captain Levitan and Harris. The men will compete in both singles and doubles but are priming for the two-man event for which a trophy is awarded. Duke, West Virginia, and Virginia will be represented among various other schools.

The other scheduled event at present is the annual match with the University of Virginia on Thanksgiving day. This competition will be run as a preliminary to the football game which takes place the following day. The tennis match will be played at Charlottesville, Va., and a complete team will be sent to battle the Cavaliers. Under the seven years of Coach Kenfield's instruction, the Tar Heels have five victories to their credit against two Virginia wins.

everything—as a general store, a post-office, a student rooming-house (apartments upstairs), and more recently as a grocery store. Condemned for the last four or five years, the building was not repaired in any way, and it served as a meeting place for some of the old men of the town. The ceilings were high, and since Mr. Eubanks was not much interested in the remnants of his grocery business, it was a cool spot in which to sit and talk about the old days.

The ground on which it stood is the property of the Roberson estate.

Tobacco Tax Raised

Washington, Sept. 28.—(UP)—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced that the processing tax on Burley tobacco will be increased from two cents to six and one tenth cents per pound, and that the processing levy on Maryland tobacco has been eliminated entirely. These orders are effective October 1.

The tax on Burley tobacco for use in the manufacture of plug, chewing tobacco, and twist, however was increased to only four and one tenth cents.

Officials said that the changes in the tax rate were necessary in order to effect the declared policy of the AAA.

Meyer to Speak

Harold D. Meyer, professor of sociology, will be the leading speaker tomorrow at the Methodist church student forum. The forum will meet at 7:00 o'clock and will be led by Miss Frances White, vice-president of the organization. Jesse Parker, who had the leading role in "Princess Ida" last year, will sing at tomorrow night's meeting.

The Richard H. Whitehead Medical society welcomed members of the first year medical class with a banquet in Graham Memorial last night. Dr. Foy Roberson of Durham, chief surgeon at Watts hospital, was guest of honor and made a brief speech.

Dr. C. S. Mangum, dean of the University medical school, acted as toastmaster. Talks by members of the faculty were heard, and Howard Wilson, president of the second-year class, officially welcomed the new men.

ing factor in the game. Snyder also helps Captain George Barclay back up the line on defense.

Barclay to Be Busy

Captain Barclay will have three important duties to perform in the contest. The all-American candidate plays a guard on offense, a center on defense, and also acts as quarterback in calling plays.

The Tar Heel line will have lettermen at every position but left end. However Dick Buck is scheduled to hold down this post and the sophomore has already demonstrated ability both on defense and offense. The line will average about 192 pounds.

The backfield, which will have two sophomores and two veterans, will average 175 pounds. Besides Snyder the other letterman is Charlie Shaffer, a nifty runner and who will likely do the punting.

The two rookies in the Carolina backfield are Slippery Dashiell and Jim Hutchins. Both of these boys will probably be called on to pass. Hutchins, only 18 years old but weighing 191, will do the line ramning.

Kenan field is in perfect condition for a fast game. The field cover will be put down immediately if rain threatens. Advance sales indicate that the crowd will be one of the largest ever to attend a Carolina opening contest.

U.D.C. WILL HOLD STATE MEETING AT CHAPEL HILL

TO CONVENE OCTOBER 9-11

The state U. D. C. convention will be held here October 9, 10, and 11, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. W. S. Bernard of Chapel Hill, general chairman of the state convention.

Among the features on the program of the convocation will be a historical play, "Agatha," which will be produced by Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers.

Written by Jane Toy of Chapel Hill, the drama has its scenes laid in Hillsboro in pre-Civil War days.

The University band and glee club will also put on entertainment for the benefit of the visitors.

Visiting Delegates

Representatives of other state organizations who will visit Chapel Hill while the U. D. C. is in session, as announced by Mrs. Bernard, are: Mrs. A. M. Waddell of Wilmington, president of the North Carolina Colonial Dames; Mrs. J. S. Welborn of High Point, state regent of the Daughters of the American Colonies.

Mrs. J. H. Belk, of Charlotte, state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. J. J. Yates of Asheville, state president of the Confederate Memorial association; and Mrs. W. R. Absher of North Wilkesboro, state president of the Amercian Legion Auxiliary.

English Professors Conduct Researches On Absence Leaves

MacMillan, Adams and McClamroch Pursue Studies While Away from University.

Three members of the English department are among those professors who have been granted leaves of absence by the University in order to do research study elsewhere.

W. D. MacMillan, associate professor of English, is at present in the British Museum making a study of David Garrick as a dramatist and in relation to the life and culture of the eighteenth century.

MacMillan will remain in England until November or December and then will go to the Huntington library in San Marina, Calif., where he has a research fellowship to work on the same subject.

Raymond Adams, assistant professor in the English department, has a general education board fellowship and is now writing a life of Thoreau, while staying in Concord, Mass., across the street from the writer's former home.

Assistant Professor McClamroch has been granted leave for two quarters in order to prepare an undergraduate course in modern poetry.

NO SOPH ASSEMBLY

There will be no sophomore assembly tomorrow morning but the second year men will meet Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall instead.

Chapel Hill Merchants Favor Board Succeeding Johnson

Local Business Men Agree in Opinion That New Executive Board Of Recovery Administration Will Represent More Fairly Independent Merchant; "Six Heads Are Better Than One."

A concensus of opinion among the merchants of Chapel Hill indicates that they favor the appointment of the new NRA executive board, headed by President Roosevelt, over the former one-man authority of General Hugh Johnson.

In a series of interviews by the DAILY TAR HEEL yesterday, the merchants almost without exception indorsed the new set-up.

"Six heads are better than one," said Manager Berman of Berman's Department store. "After all, Mr. Johnson has his own business. I believe the board will give the small merchant fairer representation."

"Let a board handle it," said Ed Montjoy, manager of the local A. & P. store. "I believe in equal representation for all concerned."

C. R. West, superintendent of Pender's store here was hearty in his indorsement: "I feel confident that the new appointments are an improvement. I believe there is less chance of six men being wrong than there is when one man is entirely responsible.

More Fairness Expected

D. O. Tatum of the Andrew's "M" Store was a bit dubious: "The board is not far enough advanced to be certain; however, I imagine it will be more equal in representation."

City Manager John L. Caldwell added a final opinion: "I am and always have been an admirer of Mr. Johnson. I think, however, that the logical thing was done. One man was used for the organization of NRA and the board was appointed to continue its efficiency."

UNIVERSITY FERA QUOTA IS FILLED

Last Job Is Taken Friday, Lanier Announces; 289 Applicants Have Been Placed.

Two hundred and eighty-nine FERA positions, the University's full quota, were filled this week, according to Edwin S. Lanier, Y. M. C. A. self-help secretary. The last vacancy was filled late Friday.

Over 700 men applied for work through the office during the summer. Increased appropriations from the FERA have permitted the department to provide forty-eight more positions to students that it did last year.

Variety of Jobs

At present Carolina men are at work under FERA in almost every department in school. The general type of work being done varies from labor on buildings and grounds to clerical and research jobs in the different school departments.

The program of aid here is the result of activities of the Greater University student aid committee, which is represented in the Chapel Hill unit by Dean F. F. Bradshaw and Felix A. Grisette.

Diners View Fire Without Alarm

Small Fire at Co-op Supplies Diversion Next Door.

A small blaze which started in the rear of the Students' Co-operative cleaners and broke through the wall of the Crescent cafeteria caused momentary excitement during the dinner hour yesterday.

The fire broke out at 1:31 o'clock and was quickly extinguished upon the arrival of the local fire-fighting unit ten minutes later.

The conflagration was caused by a faulty flue which became overheated and set fire to the wall of the Crescent cafeteria. Patrons of the cafeteria calmly continued their noon-day repast. Meanwhile the flames crackled away in plain view above the frame of a side window.

The property damage was negligible.

'R. U. R.' TRYOUTS OPEN TOMORROW

Cast to Include Nineteen Men And Four Women; Performance Set for Oct. 25-27.

Try-outs for "R. U. R.," Karel Capek's robot play, the first production of the Carolina Playmakers for the current season, will be held at the Playmakers theatre tomorrow at 4:30 and and at 7:30 o'clock.

The performance will be given October 25, 26 and 27th with a cast of nineteen men and four women.

Unusual Effects

In telling of the revolt of machine-made men against their human creators, "R. U. R." (Rossum's Universal Robots) offers an opportunity for unusual scenic and costume effects. Its unique characterizations challenge the originality of actors.

The New York Theatre Guild recently produced it with great success.

Try-outs are open to all students and copies of the play may be secured at the reserve shelf in the library. Students desiring to enter the try-outs should read the play and select any part that they would like to try. They need only read the script.

The tentative cast will be announced Tuesday morning, October 2, on the bulletin board at the rear of the Playmakers theatre. At least two candidates will be allowed to study each part and the final cast will not be chosen until the date of the first performance.

Homecoming Group to Have Meeting Today

University Club Committee Will Convene This Afternoon.

There will be a meeting of the Homecoming Day committee this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the University club room. Jake Snyder, chairman of the committee, urges all members to be present as there will be several important announcements made and further plans outlined.

The members of the committee are: Irving Suss, Claude Rankin, Ed Joyner, Francis Fairley, Bill Dixon, and Tommy Irwin.

Dynamite Blast Begins Federal Slum Clearance

Secretary Ickes Sets Off First Charge to Launch Clean-up In Atlanta District.

CONSTRUCTION TO FOLLOW

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 29.—(UP)—Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes today set off a charge of dynamite that blew a frame dwelling to smithereens and thus started the first slum clearance project in the history of the federal government.

The dynamite blast began the demolition program that must precede the construction of the Techwood and University projects, the first federal slum clearance projects.

400 Buildings Doomed

Approximately $5,000,000 will be spent here on the jobs. About 400 buildings are to be razed.

A busy day was scheduled for Secretary Ickes. Included on the program was a nation-wide radio broadcast. He also attended the Georgia Tech-Clemson football game as the guest of Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech.

The slum clearance projects will give work to about 2,500 men for a number of months. Modern homes for 600 families will be provided at Techwood. The University project is for negroes.

University Club Division Will Meet Tomorrow

Committee Will Plan Entertainments for Football Games.

To make arrangements for the entertainment at future football games here, the Game committee of the University club will meet at 7:00 o'clock tomorrow night in the Graham Memorial room of the club, Chairman Albert McAnally announces.

The following members are asked to be present to complete plans for a program to be presented between the halves of the Carolina-Tennessee game:

Roy Wilder, Irving Ruden, Charles Ivey, Joe Shull, DeWitt Carroll, and Walter Pijanowski.

MYSTERY WOMAN MAY BE WITNESS FOR KIDNAP TRIAL

Anita Lutzenberg Being Questioned About Her Connection With Lindbergh Kidnaper.

TRIAL ABOUT OCTOBER 10

New York, Sept. 29.—(UP)—Concluding a day of rapid developments which was marked by the medical commission's examination of Bruno Richard Hauptmann presumably to consider his sanity, district attorney Samuel J. Foley announced that Anita Lutzenberg, mystery woman in the Lindbergh case, has been interviewed twice today and will probably be a trial witness.

Miss Lutzenberg, who is a voluntary witness in the case, is being questioned concerning her meetings with Hauptmann in the summer of 1932 while Mrs. Hauptman was in Europe and her knowledge of the mysterious "John" named as his companion.

Foley also said that three psychiatrists will probably examine Hauptmann early next week. The district attorney's office, the state of New Jersey, and the counsel for the defense will each appoint an examiner.

Trial of Hauptmann on the extortion charge is expected to begin about October 10, although the actual date will not be known until after the prosecution and the defense counsel have confered and selected a day satisfactory to both.

Dr. Murchison Faces Task Of Organizing Vast Bureau

Former University Professor Has Not Sought Headlines Since Appointment to Head Commerce Bureau But Has Busied Himself with Studying Foreign Conditions.

Although Dr. C. T. Murchison, formerly of the University economics department and now director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, has not often made the front page since his appointment to the high federal position which he now holds, this does not mean that he has been idle during his months in Washington. Dr. Murchison has been faced with the tremendous task of organizing some 20 divisions which constitute the bureau he now heads.

Studies Foreign Conditions

In accordance with the tariff act passed during the last session of Congress, intensive studies are being made of the special conditions prevailing in each nation which desires trade with the United States, so that negotiations may go forward for Recripocal Tariff Agreements.

As far as could be determined, Dr. Murchison's department or his own position will in no way be affected by the resignation of General Hugh Johnson, up until a few days ago the head of the NRA.

Dr. Murchison has visited Chapel Hill only once since his his appointment. After appearing at Blue Ridge in August he came here for a few days before returning to his post in Washington. While here he stated that his position will require time before anything definite can be accomplished. His government post is undoubtedly a job for which he is well fitted. He is recognized internationally as an authority on foreign trade.

An official outline of the duties of his bureau includes the following:

Duties of Office

1. To report upon domestic foreign problems relating to production, distribution and marketing, insofar as they affect the important export industries.

2. To investigate and report upon conditions in the manu-

STATE SYMPHONY TO OPEN SEASON AT DUKE TUESDAY

Henry Hadley, Noted Composer, To Conduct Concert; Alice Tully Is Guest Soloist.

EXPECT BANNER YEAR

With Henry Hadley as guest conductor, the North Carolina Symphony orchestra will formally open the musical season at Duke University with a concert Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock in Page auditorium.

Alice Tully, operatic soprano and soloist, will present Gluck's "Diviniti Dustyx" as another feature of the program.

Becoming widely known through a series of popular performances during the summer, the state symphony is believed to be entering its most successful season. The concert with Hadley conducting is expected to create particular interest.

Well-Known as Composer

Henry Hadley has been one of the country's most prolific composers. His first overture, written in 1891, was performed by Walter Damrosch in New York. Since then he has written music in all forms for every combination, vocal and instrumental. His works in every field have been received enthusiastically.

At the age of 23, Hadley was made conductor of an opera company and since that time has conducted orchestras in every civilized country, a record probably unequalled.

Soloist Returns from Study

Miss Tully has just returned to this country from Paris, to appear with the symphony or-

Phoebe Barr Opens New Dancing Class For Children Here

Women's Class to Meet at 8:00 Tomorrow Night; Boys Will Have Daily Workout.

Phoebe Barr wishes to announce the re-opening of her dancing classes for men and women, and the commencement of new classes especially for children.

Mrs. Barr spent part of the summer studying with Ted Shawn at his farm-studio near Lee, Mass., and has brought back much new material to give to her classes. She also did some work in the Weidman school of dance, which at the present time is very popular in the theatre world, Weidman and his groups having been featured in successful musical productions in New York.

Mrs. Barr spent some time in New York studying dancing for children in preparation for the starting of her children's classes in Chapel Hill.

She hopes that the girl's class will be built up to the high standard set by the boys' group last year. She will be assisted in her instruction of the boys' classes by Harry Coble who has studied with her for two years, and who spent this past summer dancing under the instruction of Shawn. Foster Fitz-Simons, a member of Mrs. Barr's group for two years, is now a member of Shawn's famous Ensemble of Men Dancers.

At the end of the year there will be a concert dance recital featuring the boys' and girls'

PARAGRAPHICS

It has been estimated that, as a result of good, clean fraternity rushing, there will be 137 editors of the four campus publications in 1938.

We thank our lucky stars that they tore down the old Eubanks store before the CWA tried to make a marble skating rink out of it.

The National league baseball race is like one of Grimm's old fairy tales: the Giants never had a chance with the Cards stacked against them.

Making Ends Meet

Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator and remembered as commencement speaker here last spring, issued a real warning to North Carolina and thirteen other states Friday afternoon when he stated that these states will be expected to carry their full share of the relief load which the national government has been heavily supporting during the last eighteen months.

Figures show that the federal government has borne over 60 per cent of relief expenses throughought the country in this period, the states over 16 per cent, and the local units over 20 per cent.

But statistics for North Carolina present a picture of more pronounced federal burden. In this state the federal government bore over 92 per cent, the state none, and the local units over 7 per cent. Furthermore, the figures reveal that the federal government is taking more and more of the burden, the local units decreasing their load, and the state still not contributing although it is considered much more prosperous than it was a year ago.

What action the state advisory budget commission will take next week is not known. It is rumored that state officials feel that the people have "gotten accustomed" to the federal government's lavish expenditures and that the states and local units might soon be finding themselves "holding the bag."

Whatever the commisssion does next Thursday, it is to be hoped that the educational system of North Carolina does not suffer as a result. Perhaps it is unfair to suppose that the federal government will continue the relief appropriations while the state spends more for internal improvements not embraced in the national program, but it must be repeatedly emphasized that education is and always will be North Carolina's first responsibility once the subsistence level of its inhabitants is maintained.

Planning The Holiday

Plans for a campus holiday, termed Student-Faculty day and set tentatively for Hallowe'en day, October 31, are now under way under the auspices of a special student committee representing primarily the University Y. M. C. A.

Upperclassmen will remember the efforts of this same group last spring to innovate this festivity day and will recall that the ambitious plans which they drew up were squelched, rightfully enough, by the faculty who objected to the date upon which the affair was scheduled. Plans were advanced too late in the season and a conflict with examinations and much faculty routine work made it inadvisable at that time.

Student-Faculty day, as it is purported, will be a complete campus holiday with the idea of getting members of the faculty and the student body in closer relationships and to acquaint both sects more thoroughly with the workings and attitudes of the other. It will serve the double purpose of breaking down the barrier that seems to exist here between faculty and students and of establishing a closer harmony on the campus which now exists in all but the direct relations between these groups.

The project must have the co-operation of everyone connected with the University residing on and about the campus. Programs embracing athletic contests between faculty and students, get-togethers where they can chum together, open house affairs that will create a common understanding in the mutual respect for what the University stands for—all are planned in the spirit of the day.

It is to be hoped that the faculty at its meeting next week will approve the plan—which it heartily did last spring except for the matter of the scheduled date—and that the plans will materialize to present what will probably be the "first annual" Student-Faculty jamboree.

Spirit of The South

When the state division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy accepted the invitation to hold its annual convention in Chapel Hill—the University to accommodate many of them in a vacant dormitory—the members never suspected that this trusty old institution would break the promise. But three weeks before the convention date, every available space in every dormitory was rented and the U. D. C. girls were jittering about what to do next.

Three fraternities on this campus came to the rescue in the nick of time; in a gallant move they offered their commodious quarters—three of the largest residences on the campus—for the U. D. C. members during their stay here. And to accommodate the Greeks when they were self-dislocated, three other fraternities graciously offered to take care of some of them.

It's not patting ourselves on the back when we mention in these columns that the spirit of the local fraternities was indeed an unselfish and patriotic gesture. It was more than a gesture; it was a thoroughly commendable action. It makes a satisfying picture to see the courtesy and sympathy of brother bands extended to each other in the common spirit of the South and the Old North State.

Socking the Hole Truth

Have you ever, on the night of the dance, opened your drawer to discover that the pair of socks—laid up a week in advance—boasted nice, big ragged holes along the heights of the upper rim?

The emotion experienced is comparable to that of finding no water in the faucet the morning after that ace big night before. Speaking of water, of course, brings us back to the subject of socks. Inasmuch as it is so desirable to have the foot-covering in good condition at all times, the laundering of same should be done with the utmost care.

The University laundry generally does unusually good and efficient work, but the initialed markers used to identify individually the vast assortment of hosiery is indeed destructive to the upper part of the sock. The sharp metal clasps stuck through the top of the apparel almost invariably leave snags and holes when removed. These holes would probably be extremely useful to the man not owning any garters and wishing to insert strings or rubber bands through them in order to keep them from slipping ungracefully down into his 11's. But not for gentlemen who have garters—and all gentlemen, according to Bernard Solomon, wear garters.

It has been a source of much wonder why a little celluloid clasp might not be substituted. It seems that it would be much more handy and still serve the very necessary purpose of keeping Ruffin's socks out of Aycock's laundry. Long live the sacred socks!

Speaking The Campus Mind

(BRIEFLY AND LEGIBLY)

Editor the DAILY TAR HEEL:

The state division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy were invited to hold their annual convention this year in Chapel Hill. To make this possible the University offered the use of one of its dormitories to care for some of the delegates who could not be accommodated at the Inn. The invitation was enthusiastically accepted and this offer was advertised.

Less than three weeks before the convention every University dormitory was filled and the local chapter of U. D. C. and the University were faced with the difficult and unpleasant task of telling over one hundred women from all parts of North Carolina that they could not come to Chapel Hill to their convention.

When this situation became known three fraternities at the University made a most generous and patriotic offer; that is, to move out of their fraternity houses and allow them to be used for the delegates to the convention. These fraternities are the Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, and Chi Phi. As you know, these fraternities have three of the largest and nicest homes at the University and this enables us to entertain all who wish to come.

In behalf of the Leonidas Polk chapter, U. D. C., of Chapel Hill, and the University I want to extend my heartfelt thanks to these three fraternities, and congratulate them on having the type of men who are willing to seriously inconvenience themselves in order to help their University and their neighbors in a most unselfish and wonderful way. This is an example of what I like to think is the true "Carolina" spirit.

I also want to thank sincerely the Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma, and Zeta Psi fraternities for their offer to house the Phi Gamma Delta's when they vacate their own home.

With assurances of my deep appreciation and admiration for them, I am

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. W. S. Bernard,
General chairman of convention.

chestra Tuesday for the first time since her arrival.

"Since our last concert in Page auditorium, on July 13," Lamar Stringfield, musical director of the orchestra, declares, "the orchestra has played over thirty concerts in cities and towns all over North Carolina, and I note great improvement in its performance. It has become a musical ensemble of which every citizen of North Carolina can justly be proud."

The program for the recital follows:

"Oberon Overture," Weber; "Diviniti Dustyx," solo by Miss Tully; "Symphony No. 5 in C Major," Beethoven; "The Ocean," Hadley; "Prelude and Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde," Wagner; and "Overture 1812," Tschaikowsky.

facturing industries and trade of foreign countries.

3. To promote American trade everywhere.

4. To enforce the China Trade Act regarding the tax exemption of American firms doing business with China.

5. To maintain district and cooperative offices within this country.

6. To compile and publish statistics on foreign trade.

7. To investigate trade restrictions and regulations of foreign countries on relation of American commerce.

8. To prepare and circulate lists of available foreign agents for American firms.

Not a "Brain-Truster"

The jobs of at least seven million persons and the welfare of millions of other are involved in our foreign trade. For this reason it has become a major issue of the NRA. Dr. Murchison, in the capacity of director of such a powerful and important office, might well be dubbed a "brain-truster." This he objects to strenuously. He neither belongs nor wants to belong to that mythical closed corporation created in the minds of Washington journalists. He wants to do his job, applying as well as he can his knowledge of economics to the job of getting more business here and abroad.

The Reciprocal Tariff treaties, which Dr. Murchison and all the other members of the administration think will improve trade conditions, is like the theory of trading American apples for French wines. An agreement would be drawn up in which America and France agree to lower tariff on certain commodities for the common good of both countries. A different and individual treaty will thus be necessitated for each country, and to draw up such treaties special aptitude and training is required.

Asks New Philosophy

Since leaving Chapel Hill, Dr. Murchison has made several public appearances. At the commencement exercises at the Danville high school, he urged that America adopt a new philosophy toward social life and that its people must be prepared to surrender individual freedom of action for the common weal. "The old standards of citizenship no longer prevail," he said. His first important public appearance was made on June 19, when he addressed the international group conference of the annual convention of the Advertising Federation of America at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York. It was at this time that he outlined the procedure the government will follow in working out reciprocal trade agreements. He also addressed the members of the New York University Men in Finance. At another time the bureau head was heard over a nation-wide hook-up of the National Broadcating company.

It is certain that more and more will be heard of this former University professor as his bureau advances from its routine study to the stage from which it will perform its more extensive duties of negotiating the various trade agreements.

Tar Heels Open Season With 21-0 Victory

Coach Snavely In Debut As Carolina Gets Easy Win Over Wake Forest

Running Attack Clicks; Dashiell, Hutchins, Shaffer Score.

Coach Carl Snavely made a grand debut as director of Carolina football yesterday afternoon in Kenan stadium when his 1934 Tar Heels far outclassed a strong Wake Forest team to the tune of 21-0.

Despite the hot weather, the contest was unusually fast with plenty of thrills. Carolina scored in every quarter but the third; Slippery Dick Dashiell went over with the first marker early in the first quarter on a 13-yard end run; Jim Hutchins, another sophomore, counted the second touchdown just before half-time when he went over tackle for 17 yards; and Charlie Shaffer, veteran back, finished the point-making during the fourth period on a 4-yard plunge over tackle.

The Tar Heels had a perfect record for scoring extra points when Daniel place-kicked after the first and third scores and Tatum place-kicked after the second touchdown.

Excellent Plays

Featuring the Warner system as modified by Coach Snavely, the Tar Heels mixed a variety of excellent plays plus some fine blocking and running to gain most of their ground. Charlie Shaffer probably led the ground gainers with Dick Dashiell close behind him. Both Jim Hutchins and Harry Montgomery also picked up quite a bit of yardage.

Led by Captain George Barclay and Hump Snyder, who backed up the line, Carolina's defense was almost undented by the much heavier Deacons. Wake Forest was able to get only three first downs and one of these came as a result of a penalty.

The Tar Heels scored first on a machine-like drive just a few minutes after the game opened. Tatum kicked off, a long boot over the Wake Forest zero line. Kitchins, soph back, brought the ball back to the 17-yard line where Captain Barclay stopped him. Kitchins then punted to Dashiell on the Carolina 45-yard line, and the slippery little rookie came all the way back to the Wake Forest 40.

Shaffer made 8 yards over tackle and then failed to gain on a second play. Dashiell, on a spinner, made a first down on the 29. Hutchins went 9 more on another spinner and Shaffer hit tackle for 7 and a second first down on the 13-yard line. Here Dashiell skirted around right end on a reverse and, aided by some neat interference, crossed the goal line.

Tricky Play Scores

Carolina's second marker came on probably the best executed play of the afternoon. The Tar Heels had been threatening off and on all during the second quarter but couldn't seem to be able to push the ball over. After stopping Carolina on the 8-yard line, Edens punted out to the 43 where Eddie Martin returned to the 37.

Wake Forest was penalized for offsides, then Hutchins crashed over tackle for 10 and a first down on the 22-yard line. Hutchins and Montgomery could only get four in two tries. On third down and still 17 yards from a touchdown, Hutchins stuck the ball behind his back and sneaked through a hole at right tackle and then trotted the

HEARN TO PILOT SEMI-PROS AGAIN

Carolina Baseball Coach Signs to Manage Kinston.

Coach Bunn Hearn, Carolina baseball mentor, has signed up to pilot the Kinston club of the Coastal Plain League again next summer.

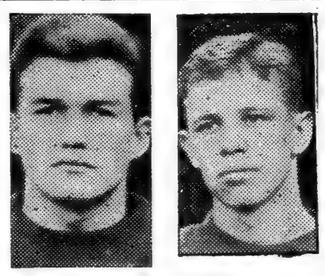
Although the Kinston team received many "tough breaks" during the past season, the fans were well pleased with Coach Bunn's tutorship. He was constantly "up against it." Early in the season Coach Hearn felt as if he had a safe league leading margin, only to have it cut down ten games by the ineligibility of pitcher Guy Fletcher.

The Hearnmen promptly re-established themselves in the first position by their superb playing. To climax the season of "tough breaks" the Kinston club lost the league pennant to the second place Greenville team. They lost the pennant in the play-off, after having won more games than any other team in the league.

Coach Hearn found that the Kinston club was an excellent place to farm his college players during the summer.

STATE WHIPS DAVIDSON

N. C. State kept step with the Tar Heels last night at Greensboro by downing Davidson 7-0. It was Hunk Anderson's first game as coach of the Wolfpack.



HUTCHINS GETS LOOSE FOR SCORE

Make Touchdowns

Charlie Shaffer and Dick Dashiell who, in addition to Jim Hutchins, crossed the last line for Carolina yesterday. Both did some nifty running from the halfback positions, especially off the tackles. Shaffer also did fairly well as a kicker, while Dashiell got off the longest run of the afternoon, a punt return of 65 yards.

FROSH PREPARE FOR BABY DEACS

Tar Babies Will Have Scrimmage Next Week to Pick Lineup For Opening Game.

The frosh gridsters are looking forward eagerly to the first big scrimmage of the season next week, when Coaches James and Fysal will begin the weeding out of the strong squad and picking a tentative first string lineup.

Competition is very keen for almost every position, but no matter which of the first twenty-two men who are picked the Tar Babies should go on the field Saturday week with a team that will face the Little Deacons with a 185 or 195 average.

After the selection of the most outstanding eleven, Tennessee plays will be given to the freshmen for use against the varsity during the middle of the week. From the looks of the Tar Babies to date, they should prove an able opponent for the varsity in their defense of Vol plays.

With the Tennessee game past, the freshmen will begin intensive practices pointing to the Carolina-Wake Forest freshman game to be played in Kenan stadium the following Saturday. This game will be an important contest in deciding the Big Five freshman title.

McKEE TO PREACH TODAY ON NEED FOR RELIGION

Dr. W. J. McKee will preach at 11:00 o'clock this morning at the United church on Cameron avenue on the topic "Our Special Need of Religion Today."

The Student Bible class will convene at 10:00 o'clock and the student forum at 7:15 o'clock.

CARDS TAKE TOP IN NATIONAL RACE

St. Louis Insures at Least a Tie By Whipping Reds While Giants Lose to Brooklyn.

St. Louis climaxed one of the greatest late season climbs in baseball history yesterday by downing Cincinnati 6-1 and as a result took top place in the National league. The slipping Giants fell behind by losing to Brooklyn, 5-1.

Brooklyn made good its threat to put the Giants off the top as Van Mungo, rookie hurler, limited the Champions to five hits while his team mates got on to Parmelee for 12 blows.

Paul Dean, younger member of St. Louis' two-man brother pitching staff, scattered 11 hits over the nine innings, while the Cards had an easy time counting enough runs to win off of Derringer. So far this season the two Deans have pitched over half of the Red Bird wins their total being close to 50.

Giants Have a Chance

The lone chance the Giants have now of getting into the World's Series is for St. Louis to lose their last game of the season this afternoon while New York wins. Manager Terry will have Fitzsimmons, Hubbell, and Schumacher all available for mound duty in the closing game.

Manager Frisch will likely keep Dizzy Dean on the bench so he will be fully rested for the opening game of the championship series and take a chance on clinching the pennant with Lefty Mooney or Wild Bill Hallahan in the box.

TAR HEELS, VOLS TO BATTLE HERE NEXT SATURDAY

Clash Between Rivals to Be One Of Most Important Early-Season Games in South.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED

Carolina athletic authorities are preparing to handle one of the largest crowds of the season when Tennessee's mighty Vols invade Kenan stadium Saturday to renew their ancient and intense feud with the Tar Heels.

The Carolina-Tennessee game will be one of the most important early-season clashes in the south and will mark the only appearance of the year on Tar Heel soil of the Vols, who are generally credited with having made the best football record of any team in Dixie for the past eight years.

The advance sale of tickets has been heavy, due perhaps to the fact that the fans have come to know that a good game and a swell scrap are inevitable when Tar Heel and Vol mix. The 9-7 and 7-0 games of 1930 and 1931 are good examples.

The latter game, which marked the last meeting of the two elevens in Kenan stadium, will not soon be forgotten. Tennessee with one of the greatest teams in the south barely managed to win after a costly Carolina fumble.

Pointing to Game

This year, with their new coach and system and with signs of new power and spirits, the warriors who carry the Blue and White are pointing more than ever to this game, and have high hopes of giving their respected guests the usual warm welcome.

The strategy along which the rival coaches map out their attack will be interesting to watch. Tennessee's great triumvirate of Major Bob Neyland, Col. Paul Parker, and Major Bill Britton, which is famous throughout the country, teaches the old Army game. Carl Snavely, the new Carolina coach, who will be making his debut in big-time southern competition, is one of the leading exponents of the Warner system.

Although Tennessee has large-

BAGBY TO SPEAK FOR 'Y' CABINETS

Y. M. C. A. Groups Will Discuss "War" Following Talk in Joint Session Tomorrow.

Dr. English Bagby of the psychology department will speak on "The Psychology of War" at a joint meeting of sophomore and junior-senior Y. M. C. A. cabinets tomorrow night.

The meeting will be the first of the fall series on the causes and cure of war and will be held at 7:15 o'clock in the "Y" building.

Following Dr. Bagby's introductory remarks, a discussion will be held among the cabinet members. The subject will be approached in an attempt to find out why people and nations fight.

The session will be followed on October 8 by a consideration of "Capitalism and War." In the sophomore cabinet, George MacFarland will lead the discussion, and M. S. Heath will be in attendance.

Vance to Speak

Dr. R. B. Vance, sociology professor, is scheduled to lead the discussion on "Capitalism and War" at the same time in the junior-senior organization.

Officials of the "Y" decided to make the Monday convocation a joint affair at a meeting early this week. The session following the October 8 meeting will be another joint affair for which attempts are being made to obtain an outside speaker from Duke University.

Plans for the fall quarter programs call for consideration of "Nationalism—Is it the Way Out?" on October 22, "Defense by Militarism" on October 29, and "Socialism as a Cure for War" on November 5.

After another joint meeting on November 12, the series will continue with "Disarmament," "Should the United States Give Up Her Policy of Armed Intervention?" and "International Co-operation."

ly a new team this year, Coach Neyland and his aides are reported to have some excellent material and to be "cooking up a football surprise" for the teams they face this year.

Vols Will Be Tough

As one expert put it: "I must refuse to get on the mourner's bench about Tennessee. The Vols will not win all their games this fall, but they will be a tough, rugged team which will finish with the first five in the Southeastern Conference."

Although Bailey at tackle and Warmath at end are the only regulars back from 1933, the Tennessee line shows six seniors and one junior and the backfield one senior and three juniors, all of whom have come through Major Neyland's finishing school and learned their lessons well. The ends and tackles are particularly good; likewise the passing and punting.

"Neyland's situation is just the way he likes it," according to the expert. "Not a great deal is expected of his team or of him. It was that way in 1931. That was one of the greatest teams in Dixie.

"Tennessee coaches would not admit, might even deny, but the facts are they are rather glad not to have too many of the 1933 eleven back again. It has a team which got discouraged in the Duke game when it lost its two best players by injuries and subsequently lost the game. It has a team which never quite got over that discouragement.

"Neyland prefers a team which will respond to the stimulus of accurate instruction. He hopes, and believes, he has that sort of squad."

PRESBYTERIANS TO GIVE RECEPTION FOR STEWARTS

The Chapel Hill Presbyterian church will give a reception on Friday, October 5, from 8:00 until 10:00 o'clock, introducing Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stewart to the community.

The members of the faculty and their wives and the people of Chapel Hill are cordially invited. The reception is to be given on the lawn.

rest of the way to the goal line. The half whistle blew just as the play got underway.

Coach Snavely sent his second team in for the third quarter and the reserves even outplayed the Deacons, although they were unable to score. With Cooner, Montgomery, and McCachren doing some nice work, the Tar Heels got as far as the 7-yard line but lost the ball on a pass over the goal.

Last Marker

Captain Barclay started the drive for the last touchdown early in the fourth by intercepting a pass on the Deacon 33-yard line. Shaffer got 9 yards in two tries and then a penalty for roughness put the ball on Wake Forest's 4-yard line. Here Shaffer wiggled his way through a beautiful hole at tackle for the touchdown.

Probably the most spectacular run of the afternoon was a punt return by Dick Dashiell. Making many fans remember the exploits of Johnny (Old Man River) Branch, Slippery Dick took Kitchin's kick on the Carolina 15-yard line, shook off one tackle, outran two more to the right sidelines, then zig-zagged his way 65 yards to Wake Forest's 20-yard line.

Both of the Deacon first downs from scrimmage came on long runs, Dallas Morris picking up 25 yards around end on one and Edens going 17 yards through the line on the other. Aside from these runs, Wake Forest was able to pick up only 27 more yards all afternoon.

Both teams failed to do much in the air. The expected Deacon passing attack was of a minus quality. Out of 12 passes tried, Carolina intercepted five and knocked the other seven down. Randy Cooner was on the throwing end of Carolina's first completed pass to Montgomery which was good for 15 yards. Martin to Snyder and Martin to Dunham were the other completed passes.

Winston Salem, N. C., Sept. 29.—(UP)—S. Clay Williams, chairman-elect of the President's NRA executive board, will leave Monday night for Washington to attend the first meeting of the board Tuesday.

Although he had no statement to make, Williams indicated he was not surprised that he had been named chairman. For the present, he said, all announcements must come from the White House.

Women to Meet

An important meeting of the Woman's association will be held on the second floor of Graham Memorial Tuesday afternoon from 5:00 to 6:00 o'clock. All co-eds are urged to attend.

And then there is the tale of one of our freshman co-eds, who, while filling out her cards registration day, discovered that she had been putting her old address on all of them.

WAR PSYCHOLOGY SUBJECT OF TALK BEFORE CABINETS

"No Evidence That Man Is Predisposed to War by His Environment," Says Bagby.

"CONTROL PROPAGANDA"

Dr. English Bagby of the psychology department spoke to the combined sophomore and junior-senior Y. M. C. A. cabinets last night on "The Psychology of War."

"There is not one shred of evidence that man is predisposed to war by his environment," stated Dr. Bagby. "But training and experience through many years send men into armed conflicts," he said.

Propaganda

Speaking about the influences of propaganda in forcing people into war, Bagby stated that the movies, the press, and orators produce emotional attitudes which cause individuals to enter into conflicts.

"If the movies could be brought under control, peace would be made safe for the world," the psychology professor suggested along with other methods to combat falsehoods set forth by governments to influence citizens to fight.

Dr. Bagby's introductory remarks were followed by a discussion among members of the group of the topic.

The subject was the first of a series of fall quarter programs on the causes and consequences of war.

At the next session of the cabinets, Dr. R. B. Vance, sociology professor, is scheduled to aid in the consideration of "Capitalism and War" in the junior-senior group. The sophomore cabinet discussion will be introduced by George MacFarland.

SHELBY PLAYERS TO GIVE PAGEANT HERE OCTOBER 20

"Heaven Bound" Will Be Presented in Memorial Hall.

"Heaven Bound," a Negro spiritual pageant, will be presented October 20 in Memorial hall by the Shelby Negro "Heaven Bound" troupe, under the auspices of the Carolina Dramatic association.

Performed by the Shelby Negroes, "Heaven Bound" has attracted considerable attention all over the country. It has appeared in a number of North Carolina towns, including Durham, where it was sponsored by the Durham conservatory of music.

Offers Turned Down

The producers of "Heaven Bound" have received offers to perform in New York, at the Chicago world fair, and at other northern and western cities. These offers have all been turned down because the actors, who are teachers, preachers, cooks, and chauffeurs around Shelby, feel unable to give up their jobs long enough to go on tour.

Violet Thomas, who is supervisor of the Cleveland county Negro schools, is the director of the pageant and the author of the version of "Heaven Bound" used by her troupe.

Buccaneer Action

The bill on student council action on the Buccaneer was taken up at the convocation of the senate last week, but discussion will continue tonight on the subject.

Washington, Oct. 1.—(UP)—Tears streaming from eyes that once blazed defiance at the mightiest captains of industry, General Hugh S. Johnson today said goodbye to the NRA.

A. F. of L. Convenes For Annual Session

Organized Labor Eagerly Accepts Roosevelt's Proposal For Industrial Armistice.

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—(UP)—The American Federation of Labor opened its 54th annual convention today with President William Green's thundering demands for a six-hour day and a five-day week constituting the labor's reply to Roosevelt's declaration last night that this country cannot commit itself to the recognition of the existence of a permanent body of unemployed.

Green, who declares unemployment to be the greatest problem confronting the federation, proposed the 30-hour week as a means to aid in the distribution of employment among those able and willing to work.

INDUSTRY DISAPPOINTED IN ROOSEVELT'S TALK

Washington, Oct. 1.—(UP)—Organized labor tonight eagerly accepted Roosevelt's proposal for armistice in industrial strife while industry expressed disappointment that Roosevelt had failed to swerve to right in his message to nation last night.

Quick praise for Roosevelt's proposal came from William Green at San Francisco who said that the president's appeal to labor and industry for co-operation was "timely, appropriate and impressive."

Roosevelt voiced his appeal for a period of truce, during which capital and labor would lay aside their strike and lockout weapons and recognize the government as arbiter, in a "fireside chat" to a nationwide radio audience last night.

'Y' FROSH HEAR TALK BY CONNOR

Pool Also Addresses Meeting of Freshman Friendship Council Last Night.

Dr. R. D. W. Connor addressed the members of the Freshman Friendship council last night at the second meeting of the group this year in Gerrard hall.

Dr. Connor's topic was "Carolina Friendship, History, and Traditions" and he approached the subject especially in view of the work and purpose of the freshman "Y" cabinet.

Pool Talks

Jack Pool, president of the senior class and chairman of freshman "Y" work, outlined the program of the organization in a brief talk. Mimeographed papers setting forth the work of the council for the coming quarters were distributed.

Following Pool's talk, a discussion was held among members of the group on the proposed duties of the cabinet as presented by its adviser.

Jim Coan, elected president of the Freshman Friendship council at the first meeting of the first-year men last Monday, presided at the convocation.

This year the council will entertain visitors during High School week in the spring, will aid with the organization and work of Hi-Y clubs and other boys' organizations in the community, and co-operate with groups on the campus, such as the University club, the office of the dean of students, the upper "Y" cabinets, and other organizations.

The proposal to publish a news bulletin for Hi-Y clubs out in the state was discussed, and plans for visiting sick in the infirmary were also considered.

The council plans to be represented at conferences, and in the spring will send out deputation teams to schools in the state.

PHI WILL DEBATE ON STRIKE AGAIN

The Phi assembly will hold its second meeting of the current year tonight at 7:30 o'clock in New East.

Speaker Robert Smithwick will open the meeting with his inaugural address, which will be followed by discussions of these bills: Resolved, that the Philanthropic society condemn the action of Governor Ehringhaus in sending troops to the strike areas, and Resolved, that the Philanthropic society commend the action of the council in the case of the Buccaneer.

The first bill was discussed in last Tuesday's meeting, but has been held over for further debate.

After the discussion of the above bills, the candidates for membership in the assembly will be initiated by the old members.

Frosh Hear House

Dean R. B. House, speaking to the freshmen in chapel yesterday, urged students to employ integrity in using the liberty found at the University.

Advising first-year men to develop spiritually, physically, and mentally, he said "to take part in some form of athletics and to begin concentration on some particular subject which would lead to a vocation."

Rev. Donald Stewart conducted the devotional part of the program.

Committee Fixes October 31 For Student-Faculty Carnival

Must Be Submitted To Faculty Meeting

Program Will Include Essential Features of Proposal Refused By Faculty in Spring.

Student-Faculty day will be celebrated October 31 with a full holiday granted from all classes and the whole campus participating in a program of events designed to bring closer together the student and faculty elements of the University, subject to the approval of the faculty.

The carnival day was originally planned for last spring but was postponed because the overcrowded schedule did not allow sufficient time for the idea to be carried out.

However, the program for October 31 will incorporate all of the essential features which were proposed during the last quarter.

Plans

Among the events which are planned are athletic contests between student and faculty members, street dances, and parades.

All fraternities and dormitories will observe the general carnival spirit by declaring open house for the day.

The program will be submitted a meeting of the faculty which will be called sometime this week in order to get their approval and any suggestions which they have to offer.

The committee in charge of preparations for the holiday, which will fall on Wednesday, includes Jack Pool, J. C. Winslow, Agnew Bahnson, Phil Hammer, Lonnie Dill, and Albert Ellis.

The Woman's association will be asked to co-operate in the celebration.

President

Dr. Wallace E. Caldwell of the history department will preside over sessions of the North Carolina Archaeological society in Charlotte Saturday.

ARCHAEOLOGISTS MEET SATURDAY

Talks at Meeting Will Deal Chiefly with Indian Language; Society Bulletin Issued.

A meeting of the Archaeological Society of North Carolina will be held in Charlotte Saturday, according to an announcement by Secretary Guy B. Johnson of the sociology department. Dr. Wallace E. Caldwell of the history department, who was elected president last year, will preside.

A year ago the Archaeological society was organized at the home of Burnham S. Colburn in Asheville for the purpose of studying the Indian of North Carolina, past and present, for preserving Indian mounds and other sites and establishing a museum for the exhibition of relics.

Talks on Language

Talks will be made at the meeting dealing chiefly with the Indian language. Douglas L. Rights of Winston Salem will tell of the Indian occupation of the Charlotte area and Joffre L. Coe of Brevard College will discuss the next steps in the archaeological survey of the society. Professor L. E. Hinkle of State College will give a talk on Indian languages with special reference to the Cherokee. Mrs. Margaret R. Siler of Franklin will tell "A Cherokee Story" and James E. Steere of Charlotte will talk on "Indian Sign Talk."

A bulletin of the society has been issued for the month of September with articles by the following members: Douglas L. Rights, Fay-Cooper Cole and Joffre L. Coe. Rights' article is concerned with the Lost Colony legend, Cole's on exporation and excavation and Coe's on an archaeological survey of North Carolina. President Caldwell has written the foreword.

The first meeting of the Woman's association of the University is scheduled for today at 5:00 o'clock in 214 Graham Memorial.

All women students are asked to be present at this gathering to assist in the re-organization of the group. Due to the vacancy in the office of vice-president, caused by the failure of Jayne Smoot to return to school, elections will be held to fill the position. Elections are also scheduled for the town representative, which takes place at the first meeting of the group every fall.

The nominating committee, composed of the council and one extra member have nominated Nancy Gordon and Geneva Surratt for vice-president, and Vivian Grisette and Mary Pride Cruikshank for town representative. Nominations will also be accepted from the floor.

The date for the co-ed dance will also be considered at the meeting today. Talks on the various activities open to the women students will be given at the meeting.

PARAGRAPHICS

Now that the strike is over, the flying squadrons will probably go back to roost.

Speaking of strikes, why don't the mill owners pull a fast one sometimes and walk out themselves?

So the Carolina football team was called the dark horse of the Big Five. Now we suppose it's just a horse of another color.

A Student Racketeer

There has come to our attention the case of a student who is taking advantage of the University in a petty and despicable way. He remains anonymous to us, and even if his identity were known, it should not be mentioned in these columns: without a name, he remains more truly exemplary of a class of chiselers who have practiced the same sort of thievery in the past. And perhaps there are others of his kind still in school.

This student racketeer is not a native North Carolinian, but to avoid payment of out-of-state tuition fees he arranged for a relative who lives in North Carolina to establish fraudulently his residence in the state. Therefore, he registered as one entitled by residence in North Carolina to the advantages of a state-supported institution, maintained by the people of North Carolina.

Although it does not necessarily follow, our own inability to stomach this underhandedness leads us to guess that a student who will cheat in a matter like this will think nothing of cheating on class. At any rate, we venture to predict that he will not be with us for long.

The Pause That Refreshes

The system of setting aside certain hours of the evening for quiet reflection and study has long been used by fraternities with great success. It has remained for Everett dormitory to set an example for the campus-at-large.

One is continually meeting the person whose powers of concentration are so stupendous that he could prepare a thesis in a boiler factory, or solve algebraic equations amid a battery of riveters. The average student, however, is not so gifted; his concentration usually wears very thin, and often he is only too glad of an excuse to be away from the grind of studies. Therefore, he gladly forsakes dry wisdom for the fresher issues of a noisy bull-session down the hall.

There are always those people, of course, who can't see good in anything. To them, quiet hours are an imposition on the eternal fitness of things. With them, as a consequence, educators realize that perhaps to the individuals there is something in what they say. The quiet hour, however, can serve then not only as a period for study, but as an effective influence on the student morale. Enforced discipline of some kind is good medicine.

Thus far, the quiet hour has been enforced rigidly without too much difficulty. It is, perhaps, going too far to say that this innovation will do away with failures and swell the honor roll; but one thing is certain—it will not be detrimental to scholarship. It is to be hoped that in the future this feature will be incorporated as a permanent policy of dormitory administration.

Both Are Correct

Learning without thought is labor lost; thought without learning is perilous.—Confucius.

Somewhat of an echo of the sage's words was the tart criticism of American education voiced by Dr. Francis C. M. Wei, Confucian scholar who visited Chapel Hill last week. "The A.B. degree," protests Dr. Wei in substance, "confers upon the holder no scholarly prestige and only a smattering of learning which may prove dangerous." Rather than as a valid criticism of our American way of educating or as a new contribution to the concept of an educated man, we prefer to regard Dr. Wei's statement as a warning against "a little learning."

Dr. Wei is perfectly correct in saying that the A.B. degree confers no scholarly dignity on the holder. Indeed, who ever said that it does? His observation, however, can be understood, perhaps, from his point of view; therein lies an interesting contrast to both European and Oriental ideas of education. Dr. Wei comes from China, though educated in America; there, we assume, men of his brilliance constitute the standard of an educated man. Long revered in China, the sage and the scholar maintain their prestige in the fact of mass ignorance that has only begun to stir to action during the past century so far as any attempt to educate "the people" is concerned. Learning was, and still is to an enormous extent, concentrated in the heads of a few who devoted their lives to it. It was sanctioned by Confucius himself, and the masses sublimated their learned men by contrast of their own lack of education. In the respect that mass education has not progressed to the extent that it has in America, the same thing is true of Europe. So Dr. Wei is correct in opining that the A.B. degree does not designate a learned man, but the chief reason it does not is because here in America where mass education has developed to the greatest extent, it must necessarily suffer by being spread out, so to speak, too thinly.

As for Dr. Wei's comment that American students come to college too early, we are wholeheartedly in agreement; if anything, we go him one better and say that a student has no business in college until he is at least 19 or 20 years old, instead of the 18-year minimum age suggested by the Chinese scholar. In this connection it is interesting to note the average age of the freshman class entering here for a four-year period (later figures than 1932 were not available):

Fall of 1929	18 yrs., 9 mo., 14 da.
Fall of 1930	18 yrs., 10 mo., 15 da.
Fall of 1931	18 yrs., 10 mo., 5 da.
Fall of 1932	18 yrs., 2 mo., 19 da.

This cross section of the ages of our freshman classes shows that, on the average, they do measure up to a minimum of 18 years of age. But this only strengthens Dr. Wei's point; a large number of freshmen must necessarily be below the 18-year mark, just as there are a number above it, to make up this average. Our contention, with Dr. Wei, is that those who are below it, except in unusual cases, suffer materially in their inability to realize entirely the benefits that a college education would mean to a more mature mind.

On the whole, Confucius and Dr. Wei were right. Thought without learning is a product of the sprawling system of education that is America's. "Learning" without thought is a by-product of the lack of 12-grade high schools, lack of state maintenance of those that we have, and the prevailing notion in parents' minds that Johnny must go to the University to keep up with his class.

Co-eds in The Heir

This year witnessed the advent of several hundred co-eds to this fair campus—long and short, verdant and semi-senile, pretty and pretty pretty, fair and fairly fair. As the fall season gets under way, Spencer is filled, Graham is packed, and the sorority houses are exercising neophytic options on dozens more.

In the last few years, great progress has been made among the co-eds in establishing a government and a school-life of their own. The Woman's association has been formed and has served an extremely useful function, growing more important each succeeding year. Two sororities of excellent national standing have been established on the campus and offer the best in fraternal association to girls interested in that phase of college life.

In addition to the strictly woman activities, there are many more general ones in which they share the burden of administration with the men. The Playmakers, the publications, debating societies, and many others invite co-ed participation.

Skirts won't be confined to Spencer hall, now that their wearers are finding things to do on an active campus. We look forward with keen anticipation to the feminine touch of the new Finjan, to the traces of the women's intuition on the Publications Union board, and soprano voices at Student Activity committee meetings. Gentlemen, the co-eds are here to stay.

Carolina Gridsters Get In Shape For Powerful Tennessee Eleven

Coach Snavely Is More Than Pleased with Showing; "Real Football" in First Minutes.

TWO SLIGHTLY INJURED

Coach Snavely pushed the Tar Heel gridders through a stiff workout this afternoon in preparation for the strong Tennessee team which will invade Kenan stadium this week-end.

The first two teams alternated in an offensive scrimmage against the third team. Hutchins, Shaffer, and Cooner did most of the ball carrying for the first two backfields. "Hump" Snyder did some nice blocking, while Buck looked good on the receiving end of several passes thrown by Dashiell.

The Tar Heel squad ran intact today except for Pendergraft and McIver, who were nursing slight injuries as a result of Saturday's encounter with Wake Forest. Don Jackson, backfield ace who was on the injured list last week, took only a light workout this afternoon. However, Trainer Quinlan promises to have him in top shape in time for the Vols Saturday.

On the whole Coach Snavely was well pleased with the showing his team made against Wake Forest last Saturday.

"The team played real football for the first five minutes against Wake Forest," commented Coach Snavely. Fans all agree that the Snavelymen displayed great skill in handling the ball which led to the first touchdown in Saturday's encounter.

Coach Skidmore, who scouted the Tennessee-Centre game Saturday, believes that the Tar Heels will have plenty of trouble stopping the Vols when they come to Chapel Hill.

Tennessee will probably offer the stiffest opposition of any team on the Carolina schedule; however, Coach Snavely believes Saturday's contest will be a good fight if he can iron out a few wrinkles from the Tar Heel machine in practice this week.

University Students Organize Health Camp

University students organized a health camp this summer at Lake Waccamaw.

The camp was located at the old Cape Fear council site and ran six weeks for boys and, later, fifteen days for girls.

Joe Fisher and Paul Dickson, freshmen boxers at the University last year, were in charge of boxing training.

Marvin Allen, cake race winner here last year, also assisted in coaching at the camp. Other assistants from this institution were Courtenay O'Connell and Emmett Willis.

Photography Course

The University extension division will co-operate with the North Carolina photographers' association in conducting a short course in photography and the tenth annual convention of the association here, February 3 to 6, inclusive.

Several faculty members will be on the program, and the meetings will take place in Venable hall. One hundred and twenty-five people are expected to attend.

Intramural Notice

Team entries for the 1934 intramural tag football season will close this evening at 9:30 o'clock at the Emerson stadium office. At this time, there will be a very important meeting of the team managers with final drawings and a discussion of the rules taking place.

Capt. Barclay Gains Tribute

A glowing tribute was paid to George Barclay for his brilliant play during the last two seasons when the Carolina captain was selected to inaugurate a new "Hero of the Day" page in the University football program.

The citation underneath the photo reads: "All-southern and third All-American guard. Voted the most valuable player on the squad last year. A fury in the interference. A rock of Gibraltar behind the line. A truly great player with leonine courage. And yet a team player with utter disregard of personal glory.

"You ignored injuries and wrote your name in bold letters across the southern football sky. We salute you for your brilliant exhibition on every field in every game. And we wish you for this year the great season and the All-American recognition you deserve."

A committee of coaches and sportswriters has been secured to make the selection for each game.

Photo Appointments

Thomas Adams, M. H. Biggs, Gayle Rogers, Olivia Abernathy, J. W. Kirkpatrick, Clark Woodburn, J. T. Thomas, William K. Woltz, T. H. Hill, John Brabson, Allan H. King, John Armfield, Rufus Johnson, W. Assigned Big Task by Vols

Toby Palmer, University of Tennessee back, shoulders the big task of attempting to replace the All-American Beattie Feathers in the Vol backfield. Palmer will do most of the team's punting.

Alexander Fronts Duke's Ball-Toters

Durham, N. C., Oct. 1.—Jack Alexander, Duke's 165-pound fullback, turned in the biggest yardage total in the Duke-V. M. I. game Saturday, but his great running mate, Corky Cornelius, had the best average.

Alexander ran 23 times and gained a total of 112 yards for a fraction under five yards a clip while Cornelius ran seven times and made 58 yards for an average of over eight yards. Paul Whitener, second team fullback, made 54 yards in 11 runs and Clarence Parker 39 yards in nine tries. Their gains do not include yards gained returning kick-offs, punts or after receiving or intercepting passes.

Cavaliers, Middies Battle This Week

University, Va., Oct. 1.—Virginia's game against the Navy in Washington on October 6 in Griffith stadium will be the twelfth gridiron meeting between Tars and Cavaliers. Navy won the first game in 1888. The teams next met in 1893 and broke even. Last year the Middies escaped threatening defeat when Walter Baumberger intercepted a Virginia pass on the Navy ten yard line and ran it back 90 yards for a score.

Philological Club

The Philological club will have its first meeting of the year at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the lounge of the graduate club.

HARRIERS TO RUN VOLS SATURDAY

First Time Tar Heels Have Ever Met Vols on Hill and Dale; Both Teams Strong.

With the rapid rounding into shape of a large group of veteran runners Carolina's hill and dalers make their debut of the 1934 season against a strong Tennessee aggregation Saturday at Emerson field.

This is Carolina's first dual cross country meet with the Tennesseans. Their squad has been strengthened considerably with the return of Stout. Although out of competition last year he won the Southern Conference mile the year before the conference split, and the following year won the mile in the Southeastern meet.

The men who form the nucleus for Carolina are as follows: Captain Harry Williamson, Ed McRae, Ed Waldrop, Graham Gammon, Marvin Allen, Bob Gardner, Fab Haywood, Louis Conte, Haywood Curlee, and Jerry Goldman.

Can You Beat It?

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 1.—Major Bob Neyland, who will lead the last of his great Tennessee teams against Carolina Saturday, has an unparalleled record. In his eight and a fraction years at Tennessee his Vol teams have won 69, tied five, and lost five games. Major Neyland has been ordered to the Canal Zone, January 9.

GRUMMAN BEGINS EXTENSION WORK

Beard, Woodman, McKee, and Morrison to Teach Classes This Fall and Winter.

Organization of classes out in the state for the fall and winter quarters is getting underway this week under the direction of Russell M. Grumman, director of the University extension division.

Twenty classes will be taught in various towns over the state by the four full-time extension instructors, Dr. W. J. McKee, Mrs. Gladys Angel Beard, Mrs. Grace P. Woodman, and Dr. Roy W. Morrison, and also by regular University professors.

Sherrill to Teach

A course in accounting, to be taught by R. H. Sherrill in Chapel Hill, will be organized Tuesday night. Other courses that will be offered in Chapel Hill if there is sufficient demand for them are: a lecture and discussion course in Shakespeare, taught by Dr. George C. Taylor; a course in oriental and Greek history, by Dr. W. E. Caldwell; astronomy, Dr. K. H. Fussler; human geography, S. T. Emory; and natural science, Dr. C. E. Preston.

Classes in the last two courses will come on Saturday mornings for the convenience of the public school teachers, who will compose the majority of enrollment. The first three courses will be offered once a week on whatever evening is most convenient.

The extension division enrolled 711 students in its classes last year and carried on a number of activities during the summer, such as the emergency relief in education institute and the coaching school.

Illinois is well represented chusetts. Foreman carries a powerful forehand drive and coupling this with an effective court game he is considered a sizable threat in the battle for positions on the team. The other two from Illinois are Bartelman and Clover. Both are looked to for equal brilliancy on the court.

There are many other promising freshmen wielding racquets handily each day on the courts and in all probabilities they will be in there in the fight for places on the squad. The aforementioned have been the outstanding performers to date but all other freshmen are invited to try out for a team that promises to be a powerful unit and a future varsity.

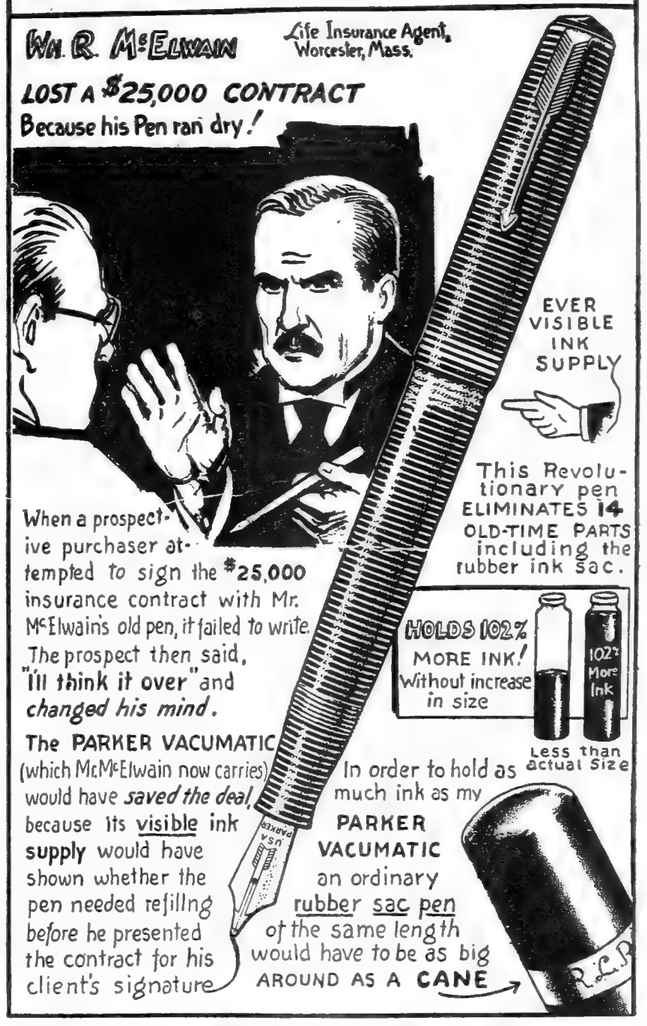
Henry Hadley, Guest Conductor, One of Most Prolific Composers in Country.

With Henry Hadley acting as guest conductor, the North Carolina Symphony orchestra will formally open the musical season at Duke University tonight with a concert at 8:30 o'clock in the Page auditorium.

Mr. Hadley has been one of the country's most prolific composers. His work has taken all forms, both vocal and instrumental.

Another feature of the program will be a presentation by Alice Tully, operatic soprano soloist, of Gluck's "Diviniti Dusty." Miss Tully's appearance tonight with the orchestra will be her first since her recent return to this country from Paris.



"Since our last concert in Page auditorium on July 13," Lamar Stringfield, musical director of the orchestra, declares, "the orchestra has played over 30 concerts in cities and towns all over North Carolina, and I note great improvement in its performance. It has become a musical ensemble of which every citizen of North Carolina can justly be proud."

Believe It or Not! by Ripley

WM. R. McELWAIN Life Insurance Agent, Worcester, Mass.
LOST A $25,000 CONTRACT Because his Pen ran dry!

When a prospective purchaser attempted to sign the $25,000 insurance contract with Mr. McElwain's old pen, it failed to write. The prospect then said, "I'll think it over" and changed his mind.

The PARKER VACUMATIC (which Mr. McElwain now carries) would have saved the deal because its visible ink supply would have shown whether the pen needed refilling before he presented the contract for his client's signature

EVER VISIBLE INK SUPPLY

This Revolutionary pen ELIMINATES 14 OLD-TIME PARTS including the rubber ink sac.

HOLDS 102% MORE INK! Without increase in size

102% More Ink

Less than actual Size

In order to hold as much ink as my PARKER VACUMATIC an ordinary rubber sac pen of the same length would have to be as big AROUND AS A CANE

"IT SAVES THE DAY for MANY A MAN"

says Ripley, "Because It Holds 102% More Ink and shows when it's running low!"

This revolutionary pen WON'T RUN DRY unless you let it. Smart laminated Pearl and Jet. When held to the light, the "jet" rings become transparent—show the column of ink inside—tell when to refill, like the gas gauge on a car. Try this miracle pen at any store. FRESHMEN HEAR DI, PHI LEADERS

Gibbs and Smithwick Extend Invitations to Freshmen to Join Literary Societies.

President A. Mason Gibbes of the Dialectic senate and Speaker Robert Smithwick of the Philanthropic assembly explained their respective societies and extended a membership invitation to freshmen at assembly yesterday.

Dean Bradshaw introduced the speakers and gave a brief history of the groups, saying that all the other organizations of the University had evolved from these first societies.

Benefits from Societies

President Gibbes said members of the Di senate get experience in public speaking, parliamentary procedure, and debating. He invited interested freshmen to visit a Di meeting even if they did not intend to join the senate..

According to Winthrop Durfee, chairman of the freshman membership committee for the Philanthropic assembly, who assisted Speaker Smithwick, interesting subjects are discussed and freedom of speech is allowed at the assembly meetings.

Initiation of new members will take place during this quarter twice besides at the meeting last night.

2,700 Are Registered

The total number of students registered up to yesterday at noon was 2,700, according to information obtained at the registrar's office. Of these, about 200 are graduate students.

THEY BUILT "GREEN PASTURES"

Here are the three men primarily responsible for "The Green Pastures," the dramatization of a Negro's conception of heaven.

The original New York company, headed by Richard B. Harrison as "De Lawd," will appear here Monday night.

Bradford Made Possible "Green Pastures" Success

Noted Author from Tennessee Has Ability to Recreate Negro Habits and Temperament.

Wherever "The Green Pastures" is presented the names of Marc Connelly, Richard B. Harrison, and the Heavenly Choir receive most of the publicity, while Roark Bradford's name is relegated to an inconspicuous space in the articles concerning the play. But it is Roark Bradford who made possible "The Green Pastures," the greatest theatrical success of modern times.

Roark Wickliffe Bradford was born on the banks of the Mississippi in Tennessee. He received his early education at home, but later attended public schools. Just before the outbreak of the World War he achieved his LL.B degree. He entered the army and was not discharged until 1920.

His first position was on the staff of the Hearst publication, The Georgian, in Atlanta. After two years there, he went to Louisiana, where he ran a country newspaper for six months. From there he went to New Orleans and became a copy reader for the Times-Picayune. He soon graduated to the night city desk, and finally reached the exalted position of Sunday editor. This post gave him enough leisure time to devote himself to creative writing.

Roark Bradford's first literary effort was "Child of God," which won for the author immediate fame and the Henry prize for the year. Since the appearance of this book in 1927, Bradford's works have met with pronounced success. He is the author of "John Henry," "Ol' King David and the Philistine Boys," "Kingdom Coming," and "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun," which inspired the writing of "The Green Pastures."

Bradford understands the Negro nature and temperament, and it was this, coupled with his ability to recreate these people on paper, that earned him his well-deserved success. Marc Connelly read "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun," and immediately realized the great dramatic possibilities of these sketches.

Although Roark Bradford is a famed author, he also deserves much of his credit for the success of a great play, for without the drama that he poured into his book, Connelly would never have written "The Green Pastures."

SENTENCE SURE FOR HAUPTMANN

Extradition Expected in Two Weeks; Jersey Governor Confident of Conviction.

New York, Oct. 2.—(UP)—"New Jersey has sufficient evidence to convict Hauptmann," was the statement made by Gov. A. Harry Moore tonight.

Governor Moore said that within two weeks Hauptmann will be extradited to New Jersey. Jersey officials have proceeded with the utmost caution in preparing their case, making sure that they shall have enough evidence to secure conviction.

Charged with Murder

As soon as these truebills are signed, Hauptmann will be taken to New Jersey charged with the actual murder of the Lindbergh child.

Meanwhile in the Bronx, there is every indication that District Attorney Samuel Foley is prepared to go to trial on the extortion charges with the evidence already amassed.

Foley has said that at least three psychiatrists are to examine Hauptmann and that he wants several physicians to represent him at the test.

A mysterious man, whose identity was unrevealed, tonight gave authorities what he described as "an important angle" on the case. He was questioned for an hour and instructed to return tomorrow.

Nancy Gordon Is New Co-ed Vice-President

Nancy Gordon was elected vice-president of the Woman's association yesterday at a meeting in Graham Memorial to replace Jayne Smoot, elected last year but who did not return. Mary Pride Cruikshank was elected town representative.

Short talks were made by Elsie Lawrence, president of the Woman's Athletic association, who spoke on the co-ed athletic program for the coming year, and Jean Smith Cantrell, who outlined the campus activities open to co-eds.

Friday, October 26, was set as a tentative date for the annual co-ed dance.

Commerce Frosh to Meet

Dean Carroll will meet all commerce freshmen at 10:30 o'clock today in Memorial hall.

"Vault The Vols, Take The South"

With the battle-cry "Vault the Vols and Take the South!", loyal Carolina supporters are preparing for the fireworks of Saturday's all-important football match with Tennessee's Volunteers.

That such a powerful opponent is to be met in an early-season game has made it all the more necessary that students give their intense support to the brilliant 1934 team, it is felt. Some students even feel that upon the outcome of Saturday's engagement will depend the issue of whether Carolina will have a brilliant or mediocre season on the gridiron.

At any rate, University club officials and other spirited campus leaders have planned a huge torchlight parade for Friday night with a bonfire celebration following on Emerson field.

Willingham Speaks

Frank Willingham, new University club head, had this to say yesterday:

"We feel that if ever Carolina comes to the aid of its team with enthusiastic support in the form of cheering at the pep rallies and games, now is the time for that action. Tennessee will be tough and every student should give all they've got to back the team Saturday afternoon. Somehow, I feel that the proverbially-powerful Carolina spirit needs a little prodding. Let's get going and send those great Tar Heels crashing through Tennessee and the entire south this fall."

The cheering at the Wake Forest game was quite disappointing to Cheerio officials, who feel that members of the student body owe it to the gridders to put more pep in the stands at Kenan. Let's go, Carolina. "Vault the Vols and Take the South!"

SPEAKER OF PHI STATES PROGRAM

Smithwick Proposes Educational Lectures by Visitors; 65 New Members Are Initiated.

President Robert Smithwick discussed the past history of the Phi assembly and outlined a program for the future in his inaugural address last night.

He pledged his support to an extensive agenda comprising educational lectures by visiting speakers, the promotion of campus projects, and a calendar of bills of general interest for discussion.

Plan Dance

A social affair, probably a dance, was scheduled to be given at some time during the fall quarter.

Sixty-five new members were initiated into the assembly. Joe Patterson was made assistant-treasurer in a close election. The other nominees were Billy Seawell and Stewart Rabb.

FRESHMAN YMCA GROUP OUTFITS HEADQUARTERS

Members of the Freshman Friendship council are outfitting a room on the second floor of the "Y" building to be used as cabinet headquarters.

Jimmy Coan, head of the freshman cabinet, Jack Pool and Agnew Bahnson, freshman advisers, and the remainder of the freshman executive board will have offices there.

P. U. Board Refuses To Appoint Two Men As "Finjan" Censors

Rushing Rules Stand

The action of the Interfraternity council yesterday afternoon in cutting the rushing period to Friday night was annulled last night when announcement was made that such action was contrary to a faculty ruling.

Fraternity rushing season, therefore, will remain the same as announced at the beginning of the year, extending until 12:00 o'clock midnight Saturday.

Graham Says Board Is Not Under Obligation

Board Is Not Obligated by Precedent or Constitution to Handle Editorial Policy.

The Publications Union board yesterday disclaimed any right or duty to act as censors for the new "Finjan" by refusing to comply with the Student council's request to appoint two members for the campus board which will pass on the material to be published in the magazine.

The action came after a letter from President Frank Graham to one of the members was quoted. Graham advised the board that it was not obligated by precedent or constitution to entangle itself in matters of editorial policy.

Student Policy

The board also stated that it did not consider it in keeping with the policy of student control of publications to have two thirds of a censors board appointed by a group which itself has two faculty members.

Having abolished the Buccaneer and established a humor magazine devoted to a higher type of wit, the Student council had informed the Publications Union board that it was expected to appoint from its number or elsewhere two censors. A third censor was to have been named from the council itself.

In addition to disposing of several routine matters, the board also heard a report from one of the editors, and postponed action on a request from a last year's editor for a bonus which has not yet been awarded.

BERNSTEIN OPENS SEMINAR SERIES BY TALK TONIGHT

State Professor to Discuss Monetary Theory at 7:30 O'clock In Bingham Hall.

SPRUILL TO SPEAK NEXT

Dr. E. M. Bernstein of State College will present a discussion of "The Role of Money in Economic Progress" at the first of a series of economics seminars tonight.

The session tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Bingham hall begins a series of weekly meetings conducted by members of the department of economics and commerce.

Dr. Bernstein, trained at the University of Chicago and at Harvard, has in press now a manuscript on "Monetary Theory," in which recent developments are analyzed and appraised. Tonight he will propose and defend his own thesis of monetary control.

Plan

It is the plan of the committee this year to center the programs around the recent developments in economic and business theory.

Last year a series of discussions on the several features of the New Deal attracted considerable interest. Much of the material presented at that time was necessarily factual in character and somewhat limited in perspective owing to the rapidity of the movements then surveyed.

Speakers

The program, as tentatively outlined, will include the following topics and speakers: tonight, "The Role of Money in the Economic Process," by Dr. E. M. Bernstein; October 10, "Contemporary Monetary Experiments," by Professor C. P. Spruill; October 17, "Recent Popular Theories," by Dr. Clarence Heer; October 24, "The Role of Economic History in Theory," by Professor M. S. Heath; October 31, "Some Aspects of General Theory," by Professor J. S. Evans.

November 7, "Bank Credit and the Business Cycle," by Dr. J. B. Woosley; November 14, "Recent Foreign Trade Theory," by Dr. E. W. Zimmermann; November 21, "The Value and Limitations of Mathematical Methods in Economics," by Dr. W. F. Ferger; December 5, "American Profit Theory," by Professor R. S. Winslow; December 12, "Business Practices and Theory," by Dr. G. T. Schwenning.

Graduate students in economics are expected to attend the seminar, and other interested persons are cordially invited.

SENATE UPHOLDS PAYING ATHLETES

President Mason Gibbes Appoints New Committees For Coming Year.

Subsidizing football players and fraternity rushing as now practiced were approved by the members of the Di senate last night.

The two bills discussed were: Resolved, That subsidizing football players should be condemned; and Resolved, That rushing of freshmen should be postponed. The first measure was defeated, 12-8, and the second upheld, 14-6.

Bill Weaver was elected substitute president pro-tem, in the absence of Fred Howard.

New Committees

President A. M. Gibbes appointed the following committees:

Committee on constitution: Chairman Vergil Lee, Eddie Kahn, and Don McKee.

Entertainment: Chairman Bill Weaver, Bob Williams, and Reed Sarratt.

Finance: Chairman Stern, Crowell and Rawls. Ways and Means: Chairman Bill Weaver, Phil Russell, and Charles Daniels.

The next meeting will be devoted to the initiation of new members, it was announced.

PARAGRAPHICS

Our sympathy is all with the last robin. The early one gets both the publicity and the worm.

"Conservatism," says a typographical error in the N. Y. Herald Tribune, "is amissing its forces." Can it be that the new deal is a-gainin' 'em?

And the only man who'll sign his name more than Jim Farley between now and November elections will be W. K. Kellogg—on his corn flakes.

Wise Move
By the Board

At its meeting yesterday afternoon, the Publications Union board very sensibly declined to put its foot into a situation created by the student council as an aftermath of the "Battle of the Buc." It will be recalled that the council created a censor board, to watch over the destiny of the new Finjan, which was to be composed of two members appointed from the Publications Union board and one from the student council itself.

Anybody's guess is as good as the next one as to why the Publications Union board was dragged into the affair. Our own is that the council was temporarily deluded by the fact that this body had a name to which the word "publications" was attached, and it hardly speaks well for the council that this pretext, which smacks strangely of ignorance as to the real function of this important campus organization, was probably the real reason that the board had wished on it an unwanted censorial function.

In the first place, the P. U. board has nothing whatever to do with the editorial policy of any campus publication. Its purpose is that of a controller of the financial operations of the publications. In the second place, as one of the faculty members of the board suggested, the appointment of two censors by the board, which, of course, is made up in part of faculty members, might set a precedent of indirect interference on the part of the faculty into the editorial policies of the publications. For these and other reasons enumerated by the board at its meeting yesterday, it will be seen that there is no justification for the student council's action.

As it resulted the Publications Union board has taken the only stand it could by referring the appointment of censors back to the student council, where it originated and where it belongs. It is entirely up to the council whether it will see fit to compose the new censor board entirely from its own membership. Our own opinion on the matter, however, is that it would be just as well to appoint representatives from the student body at large. In last analysis, it is the students' publication and the students' responsibility for its contents.

Reminds Us
Of Kindergarten

Reading in the Duke Chronicle recently, we noticed that upperclassmen at Duke hold class meetings every week of the year, regardless, says the Chronicle, of whether they have any business to discuss. These meetings, we are further informed, are presided over by popularly elected officers and—lo, the poor Duke student—"capable faculty advisers"!

We take some degree of what may or may not be pardonable pride in this contrast to our own system of holding class meetings, which, when called, of course, are both necessary and lacking in faculty supervision.

The Chronicle is now editorializing for a modification of this system, and we wish it all success in its efforts toward doing away with what we consider a reminiscence of kindergarten days, ridiculously out-of-place in college.

Considering
All Three

In the past week we have heard many discussions regarding the present system of fraternity rushing. There is no doubt that the system is far from perfect, although we censure no particular group from our own point of view. Fraternities, however, as well as the University administration, are vitally interested in any plan that could possibly improve the present schedule.

With that in mind, we consider those three groups that are most affected by rushing—the students, the fraternities, and the University itself.

Those in the student body who endorse the present plan approve of it because the freshmen make their choice of fraternities often before they have had time to be affected by uncomplimentary remarks, just or unjust, concerning certain fraternities on the campus.

Under the present rushing plan, most freshmen and fraternity men get very little work done during the first two weeks of school because they have to devote nearly their entire time to being "socialized." Consequently, they often get off on the wrong foot in their courses. If rushing were delayed until the first week in November, for instance, it would not be such a tax on the time of the freshman. He would by that time have a fairly good idea of the type of fraternity that he wanted to join, and the rushing period would have to last only a short time. Then, too, he would be well enough up in his work to be able to spend a few hours a day at various fraternities without seriously affecting his studies.

Next, there is the fraternities' side of the question. They have to make their choice of boys before they really get to know them beyond superficiality. The fraternities might benefit greatly by waiting a month or so before beginning their consideration of the new men.

Inasmuch as a plan such as the one proposed would demand less time at a more opportune time, it would probably meet with the approval of the faculty, who have had troubles enough with delinquent assignments on account of rushing.

Such a plan, however, would hinge on the absolute integrity of the members of the fraternities and of the freshmen rushed. Secret rushing would undermine and disrupt the advantages of such a delayed system.

St. Mary's
Is Calling

Souvenir hunters are undiscriminating as to their quarry. Just how true this is, we hadn't realized until G. E. Shepard, graduate manager of athletics, asked us to run an announcement in the DAILY TAR HEEL in an effort to recover an item "missing" since last week-end.

Someone borrowed the cloth sign which designates the bus in which students from St. Mary's attended the Wake Forest-Carolina game last Saturday.

A. W. Tucker, business manager of St. Mary's, has offered the reward of a St. Mary's pennant to whomsoever will bring it back to the athletic association office.

Ostensibly a St. Mary's fan, the student whose room it now graces will, we hope, return his prize. (And, by the way, Mr. Tucker, have you any more of those pennants left?)

Well-Balanced
Entertainment

Last year there was a great deal of controversy about the type of programs that the Student Entertainment committee was presenting to the campus. It was quite apparent that the committee could not please everybody, but the trouble seemed to lie in the fact that they were not pleasing a great enough majority of the campus. Some students felt that the choices made by the committee were appealing only to a small, literary clique on the campus. Despite the fact that season tickets were already held by the students, some of the entertainments were very poorly attended.

However, there is no doubt that the committee is turning over a new leaf this year in their choice of entertainments. Five have already been scheduled this year, and it is expected that another will be listed in the near future to round out what impresses us as being an unusually well-balanced program.

"The Green Pastures," the first on the list, is a play which has enjoyed world-wide success over a period of four years. Not long ago the cast celebrated the fifteen hundredth performance of this delightful drama of Negro life and religion. The play comes to Chapel Hill Monday, October 8. At that time we feel sure that students will attend this really entertaining play, and there is no doubt that it will be enjoyed and appreciated. The Student Entertainment committee deserves a word of thanks for bringing this unusual production to Memorial hall. If the rest of the year's programs provoke the attendance that we think "The Green Pastures" will, the campus has no right to kick.

MUSIC TEACHERS TO HEAR DEERING

Well-Known Pianist to Speak to State Group in Greensboro.

Henri Deering, eminent New York pianist who taught master piano classes in the University and the Woman's College last summer, will speak at the annual state conference of supervisors and teachers of music to be held at the Woman's College October 19 and 20, according to Dr. Wade R. Brown, dean of the school of music there.

Deering will give master piano class lessons on compositions which will be played by students in the state high school music contest in April. He will also be a judge at this contest.

'MAC'S' LEAD ALL OTHER SURNAMES

Directory Shows Smith Is Commonest Name Here.

Ninty-three students whose family name begins with "Mac" enrolled in the Chapel Hill unit of the University, as revealed by a study of the master directory which appears in the "Y" this week.

"Smith" tops the list for complete family names with twenty-seven of that specie among the student body. "Williams" and "Johnson" tally twenty each, as do "Jones" and "Davis." The "Brown" aggregation, usually well up the list, numbers 14 and pulls only a weak sixth place..

Students are registered from almost every state in the Union. Notable among those who are farthermost from home are pupils from Ontario, Canada; Izmir, Turkey; Shanghai, China; Pai Shih Chiao, China; and Tubriz, Persia.

The first program over the air sponsored by the organization was presented last spring over station WDNC in Durham.

Parade Elephant Blows Nose; Riot Impends

Sudden Trumpet Throws Negro Spectators into Panic.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 2.—(UP)—When a man blows his nose, nobody pays any attention.

When an elephant blows his nose—that may be news.

An elephant lumbering up Fayetteville street here yesterday in a big circus parade decided to blow his nose at the Martin street corner.

The result was almost a stampede.

A crowd of Negro spectators shied. A few ran when the giant elephant emitted a big snort.

Other spectators were frightened temporarily but regained their equilibrium when the elephant resumed his forward march.

Coach Snavely Works Charges Long Against Freshmen Squad

Varsity Gridsters Look Listless And Slow in Even Battle With First Year Outfit.

GAINS MADE ON PASSES

Carolina and Tennessee Weight About the Same; Great Scrap Expected Here Saturday.

Coach Carl Snavely pushed his charges until well after sundown yesterday on Kenan field in an effort to get the grid squad ready for the tough battle with Tennessee here Saturday.

The varsity spent practically all the afternoon in scrimmage. First the initial two teams ran their plays against a third string; then the varsity took on the strong freshman squad in a battle which lasted nearly two hours.

The entire squad looked listless and failed to show the speed and blocking of last Saturday's win. The freshmen held them on almost even terms all afternoon, the only varsity scores coming on drives made by the second team over the tired frosh not long before the workout ended.

Probably the longest gains of the afternoon were made through passes, Slippery Dick Dashiell getting off two nice heaves to Bill Moore and Charlie Shaffer which resulted in some 75 yards.

The best stepping of the afternoon was furnished by a couple of second string backs, Randy Cooner and Harry Montgomery. Both looked fairly good in last Saturday's battle and will likely see much action against the Vols.

Tom Evins, big tackle, twisted his ankle slightly in yesterday's practice, but not seriously and he will be all right by Saturday. It is hoped that the whole squad will be in top condition for the strong Tennessee outfit. However, Don Jackson, star passer, is still taking it easy with his injured knee.

Great Scrap Expected

The game promises one of the most spirited scraps since the Tar Heels fought Tennessee's great 1931 team off its feet the last time they met here only to lose on a fumble 7-0.

Both teams were impressive in their opening games, Carolina surprising powerful Wake Forest eleven 21-0 and Tennessee brushing aside the best Centre eleven in several years, 32-0.

The Vols have an extra incentive. This is Major Bob Neyland's last season as coach and they vow to make it his best. And the Tar Heels are just as intent on taking advantage of their last opportunity to repay Neyland for past reverses and to show their new coach they can go places.

The two teams will stack up on approximately even terms in the matter of weight, experience, and physical condition.

Tennessee's starting line averages 191 to Carolina's 188, but the Tar Heel's number one backfield outweighs the Vols 175 to 173 pounds.

The Carolina eleven lists eight lettermen, of whom four are seniors and four juniors, and three sophomores.

Although Tennessee is being called a new team, all the members have gone through Neyland's finishing school and learned their lessons well. The starting eleven last week had nine seniors and two juniors.

Both squads came through their opening clashes in good shape. Captain Hatley and Alvey of Tennessee and Pendergraft and McIver of Carolina were about the only casualties, and their injuries were minor. By an odd coincidence all four boys play guard.

Frosh Football

All men who have at one time or other tried out for the freshman football team during this quarter are requested to attend a meeting at Emerson field at 4:00 o'clock today. Attendance is compulsory and a checkup will be made on all absentees.

COURSE FOR CAKE RACE ANNOUNCED

Many Stars Have Developed From Winners of Intramural Races over Last 11 Years.

Possible entrants for the 11th annual cake race, to be held on Thursday, October 18, may now practice for the event over the official course, which was announced yesterday by Herman Schnell, director of the intramural program. The distance is approximately 1.9 miles.

The start will be made on Hillsboro st., opposite Freshman field, going right up the State highway, turning down past the Carolina Inn and into Cameron Ave.

The course continues up Cameron ave., through the center of the campus, out past the Forest Theatre, and back onto the State highway, onto and around Emerson track, finishing at the east end of the stands.

Started in 1923

The race was inaugurated in the fall of 1923 by John Purser, then director of intramurals, with Harry Thoch as the first winner. The contest has been held every year from then on, excepting 1928.

The year 1924 established the high entry record at 228, when Lester Byrd defeated a strong field that included Galen Elliott, holder of the University mile record until a short time ago. The list for the past three years, starting with 1931, numbered 87, 88 and 111 respectively.

Winners Become Stars

In looking over previous winners and contestants of the events, one will notice names familiar with the history of the University harriers over the last decade. Minor Barclay, 1926 winner, became one of the greatest half-milers of Carolina, and teamed with June Fisher, 1927 conqueror, as members of the 4-mile Penn Relay Championship team of 1928.

Three years ago found Harry Williamson, an outstanding member of Carolina's 1934 Southern titlists, was winner, while Best House took the team trophy with 87 points. Henry Sullivan copped first honors the following year, and Best House successfully defended its team title with a score of 150.

Last year found Ruffin dormitory replacing Best House as team winners, and a triple tie between Graham Gammon, Bob Gardiner and Marvin Allen for the first place post.

Twenty-five years after graduation Phi Beta Kappa men still lead other members of their class, it was disclosed in a survey conducted at Lehigh University. Men who have been voted the "biggest dreamer" have made the best records and those acclaimed the "biggest freak" have come second.

A ninety-seven year old ban against card playing and dancing has been lifted by the trustees of Muskingum College, Ohio. That's what we call progress!

HARRIS ADVANCES TO THIRD ROUND IN NET TOURNEY

Tar Heel Number One Man Advances Easily by 6-1, 6-0 at White Sulphur Springs.

DOUBLES CLUB ENTERED

Harvey Harris, North Carolina's foremost tennis player for the past year, now participating in the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate championship at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., has won his way into the third round of singles play without much difficulty. In the second round, Harris trounced Owen of West Virginia University by the one sided scores of 6-1 and 6-0.

Harris is also entered in the doubles tourney with Walter Levitan, varsity captain, and will swing into action in that event soon.

Last year's champions in doubles, Higgins and Welsh of Duke University, are not entered in the present competition and the Tar Heel combination is given a fair chance of annexing the title.

Ashby and McNeill, representing Duke University, swept through the Davis-Elkins pair of Dye and Whitman 6-4, 6-2, and are looked to for considerable competition in the title quest. This tournament, although conducting a singles championship, is principally a battle for the large trophy given away in the doubles competition.

SKIDMORE PRAISES VOLS

The Tennessee eleven that plays Carolina here Saturday will be up to the Vols' usual standard if one is to judge by the comments of experts who saw them brush Centre aside 32-0. "One of the fastest elevens as a team that I have ever seen," said W. B. Skidmore, Carolina scout. "A great team. One of the most powerful we ever faced. The blocking at times was as savage as any I've seen," said Ed Kubale, the Centre coach.

WATCH PUNT RETURNS

The fans may be in for some thrilling punt returning when Henry Krouse and Freddie Moses of Tennessee and Dick Dashiell of Carolina get together here Saturday. Krouse lugged a kickoff back 92 yards against Centre last week, and Dashiell brought back memories of Johnny Branch with a 65-yard return.

Cardinals Face Tigers Today In Opening World Series Game

First Battle to Start on Navin Field, Detroit, at 1:30 O'clock; "Dizzy" Dean and "Schoolboy" Rowe Will Probably Hookup On Mound But Managers Not Sure; Both Confident.

Thousands upon thousands of rabid baseball fans will pile into Navin field in Detroit today, scrambling for each and every seat and nook in the small stadium for a chance to see the opening game of the World Series, which starts at 1:30 o'clock (EST).

The Michigan folk are celebrating their first pennant in 25 years, while the Missouri people are rejoicing their fifth pennant in nine years. The east is left completely out of the series limelight for the first time in fifteen years.

Detroit is sure of winning. St. Louis is likewise sure of victory. Both home towns are cocky in their bragging. Manager Frankie Frisch and the Deans of the Cards say the championship is in the bag for them. Manager Mickey Cochrane, Schoolboy Rowe and Company of the Tigers have been none too timid or modest in relating their own chances. Wall Street is laying down the money at 13 to 10 odds favoring the Cards, but there is plenty of Detroit money in the air. The series is really a "natural."

Favorites Lose

Last year the Senators were big favorites in the series, but the Giants won in five games. The year before, the Athletics had big odds to win, but the Cards upset them. This year Detroit has been playing superb ball all season in their top position. The Cards started three weeks ago in third place and turned in the most spectacular winning streak ever claimed by a major league team. Can the Cards keep up this streak?

The way things sum up now is that the Cardinals are superior in pitchers and the Bengals in hitting. The Dean Brothers present the greatest pitching pair on one team, except the Grove-Earnshaw combination of the '29-'31 Athletics, in a long time. The Detroit bats, however, have been swinging for a team average of .300 to lead the American League.

The St. Louis team will present the renowned Pepper Martin who broke up the Philadelphia Athletics' playhouse in the 1932 series. Martin stole base after base in that series and it was against the same Mickey Cochrane who now catches for the Tigers. The heaviest hitter on the squad is Collins, first sacker. He hit .333 for the season, tied with Ott for the home run lead, tied for second in the number of two base hits, and batted in the second most runs.

Slugging Infield

The Detroit team has remained intact for the whole season. The infield of Greenberg, Gehringer, Rogell, and Owen has started every game of the season except one and the quartet has averaged .325 at the bat. Gehringer hit .356 and Greenberg .340. Cochrane is the sparkplug of the nine and has continually pulled the team from behind to win many extra-inning games.

Both managers are freshmen at the game from the managerial end. The series promises to be another battle of youthful wit like the last year's Terry-Cronin scrap.

The pitching end is decidedly favorable to the Cards. The two Deans have contributed 49 victories to the cause of the Missourians. "Dizzy" has pitched in 50 encounters, has 30 wins to

VOLS CALL OFF CROSS COUNTRY MEET SATURDAY

Opening Harrier Battle Now Set For October 27 with State; Have Hard Schedule.

STRONG TEAM EXPECTED

By request of the athletic authorities of the University of Tennessee the cross country meet scheduled for Saturday between Carolina and the Vols has been canceled.

Due to this the opening contest will not be until October 27 at which time N. C. State will be the opponent. Because of this late opening it should give the squad plenty of time to round into tip top condition. Carolina's cross country representatives this year face the hardest schedule undertaken within the last five years.

With seven lettermen back and a fine group of sophomores up from last year's yearling team, the Tar Heels have a good chance to turn in a great season. Among the lettermen back are three Southern Conference champion trackmen. Captain Harry Williamson took the half-mile title while Ed McRae and Ed Waldrop won in the mile and two-mile races, respectively.

The tentative schedule:

Oct. 27—N. C. State at Chapel Hill.

Nov. 3—W. & L. at Lexington.

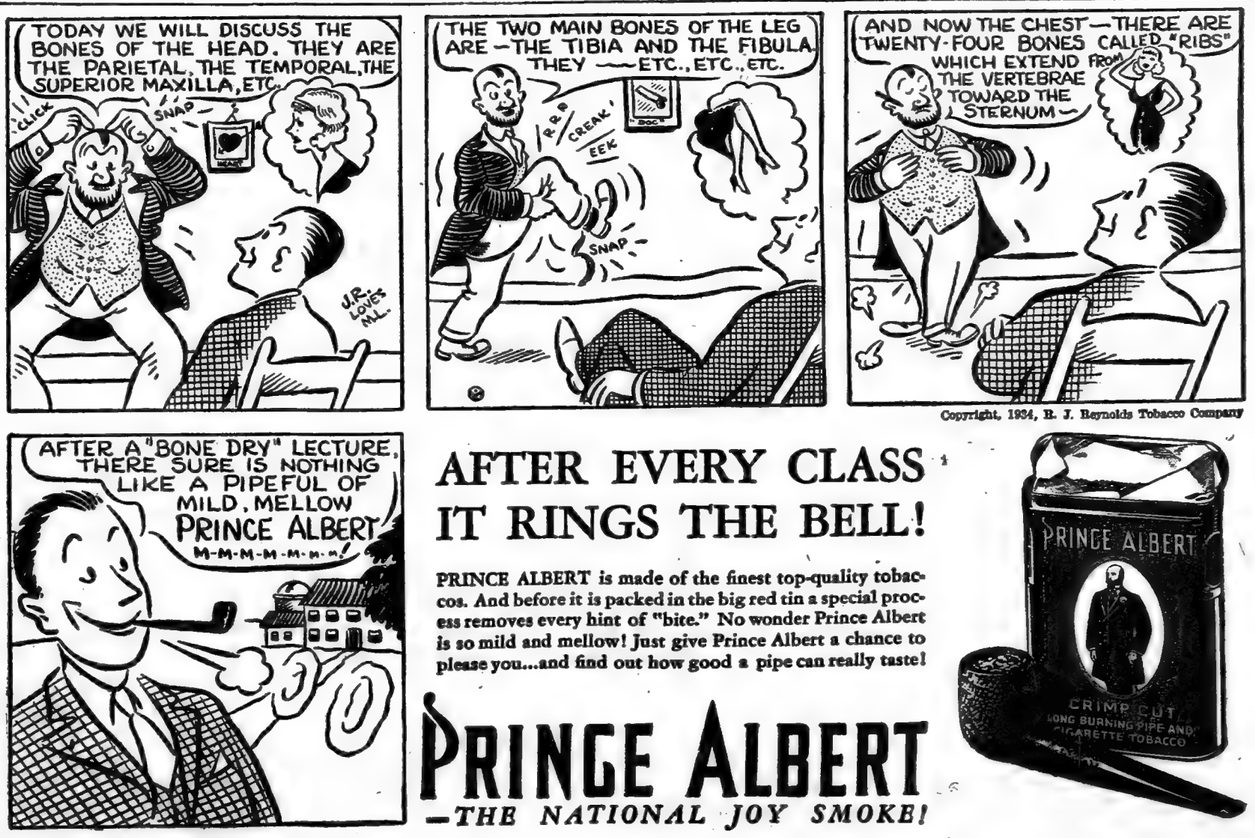
Nov. 5—V. M. I. at Blacksburg.

Nov. 10—Davidson at Davidson.

Nov. 17—Duke at Duke.

Nov. 24—Southern Conference Championship at Chapel Hill.

PASSES MAY FEATURE



Carolina's pass defense, which clicked perfectly against Wake Forest, is in for a tougher test Saturday. Tennessee is coming to town and is bringing with it a lad named Pug Vaughan who is reported to throw the spheroid with the speed and accuracy of a rifle bullet.

STUDENTS TO AID RED CROSS DRIVE

University Club and Freshman "Y" Council to Aid Local Chapter in Program.

The Freshman Friendship council and the University club will co-operate with the Chapel Hill chapter of the American National Red Cross in conducting a special Red Cross membership drive among University students from November 11 to Thanksgiving Day, according to Russell M. Grumman, chairman of the local chapter.

There will be several features of the Red Cross program here this year that will be of special interest to students. Courses and examinations for junior and senior life saving certificates and for examiners' certificates will be conducted by Lee Gree, who is chairman of the life saving committee of the local chapter.

Dr. E. M. Hedgepeth, chairman of the first aid committee, will give courses for Red Cross first aid certificates.

Plan College Course

The Chapel Hill chapter is interested in having a first aid course included in the regular curriculum of the University and is working on that project now, Grumman said.

The membership quota assigned this chapter is 600. Grumman is hoping that, with the cooperation of the students, this number will be exceeded this year.

Other officers are: Harry Comer, vice-chairman; Maurice Hill, treasurer; Mrs. E. C. Smith, recording secretary; W. B. Stevenson, executive secretary.

Meeting Changed

Mrs. Fussler announced that the dates of the annual meeting of the directors of the association have been changed to October 19 and 20, instead of in January.

his credit, seven of which are shutouts, and pulled the Cards to the top by blanking the Reds in two games in three days in the last series of the regular season while the Giants were losing.

The other St. Louis flingers are Paul Dean, of no-hit fame but not quite as reliable as his elder brother, "Wild Bill" Hallahan, Tex Carleton, and Bill Walker, a standby during the late season drive.

The American League team can boast only one real star—that is none other than the yearling "Schoolboy" Rowe. He tied the league record during the season of sixteen consecutive wins and has won 24 games. The rest of the Bengal mound staff are Alan Crowder, Tommy Bridges, Elden Auker, and Fred Marberry.

Today for the opening game neither manager has stated which twirler he will use. All logic points to a meeting between "Dizzy" and "Schoolboy." But Manager Frisch may start the southpaw Hallahan, who upset the Athletics in 1931 and is rated one of the best money pitchers in the leagues. Manager Cochrane, schooled by the veteran Connie Mack and remembering when Mack started Howard Ehmke in the opener back in 1929 with both Grove and Earnshaw on the bench, may send the "General" Crowder to the mound as he did in the opener of the recent Tiger-Yankee "crucial series."

Regardless of who goes to the mound, the first game will be a thriller and whoever wins the game will see their stock in the World Championship rise rapidly.

650 DINERS TAKE MEALS AT SWAIN

Patronage Is Largest Since 1931 and Includes Thirteen Women Students, Harmon Says.

Swain hall, University dining room, now serves 650 students, the largest number since 1931 when 790 were accommodated, according to J. Obie Harmon, manager.

This number does not include the 32 waiters who earn their board by waiting on the tables. Thirteen women students are now eating at the dining hall, said Manager Harmon.

Williamson Head Waiter

Harry Williamson has been appointed head waiter for this year, succeeding Hamilton Hobgood who has been head waiter for the past several years. Williamson, who has waited on the tables for the past three years, is a senior and an outstanding member of the Carolina track team.

Board is now $20 per month. Although no definite statement can be made about an increase in price, Harmon says there is not likely to be an advance this year.

Infirmary List

The following students were confined to the University infirmary yesterday: Ellen Deppe, Sue Jenkins, Paul Pendergraft, and G. L. Wright. George Barclay, although he is not in actual confinement, has been receiving daily medical attention in order to insure the fitness of his knee.

WATSON RECEIVES ONE YEAR LEAVE

Engineer Goes to Lehigh to Substitute for S. A. Becker.

John D. Watson, instructor in civil engineering is on leave this year from the faculty while he is substituting for Professor S. A. Becker in the department of civil engineering at Lehigh University.

Professor Watson is a graduate of the University school of engineering and his selection to fill the vacancy at Lehigh for a year is regarded here as complimentary to him and to the University school of engineering.

Last summer Professor Watson was engaged in the United States Waterways Experiment station at Vicksburg, Miss., in working out by model studies problems of flood control and navigation improvements which the corps of engineers have encountered in their river and harbor projects. Among these was a model of Winyah Bay at Georgetown, S. C., and a model of the Savannah river up to Augusta, Ga., which is to have a channel of nine feet.

OSTERHELD HEADS SOPH COMMITTEE

Vacancies Within Program Group To Be Filled Next Week.

Herbert Osterheld was appointed chairman of the sophomore chapel program committee at a meeting of the second-year executive committee yesterday in Gerrard hall.

No other business was taken up at the session. Members of the committee not enrolled in the University again this fall were noted. Appointments to fill these vacancies will be made next week.

Henry Dosier, elected treasurer of the class last spring in the annual elections, has not returned to school this year, and arrangements will be made to fill the vacancy at an early date.

CHIMES RINGERS TO MEET TONIGHT

RALLY TO WAKE CAROLINA SPIRIT TOMORROW NIGHT

Torch Parade and Bonfire Display on Emerson Field to Feature Pep Meeting.

RAMESES III ASKS FOR PEP

A giant torchlight parade and a bonfire celebration on Emerson field tomorow night at 8:00 o'clock will feature the University club's efforts to awaken lethargic Carolina rooters before the Tennessee football battle here Saturday.

Torches for the parade, the starting place and time of which will be announced later, will be on sale in all dormitory stores. The idea is that the torchlighters will crash through the center of the campus to Emerson field, light the bonfire, and yell their lungs out as the band and cheerleaders lend the necessary auxiliary sounds and motions.

Rameses Speaks

Rameses III said yesterday between sniffs: "We've got to get out and fight behind that team of ours. If we don't get more pep, we'll look like a bunch of kids and Tennessee will make goats of us all."

Fraternities are urged to turn out full membership with their visitors to participate in the rally. Dormitory men are requested to rouse the more apprehensive roommates to action.

UNIVERSITY CLUB MEETS

The University club will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Graham Memorial club room. It will be a short meeting, at which every man is urgently requested to be present.

George C. MacFarland will lead a discussion on "Capitalism and War" in the sophomore Y. M. C. A. council meeting Monday night in the "Y" building, it was announced yesterday by the second year cabinet program committee.

GRAHAM ASSERTS MEN MUST SAVE AMERICAN RIGHTS

President of University Sounds Challenge to Defenders of Individual Liberty.

OPENS VIRGINIA ASSEMBLY

Speaking at the annual opening convocation of the University of Virginia at Charlottesville yesterday, Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the Greater University of North Carolina, sounded a challenge to defenders of American liberty against social privilege and financial power.

Dr. Graham asserted that "at this shrine of Thomas Jefferson we cannot as University men honorably stand aside while the shibboleths, which came flaming from his soul in behalf of the liberties of forgotten men in the eighteenth century, are all over America turned against the liberties of forgotten men in the twentieth century."

Democratic Rights

"The liberties and rights of lowly human beings in this democratic tradition are surely no less American than the liberties and rights of vested interests and corporate power," he declared.

Presided over by President Newcomb of the University of Virginia, the convocation was attended by the faculty, the students and representative alumni.

Delivering the address of the occasion, Dr. Graham, in concluding his address, spoke of the vital issues of the day.

Freedom in University

Speaking directly to the students, he said, in part:

Gypsy-Like Accordian Player Intrigues Diners At Harry's

Charming Stranger Diverts Supper Crowd with Song, Droll Stories, And Soliloquies; Harry and Uneasy Waiters Make No Attempt to Curb Exuberance of Uninvited Guest.

The man had a laugh like a healthy, amused goat. It started at the bottom of his anatomy and ended in a great boom just outside of Harry's New Deal, where a fairly large crowd had gathered to listen. Sunday-night-supper snappers, craning necks out of the little booths, had long since joined in his continual and contagious laughter. They were now registering amazement, for he was promenading through the restaurant with a beautiful accordian and demonstrating extraordinary talent in the song, "Love in Bloom.

Emperor Harry

Harry, emperor of the New Deal, concealed himself as best he could behind the cash register, emerging now and again to fry an egg or turn over a steak. He looked as though he were quite positive that the guest and intruder had got hold of too much Orange county corn. Harry was particularly uncomfortable whenever the chap shook a finger in his direction and urged, "ahh, Harry, come on out and seeng weeth me!" Harry excused himself, "Oh no. No, I can't. I have gold in my noze!"

On the accordian, a beautiful instrument of white and silver, glittered the name "Happy." "Happy" and his four gay companions entertained Harry's customers with jokes and soliloquies for most of the evening. Some spectators fancied that "Happy" was either a gypsy or a bohemian. Because of his very fair complexion, he couldn't have been a gypsy, although he possessed the same impulsive laughter and rippling talent of that roguish tribe. Then, too, his companions were typically American (including milady, who looked at him fondly during his demonstrations and whom he caressed at frequent intervals upon the ear or nose). "Happy" supplemented the piercing music of his accordian with snatches of the song that he could remember: "Oh no!"; "Rare and magic perfume"; "Can it be the spring that seems to spring . . . . right into this room?"

"Seeng Weeth Me"

Waiters squirmed past him. One of them he stopped and lectured playfully. He stood up and, gesticulating, told funny stories in his rapid, foreign voice. In spite of the prolonged applause after his one solo, "Happy" refused to play again unless Harry would "seeng weeth me."

While paying checks, departing members of the audience inquired of Harry as to the nationality and employment of the gentleman. Harry declared him an American vaudeville actor.

Fearful Spectre Frightens Socialites In Aycock Dorm

Students Gathered in Social Room of Dormitory to Spend Evening In Swapping Yarns Confronted by Gruesome Figure; Meanwhile Kornegay Has Become Regular Infirmaryite.

A large crowd had gathered to pass an otherwise dull evening in swapping stories in the Aycock "social room." Suddenly, to their consternation, there appeared a figure clothed in black looking not unlike that vampire artist, Dracula. It wasn't Dracula, but, on closer examination, Frankenstein's monster which stalked into the room. An ashen hue crept over the faces of the crowd as they gazed into the contorted face. Its eyes seemed to hit them amidships like a couple of bullets.

As suddenly as it had come, the thing vanished, and, in its place stood Mr. Hyde of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde fame. By this time, the perspiration was oozing from the foreheads of the crowd and the ashen hue was fast turning into a greenish tinge.

Identity Revealed

A wince of pain seemed to cross the Hyde countenance just as he was in the midst of one of the most gruesome of his facial contortions. Clutching the right side of his face, the Dr. Jekyll of the combination was disclosed as a small, rotund boy in knickers, looking rather sheepish over the fact that his blood-curdling scheme had blown out a fuse. He tried to laugh, but one side of his face refused to function. A look of fear spread over the mobile side of his face as he gingerly massaged the aching tissues.

The outcome of the whole thing was that Joe Kornegay went to the infirmary and was told by the attending physician that he must receive daily treatments for his affliction. A nerve, they reported, was bruised to such an extent that it rendered useless the muscles on one side of his face. When asked to wiggle his right ear, Joe merely smiles a left hand smile and thinks of the days when he was the undisputed champion right ear wiggler in Orange county.

Future Plans

It will be many a day before he tries such a stunt as the impersonation of Dracula, although he is formulating a plan to imitate the great Fu Manchu the instant the doctor allows him to remove the towel that surrounds his neck.

If anyone cares to see the gentleman who was so nobly carrying on the great work of Lon Chaney, he may be found in the dorm store in Aycock, contentedly chewing on a straw while telling some eager listener why he has that "piece of rag" around his throat. The story, like all stories, grows in the telling, and will some day grace the annals of Carolina folk lore.

PARAGRAPHICS

"Bradford Made Possible 'Green Pastures' Success," says DAILY TAR HEEL headline. We differ: that's why darkies were born.

This thing about the co-eds leaving their shades up has got to be looked into.

Somebody had to say it: this is one time when "Schoolboy" Rowe'll have to step up and see the Dean.

Fraternities
And the Faculty

The announcement Tuesday night that the action of the Interfraternity council of the same afternoon to chop a day off the rushing season had been rendered void by a faculty ruling was somewhat erroneous. There is no faculty ruling specifically prohibiting such an action on the part of the council.

What the annulment amounted to was that the faculty has ultimate control of local interfraternity policy on this campus and the council must have faculty approval in changing the basic processes like the rushing season; and such approval could not be secured during rushing season.

If, however, this year's rushing season were longer than last year's, the council would have the right to pare off the difference without faculty approbation. In the present instance, however, as this was not the case, faculty approval was necessary before the action was officially operative.

Harbinger
And Helper

An Associated Press item the other day revealed the agreeably surprising fact that enrollments in colleges and universities throughout the country are up on an average of 10 per cent over last year.

Federal relief funds made available this year to college students were heralded by a majority of educators as the chief factor in the large increase, which has ranged from slight jumps upwards to an 80 per cent increase in the University of South Dakota's freshman class.

As it was pointed out in these columns recently, the federal government is supporting 80 per cent of all relief projects in the country. In this state, it supplies over 90 per cent, the state none, and the local units around 10 per cent. Education relief here, then, can be denoted as "nationally supported" in a sense.

We notice in passing that Duke University, for all its tremendous endowment, leads the 54 institutions in this state receiving federal aid in the number of students getting financial help. Maybe there's something in the old maxim: nothing succeeds like success.

Nevertheless, it is significant that in times like the present economic slump the federal government is turning to education as a means of deliverance. That a federal appropriation involving millions of dollars should be turned to the training of American youth indicates the trend toward eliminating the ignorance factor so evident in the unemployment problem. College enrollments, moreover, encouraged by federal relief and the absence of lucrative employment, should decrease by a recognizable portion the ranks of the army of men out of work.

Vaulting
The Vols

The Tennessee game holds much more for this campus than exuberance in the event of victory or temporary disappointment at defeat. It marks what can well be termed a crisis in the Tar Heel football team's 1934 career, an early season Rubicon the crossing of which will determine and will be determined by, the spirit of not only the gridders but the school itself.

We view the coming encounter with optimism because the Tar Heels are on their way to doing great things on the southern gridiron this year. But our optimism does not hide our tense interest in the effect of the game on the team and the student body. A tough game in early season, if lost, may undermine the team's support or may even demoralize the footballers themselves.

Tennessee must be beaten. That our team has the backing of every student is not questioned. The all-important thing, however, is that regardless of the outcome, the famous "Carolina spirit" must not falter. Spread it around: "Vault the Vols and Take the South!"

Psychology
And War

"There is not one shred of evidence that man is predisposed to war by his environment." Dr. English Bagby does not mince words when he utters the evident implication: "But training and experience through many years send men into armed conflicts."

Surface-deep students the world over listened to emotional addresses last spring and participated in the largest youth movement for peace ever evidenced in history. But those students only scratched at the top-layer. Movies and the press and orators could stir them into a frenzy and set them in the trenches in five months. At least, Dr. Bagby thinks so, and his is a careful and intensive analysis of the psychology of war.

We agree that although no actual falsehoods are told, war propagandists misrepresent horribly the war picture. But we gasp when we realize that such a complete mania could not have overtaken us had not the war propagandists gotten hold of every citizen when he was barely able to talk and fed him on the beauties and the magnanimosity of war.

That, of course, must be our duty: to foster "peace from birth" instead of trying to dislocate an imbedded psychological fascination of armed conflict. That, then, can be the benefit which student peace movements can bestow; they can teach that the old principle "You can't teach old dogs new tricks" must be paraphrased in its simple honesty to "You can't teach peace to a war-infested adult." Keep the silver spoons, but for peace's sake, throw away the toy soldiers!

Speaking The Campus Mind

(BRIEFLY AND LEGIBLY)

Look,
Tubby!

Editor the DAILY TAR HEEL:

During the past year there have been established at the University two organizations, namely the Student Co-operative Cleaners and the Co-operative Clothing store. The establishment of the cleaners association was very necessary, due to the local cleaning costs.

I am sure we will never see the establishment of such an organization as the Book Exchange. Officials will probably nip any such movement in the bud, for they will claim that any such organization is unnecessary in view of the fact that the Book Exchange exists solely for the benefit of the students and that their profits on books barely cover operating expenses. If this is true, as shown by the Di senate's investigation last fall, how is it possible for a local book store to sell the same books at a 10% discount and at the same time enable its owner to make a decent living wage even though his sales probably do not approximate the official exchange?

Maybe the Di senate investigators didn't know how to investigate, or could it be possible that all the books were not turned over to the Di senate? Nay, I don't think that the Book Ex officials are capable of hiding books from boys who get too nosey.

Personally I'm not in favor of communistic enterprises but as long as we've got to have them why not have organizations which will do the most good?

REPRESENTATIVE STUDENT.

We advertise in order that the public may better understand what the Bell System is doing, and why it does it. In this way we keep customers and prospective customers informed of our aims, policies and progress.

We advertise in order to aid the telephone customer in making the best possible use of his service. As our advertising influences one person after another to use the telephone more effectively, the service rendered every other user is correspondingly improved.

We advertise because we have a varied service to sell and by selling more of it we increase its value to each user. Because of the nature of the telephone business, it is our duty to inform the public continuously of the character and varied kind of service we provide.

In line with this broad plan, we find real opportunity in addressing messages to college and university people in their own publications, just as we also vary our advertising for women's magazines, farm papers and so on. 1934-35 is the fifteenth year during which the Bell System has published advertisements which take college men behind the scenes of Bell Telephone service.

Cardinals Capture First Of Series From Tigers, 8-3, As 'Dizzy,' Medwick Star

St. Louis Gets 13 Hits Before 47,000 Fans; Rout Crowder.

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 3.—With Jerome "Dizzy" Dean and "Ducky" Medwick holding the spotlight, the St. Louis Cardinals, pennant winners in the National league, downed the Detroit Tigers 8-3 in the opening game of the World Series here this afternoon before 47,000 fans.

His majesty, "Dizzy" Dean, continued to be the greatest right handed pitcher in baseball by limiting the Tigers to eight hits and holding them to only one earned run, a homer by big Hank Greenberg, first baseman of the American league champions.

Although a little wild at times, Dean had his famous fast ball and change of pace working in great fashion. He fanned six batters and twirled his mightiest in the pinches. In the third inning the Cardinal ace fanned the very dangerous Greenberg for the third out with men on second and third. He also struck out Gerry Walker for the last out of the battle while a man was on second.

Four Out of Five

"Ducky" Medwick, left fielder of St. Louis, furnished the big fireworks on offense. He cracked out four hits in five times at the plate, one of his blows landing in the left field stands for a round trip. Medwick also scored twice and drove in two runs.

Detroit's famous iron-men infield almost gave the game away in the first three innings, making five errors and letting three unearned markers cross the plate.

General Al Crowder, who also opened the series for Washington last year, took the mound for Detroit and fared little better than last year. He was the victim of the shakey infield during the opening frames and then let Medwick get his homer in the "Vault The Vols"

World Series Shorts

With one game in his favor Manager Frankie Frisch of St. Louis can afford to take the chances today in the second battle of the World Series at Detroit. As a result it is mere guess work as to whom the second baseman will send to the mound. Wild Bill Hallahan, twice winner over Detroit in exhibition games, is still ready to go as is Paul Dean, who, along with his brother "Dizzy," pitched over half of the victories for St. Louis during the mad pennant chase. Still another possible choice is Lefty Walker, who furnished the Cardinals with some fine pitching during the last days of the regular season.

There is little doubt but that Manager Cochrane's starter will be "Schoolboy" Rowe, record-setter and ace throughout the year. The Tiger catcher refused to start his best bet in the opening game because he didn't wish to waste him against the mighty "Dizzy."

"Ducky" Medwick, who connected for four out of five yesterday, is well on his way to a record for hits made in a series if the left fielder can hit only half that well the rest of the time and the series lasts long enough. The old record is thirteen and was tied by Pepper Martin, Cardinal third baseman, last time St. Louis played in the series in 1931.

Two Threats of Snavely's Stone Wall

These two fellows above are veteran linesmen of the Carolina line, who allowed the Wake Forest Deacons a net total of 20 yards gained through their territory.

On the left is Jim Tatum, whose 202 pounds of beef and muscle makes him the heaviest of the regulars. Big Jim, who hails from the Iodine state, is not only a vicious forward player but also has an educated toe adapted especially to placement kicks.

Eddie Kahn, on the right, is the running mate at guard with Captain Barclay. "King Kong" gets low in that line and, when he comes up, he is usually in the enemy backfield. A hard tackler and fast on the jump, he puts an end to more than one center play.

Frosh Gridmen Use Vol Plays and Passes

A well-drilled freshman eleven invaded Emerson field yesterday afternoon and displayed a bag full of Tennessee tricks to a bewildered varsity second team.

The defense against passes and complex ground plays of the Vols was very weak and time and again the frosh executed the Tennessee plays with great success. .

The yearlings covered the length of the field using Vol spinners and occasional passes.

Varsity Footballers Work Hard But Fail To Click As Expected

First String Is Unimpressive On Offense; Frosh to Try Vol Plays on Varsity Today.

LIGHT WORK FOR BARCLAY

Coach Carl Snavely's football proteges labored until almost nightfall in an unimpressive workout at Emerson field yesterday.

The varsity offense failed to click consistently when placed against a defensive team composed of third string players. Dick Buck, varsity end, caught several long passes thrown by Dashiell, but outside of that the varsity offense was decidedly off form.

Kanner Leads Reserves

Big Murray Kanner, who played the roving center position on the defensive team, was the mainstay in breaking up the varsity's threats. Several times the big center stopped varsity charges through the line for no gain.

The first string line seemed to have trouble in opening holes for the varsity backs. Hutchins and Shaffer did most of the ball carrying, but were inconsistent in gaining yardage through the line. Hutchins and Dashiell took turns at passing.

Captain Barclay refrained from heavy practice in order to give his sore knee a rest. McIver occupied his post at guard with the first team.

Coaches Fetzer and Skidmore tutored a freshman team in executing Tennessee plays against the second string varsity. They will probably run these plays against the first team in today's workout.

MURAL TAG GRID OPENS TOMORROW WITH FIVE GAMES

Managers Hold Meeting to Fix Schedule; Four Dorm Games, One Frat, Open Year.

THIRTY-SEVEN ENTERED

An important meeting of the managers of the intramural tag football teams took place Tuesday evening at the Emerson stadium office, and plans for this year's season were rounded into the final stages, ready for the opening games tomorrow afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

Thirty-seven teams made entries, two less than the 1933 roll. Each will participate in seven contests, with the winners of the two leagues meeting for the campus championship at the completion of league play.

Managers Discuss Rules

The managers discussed the new rulings and also drew schedule numbers. The schedule will appear throughout the season in the DAILY TAR HEEL, and will also be posted at several other locations.

Friday's opening contests are as follows:

The query for the debate is: Resolved, that a strong Trade Union organization on a national basis is an essential of civilized society.

Debaters

Michael Foot and John Stafford Cripps will represent Oxford. Foot is the son of Isaac Foot, M. P., Minister of Mines in 1931. He is president of the Oxford University Liberal club and was president of the Oxford Union in 1933.

Cripps is the son of Sir Stafford Cripps, Solicitor-General in 1930-31. He is chairman of the Oxford University Labor club and was secretary of the Oxford Union in 1933.

fifth, making four runs and enough so that Crowder was the losing hurler.

Crowder left the game for a pinch hitter after five innings and "Firpo" Marberry took up the duties in the box, but not for long. Jerome "Dizzy," himself, greeted the veteran with a long double and scored on Pepper Martin's single.

Marberry bore down for a couple of men, getting Rothrock on a sacrifice bunt and Manager Frisch on a pop-up, but then Medwick and Rip Collins cracked out singles in a row, enough to score Martin and send Marberry to the showers.

"Chief" Hoggsett, baseball's star Indian, hurled the rest of the way for the losers. Bill Delancey, a North Carolina boy, greeted the new pitcher with a double, which counted both Medwick and Collins. After that Hoggsett held the winners in check the rest of the way.

Marvin Owen, Tiger third baseman, turned in the best play of the afternoon when he raced far into foul territory to catch Frisch's pop-up. The entire Detroit outfield also performed well, Goose Goslin making two feature catches and Jo-Jo White turning in six putouts.

Manager Frisch led the defensive play of the winners when he got four assists and a couple of putouts at second.. Bill Delancey also played a heads-up game behind the plate for St. Louis, besides knocking in three markers.

At bat, besides Medwick and Delancey, Rothrock drove in two runs with a couple of singles in four times up, while Orsatti also had two for four. Each of the big three on Detroit, Gehringer, Greenberg, and Goslin had two for four and each drove in a lone tally.

Torchlight Parade To Precede Pep Rally At Emerson Tonight

Torches to Be Sold In Dormitory Stores

Procession to Commence from Cameron Fraternity Court At 7:15 O'clock.

A gigantic pep rally will be held tonight in Emerson field at 8:00 o'clock in preparation for tomorrow's game with Tennessee, it was announced yesterday by Frank Willingham as a result of the University club meeting last night.

A torch light parade starting at 7:15 o'clock from Cameron Fraternity court will be staged before the rally in Emerson field.

Parade Route

The parade will proceed down Cameron avenue, past Swain hall and the Old Well to Emerson field where the torches will be laid on a bonfire. Music will be played by the University band, and Rameses III will lead the procession.

Torches will be on sale for ten cents at the Old Well, the dormitory stores, and fraternity court.

In case of rain the rally will be held in Memorial hall, Willingham stated.

At the University club meeting last night plans were also discussed for Homecoming Day and for obtaining colored cards for the use of the Cheerios at the game tomorrow.

Primitive Spirituals In "Green Pastures"

Marc Connelly Weaves Songs Found in Bayou Section of Old South Into Drama.

Negro spirituals that seem to belong to the primitive religious rites of deepest Africa, may be heard in a few isolated bayou districts of the old south, but to the more civilized America they are unknown.

Marc Connelly, while visiting Roark Bradford, the author of "Ol' Man Adam and his Chillun," visited these remote bayou areas, and wove some of these unusual spirituals into the "Green Pastures."

Much of the dramatic effect of the "Green Pastures" is obtained from the Heavenly Choir's singing of Negro spirituals. Hall Johnson's famed choir has added something unique to the development of the American theatre.

Exalt the Blind

One drama critic asserts that the music in the play "is so lovely and so poignant in devout praise and sad yearning that even the blind can be exalted by a trip to the 'Green Pastures'."

There is one scene which, during the four year run of the play, received the greatest acclaim. It is the scene in which Moses, having led the children of Israel through the desert for forty years, is dying of old age as the very end of the journey is reached. The shouts of the Hebrews at Jericho can be heard as "de Lawd" leads the aged Moses up to Heaven, and the Heavenly Choir sings "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho."

Weaver Made Instructor

W. R. Weaver has been promoted from Spanish teaching fellow to instructor, taking Dr. A. K. Shields' place in this department of the University.

RADIO BROADCAST

Due to an error at the broadcasting station yesterday, the radio program sponsored by the University club will take place over station WDNC in Durham this afternoon from 5:45 until 6:15 o'clock instead.

BERNSTEIN GIVES TALK ON MONEY

State Professor Advocates Managed Money in Address at Year's First Seminar.

Dr. E. M. Bernstein, of State College, spoke on the subject, "The Role of Money in Economic Progress" at the opening meeting of the economics seminar Wednesday evening. This meeting is the first of a weekly series of seminars planned to last through December 12.

"Those economists and business men who oppose a managed currency and advocate reliance on an automatic gold standard in the interest of historical continuity have misread the monetary history" declared Dr. Bernstein.

Managed Money Practical

"Managed money antidotes the gold standard. Moreover, the gold standard as it has been employed in the past by leading European nations and the United States has not been purely automatic. The use of bank credit and government currency along with metallic money has introduced an element of management substantial in degree and reasonably successful in execution," he continued.

In the light of historical experimentation, therefore, Dr. Bernstein advanced the view that a managed currency was a practical measure.

Spruill Next Speaker

In answer to the query, "If money is subject to effective management, towards what objectives should the policies be directed?" the speaker outlined the proposal that "Monetary authorities should control the media of investment and exchange to the end that the factors of production could be comfortably employed through time and the area of price and business fluctuations be as narrowly restricted as a complex economic machine would permit."

Following the presentation of the proposal advanced by Dr. Bernstein a protracted and vigorous discussion materialized. The seminar next Wednesday will be conducted by Dr. Spruill of the economics department.

FORMER EDITOR SURE HEELS WILL WIN NEXT

"Bet my last shirt on Heels against Tennessee," wired Claiborn ("Benny") Carr, last year's editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL, to the present editor yesterday.

Carr, who was also one of the founders of the University club, is now attending Harvard business school.

"What is wrong with you and King Lear," he upbraids the editor. "Get Chief Putrescence (Jimmy) Morris to put my name on subscription list and send my child to me. Lonesome for the baby. Regards to entire staff and poor printers."

HEAD OF COUNCIL TELLS YEARLINGS ABOUT PLEDGING

No Student Holding Scholarship, Loan, or Self-Help Job Will Be Allowed to Pledge.

DISTRIBUTE BIDS MONDAY

Harold Bennett, president of the Interfraternity council, explained the process of fraternity pledging yesterday in freshman chapel.

He said that each boy who receives an invitation to join a fraternity will receive a lettter from the dean of students Sunday saying to come to Memorial hall Monday at 2:00 o'clock. This letter will not say how many or which fraternities have sent the addressee invitations.

One Dollar Pledge Fee

After paying the one dollar pledge fee, the boy will take a seat in the auditorium on the right or left of the center isle, facing the stage, according to his last name. All whose names begin with a letter between A and M will sit on the right; all between N and Z, on the left.

Having written his first three choices of fraternities on a blank supplied him for the purpose and having handed it in at the desk when called upon, each boy will be pledged to the fraternity of highest choice from which he has received an invitation. The pledger then will go silently to this fraternity.

Anyone having a 2:00 o'clock class should attend it, for the pledging committee will operate until 6:00 o'clock.

In order not to interfere with football practice, the committee will allow members of the football squad to pledge first.

Every one holding a scholarship, loan, or self-help job connected with the University is prohibited from joining a fraternity.

Dean Bradshaw explained that since rushing rules are in force only until 6:00 o'clock Monday, communication between fraternity and non-fraternity men and even pledging will be permissible after that time.

FOLEY QUESTIONS PREP SCHOOL BOY AS NEW WITNESS

October 11 Set as Date for Hauptmann Trial on Extortion by Action of Judge.

LITTLE NEW INFORMATION

New York, Oct. 4.—(UP)—District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx today questioned Ben Lupica, a student of a prep school near Hopewell at the time of the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Lupica was reported to have seen Hauptmann near Hopewell about the time of the kidnaping.

Meanwhile Assistant District Attorney Breslin questioned a number of persons including J. A. Burgin, florist; Henry Uhlig, Hauptmann's pal; and Hans Mueller, Hauptmann's nephew.

Little new information has been obtained.

The grand jury will be assembled sometime before Thursday, according to Prosecutor A. M. Hauck.

Suspect Had Maps

Importance is attached to the fact that Hauptmann possessed road maps of the Sourland Mountain region, Hunterdon county, N. J., near the Lindbergh home and had an intimate knowledge of the roads.

Five psychiatrists who examined Hauptmann yesterday will continue their examination tomorrow.

The psychiatric tests have been conducted behind closed doors in the office of District Attorney Foley. Two of the experts represent the state of New Jersey, two represent District Attorney Foley, and the fifth is the representative of the defense counsel.

New Jersey has sent representatives to the examinations in preparation for trial for actual kidnaping and murder charges with which Hauptmann will be confronted there.

The date of the trial in the Bronx on extortion has been definitely set for October 11, by the action of Judge James M. Barrett.

THREE STUDENTS TO LEAD FORUM

Phillips Russell Announces Methodist Student Meeting.

Three University students will talk at the Methodist church student forum Sunday night at 7:00 o'clock on "Christianity Looks at Progress," it was announced yesterday by R. Phillips Russell, president of the organization.

Maurice Winstead, Guy Phillips, and Melvin Gillie will speak briefly, and following their remarks a discussion will be held among the members. Margaret Howard will preside.

Music for the occasion will be rendered by the "Sunset Four," a quartet which has been broadcasting regularly over the radio.

Last Sunday Harold D. Meyer addressed the organization, and plans were made for a party which will be held at the University lake next Friday.

No Sophomore Assembly

Jack Pool will address the freshmen in assembly today at 10:30 o'clock. The sophomores, who have been told to be at the assembly, will not be required to attend.

Student Council Retracts Former Plans For "Buc"

NAME AND POLICY WILL BE CHANGED

Council Advises P. U. Board to Allocate Any Part of Publication Fees to Magazine.

Wiping its slate clean of all former action about the Buccaneer, the student council decided last night to rescind its provision for a new comic magazine.

Instead, the name and policy of the Carolina Buccaneer will be changed, said the minutes of the judicial body. "The student council recommends to the P. U. Board," as a further provision in the minutes, "that it allocate any part of the regular $2 publication fee that it sees fit to the revised humor magazine."

Reason

Provision for a "revised" Buccaneer instead of a "new" comic came about as a result of the collection of the publication fee for the Buccaneer this quarter. Since, as the council remarked, "fees cannot be changed or abolished without being put to a vote of the student body," no new magazine could be set up. It would have been without publication fees support, since those that were collected were collected for the express purpose of maintaining the Buccaneer.

Since the P. U. Board refused

Worker For Peace To Give Talk Today

Mrs. Sherman Barnes, Former Student, to Speak in Gerrard Hall at 4:30 O'clock.

Mrs. Sherman Barnes, representative of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, will speak here this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall under the auspices of the Foreign policy league.

A former student of the University, Mrs. Barnes is speaking here in connection with a tour of the south that she is making in the interests of peace legislation in the United States, and eventually world peace.

Issues Statement

Upon her arrival in Chapel Hill yesterday, Mrs. Barnes issued a statement of the reasons for interesting the south in peace legislation. "The south should lead the country in peace legislation," she said, "because it is not controlled by the corrupt munitions rings found in the north.

"Of the $129,000,000 of public works funds spent on the navy during the last fiscal year, not one cent went to southern workers. It is foolish for southern senators to support measures which benefit no one in the states which they represent," she continued.

Mrs. Barnes went on to give facts on armaments and the control of war propaganda through the press and the movies.

The meeting is being endorsed by various professors, their wives, townspeople, and the ministers of the different churches in Chapel Hill.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend this lecture.

LAW SCHOOL RECEPTION TO TAKE PLACE TONIGHT

The annual law school reception will be held at Graham Memorial tonight at 8:00 o'clock.

Faculty members and their wives will be present, and all law school students are urged to attend and bring girls. There will be dancing, and through the courtesy of E. Carrington Smith there will be a free movie.

Students who wish to play bridge instead of dancing are requested to let Miss Evens know as soon as possible.

INDUSTRY MOVES FOR VOICE IN NRA

Industrialists Answer Questionnaire Covering Every Phase Of Activity of Program.

Washington, Oct. 4.—(UP)—Industry made a definite move tonight to make its voice heard in plans for the future NRA setup.

The National Association of Manufacturers asked thousands of industrialists to answer 12 questions outlining their opinions concerning the future relations of the government to industry.

Every Phase Touched

These questions touch every phase of NRA activity and range from whether the act should be allowed to die peacefully next June or whether the states shouldn't be encouraged to enact legislation to permit general or sympathetic strikes.

From the replies received, industry will determine the stand which it will take when the new NRA legislation now in the state of preparation is sent to congress.

Meanwhile Donald J. Richberg, director of the new National Recovery board, in addressing a National Press club luncheon, demanded the return of "old time" business competition.

He blamed extremists in industry and labor for the disputes which have raged about the section of the recovery act which gives labor the right of collective bargaining.

Extension Assistant

Roy Armstrong, of the class of '26, field representative of the student survey office, is assisting the extension division in organizing extension and correspondence classes over the state, according to R. M. Grumman, extension director.

PARAGRAPHICS

Pledging freshmen is like getting the aid of porters in a railroad station: you give 'em the grip and they share your quarters.

According to movie magazines, Hollywood is going to screen "David Copperfield." The dickens, we say.

This is the University club broadcasting a bunch of speeches. Are you listenin'?

Purely Financial.

"Purely financial" was the reason given by Dr. A. K. Shields, instructor in the Spanish department, for his leaving the University to accept a position with a New York publishing house. "Purely financial," he said.

But in that phrase lies a good deal more than Mr. Shields, who was one of the most popular instructors in the faculty, cared to say. His own sense of propriety forbade him to come any closer to the truth. The DAILY TAR HEEL, however, rather thinks that Mr. Shields, when not speaking for publication, would have remarked instead: "I'm leaving because teaching is not a paying profession at this University. I'm leaving because the state cut what salary I was getting 30 per cent in the six years that I have been here. I'm leaving because private enterprise apparently values my services more highly than the state of North Carolina."

There is no more terrific indictment of those who are either foes of education or diffident as to its importance than the loss of one single teacher from North Carolina institutions for this reason.

Can the blame be fixed on any one for this sort of occurrence? It certainly is not the University administration's fault; the state, we know, has been hard pressed financially. Yet the same kind of exodus from the teaching profession will continue to go on; as long as book publishers pay more for Ph.D.'s than the state and as long as cotton mill labor is worth more than public school teachers, the quality of North Carolina's life and citizens will suffer. The state, however, must find means to prevent this, and the first step toward it is the increased appropriations that President Graham asked for before the advisory budget commission last week.

The solution and the problem are, as Mr. Shields stated it, "purely financial."

Crusading And Otherwise.

Our mention of Duke University students' absurd, faculty-enforced class meetings and sundry observations from time to time in these columns on the revolution, so-called, of last spring, might leave us open to the charge of crusading in behalf of a neighboring institution, than which nothing is more remote from The DAILY TAR HEEL's policies. Duke business is their own, even if it is little more than a hangnail to the suppressive thumb of Dean Wanamaker, et al.

What does strike us as irreconcilable in the part that the "Chronicle" has taken in the battle for more student rights concerns a notice we observed in the paper reminding all freshmen to wear their caps. If upperclassmen insist on restricting the liberties of new men in such a petty way—well, it looks to us like an open-and-shut case of quid pro quo.

Apples That Are Rotten.

Reports are fairly general that on this campus, where school spirit is supposed to be a traditional entity taken for granted, there are as many "takers" on the Tennessee end of the betting game as there are staunch North Carolinians placing their last shirt on the Tar Heels.

Now it's all very well to invest a little of that spending money where it might do the most good, but when it comes to betting against your Alma Mater, it is treason pure and simple. We're speechless. To think that with all the efforts of the University Club and other agencies so intensely and unselfishly trying to sustain the morale of a great football team with a schedule as that facing the Tar Heels, there are students low enough to place the filthy lucre on the opposition is so outrageous that it becomes positively disgusting.

If the "sports" think more of a couple of dollars won than the school which they are supposed to revere, let them continue the dirty practice. But if Rameses III ever catches one of them with Tennessee money in his pocket, it's going to be just too bad.

Riding The Billows.

It's not so pleasant to read reports that T. O. M. Sopwith sailed for England the other day with a decidedly bad taste in his mouth about the whole America's cup series. Mr. Sopwith brought his trim sloop Endeavor all the way across the broad Atlantic to engage in what the Britons calls a little "fascinating sport" and left with "mixed emotions," somewhat upset about what he intimated were pure rule violations.

The double protest of the last race will probably never be fully explained, as Sopwith withdrew his and Vanderbilt's was never investigated. But we must admit that the action of the New York Yacht club committee of disregarding the Briton's protest in the third because they averred he was tardy in "hoisting his protest flag" was not exactly palatable. It is to be sincerely hoped that the whole situation clears up, because the way things stand at present, it is not probably that England will be represented on this side for the famous old trophy for a long time if Americans don't put the race on the sporting and not the semi-professional basis.

Shining Sophomores.

We hear that sophomore social orders aren't doing well by their members this year, or else the members aren't doing well by the orders. At any rate, it seems that several of the inflicted neophytes are pulling out and letting the coo-coos and the praisers and the missing links shine for themselves.

Whoever started the orders in the first place must have had a reason, but it has turned out that P. T. Barnum's somewhat questionable advice of "All publicity is good publicity" is about the only thing left upon which the shiners can base their organization.

Unless the orders find for themselves a function and stop perpetuating their numbers just to get even with the next bunch, it looks like the shiners will vanish from our midst. Which, of course, is all too bad.

Consolidation And Efficiency.

"It is inevitable that the consolidated engineering school of the new Greater University will be established here where, in economy and common sense, it properly belongs." Thus spoke Jonathan Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, at the Founder's Day address at the Raleigh unit of the University.

No question of personnel was involved in Mr. Daniels' address. He, as a progressive and alert North Carolinian interested in state education, expressed his opinion that the Raleigh unit offers a complete technical instruction under supervision that undoubtedly is capable; at the Chapel Hill unit, on the other hand, the state expects more educational instruction in all the phases of education which fall under the proper concept of the institution of learning and liberal arts.

Despite the rumors which have drifted to this campus regarding State's domination by several industrial concerns of this country utilizing the school as a training field for their interests, we still feel that a complete transfer of our engineering division to the Raleigh unit would be advisable. Our capable faculty should make its shift accordingly and the Greater University would embrace divisions of clear-cut distinction in its educational layout.

The consolidation of the school at the Raleigh unit would not mean that the state would not avail itself of the best instructors wherever they are located. But it is logical to presume that having the engineering division of the Greater University in one branch would offer a much more efficient arrangement.

Strudwick As Mountaineer Makes Hit In "Tight Britches"

Former University Student and Member of Carolina Playmakers Achieves Fame in Presentation Which Played on Broadway Last Month After Successful Trial in Baltimore.

Sheppard Strudwick, the Hillsboro boy who rose to renown with the Carolina Playmakers, crashed the New York Theatre guild within five years after graduation, and who achieved fame as the only honest Congressman in Maxwell Anderson's "Both Your Houses," has scored again.. This time it is as the mountaineer in John Taintor Foote's "Tight Britches."

This play, which opened on Broadway September 12, had previously been seen by Baltimore audiences in a trial run of one week. A member of the DAILY TAR HEEL staff, backstage after the show, was able to chat for a few moments with Strudwick, who confessed that, ever since his days as a Playmaker, it had been his ambition to play on Broadway a character drawn from the hills of his native state.

In view of this fact, it is interesting to note that, in a current issue of the New York Times, J. Brooks Atkinson criticizes the performance of this distinguished alumnus in a most surprising manner. "Mr. Strudwick," he says, "is too much the actor of sophistication ever to succeed in playing the rustic bumpkin."

The career of Sheppard Strudwick has been much like an episode from a novel. It parallels that of Katherine Cornell, in that, after having played minor roles on Broadway for several years, he was engaged as an understudy to the actor who was playing the lead role, with seemingly no chance at the coveted part. In each case, an illness on the part of the star has given the younger player a chance to prove his worth, with the result that each is now definitely established on Broadway.

The triumph of Strudwick as Alan McClean in "Both Your Houses" was immediate and complete. Metropolitan critics divided their praise between the new play and the new actor who had suddenly appeared as steller material.

When Sheppard Strudwick attended the University, his career was marked by versatility and diversity of interests. A Phi Beta Kappa student, he was at the same time actively engaged in Playmaking during all four years of his college career. He participated in a great number of plays and tours. A statement made by Professor Koch at the time of his first Broadway success is worth repeating.

"He is one of three graduates in the last fifteen years," said Koch, "who showed talents while a student here that would warrant their playing juvenile leads as professionals." A juvenile lead is played by that person who is usually thought of as the "hero" of the piece.

Although he took his acting seriously enough while on the stage, Strudwick, like most capable actors, was not a poseur in any sense of the word, and, according to Miss Mary Dirnberger, formerly of the Bull's Head, did not "inflict it on the other people" by acting off the stage as well as on. A little shy, a little reserved, according to those who knew him here, he was nevertheless well liked by his fellow students.

Coming to the University from Hillsboro, where his parents still live, Strudwick entered the University in the fall of 1925. Although he received his A.B. degree in the summer school of 1928, he still considers himself a member of the class of 1929.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that the play which served as the vehicle of Strudwick's stardom was written by Maxwell Anderson, a former associate of Professor Koch, who was a member of a dramatic organization founded by the latter while at the University of North Dakota.

to appoint members of the censor board at its last meeting, the council created a new censor board, composed of one member from the student council and two from the student body at large.

Recommendation was made to the P. U. Board that a small fee be paid to each member for his services.

A rap at the administration and at the P. U. Board was evident in the hint in the council's minutes that "the P. U. Board and the administration had not co-operated with it in its action about the Buccaneer."

Editor Pat Gaskins was to be held personally responsible for all contents of the magazine under penalty of suspension from school, and, said the minutes, no copy was to be published that met with the disapproval of any one member of the censor board.

Tigers Rally Behind Rowe To Win In 12 Frames, 3-2

'Schoolboy' in Fine Form As World Series Is Evened at 1-All.

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 4.—Putting on a characteristic brilliant rally in the ninth frame to tie the count and then going on to score again in the twelfth on Goose Goslin's single, Detroit deadlocked the World Series at 1-all by whipping St. Louis here today, 3-2, in one of the most thrilling championship games ever played.

The mighty Lynnwood "Schoolboy" Rowe was on the mound for the winners and his great performance surpassed anything seen so far in the series.

Rowe got off to a shaky start, spotting the Cardinals to their two runs and six of their seven hits during the first three innings. But from then on the "Schoolboy" probably turned in the finest box work ever witnessed in a World Series.

22 In A Row

The next 22 men for St. Louis were retired in order. Pepper Martin managed to get a double in the eleventh but then Rowe finished the game by retiring the next five men without a blow.

The Tiger ace allowed not a walk and retired seven men on strikes, three of them coming in the final two frames.

The Detroit defense was far different from that of yesterday and had a perfect record, besides making one, two, or even three, spectacular plays in every inning. The outfield, especially, robbed the Cardinals of hits by mighty efforts, while the veteran Charlie Gehringer at second had six assists and three putouts.

Hallahan Pitches

Wild Bill Hallahan, left hander, started on the mound for St. Louis and also pitched excellent ball, giving up six hits. He was taken out in the ninth frame after allowing the Tigers to tie the score at 2-2.

Bill Walker, another portsider, finished the contest for the Cardinals and although he allowed only one single, two walks cost him the ball game. Hallahan struck out six and Walker two.

St. Louis scored both their runs before the winners got underway. In the third Bill Delancey, catcher, and a North Carolina boy, got a single after one was out and Ernie Orsatti brought him in with the longest safe hit of the afternoon, a triple down the left field line.

Medwick Drives One In

Pepper Martin led off with a single the very next inning, went to second on Rothrock's sacrifice bunt, and counted on Medwick's one base blow after two were out.

Detroit scored its first tally in the fourth on doubles by Billy Rogell and Pete Fox. It was this same Fox that crossed the plate in the ninth.

Going into the supposedly final frame, trailing one run, Fox led off with a single. The mighty Rowe, who fanned in his other four times at bat, this time was able to lay down a neat bunt advancing Fox a base.

Then Manager Mickey Cochrane sent Gerry Walker in to bat for Jo-Jo White, great star in centerfield. Although he fanned to end yesterday's game, this time Walker came through with a bingle to count Fox.

The tilt moved along on even terms until the last of the real final inning. Lefty Walker got Manager Cochrane, short to first, but then walked Gehringer and Hank Greenberg in succession. Here probably the

Metzenthins to Entertain

Dr. and Mrs. Metzenthin will give a reception for Lutheran students at their home, 402 Hillsboro road, this evening at 8:00 o'clock. Refreshments will be served and entertainment provided.

WATCH HIS PASSES

Pug Vaughan who is one of the many aces who will perform in Tennessee's backfield when the Tar Heels and Vols meet in Kenan stadium here tomorrow. Vaughan, who incidentally has a mop of blond hair, is an excellent passer and the Carolina backfield will need to knock down plenty of accurate heaves if it expects to stop the Tennessee attack.

TAG GRID SEASON WILL OPEN HERE THIS AFTERNOON

Starts at 4:00 O'clock with Lawyers vs. Old West and Swain Hall vs. New Dorms.

The intramural season is scheduled to get underway this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock when Law School faces Old West and Swain Hall meets New Dorms in tag football.

The tag football season will be run as usual with dormitory and fraternity leagues. The teams with the highest average in each loop at the end of the regular season will meet in a battle to decide the campus champion.

The intramural department will also stage a cake race this quarter and probably tournaments for wrestlers and boxers.

Last year after a close race Mangum and Beta Theta Pi came out ahead in the dormitory and frat leagues respectively. Mangum whipped the Betas in the play-off contest for the title.

Tag Grid Schedule

4:00 O'clock

1. Law School vs. Old West.
2. Swain Hall vs. New Dorms.

5:00 O'clock

Carolina Gridsters Work Hard For Tilt With Vols

World Series Shorts

It looks like a real series now with either team likely to win or lose. After using their stars and dark horses in the opening two battles both Manager Cochrane, of Detroit, and Manager Frisch, of St. Louis, will probably start their number 2 men in today's battle, the third. That means that Tommy Bridges will be on the mound for the Tigers and Paul Dean, lesser member of the famous brothers, will try his luck in the box for the National league winners. The contest will be the first at the Cardinal park and will start at 2:30 o'clock (EST).

Yesterday's twelve inning battle was the longest World Series game since 1924. It was played before an overflowing crowd of 43,451, many more being turned away. Incidently the tilt probably had more sparkling catches in the outfield than any game for quite a while. Jo-Jo White did plenty of sprinting around centerfield for Detroit and got four more putouts, bringing his total in the two contests to 10. Rothrock did the best work in the St. Louis outer garden when he caught what looked like a sure home run off the bat of Greenberg in the tenth.

"Schoolboy" Rowe's remarkable pitching somewhat dampened "Ducky" Medwick's chances of passing the series record for hits. Medwick was able to connect only one time bringing his total up to five, just eight short of the record.

Tar Heels Take Lengthy Defensive Workout Against Frosh.

With only one more workout before the crucial test with Tennessee tomorrow, Coach Snavely's pigskin artists worked very hard and long in yesterday's practice session on Emerson field.

The practice started with the first and second teams alternating at returning the ball from kickoff. With Shaffer, Hutchins, and Dashiell doing the ball toting, the first team looked impressive in returning the kicks.

However, the second team offense looked rather ragged. They found difficulty in getting hold of the long placements from the end of Jim Tatum's toe.

Place Kicks Good

With a second string line rushing them, Babe Daniel and Jim Tatum took turns at practicing extra point placements. The oval floated between the upright posts with ease and accuracy.

The first team displayed brilliant defensive form in smashing Tennessee plays that were being executed by the freshmen. These plays consisted chiefly of a lateral pass, a pass in the flat zone, and a fake spinner.

Coach Snavely seemed pleased with the defensive work of his first team; however, he warned them not to get too confident as Tennessee is a different club from the Tar Babies.

Tar Heels Capture Titles In Collegiate Net Tourney

Levitan and Harris Win Doubles; Levitan Is Singles Winner.

White Sulphur Springs, Oct. 4.—Carolina once more ruled on the collegiate tennis courts as Harvey Harris and Walter Levitan, Tar Heel stars, swept both championships of the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate tournament here today.

By winning the doubles title before a large crowd, the Tar Heels annexed the famous Greenbrier Bowl. Captain Levitan downed his partner, Harris, for the singles crown.

Carolina won the doubles championship in the finals from Barclay and Rahmann, Virginia team, 6-4, 2-6, 6-0, 4-6, 6-0, but only after a hard fight which produced several fine plays on the part of both outfits.

Fast Sets

After playing on even terms the first couple of sets the Tar Heels cut loose with lots of stuff to take the third without losing a game. However, the Cavaliers came back to take a hard fourth set, 6-4, and tie things up. Then the winners turned on the steam once more and took the last set to by a love margin.

In the singles final neither one of the Carolina boys extended himself in an effort to win. Levitan took the match in straight sets, 7-5, 6-3.

Both of the Carolina stars had match point against them in the semi-finals of the singles tourney. Harris downed Barclay of Virginia, 4-6, 9-7, 6-2, while Levitan won over Madden, 6-2, 2-6, 8-6.

The weather was fine and the courts in excellent condition. Fourteen schools were entered in the tournament.

VOLS WILL BRING VERSATILE BACKS

Coach Neyland Reported to Have Crew of Backs Who Can Do Anything with Football.

Major Bob Neyland, the ex-Army end and pilot of the invading Vols, is reported to have an arsenal that includes every weapon known to football and a crew of backfield gunners who can do anything that can be done with a pigskin.

Pug Vaughan, Toby Palmer, Henry Krouse, Freddie Moses, Phil Dickens, Dick Dorsey, and Johnny Paty are a few of the Vols' star ball carriers.

Paty is reported to be a jackrabbit back who runs in leaps and bounds like a deer and is about as hard to catch. He ran wild in the Centre game last week, gaining 61 yards in five tries.

Vaughan is also an expert passer and Palmer a skilled kicker, and Carolina scouts report that the Vols are equally dangerous whether they come on by ground or air.

With Don Jackson back in shape, the Tar Heels may put on a little aerial circus of their own. People who saw the Georgia Tech game last year are still talking about the brilliant passing Jackson did as the Tar Heels drove to one touchdown and barely missed another.

Carolina is looking to "Slippery Dick" Dashiell to match Krouse and Moses in the punt returning department. Dashiell got away for 65 yards once against Wake Forest, while Krouse ran the opening kick-off in the Centre game back for 92 yards.

REVIEW CARRIES GRIDIRON SECTION

Alumni News Organ Includes Story on Enrollment; Format Changed, Column Added.

The first issue of the Alumni Review for the year came out yesterday, carrying with it a football supplement covering the Wake Forest game.

The Review, of which J. Maryon Saunders, executive secretary of the alumni association, is the editor, has undergone a slight change in format and has a new column "Quarterbacking Alumni," to take the place of last year's column "From the Coaches' Bench."

The cover of the October number of the Review is decorated with an etching by William Steene, former Chapel Hill artist.

Feature Story

A large story of the opening of the University, including the increased enrollment, faculty changes, and coaching changes, is the feature of the news stories.

Alumni news is covered in full in the features "Here and There With Our Alumni" and "Keeping Up With the Classes."

According to the Review, 81 alumni have sons in the freshman class. There are 29 sons or daughters of alumni among the 280 transfers.

The number of out-of-state students, according to Review figures, has increased from 23.5 per cent of the total enrollment last year to 27.1 per cent this year.

Tigers Rally Behind Rowe For Victory In Twelve Frames, 3-2

"fightenest" Tiger in the bunch came up, Goose Goslin, and the Goose cracked a single to centerfield, ending the ball game.

Billy Rogell, Detroit shortstop, turned in the finest fielding play so far in the series when he dived along the ground to catch Delancey's liner during the seventh.

Goose Goslin, besides making several fine stabs, took the ball after Rip Collins had singled in the third and let loose a long straight heave to Cochrane to catch Ducky Medwick as he was attempting to score from second. Medwick toppled Cochrane as he slid in but the plucky manager held on to the ball.

Pete Fox was the leading hitter for the winners. The right fielder knocked in one run and scored another with his double and single in five times up. Goslin had two for six, while Martin was the only Cardinal to collect as many as two hits.

lar guard position in yesterday's workout. Don Jackson did not engage in heavy participation; however, he watched the plays from Dick Dashiell's halfback post.

Paul Pendergraft, substitute guard, is the lone casualty in the Tar Heel camp. He will probably be ready by tomorrow.

Coach Snavely is predicting a close game tomorrow. "Hunk" Anderson, N. C. State mentor who was in the press box during the Carolina-Wake Forest game last Saturday, gives the Tar Heels an edge in the contest with Tennessee. From over Greensboro way comes the phophecy of a Carolina victory proclaimed by Edward V. Mitchell, sports editor of the Greensboro Daily News.

ROOTERS STREAM FROM PEP RALLY TO PARADE TOWN

Ostrow's Cheerleaders Sweep Street Following Session In Memorial Hall.

CHEER TENNESSEE MEN

Hundreds of enthusiastic Tar Heel rooters almost turned a big University club cheer rally into a "cheer riot" last night when they swung into an unexpected parade through the streets of Chapel Hill following the pep celebration in Memorial hall.

Cheer Visitors

Led by Lester Ostrow, head cheerleader and his assistants, the mob swept on to the Carolina Inn and gave three rousing cheers for Coach Bob Neyland's Tennessee Volunteers who were resting there before the big game today with Carl Snavely's Tar Heels.

At Memorial hall, Dick Dashiell and Jim Hutchins, stellar sophomore backfielders, gave short talks to the group, and Seth Robinson was elected "Master of the Ram" by the students. But the real fireworks did not begin until after the organized meeting.

Are Confident

Feeling was prevalent the campus over last night that Carolina would come through in today's encounter. "Vault the Vols and Take the South" became the motto for loyal Tar Heel rooters.

A peppy telegram was read as a special feature of the Memorial hall gathering, from Claiborn "Benny" Carr, one of the University club founders and former editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL. Carr, who is now attending Harvard business school, wired that he was sure Carolina would take Tennessee over.

PEACE ADVOCATE CONDEMNS SOUTH FOR WAR FEELING

Mrs. Sherman Barnes Blames Senators for Supporting Munitions Legislation.

"SOUTH NOT BENEFITTED"

Discussing policies of armament firms over the world and presenting steps for peace, Mrs. Sherman Barnes, representative of the Woman's League for Peace and Freedom, spoke yesterday to a small group of townspeople and students.

Stating that it was foolish for southern senators to support legislation for building war materials, Mrs. Barnes said that "of the $129,000,000 of public works funds spent on the navy during the last fiscal year, not one cent went to southern workers."

Blames Munition Men

The speaker for the League for Peace told how representatives of United States armament firms were sent to disrupt disarmament conferences, spoke of their influence in preventing peace during during the World War, and their work in causing war scares today.

"The south should lead the country in peace legislation because this region is not controlled by armament firms and the press," the speaker said.

Mrs. Barnes stated that the United States had increased her appropriations for armaments since 1915 more than any other country in the world.

Stating that wars are always fought for enocomic gain, the peace representative said that

WEATHERS URGES BETTER CONDUCT AT PEP MEETINGS

Student President Commends Spirit Shown But Condemns Paper Throwing at Rally.

SPEAKERS WANT CHEERING

Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, spoke to freshmen on the subject of sportsmanship yesterday in assembly.

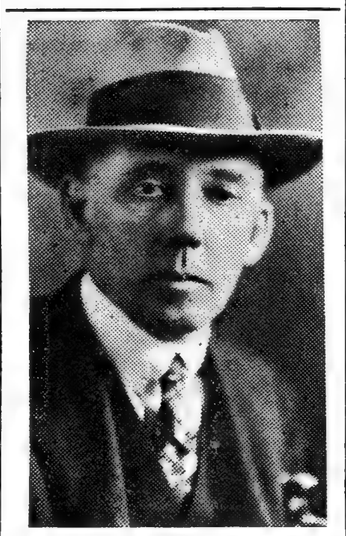
Jack Pool, introducing the speaker, said that Weathers would talk not as president of the student body but as one member of it speaking to other members.

"The pep meeting last Friday night was fine," said Weathers, "except for the paper throwing, which was really a poor way to show sportsmanship and which left the campus in a very unattractive condition for the game on Saturday.

Scores Paper Throwing

"I hope we shall have a good rally tonight, without the paper. I should like for the freshman class to accept the responsibility of seeing that no paper is thrown."

He said that it is better not to yell when the opposing team is being penalized, but to watch the cheerleaders and yell when they say to.



"Ignore the bad plays of the other team, but don't let up on cheering our good plays.

"Personally, I believe we shall beat Tennessee, although she has a strong team. Our team de-

Henderson To Write Articles On Obscure State Personages

Dr. Henderson

Dr. Archibald Henderson, who will come into public notice again with a series of newspaper articles on little-known characters of North Carolina.

Five State Papers to Carry Essays of Noted Mathematician And Literary Critic.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, of the University faculty, head of the mathematics department, official biographer of George Bernard Shaw, and famous for his versatility as a mathematician has again turned his talents to a little-known phase of his many-sided accomplishments. Five leading newspapers of North Carolina will next Sunday print the first of a series of fifty-two essays by him dealing with unfamiliar incidents and neglected figures of North Carolina history. The newspapers are: The Raleigh News and Observer, The Durham Herald, The Greensboro Daily News, The Winston-Salem Journal and the Charlotte Observer.

The first article deals with Colonel Nathaniel Rochester, a North Carolina patriot who left his home in Hillsboro after the War of the Revolution and went to Hagerstown, Maryland. From Maryland he went to New York State, bought a large tract of land and founded the city of Rochester. The recently completed one-month celebration of the centenary of the incorporation of Rochester as a city is the immediate occasion for this first article.

Other articles in the series prepared by Dr. Henderson include such subjects as the battles of Guilford Court House, King's Mountain and Gettysburg, the storming of Fort Fisher, the visit of President James Monroe to this state, Walter Hines Page as publicist and ambassador, the last confederate cabinet meeting, piracy on the North Carolina coast, and articles on George Washington, John Paul Jones and Daniel Boone and their relations with the Tar Heel state.

In 1926-27 Dr. Henderson published 42 successive articles

Football Games Here Require 214 Workers In Handling Of Crowd

Policemen, Student Fence and Field Guards, Pop Sellers, Etc., Kept on Duty.

It takes a total of 214 men and boys to handle the odds and ends of one football game.

The burly crowd that will pour into Kenan stadium this afternoon when Tennessee invades Tar Heel soil requires 12 state highway patrolmen to regulate traffic, 12 local and Durham policemen to guard the gates from would-be crashers. These latter cause 30 guards to be on duty along the wire fences surrounding the stadium.

Sixteen more are stationed in front of the stands to keep people off the grass behind the goal posts, and there are always four or five internal revenue agents on the lookout for possible evasion of the federal amusement tax.

Campus Statue Is Not Grant Or Davie, But N.C. Confederate

Military Figure Standing Before Graham Memorial Represents University Men Who Fought with Lee; of a Thousand Who Answered State's Call, Only Handful Returned.

Of the thousands of students who daily pass the monument on the north campus, there are few indeed who grasp its significance. Some people believe it to be Grant after the fall of Richmond. Others think it is a tribute to the paternal devotion of the fathers in rural sections of the state. Another interpretation is that it is General Davie looking for his horse.

In reality, however, the venerable pile, which was dedicated at the Commencement of 1912, is a memorial to the men of Carolina who fought under the Stars and Bars in the 'sixties. The University, during five years, sent more than a thousand men, students and faculty, to the colors. Of these, only a mere handful returned.

Significance

The commencement issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL for 1912 printed the following explanation of the significance of the monument:

"The north side, facing Franklin street, bears a bronze placque of a beautiful woman touching a youth on the shoulder who looks up at the interruption. This represents the state appealing to the student for aid. Books are falling from the youth's hands as he listens in evident agitation.

"The figure at the top represents the call answered. It is of a young man, clad in Confederate gray, gun in hand, soft felt hat pushed back from his forehead, enthusiasm written in every line of his countenance."

The statue was designed and executed by a Canadian sculptor, David MacKenzie. The expense was borne by chapters of the U. D. C. throughout the state.

The legend that a large amount of silver plate is hidden inside the statue, put there, so Chapel Hill tradition says, to keep it from falling into the hands of Sherman's men, is believed to be without foundation.

PARAGRAPHICS

The Student council has learned one lesson in this Buccaneer affair: even the best laid plans of student government go wrong summer the time.

Some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some get their names in the paper by being in the infirmary.

In case you're a cashier, you've just got to hand it to these bank robbers.

A Hard Lesson

When the Student council retracted its former plans for the bedraggled Buccaneer, it presented a remarkably interesting case to a curious student body.

In the first place, of course, the revocation seems to bring out strongly the fact that nobody knows exactly who runs this enviable system of student self-government. After abolishing the comic in the summer months and sticking to this decision while creating a new comic to take the place of the discarded magazine, the council suddenly realized that it hadn't the power to create a new publication because students themselves have the right to say where their publications fees go.

The fees, we understand, were collected through the business office against the order of an administrative head who, taking the council's summer action to mean definitely no comic magazine for this campus, advised the collectors that the Buccaneer's share should be deducted from the $2.00 fee. On top of this, the Student council comes out and recommends that the Publications Union board allot "part of the $2.00 fee that it sees fit" to the revised magazine.

The Publications Union board, as a matter of fact, has nothing to do with allocating student fees. Its functions revolve about carrying out the business end of the publications, routine matters into which Student council recommendations regarding fee allocation have no place.

The whole thing boils down to ignorance on the part of the Student council in this particular instance, ignorance not only of its own powers but of the powers of those student groups supposedly under its jurisdiction. If the new magazine gets financial support, it gets the fees originally meant for the old Buccaneer.

The excuse for rescinding their previous action was a technicality involving these fees. But it is evident that the poor council, criticisms raining upon it from all sides for its giddap-and-whoa series of actions and retractions, was playing the role of a scape-goat, its decisions being so bandied about to satisfy the letter of the law.

The amputation of a campus periodical involves more than the mere severance of it. A hard lesson, which we are weary of reciting, has been taught all parties concerned. Both the administration and the council will profit from it.

No Sour Drapes, Please

We see by those papers again that Princeton and Yale men set the fashions for this great American institution familiarly known as the campus. We certainly take off our hats (model No. 82736 Yale 1906, of course) to the boys of Uncle Eli and Old Nassau. It is mighty, mighty nice to have someone else design our garments so that all we have to do is to go down to one of the local price-war stores and lay down the check without even bothering to count the buttons on the sleeves.

Especially on this grand and glorious old southern outlay are we thankful for our industrious brothers who fix the cut of our coat-tails. When it rains we put on Princeton pants (style of 1925, not to be confused with later, baggier models) and Yale coat (of 1916 but what's the difference?) and slouch around gleefully. And when we get all dolled up, we hike up our Yale slacks and slide gracefully into our Princeton jacket and take the North Carolina woman to a Hollywood movie.

It's all too grand, this intercollegiate intimacy.

Education Ether Way

Hendrik Willem Van Loon, who told us more about geography in one book than we learned in a half-dozen prep school volumes, is all set to conduct the first "air university" in the history of education, which means, of course, in the history of the world because we are being constantly told that man's education rightfully began with Adam.

This "air university" idea, utilizing the 7-tuber downstairs, strikes us as being about the best thing we've heard in a long time. We can now sleep during the lecture, razzberry conveniently without apprehension, nod vigorously without getting a wad of paper in the neck for booting the professor, and do all manner of things educational.

There will be no Buccaneers to abolish, no student councils to get tangled up, no interfraternity councils to forget rules—in fact, there won't be anything except yourself and education, which pair when gotten together ought to result in twice the number of mental giants as are being produced under this antiquated system.

Cleanliness Is Next to . . .

The so-called Carolina gentleman is very much in evidence these days, especially down Graham Memorial ways. After he has spent a few hours reading the New Yorker and listening to the exploits on one "Schoolboy" Rowe, he often feels the urge to wash his hands and that's where the rub comes in.

Someone—or maybe he has a friend or two—has taken quite a fancy to the face towels in the men's rest room; such a fancy, in fact, that he (or they) has taken the trouble to disengage a few of them from the rack and cart them off. The handlers of the union are justly upset and in a heat about it all.

We don't think it imminent enough to hire a special "Face Towel Guarder Over" to patrol the men's quarters, but, being more or less a Carolina gentleman ourselves, we feel that such evils ought to be remedied. Of course, you can't lead the nag to water and make him quench his thirst so it doesn't look like you can make a gentleman leave the towels where they belong after he has wiped the dirt off his hands. And we all are gentlemen at Carolina.

Training for a Life Assurance

Intentions, announced by the extension division under R. M. Grumman, of local Red Cross officials to offer a first aid course as a part of the University curriculum are right in line with the recent progress made in the curriculum setups to prepare students for life.

When the number of people in the United States accidentally killed every year is twice the number of Americans killed in actual combat in the World War, the need to teach individuals what to do when accidents happen is clearly seen. Putting it gruesomely, there's no use educating our youth in preparation of life if 100,000 people are being sacrificed each year because of carelessness; the preparation, obviously, should include instructions in how to live before advice on what to do if you do live.

The majority of these 100,000 accidental deaths are considered to be due directly to gross ignorance of steps to take when accidents occur. We believe college courses setting forth these steps will prepare the youth of today so that the death and accident rates of tomorrow cannot claim so many sacrifices with ignorance as the cause.

Dropping That Ace Hint

Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, is athlete enough to realize that what the crowd on the sidelines has to do with the spirit at the games is really what determines lots of them, regardless of the physical prowess of the home team.

Yesterday morning he asked the freshmen for their co-operation in cheering at today's game and at the pep rallies. It's not only because this all-southern star advised it but also because it's essential if we would "Vault the Vols and Take the South" that we suggest you yell your fool heads off in Kenan this afternoon.

BRAINS IN BLOOM

You may or may not know that all students in engineering are required to take public speaking. One engineer we heard about got signed up for it this quarter, along with an unusually heavy schedule in his own department. So he went to the Dean, and explained that his course was too heavy, and asked permission to drop the public speaking.

"But you have to have it, you know," the Dean objected.

"I just can't take it this quarter, Dean. I've explained my position—too much other work."

The Dean lost himself in thought for a moment. Finally he said: "Well, why don't you take it by correspondence?"

NO FINESSE

Our nomination for the best of the slips that failed to pass in the night so far this year is the news story the new reporter turned in to the DAILY TAR HEEL desk which began: "Joe Sugarman, editor of the newly-christened Finjan . . . ." Everybody in the office that day thought it was pretty funny, everybody but Editor Sugarman, that is.

GREEN SHEEP IN GREEN PASTURES

And from the Washington Post comes this item about the freshmen at Princeton: "One of the freshmen declared he was born in 1931 . . . Another, when asked if he intended to work for a B.A. or a B.S. degree asked which was easier to get. And still another gave the number of his roommates as 211. It seems he had counted every freshman in the registration room." Which reminds us of one of our own freshmen who came on his matriculation card to the blank to be filled in by the degree he wanted. "Say," he demanded of an upperclassman in all innocence, "do you get a degree every year?"

SALESMANSHIP

One smart freshman we know of nearly got mobbed when he tried to peddle cigarettes to some of the boys who were bumming to Durham the other day. He walked up and down in front of them, a pack of cigarettes in each hand, repeating over and over again: "Get a lift with a Camel."

MORTICIAN DELUXE

A well-known-man-about-campus was ambling across Franklin street the other evening when a speeding automobile nearly got him. His escape was nothing short of miraculous. When he reached the curb he was feeling pretty shaky, and he couldn't understand why a man was standing there roaring with laugter. Finally the man managed to get his breath long enough to gasp; "Don't mind me laughing, feller. You see, I'm an undertaker." And he walked off howling with amusement.

Stacy And Young Dispute On Legal Group Bargaining

Chief Justice Denies Right of Informal Labor Organizations to Sign Contract.

A wide divergence of opinion was disclosed between Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy, head of the Federal relations board and Carolina alumnus, and Arthur H. Young, vice-president of the United States Steel corporation, when each spoke his mind Wednesday on what constitutes legal collective bargaining.

Justice Stacy questions the legal integrity of the plan, designed by Young for the vast U. S. Steel plants, which heretofore has functioned to the satisfaction of both employer and employes.

Labor Organization

Briefly, this plan is the organization of the workers on a large scale without the usual formal union ties. Justice Stacy holds that any such group lacks the legal right to sign a contract in any agreement between capital and organized labor.

The predictions of political analysists are that the result will be the formal unionization of the steel organizations.

Carolina Will Meet Real Test Against Strong Vols In Kenan This Afternoon

Major Neyland to Bring Another Tricky Club; Kickoff at 2:30.

Carolina	Pos.	Tennessee
Buck	l.e.	Pounders

Officials: Referee, Strupper (Georgia Tech); Umpire, Mumma (Army); Headlinesman, Black (Davidson); Field Judge, Darwin (Virginia).

Carolina's football team will meet its first real test of the 1934 season this afternoon when it battles Tennessee in Kenan stadium. The kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

The Tar Heels, who opened their season last Saturday with a fairly easy 21-0 victory over Wake Forest, will really have a chance to demonstrate what their new coach, Carl G. Snavely, and his modified Warner system has taught them, against the powerful Vols. Major Bob Neyland's boys also had no trouble getting an opening victory, when it rolled over Centre, 32-0.

Same Lineup to Start

Coach Snavely will start the same lineup which took the Deacons and will in addition have Don Jackson, passing halfback, and Gene Barwick, letter end, both on the bench last week with injuries, ready to go. Punchy Joyce, veteran guard, will also be in top condition for the contest.

Carolina's iron wall will likely have its hands full in stopping Coach Neyland's Army formation which features several clever lateral passes plus some fine power plays over the tackles.

Many Stars Back

The Vols have a long list of brilliant backs including Pug Vaughan, an expert passer, Toby Palmer, who punts both far and high, Henry Krouse, Freddie Moses, Phil Dickens, Dick Dorsey, and Johnny Paty, who are all shifty runners.

The Tar Heels will depend much on "Slippery Dick" Dashiell, sophomore back, and Manager Frisch will more than likely send Tex Carleton to the mound today to face either Al Crowder or Elton Auker. The "Dizzy" Dean will be ready for action today but may be saved for relief work or to start tomorrow's game in which he will hook up with "Schoolboy" Rowe.

Joey "Ducky" Medwick has secured the most hits, 6, and is tied with "Pepper" Martin for the most total bases. Martin, Gehringer, and Goslin have secured 5 hits each.

Rowe leads in times struck out for one game when he fanned four times in the second game. Medwick, Greenberg, and Owen have also whiffed four times each. The Detroit pitchers have been struck out seven times, while the Cards' moundsmen have only four whiffs against them.

* * *

Jo-Jo White has taken in 14 fly catches in the three games and Jack Rothrock has mothered 9. Both fielders have turned in remarkable fielding games.

FOOTBALL

FACTS AND GUESSES
By
Bill Anderson

Today Carolina will tackle one of the hardest football contingents on their 1934 schedule in the Volunteers.

Major Bob Neyland will make the trek to Chapel Hill for the last time in his coaching career. After Christmas, Neyland will report for active duty in the Canal Zone—orders of the U. S. War Department. During his score of years at Tennessee, Neyland's proteges won 69 games, dropped five, and tied five, establishing a most enviable record.

Last Saturday, the Vols beat the thunder out of one of the strongest teams Centre College has boasted since the great days of "Bo" McMillan & the "Praying Kentueky Colonels," 32-0 . . . (by the way Coach Walter Skidore played on the same great team with the immortal McMillan).

At any rate "Coach Bob" Fetzer, along with Coach Skidmore, scouted Tennessee and think the Vols have a potentially brilliant ball club. In fact, they were much impressed with the fine blocking, timing, and precision that the Vols worked against Centre. They believe that we are in for a hard game tomorrow. We believe that U. N. C. will be very much in the money tomorrow. Win or lose they will give the Vols seven fits!

Such will be our opposition, but speaking of opposition let's scan over the list of ball games, involving Dixie ball clubs.

Heading the list of great contests will be Vanderbilt-Georgia Tech game. We might be ready for a padded cell, but we pick Georgia Tech. Coach Bill Alexander's boys are hard to beat any time in Atlanta. Then, too, Coach Alex has this speed merchant, "Sun Dial" Martin, who is hard to stop in anybody's backyard.

How Martin got his nickname is another story, but we think it worth relaying. When he entered Tech, a green freshman from the mountains of South Carolina, Martin spent almost an hour trying vainly to get water from the horological campus ornament—thinking all the time it was a tricky gadget to give off water, one of the city slicker's drinking fountains!

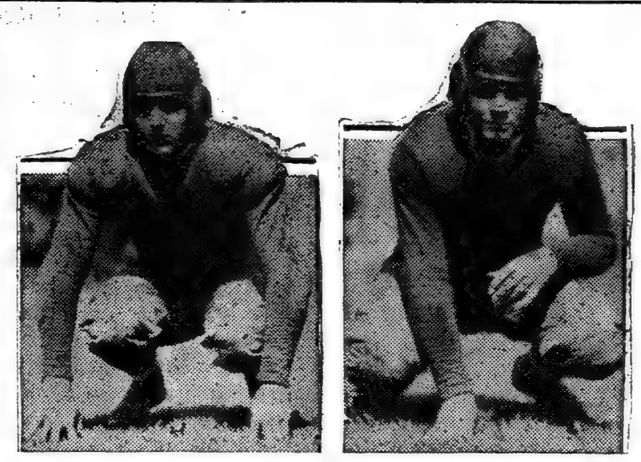
The intersectional contests: Kentucky over Cincinnati; Navy will find no trouble with Virginia; Notre Dame over Texas; Cornell over Richmond; Army over Davidson. The Purdue-Rice contest will be hard-fought one, but Purdue has one of the best backfields in the nation. We pick the Boilermakers.



Southern Conference: Duke over Clemson; W. & L. over Maryland; South Carolina over V. M. I.; N. C. State over Wake Forest; Florida over V. P. I.

Southeastern Conference: Alabama over Sewanee; Tulane over Auburn; Georgia over Furman; and L. S. U. over Southern Methodist.

LE CONTE RETURNS

Joseph Le Conte, formerly connected with the University, has returned to the chemistry department to carry on post-doctoral research on "quinolines" with Dr. A. S. Wheeler, acting head of this department.

THEY FLANK FOR "THE MAJOR"

These two hefties are two of Major Neyland's last edition of Tennessee Vols. By the shades of Andrew Jackson, these fellows and their teammates have sworn to make this year the best yet for their "Major Bob."

The pair of men above are the two regular ends for the Vols—Louis Pounders and Roy (Mighty Lika) Rose. Louis weighs 182 pounds and is one of the best pass-snaggers in Dixie. Rose is the heaviest wingman in the South with his 205 pounds.

Both flankmen are looking for a good day today, and these fellows who came from over that thar mountain will give the Tar Heels plenty of double-trouble.

VARSITY BOXERS TO START WORK

Only Four Lettermen Return to Scrap for Coach Rowe.

Coach Crayton Rowe said yesterday afternoon that he was having boxing equipment rigged up in the Tin Can and that he expected to issue a call sometime next week for candidates to report for fall workouts.

Announcement concerning the intramural boxing matches will be forthcoming shortly.

This year only four lettermen are returning around which to build the pugilistic team. These

FROSH GRIDSTERS GET INTO SHAPE

Coaches James and Fysal Work Yearlings Overtime Daily.

The Tar Baby footballers are working hard and overtime to get in condition for the fast and heavy Wake Forest yearling eleven which comes to the Hill next Friday.

Coaches George James and Ellis Fysal are gradually developing the togmen into a well-drilled squad, along the lines of the modified Warner system. Blocking is taking the biggest part in the drilling while the complex spinners and other Warner offensive tactics are being put into the yearlings' heads.

The best feature of the practices so far is the punting. Several men have the toe for long spirals which sail for forty and fifty yards. Practices on the aerial attacks have brought out some quite capable performers.

Cardinals Beat Detroit, 4-1, With Daffy Dean Twirling

Bengals Score in Ninth But Rally Cut Short; Martin Is Star.

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 5.—With "Pepper" Martin up to his old tricks and Paul "Daffy" Dean twirling superb ball in the pinches, the Cardinals of St. Louis turned in a thrilling 4-1 victory over the American league Detroit Tigers here today, to take a 2-1 lead in the World Series.

The Bengals attempted to put on one of their typical ninth inning spurts but it was all in vain. Hank Greenberg connected with one of "Daffy's" fast ones and sent it to the pailings for a three bagger scoring Jo-Jo White. But Mr. Greenberg died on third as the younger Dean settled down to force "Goose" Goslin, who knocked in the winning run yesterday, to pop up to Manager Frankie Frisch.

Paul Gets Hot

Paul today more than followed the pace which brother "Dizzy" set in the first game. "Daffy" scattered out eight hits over seven innings, but was in some real messes more than once. In the third and fourth innings the Bengals had three men on base only to see their scoring chances fade out of sight.

"Grammar Schoolboy" Paul was wild at times, walking five men, several times as diamond strategy, however.

Sharing honors in the minds of the hometown folk was peppy "Pepper" Martin, hero of that series back in 1931. He poled out a triple to open the

UNIVERSITY WILL MARK 141ST YEAR BY HALF HOLIDAY

Annual Founder's Day Celebration to Be Observed by Students and Faculty Friday.

CLASSES TO STOP 10:00-12:00

The University will celebrate its 141st anniversity Friday by the observation of Founder's Day.

The Founder's Day program is an annual affair at the University. It commemorates the laying of the cornerstone of the University.

The exercises this year will begin at 10:30 o'clock in Memorial hall.

The chapel hour will be used and necessary time in addition will be taken from 9:30 and 11:00 o'clock classes.

Signal Bell

The ringing of the University bell at 10:00 o'clock will be the signal for the stopping of 9:30 classes. 11:00 o'clock classes will be omitted.

The academic procession will form at South building at 10:10 o'clock with participants in cap and gown. The procession will be under the direction of faculty marshall, Dr. W. M. Dey.

The University band will begin to play at 10:10 o'clock in front of Memorial hall and will continue to play until the procession has passed into the hall.

Regular University work will be resumed at 12:00 o'clock.

four men are Capt. Sam Giddins, Marvin Ray, Jim Carruth and Ernie Eustler. Capt. Giddins boxes in the 155-pound class; Carruth in the heavyweight; Ray in the 175-pound class and Eustler in the 118-pound class.

Good Soph Material

However, last year's freshman team enjoyed a good season and is sending up some good material for Coach Rowe to work with. The yearlings last year lost only meet, that one to Duke by a 4½ to 3½ score. They won four meets and tied the one with State.

With half the team to be made up of first year men, the success or failure of the boxers this year will rest on the way they come through in varsity competition.

WALKER AND PRESTON AT RALEIGH MEETING

N. W. Walker, chairman of the University board of education, was in Raleigh yesterday at a meeting of the committee for the selection of high school text books. He was accompanied by C. E. Preston who is also serving on that committee.

This called meeting is one of several held for the purpose of discussing text books best suited for use by high school students.

in six of the leading North Carolina dailies on similar subjects, with the object of giving new and authentic views of a great deal of state history never before written. The series was continued in 1927-28 with 38 more articles, dealing chiefly with North Carolina men and women of letters, historians and scientists. Selections from these two sets of articles are now being edited in preparation for their appearance in book form in 1935.

Popular interest in, and widespread demand for more of, the articles occasioned the preparation of the new series. It seems not unlikely, according to Dr. Henderson, that the new series will appear collected in book form at a later date. Dr. Henderson, the owner of one of the two most nearly complete private collections of North Carolinians in existence, asserts that he is in no sense a professional historian, but that these articles arise out of a favorite avocation, the study of the history of the state. But in an article in The Westminster Magazine, Lola Love McCoy states that "He is universally recognized as the country's leading authority on westward expansion in the south and old southwest during the eighteenth century."

In a statement to the press, published last Sunday in the five papers which will carry the articles, Dr. Henderson says: "North Carolina has a fascinating and stirring history; and from it we have much to learn of the fundamental principles of democracy, the constitution, representative government, and republican institutions. Indeed, there are vast tracts to our history which have never been traversed. Much yet remains to be told of neglected personages, overlooked events and inadequately described incidents in North Carolina's past. Few there are who know the history; and fewer still who understand and can interpret it. The people, especially the young people, of North Carolina urgently need to be made 'State History Conscious.' It is hoped that the present series will contribute somewhat towards this end.

"These essays are written neither to debunk nor to panegyrise. I seek only the truth—which is difficult to discover and even more difficult to disclose."

DR. MANNING RETURNS FROM MEDICAL MEETING

Dr. I. H. Manning has returned to Chapel Hill from Charlotte where he attended a meeting of the Mecklenburg County Medical society Wednesday night. He addressed that body on the subject of group hospitalization.

Dr. Manning is chairman of the joint committee on group hospitalization, the joint committee being one from the North Carolina Hospital association and the North Carolina Medical society. It is trying to work out a non-profit plan of group hospitalization for the state.

Carolina Will Meet Real Test Against Volunteers Today

Charlie Shaffer, veteran back, to shake loose for some gains, besides Jim Hutchins to ram the line for some yardage, Jackson, Randy Cooner, and Dashiell to toss some successful passes, and a number of other backs for a win.

Barclay in for Test

Captain George Barclay will lead the underdog Tar Heels and will again make a bid for All-American honors. Barclay will call the signals from guard on offense and then back up the line from center on defense. Hatley captains the Vols and is also one of the best guards in the south.

Coach Snavely sent the Carolina squad through a short polishing drill yesterday afternoon despite the bad weather. He worked both on the offense and defense, stressing the punting as the day may be wet and kicking might be a deciding issue in the outcome.

Charlie Shaffer will probably do most of the Tar Heel booting and was getting off some good kicks in yesterday's work. However the Carolina back will have a tough time keeping step with Palmer's punts.

PEACE ADVOCATE CONDEMNS SOUTH

"it took $25,000 to kill a man during the last war."

Praises Huey Long

Mrs. Barnes brought out the fact that both North Carolina senators had voted for the Vinson bill. Because Huey Long had opposed the measure, she made the statement that the famous Louisiana dictator "had been termed an agent of the devil, but the prince of peace."

To oppose war the speaker said that the Woman's League "stood for the support of the Nye munition investigation, a reduction of armaments, and against the using of money from public relief funds for war purposes."

Afterwards, members of the audience remained to make plans for the sending of a peace delegation to Raleigh Friday to interview state senators.

EIGHTEEN ARE ILL

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday due to minor illnesses: J. R. Wright, Fred Scherer, Robert Ellison, William Fitzhugh, Thomas Wilson, John Schultz, Jean Ashe, May Delia Rankin, Lola Reid, J. D. Winslow, James Bullock, Elmer Venters, J. W. Old, M. D. Wall, A. S. Clark, William Calloway, Edgar Green, and James Hicks.

Cards Beat Detroit With Dean Twirling And Martin Batting

Cardinal attack in the first inning and later in the fifth started a two-run rally with his scorching double to right.

Jack Rothrock also came up for his share of hero worship as he scampered to all the corners of his right field garden to snag five almost unreachable balls when hits would have been disastrous. He also had his bat tuned up and sent out a long triple. He knocked in a pair of runs.

Tommy Bridges started on the mound for the Tigers and got into danger right from the first. He was greeted with a pair of hits in the first frame and another pair in the second canto, each time allowing a run to cross the pan.

Bridges Leaves Game

Elon Hoggsett relieved Bridges with none out in the fifth and a man on first. He immediately forced Medwick into a double play and after a man getting on via error, Cochrane tosed the would-be base stealer out. In his four innings, he allowed the Cards only one hit and sent two of them back because they missed on whiffs.

Two fast doubles plays saved the Bengals from further destruction and nice field play on the part of Jo-Jo White robbed the Birds of several sure hits.

The St. Louis fielding was likewise tight and nearly perfect. Only two assists were registered by the winners during the whole nine innings, eighteen fly balls being caught. "Ducky" Joe Medwick turned in the most spectacular outfield play of the series when he reached over the stand barrier along short left-field and snagged a long foul for the first out of the afternoon.

The Cardinals started the ball rolling the first inning. Martin tripled off the right field wall and scored when Rothrock sent a long fly to deep center. Frisch then singled. Medwick fanned and Mickey Cochrane pegged to Gehringer to catch the sliding Frisch for the third out.

In the fifth, Martin again started the scoring with a double to the same spot to which he hit his triple. Rothrock came through with a three base knock over Goslin scoring Martin. Frisch socked the sphere over Gehringer to reach first and tally Rothrock. Hoggsett came in then and forced Medwick into a double killing. Collins reached first when Rogell fumbled the ball but was caught a moment later when the deadly arm of Cochrane's pegged him off second.

Twice the Tigers had the bases full but could make nothing of it. In the second, White started with an outfield out. Cochrane received a free ticket to first and went to third on Gehringer's double. Dean tightened down and Greenberg took the count of three strikes. Goslin, who had singled the inning before, was walked purposely, filling the bases. But Rogell was forced to fly out to centerfield.

ENGINEERING FACULTY GUESTS OF DEAN MILLER

Dean and Mrs. W. J. Miller were hosts at a picnic supper for the engineering faculty Wednesday night. The supper, which took place at the University lake, was to enable the old staff to get acquainted with its newer members.

Among the new faculty members present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Geyer, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. MacLean, Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Borgmann, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Noe, Jr., J. R. Marvin, and F. E. Culverm.

Willingham Urges Support

Frank Willingham, president of the University club, announced that Cheerios will be organized some time next week, saying that fifty students have already volunteered for this group. Urging freshmen to support the team, he said, "Yell sixty minutes while they're playing. Let's beat Tennessee!"

Dean Bradshaw said that in order not to interrupt the "psychological movement" of the team, there ought not to be any lengthly let-ups in cheers.

"Be participants as well as attendants," he said. "There is no lack of enthusiasm among members of the squad; there should be none in the cheering."

Jack Pool, president of the senior class, read a letter of congratulations and good wishes from Wake Forest and thanked the first year men for the spirit shown at the last game. Expressing faith in our football team, he said, "I believe we'll beat anything from the hills of Tennessee, the sticks of Virginia, or the woods of Durham."

CAPITALISM, WAR TO BE DISCUSSED BY SOPH CABINET

MacFarland to Head Discussion Of Second Year Group; Heath Also to Speak.

JUNIORS TO HEAR VANCE

George C. MacFarland will conduct a discussion of "Capitalism and War" at the meeting of the sophomore Y. M. C. A. cabinet tomorrow night in the "Y" building, the second-year cabinet program committee announced yesterday.

M. S. Heath of the school of commerce will help in the discussion after MacFarland's introductory talk.

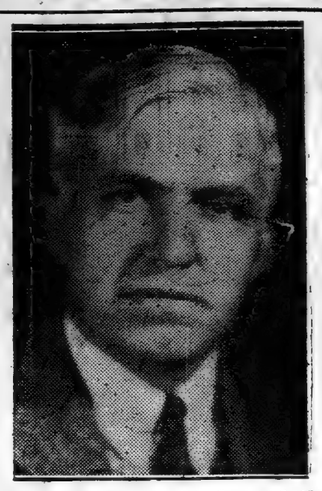
Dr. R. B. Vance of the sociology department will help in the discussion of the same topic tomorrow night at the junior-senior cabinet meeting.

Capital's Influence

MacFarland, who made a study of armament companies the past summer, will explain to the group some of the influences of capitalism in promoting conflicts.

J. D. Winslow, president of the "Y", has circulated a number of questions among cabinet members, requesting them to develop some thought of their own around the queries and come prepared to contribute to the discussion.

A few of the questions are: Doesn't capitalism stand to lose because of war? Would peace be furthered by taking the profits out of war and vesting the production of armaments in the government? Can we reconcile the peace policy of the government with its policy of large armies and navies?



Dean Elbert Russell of Duke University, at the request of the program committee, will speak at a joint assembly of all the cabinets Monday after Armistice Day on "Jesus, the Pacifist."

Dr. English Bagby of the psychology department opened the series of meetings last Monday by a speech on "The Psychology of War."

A discussion of nationalism will be given October 22 and of Dr. Marion R. Trabue of the education department in the University has accepted an appointment as director of a national research project.

TRABUE TO HEAD RESEARCH STUDY

Professor Will Be Head of National Project for Surveying Unemployment.

Dr. Marion R. Trabue, professor of educational administration and director of the bureau of research in the department of education of the University, has accepted an appointment as director of a national research project looking toward a re-classification of occupations and the development of new techniques for fitting unemployed into current work opportunities, it was announced yesterday.

The project is being sponsored jointly by the Social Science Research council, with headquarters in New York, and the National Research council, with the co-operation of the United States employment service.

High Honor

This appointment, which is regarded as the highest sort of recognition of Dr. Trabue's standing as an authority in this field, is said to have been made because of the research work directed by him during the years 1931-33 in the Employment Stabilization institute at the University of Minnesota.

WBT BROADCASTS PLANNED BY CLUB

Programs over Charlotte Station Scheduled Before Kentucky And Duke Games.

Plans are underway for the presentation of two radio programs over station WBT, Charlotte, immediately preceding the Kentucky and Duke games, by the University club.

The radio station has agreed to the project, scheduling the club programs for Friday afternoon, October 19, and Friday afternoon, November 16.

The first date is the day before the annual Homecoming Day here. It is in the interest of this event that this special program will be presented. The latter date is immediately prior to the Duke-Carolina game.

Now on WDNC

The University club is now sponsoring radio programs weekly over station WDNC, Durham, the first for this season being presenting last Friday afternoon when Jimmy Fuller's band, Phil Hammer and Bill Anderson were featured in an half-hour presentation.

The WDNC programs will continue every week except those of the WBT engagements. No definite plans for the next WDNC program or the Charlotte presentations could be obtained yesterday, but will be announced later.

The first radio program sponsored by the club was given last spring, when Bill Allsbrook's orchestra, Lonnie Dill, DAILY TAR HEEL editor, and Bill Anderson provided the entertainment.

Jack Clare is director of the radio projects for the club.

Ex-Editor Praises Present Tar Heel

H. M. London, Class of '99, Visits Office of Paper.

"Have you an extra copy of the latest TAR HEEL?" This question, asked in the DAILY TAR HEEL office at noon yesterday caused Bob Page, managing editor, to look up into the face of H. M. London, Carolina, '99, former TAR HEEL editor, who was here attending the Alumni association meeting as vice-president of that group.

"I succeeded R. D. W. Connor, who is now Kenan professor of history, as editor in 1899," said London in a short interview here yesterday.

Weekly Paper

"In those days, the newspaper was a weekly, with a staff of three or four. We had an editor, managing editor, business manager and perhaps one or two reporters. It was quite an effort, both financially and in getting sufficient copy, to print that one weekly issue.

"All subscriptions were voluntary and we were without the benefit of a publications union. Advertising was very limited.

"I recall quite a controversy," continued London, "over the running of tobacco advertisements. At one time they were banned, because the authorities feared their effect on the moral of youth."

London was warm in his praise of the improvements made since the days of his editorship.

At present he is employed as State legislative reference librarian at Raleigh.

SPANISH CAPITAL HIT BY CIVIL WAR

Other Chief Centers of Nation Suffer Widespread Fighting; Catalonia Secedes.

Madrid, Oct. 6.—(UP)—Civil war broke out in Madrid tonight while other chief centers of Spain suffered widespread fighting in the revolutionary general strike which the leftists have declared for the purpose of overthrowing the existing government in favor of a socialistic regime.

The three-year old Spanish republic appeared in grave danger tonight as the combined forces of the anarchists, communists, and socialists followed a period of comparative quiet with a fresh outburst of fighting.

Secession

Catalonia, rich industrial and agricultural region of four northeastern provinces, has declared its independence of the rest of the nation.

Throughout the country fighting raged between the left wing radicals and the new right center government of Alejandro Lerroux, which rebels say is headed towards a Fascist rule.

Observers report that the point has come when the three-day old government of Lerroux must down the revolution and the accompanying red movement or pass out of existence.

Machine guns, bombs, rifles, pistols, and swords were brought into play in the center of Madrid tonight when the military occupation of the city began at 10:00 o'clock (Spanish time).

The commanding officer has proclaimed martial law in the Spanish capital.

GREEN PASTURES HERE TOMORROW

First Offering on Entertainment Series Begins at 8:30 O'clock In Memorial Hall.

The Student Entertainment committee will present its first offering of the year in Memorial hall tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock when the curtain will rise on Marc Connelly's noted play, "Green Pastures."

Richard B. Harrison, who will head the huge cast, will be giving his 1,510th performance as "de Lawd," a role in which he has earned world-wide renown by his sympathetic and reverent interpretations. The remainder of the original cast, which appeared opening night in New York four years ago, is intact except for two substitutions.

Old Story

Based on the southern stories of Roark Bradford in the book, "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun," the eighteen scenes of the play depict the rise and fall of mankind as seen through the eyes of the Negro.

The Hall Johnson Heavenly choir, composed of more than a score of mixed voices, has gained acclaim as one of the outstanding features of the play.

The horn-blowing Gabriel, who has yet to bloot his blooter, is portrayed by Doe Doe Green. Daniel L. Haynes, star of the motion picture "Hallelujah," plays the part of our common ancestor, Adam.

A hundred or more Negro performers represent various other characters in the Bible.

Fraternity Bids

Bids from fraternities will be distributed to freshmen in Memorial hall at 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. All freshmen who expect to receive and accept a bid from a fraternity will go there at that time and are cautioned not to speak to anyone after they enter the hall.

Dean Bradshaw will issue instructions as to what each freshmen will do upon receiving his bid and it is hoped that they will co-operate with him and the Interfraternity council in every respect.

Jury Ready to Vote Murder Indictment

Testimony Given by Hopewell Carpenter; Hauptmann to Fight Extradition.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 6.—(UP)—Willard Whitehead, Hopewell carpenter, positively identified Hauptmann tonight as the man whom he saw emerge from the bushes near the Lindbergh home just prior to the kidnaping two years ago of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

Meanwhile the Hunterdon county grand jury is prepared to vote the murder indictment against the German carpenter, pending the success of the extradiction proceedings with the state of New York.

22 to Testify

According to present plans, at least 22 persons will be called to testify before the court when the murder case does come up for trial.

The counsel for defense indicated today that Hauptmann will fight against extradition to New Jersey.

Among the witnesses who will be summoned will be Colonel Lindbergh, Federal agents, handwriting experts, police, acquaintances of the accused, and psychiatrists.

HOUSE TO SPEAK TO PHI ASSEMBLY

Dean House, dean of administration, will address the Philanthropic assembly at 7:15 o'clock Tuesday night in New East.

The following bills will be discussed: Resolved, that the rushing season be cut down to a period of one week; Resolved, that freshmen be allowed to attend all dances at the University; and Resolved, that the Everett experiment with freshmen be condemned.

The bill, Resolved, that the Philanthropic assembly condemn the action of Governor Ehringhaus in sending troops to the strike area, will be discussed. This bill was tabled at the last meeting for further discussion.

Stream of "Black Gold" Recalls University of Texas Excavation

Pedestrians on South Columbia street yesterday morning gazed incredulously at a stream of blackish-brown fluid which came pouring down a gutter beside the infirmary. "What kind of water is that?" someone wanted to know. One freshman stuck his finger in the swiftly-flowing stream, sniffed at it gingerly and whispered in an awed tone of voice, "Oil!"

"Black Gold"

They stared unbelievingly for an instant and then, actuated by the same thought, ran to discover from when came this torrent of "Black Gold." In the mind of each was the story of Texas University, at which place oil was struck in the course of excavation for a University building. But hopes on this score were soon rudely dashed when rounding the corner of the infirmary a strange sight met the eye.

It seems that there is a large 100,000 gallon tank located just behind Swain hall in which the oil used in repairing the roads around the campus is stored. The pipe leading from the base of the tank to the point where the trucks receive it was partly exposed above the ground in an alleyway behind Swain hall across which many cars and trucks passed.

In the course of time the pipe became loosened at its connection with the tank and finally, the two parted company. The immediate result being a miniature geyser of oil. A crowd quickly gathered to watch the attempt to stem the flow, which after several unsuccessful but valiant efforts was accomplished. Almost every one present was inclined to offer some advice about stopping the torrent but no one offered to step into the stream, which had several tons of pressure behind it, and try to stick a plug into it.

No one could estimate exactly how much oil had been lost but the general opinion was that about a quarter of the tank's contents is now scattered about Orange county.

Hotel Names Drinks After Tigers, But Cocktails Wouldn't Suit Cards

By HENRY MCLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Detroit, Mich.—(UP)—While everybody was looking around for an explanation, other than the dizziness freres, for why the Cardinals look like the goods in this World Series, I think that perhaps I stumbled on a clew to the answer in the cocktail list of the hotel Fort Shelby.

In a laudable burst of civic spirit the hotel Fort Shelby, when the Tigers won the pennant, discarded its regular cocktail with the old familiar names of Bronx, Manhattan, sidecar and stinger, in favor of an alcoholic lineup named after the members of the Detroit team.

There is the "Hanky Pank," named after Henry Greenberg, slugging first baseman, and calling for gin, vermouth, and orangeflower. There's "Eldon's favorite," christened for Pitcher Eldon Auker, and which includes gin, orange juice, pineapple juice, and the white of an egg.

Immortalizing Outfielder Fox is the "Fox Trot," a concoction of bacardi, raspberry syrup, curacoa, orange bitters and lime. And guaranteeing Mickey Cochrane a place in posterity's batting order is the "old master," a blend of bacardi, grapefruit juice, and apricot brandy.

Cards Too Tough

No tavern was disloyal enough to rig up a St. Louis cocktail list, but if they had—and here's the clew I mentioned in the first paragraph—you wouldn't find such Lord Fauntelroy, alice-blue-gown items as egg whites, raspberry syrup, and orangeflower. For the Cardinals ain't like that. For the most part—and I mingled with them before the game yesterday—the Cardinals are tough, hairy, knotty-muscled gents, who give you the feeling that if anybody tried blocking 'em at second base they'd let the offender have a full set of spikes, and all the solid pounds of beef on their frames.

Take "Pepper" Martin, for example, or Joe Medwick, or Wonder if the Confederates would turn over in their graves if they knew their daughters were going to spend several nights in fraternity houses.

Day of Friendships

The committee on student-faculty day has chosen a propitious date for the taking place of this novel feature in the history of the University. The success which student-faculty day will have depends on an appropriate time to a great extent, and Hallowe'en is a day that is as conducive as any to loosening up dignities that are willing, but find it hard after so many years, to meet each other on terms other than those of the classroom.

Our only fear in regard to student-faculty day is that both parties may get the idea that it is intended to be a rowdy, foolish sort of observance. Nothing can be further from the minds of those who planned it. The object of student-faculty day is not for students and faculty to go out together and ring doorbells, but merely to observe this day as one set apart for the promotion of friendliness and good will. We know that with careful planning it will succeed, and we hope that it will be perpetuated to other student generations here at the University.

Is Prison the Place for Him?

J. B. Watkins, 30-year-old murderer who killed a man twice his age in Rockingham last August, has been sentenced to from 15 to 20 years in the state prison. Watkins was first tried for first degree murder, but the jury, taking into account the murderer's alleged mental incapacity, found him guilty of manslaughter. The judge who sentenced him stated that he believed Watkins' crime was premeditated and was a case of first degree murder, but considering his mental incapacity and the fact that the man he murdered was intimate with his estranged wife, he sanctioned the jury's verdict. Watkins, therefore, a mental incompetent, can thank his defectiveness and his estranged wife that he got 15 years instead of the electric chair.

Which brings up the question of just who should be put in prison? For years penal authorities and law courts have taken it as a matter of course that every crime against society should be diverted into one sink-hole—the prison. Petty offenders against city ordinances, confirmed alcoholics, vagrants, emotionally unstable men and women—all have been put behind the bars as the one solution to society's problem of eliminating them. Watkins' case is likewise an evidence of the same sort of social philosophy. The judge who sentenced him and the jury who tried him both half-admitted his mental incapacity, yet he was put in prison, not in an institution where if he really were insane he could be cared for.

Too many of Watkins' type are pouring into the state prison and the prisons of other states. Bedlaw is no more, but the need of a reversal in the twentieth century's ideas of crime and punishment is imminent.

Co-eds and Congeniality

No sooner do the men end fraternity rushing than the co-eds begin in earnest to pledge girls for their sororities. In the glamour of early season rushing, the new co-eds are liable to become a trifle dazzled and, to use an admittedly trite expression, a word to the wise is sufficient.

While the parties given by the sororities under the local Pan-Hellenic council rules are very wonderful, sorority life, it must be noted, will not consist of one glorious round of parties and dates after the novice has been pledged. But it will offer new friendships and companions of life-long bonds, new congeniality in a more or less unified group formed with an association of picked college women all over the United States.

The most important factor in selecting a sorority is, as we emphasized in the men's fraternity discussion, congeniality. Unless the girl feels at home with her companions, unless she is one of the group and not an outsider looking in, the sorority offers nothing for her.

It must also be emphasized that sororities are definitely not essential to a co-ed's well-being on this campus; girls who are not tendered bids or who cannot financially meet the requirements need not consider their college career blighted.

The essence seems to be this: if you are able and asked, assent; if you are unable or unapproached, un-lax. Life's too short to get upset because you have been unable to affiliate yourself with a fraternal group offering more chance for friendship but not a whit more opportunity for self-development.

Thinking And Dancing

We wish the older generation would get together on their opinions of their younger offsprings and decide definitely just what they do think about we "college-uns." Out in Arkansas at the Monticello Agricultural and Mechanical College, President Frank Horsfall stated he believed college dances were "sex orgies" and promptly got his student body all steamed up about the idea of telling Dr. Horsfall just exactly "where to get off."

Then, at the same time, Henry Goddard Leach, editor of the Forum, sees an "emergence of a conservative, optimistic type of college student as opposed to the iconoclastic brooder and gin-drinker believed by many to personify the post-war era in higher American education." Good for Goddard! Here is a clear thinker.

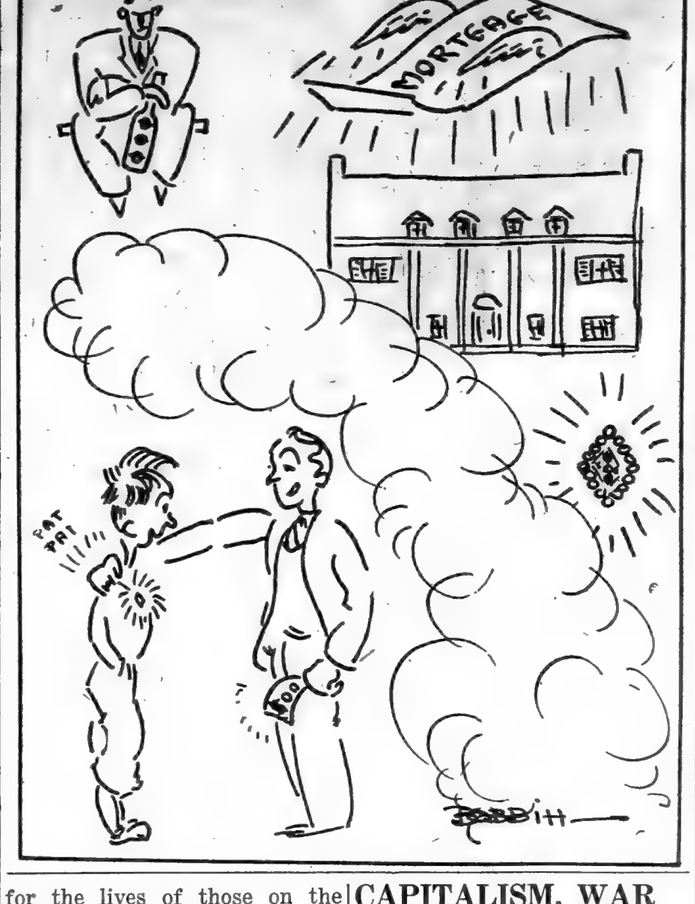
Regardless of the opinions of Dr. Horsfall, who thinks one should be married to dance like they do nowadays (what is this Monticello A. and M., anyway?) and Goddard, who says he believes we are accumulating gray matter, we still think the modern college generation is, and has been, a group of students having a job to do and doing it, more or less, as well as they know how. May we have this dance, Dr. Horsfall?

There's Gold In That Brine

Down in Wilmington some scientists did some multiplying and dividing and calculating and figured that in salt water was to be found gold and silver. So, at the bromine-extraction plant on the Atlantic ocean down by Fort Fisher they put the pressure, figuratively speaking, on 12 tons of sea-water flowing through the plant and, after chemical treatment, in the sediment recovered one-tenth of a milligram, half gold and half silver.

It looks like the North Carolina public debt is about solved. Now we can take the stump speakers and the left-over politicians and put them to work under North Carolina's own NRA, the "Nugget Recovery Administration." Of course, at the present ratio between metal and water, it will take this half of the Atlantic and part of the Gulf of Mexico to keep the Old North State well fortified against the monster Debt, but there's plenty of water and the scientists believe that the first recovery was only 1-300th of that which actually exists in the same amount of sea water.

In fact, they say that if the spectroscope is right, there is enough gold in seawater to pave the United States and enough silver to roof the world. We ask you, aren't things looking up?



Spain and Her Trouble

The second Spanish republic, headed by Premier Alejandro Lerroux, is faced with a tense situation today in attempting to squelch the sixth major uprising that has shook it since its founding in May, 1931. Communists, socialists, and syndico-anarchists are making common cause in a revolution which has already cost the lives of many Spanish citizens. Rebel forces are scattered throughout the country, no sector actually being safe from gunfire, and the Spanish government has declared itself not responsible for the lives of those on the streets.

Scattered reports indicate that the revolutionary strike has almost completely paralyzed commerce, industry, and transportation in many parts of Spain. The government is contending that the strike is nearly broken, but Leftists are equally firm in asserting that the quiet period is merely a period of watchful waiting.

It is unfortunate, to say the least, that a country with Spain's adverse financial condition should have to contend with a state of constant revolution and revolt. We in this country, continually kicking about the so-called ruinous conditions here, have at least to be fervently thankful that we do not have governmental uprisings and revolutions to fight in addition to our economic and commercial troubles.

GIVING HIM THE GLAD HAND

Hotel Names Drinks After Detroit Tigers

Frankie Frisch. Can you imagine a cocktail named after "Pepper," the Wild Horse of the Osage? A cocktail with raspberry syrup in it? One look at "Pepper" in his working clothes and a bartender told to mix an appropriate cocktail would pour in an equal mixture of squirrel whisky and sheep dip, and dress it up with a dash of steel wool. For Medwick he'd leave off the steel wool but drop in a mothball. And for the Dean boys—well, one part of dissolved shotgun stocks, two parts tannic acid, a dash of rough-on-rats, all garnished with octupus tentacles would be something like it.

Just Overgrown Kids

The Cards, as I said, are a tough, ornery, swash-buckling bunch of guys, who are taking the series in stride. An hour before a game they are kidding, playing and rough-housing in and out their dugout like it was just another game in Cincinnati. Martin and Medwick and Orsatti amuse themselves, and the crowd, with an exhibition of trick ball handling; Dazzy Vance walks about making wisecracks about slipping into a World Series at last, and how he was taking pictures so his homefolks down in the backwoods of Florida would believe it; Frisch is as easy to talk to and joke with as he is in spring training; the Deans lean over the dugout roof and banter with the Detroit fans.

CAPITALISM, WAR TO BE DISCUSSED

"Defense by Militarism" October 29.

The topics from November through the rest of the quarter will deal with the prevention of war. "Is Socialism a Cure for War?" is scheduled for November 5; Dean Russell's speech on pacifism, November 12; "Disarmament," presented by Phil Kind, president of the sophomore cabinet, November 19; a discussion on armed intervention, by George Allen, November 26; "International Co-operation," by Fred Weaver, December 3.

The sophomore program committee has not yet announced the speakers who will lead discussions at the other meetings.

requested Dr. Trabue to outline a program of further research to meet these needs. Funds were sought from the Social Science Research council, and an appropriation was made by the United States employment service for the conduct of this study.

The three groups consolidated their plans, and Dr. Trabue was asked to assume directorship of the project. He has been granted a leave of absence by the University for one year, but will return to Chapel Hill about once a month to carry on committee work assigned him by President Frank Graham. His teaching duties are being carried on by other members of the department during the fall quarter, but another instructor will be added to take over his work during the winter and spring quarters.

The general purpose of the program is to develop through careful experiments and research improved classifications of occupations with definite specifications and standards that will facilitate more effective placement and transfer of workers.

The headquarters of the research project will be in the new department of labor building in Washington. Field stations will be established in various centers in connection with the public employment service. A staff of psychologists, industrial engineers, and employment experts is now being selected and trained.

Folk-Song Discussed At Philological Club

Dr. A. P. Hudson of the English department addressed the first meeting of the Philological club with a paper on the subject "Folk-Song in Recent Fiction Describing Southern Life."

Professor Hudson exemplified his subject from 47 pieces of fiction by 32 present-day southern writers, showing how folk-songs were used in historical fiction as bits of color appropriate to character and setting, and in a number of stories as essential, thematic, and structural material.

He also illustrated how theoretical or scientific knowledge of folk-song in a number of instances influences fictional technique.

Carolina Drops Tough Game To Tennessee, 19-7; Bill Moore Makes Score

Stronger Reserves and Great Interference Result in Win.

A fighting Carolina grid team went down before a powerful Tennessee eleven, 19-7, yesterday in Kenan stadium in a thrilling and closely fought battle.

The Vols' better reserve strength told the story as Carolina held the upper hand in the opening half only to be outclassed by the fresher Tennessee club during the closing two periods. The Tar Heels held a 7-6 lead at half-time, besides threatening several other times to score.

Great Blocking

Coach Neyland presented football fans with one of the hardest blocking teams ever seen at Kenan stadium and on the very first kickoff, Krouse, Vol quarterback, caught Tatum's boot on his own 4-yard line, dashed right down the middle and on through the entire eleven 96 yards to a touchdown with hardly a hand being laid on him.

The Tar Heels were not discouraged by this opening marker and came right back and within five minutes held the lead,

7-6. Carolina received and after an exchange of punts took the ball on its own 40. Slippery Dick Dashiell made 3 through tackle; on a reverse around left end Charlie Shaffer picked up 10 more for a first. On second down Dashiell passed 15 yards to Bill Moore, end, who dashed all the way to the 13-yard line before being caught.

Shaffer made 3 yards over guard and then a pass, Dashiell to Dick Buck, end, failed. Dashiell lost a yard at tackle, making it fourth down and eight to go with the ball resting on

TAR HEELS WILL MEET BULLDOGS NEXT AT ATHENS

Grid Battle Will Be Coach Snavely's First Foreign Game as Mentor of Carolina.

GEORGIA PLENTY TOUGH

The University of North Carolina football team will invade the lair of the Georgia Bulldogs Saturday for its first stand on foreign soil.

The Tar Heels, who were at grips with Tennessee yesterday afternoon, defeated Wake Forest, 21-0, in their season-opener.

The last time the Tar Heels and Bulldogs met in Athens they fought four furious quarters in the rain and mud to a 6-6 tie.

Captain George Barclay, Jim Tatum, Eddie Kahn and other stars on the present eleven were playing their first season for Carolina that day.

Georgia Honors Barclay

Barclay went on to make all-southern and third All-American last year, and the Georgia team, which played N. Y. U., Yale, and Southern California among other teams picked him as the outstanding linesman they faced all season.

Georgia looked great in its opening game, trouncing Stetson 42-0. The Bulldogs are reported to have another powerhouse this season, and the Tar Heels are expecting one of the

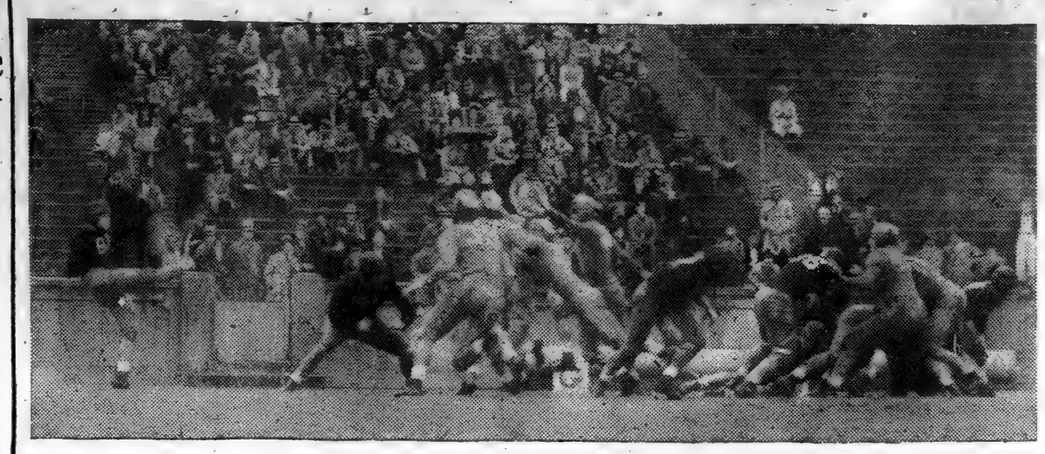
DUKE GETS 20-6 WIN OVER TIGERS

Corkey Cornelius Is Big Star in Easy Victory; First String Plays Only Half of Tilt.

Durham, N. C., Oct. 6.—With Corkey Cornelius leading the way, Duke had an easy time downing Clemson, 20-6, here this afternoon on a rain-soaked field. About 5,000 fans witnessed the contest.



Although he and the first string only played half the game Cornelius was plenty hot and got off long gain after gain. He scored two of the Blue Devils' tallies, one coming on a 70-yard gallop after taking Trotman's punt. He counted again on a 4-yard run on receiving a lateral pass from Ward.

Parker, sensational sophomore back, scored the other touchdown when he crashed over center for four yards. Parker also kicked the lone extra point of the afternoon.

The Tigers counted just before the half ended. After a drive over the second team which carried the ball to the 4-yard marker, Hinson on a reverse crossed the zero line.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

OUT OF DANGER!

Shaffer was forced to kick in the shadow of his own goal posts yesterday late in the first quarter, returning a punt by Vaughn that had been downed on Carolina's three-yard line. The photo shows him just after kicking out of danger from behind Carolina's goal to his own 45-yard line while Dick Dashiell (91) is doing the blocking. Shaffer did some outstanding kicking yesterday, averaging 41 yards in spite of the handicap of sloppy weather. The raised umbrella in the stands bears silent witness to the conditions under which Shaffer had to punt his way out of a ticklish situation.

Tigers Hit Hard To Whip Cards, 10-4; Dizzy Hurt

Auker Hurls for Tigers; Batting Spree Led By Greenberg.

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 6.—The Detroit Tigers came back strong today and belted a quintet of Cardinal pitchers for a total of thirteen hits to chalk up a 10-4 win and even the 1934 World Series at 2-all.

In the procedure, Jerome "Dizzy" Dean was knocked unconscious by a ball thrown by Bill Rogell, Bengal short. "Dizzy" had run for Davis in the fourth and was on first. Martin hit to Gehringer and forced Dean at second but Rogell, trying for a double killing, hit Dean on the side of the head, dropping the St. Louis star in his tracks. Carried to the bench, Dean regained consciousness.

Auker Pitches Fine Ball

Elden Auker started on the mound for the victors and pitched some good ball, although allowing the Cardinals a total of ten hits. His own teammates came through in great style which resembled their .300 batting during the regular season.

"Hank" Greenberg, who has been titled the "hitting goat" of the series, at last came up to his standards. Failing to hit in the pinches during the last three games, he swatted the sphere today for four hits, a pair of bingles and a pair of doubles.

Gehringer, Rogell, and Owen each secured a couple of hits today to lead the Tigers while Medwick, Collins, and Orsatti did likewise for the Missourians.

Shortstop Rogell led the Detroit fielders by making three assists and four put-outs with a fault. Frankie Frisch turned in six chances without an error.

Cards Begin Scoring

The Cardinals scored first in today's game as they have done in every game so far. In the second, Medwick singled over the shortstop's head and went to third when Collins lined one against the right field screen for a double. DeLancey walked, filling the bases. Orsatti flied to Goslin and Medwick tallied on the throw-in. Durocher flied and Carleton rolled out to end the scoring.

With two out in their half of the third the Tigers started their fire-works. Cochrane doubled. Gehringer and Goslin walked. Rogell singled to score two markers. Dazzy Vance, pitching in a World Series for the first time in 13 years, came in for Carleton and was greeted with singles by Greenberg and Owen, scoring Goslin. Then Fox fanned for the final.

In the fourth the Cardinals tied the count. Orsatti singled. Durocher bounced to Owen but Gehringer fumbled the ball trying to get the sliding Orsatti at second and both runners were safe. Davis pinch-hitting for Vance, singled scoring Orsatti and advancing Durocher to third.

Dean ran for Davis. Martin hit to Gehringer who tossed to Rogell to catch Dean but in making the throw to first Rogell hit Dean in the head. Durocher scored during the turmoil. Then Rothrock flied out and Frisch rolled out.

Charlie Gehringer counted the winning marker for Detroit in the seventh with "Hank" Greenberg driving him in. The second baseman led off with a single, went to second on Goslin's bunt, took third on Martin's third error of the afternoon, and then came in when Greenberg bounced a double off of Orsatti's glove in centerfield.

The Tigers big scoring moment came in the eighth with

World Series Shorts

According to a late report last night "Dizzy" Dean suffered a slight concussion when hit by Rogell's throw but will be ready to pitch for the National league champions this afternoon. Tommy Bridges was the choice of Manager Cochrane to hurl for the Tigers, but it is believed that the mighty "Schoolboy" Rowe may take the mound in an effort to give the Tigers their first lead in the Championship series.

Humbled by being moved to sixth position in the lineup from his regular cleanup spot and faced with the possibility of being made the goat of the series, Big Hank Greenberg finally found his batting eye, cracking out four for five and bringing his total number of hits for the series up to seven, just one behind "Ducky" Medwick, Cardinal star. Charlie Gehringer, Tiger second baseman, also has seven blows. All are in an excellent position to overtake the record of 13.

New Physics Equipment

The physics shop in Phillips hall has recently acquired some new equipment.

Among the new instruments is a jewelers drill press especially valuable for minute and accurate work. Other acquisitions include micrometer calipers, Ames' gauges, and other devices for making accurate length measurements. Several FERA students are working in the shop under the direction of Mr. F. Di'Costanzo.

Deacons Take State

By the margin of an extra point Wake Forest put a damper on State's hopes of a successful season, the Deacons coming out on top, 13-12, in the contest at State last night.

The Wolfpack loss leaves Carolina holding undesputed lead in the race for Big Five grid honors. State, Wake Forest, and Davidson have each lost a contest while Duke is yet to meet an opponent in the state. Carolina won its only start over Wake Forest, 21-0.

FRED CRAWFORD ENTERS MOVIES

Former Duke Star to Play in "Bachelor of Arts."

Durham, Oct. 7.—Fred Crawford, Duke's all-American tackle of last year, is now in the movies.

Crawford had signed a play professional football for the Chicago Bears but there was a disagreement over the financial side of the contract so the Waynesville boy turned it down and went to Hollywood.

According to Film Daily, daily newspaper of motion pictures, Crawford will first appear in "Bachelor of Arts," the adaptation of John Erskine's novel of college life.

The announcement in Film Daily follows: "Fred (Georgia Peaches) Crawford, 1933 all-American tackle at Duke University, has been added to the cast of Fox's "Bachelor of Arts," the adaptation of John Erskine's novel of college life with Tom Brown, Anita Louise, Henry B. Carolina Drops Tough Game to Vols, 19-7; B. Moore Makes Score the 11-yard line. Here Dashiell shot another pass to Moore, who took it on the 4-yard line and on a neat run scored. Babe Daniel, center, place-kicked the extra point, giving Carolina a margin.

Led by Captain George Barclay, Eddie Kahn, and Bill Moore, the Carolina line stopped the Vol running attack, but Tennessee threatened to score by air once before the first quarter ended. However, Dashiell knocked a heave down over the goal on the fourth down.

With Charlie Shaffer doing some great kicking, Carolina did the majority of the threatening during the rest of the first half. Once Hump Snyder, blocking back for Carolina, ran through guard on a fake and dashed 30 yards to the Tennessee 18-yard line.

Shaffer then picked up five more but a penalty and a 6-yard loss by Dashiell put the Tar Heels back on the 25. However, Dashiell passed to Shaffer who got all the way to the 9-yard line, where the ball went over just a couple of feet short of a first.

Hold on 7-Yard Line

Carolina's defense started cracking at the very start of the second half but made one more gallant stand before surrendering its lead. The Vols kicked off but Hutchins fumbled on his own 36, Bailey of Tennessee recovering.

After being held at the line of scrimmage for two downs, Pug Vaughan of Tennessee tossed a pass to Humphries, end, who was finally stopped on the 20. Vaughan then dashed around right end to the 10 where Dashiell caught him in the open. Carolina then made its stand and took the ball over on the 7-yard line.

Charlie Shaffer punted out to midfield and Krouse galloped back to the Carolina 39-yard line. Craig made 9 over right guard and a moment later, behind some beautiful interference, Vaughan traveled 30 yards for a score. Captain Barclay fought his way through the Vol line and dived in front of the kicker to block the try for extra point.

Barclay Carried Out

Captain Barclay again rallied his forces and held Tennessee as it got as far as the 10-yard line. At this point in the game a Vol blocker clipped the Carolina leader from behind and he had to be carried from the battle.

However, the Carolina forces managed to take the ball over on their own 9. On the very first play Dashiell tried a futile pass which Dorsey intercepted and ran back to the 20. Phil Dickens dashed around right end without being touched for the third and last marker. Dorsey made the extra point from placement.

The losers managed to hold their own the rest of the game and attempted time after time to gain through passes but with little success. Don Jackson, ace tosser, was able to play part of the game and got off some excellent heaves, but the Vol defense was always alert and kept the Tar Heel receivers well covered.

About midway in the last quarter big Jim Tatum broke through and blocked a Tennessee punt which was recovered by Ralph Gardner, reserve center.

The entire Carolina line played a creditable game against the great interference displayed by Neyland's men. Captain Barclay looked like his old self once more as he made tackles all over the field, while both Eddie Kahn and Bill Moore broke through time after time to throw Vol backs for losses.

Hump Snyder stood out in the Carolina backfield both on defense and offense. Charlie Shaffer out-punted Palmer and many times pushed the Tennessee offense back out of Carolina territory.

Toby Vaughan was by far the ace in the Tennessee backfield. Besides getting off several excellent runs he kept the Tar Heels always in danger with his passes. Krouse and Moses, quarterbacks, and Dickens, half, also did some nice stepping for the winners.

Captain Hatley, guard, and Pounders and Rose, ends, stood out in the forward wall. All three did some excellent tackling while the Tennessee leader was the main man in the mass of interference which was in front of every Tennessee ball carrier.

Tigers Hit Hard To Whip Cardinals, 10-4;

Bill Walker doing the duties on the Card mound. White first up, received a free ticket to first. Cochrane bunted to Walker who threw wild to Durocher, both runners being safe. Gehringer sacrificed both runners to third and second. Goslin was walked. Rogell singled through Durocher scoring two men.

Greenberg sent a stinging double out against the right field wall scoring Goslin. Jess Haines then relieved Walker. Owen singled tallying Rogell. Fox fanned but a double steal was successful via DeLancey's error, Greenberg scoring and Owen going to third. Auker then whiffed.

Martin started the last of the ninth off for St. Louis with a single but a rally was cut quite short as Manager Frisch immediately bumped into a double killing.

hardest games of the year.

Leroy Moorehead, who leads the Bulldog line, is, like Barclay, an all-southern guard. Cy Grant, Buck Chapman, Glenn Johnson, and John Bond head the Bulldog's long line of fine backs.

Harry Mehre, Georgia's head coach, teaches the Notre Dame system, which Carolina used in the eight years of Chuck Collins' regime. Carl Snavely, Carolina's new coach, uses the Warner system.

Three sophs have broken into Carolina's otherwise veteran lineup this year. They are Dick Buck, rangy end; "Slippery Dick" Dashiell, elusive halfback; and Jim Hutchins, driving fullback.

The other eight starters are lettermen. They are: W. Moore, end; Tatum and Evins, tackles; Captain Barclay and Kahn, guards; Daniel, center; Snyder, blocking back; and Shaffer, halfback.

The line that started the Tennessee game yesterday averaged 188 pounds and the backfield 175 pounds.

Saturday is Deadline

In order that the Athletic association may know how many seats to reserve for each fraternity, each lodge is asked to obtain from the Athletic office today enough reservation cards for all its alumni.

These cards are then to be mailed out immediately so that they may be received by the Athletic association on or before this Saturday, thus giving sufficient time for the necessary preparations to be made.

Old Auntie Pope Keeps Alive Traditional Art of Soap-Making

Once Universal Custom of Manufacturing Soap in the Home Has Becomes Almost Extinct Because "Folks Is Got Too Proud These Days—They Gits Boughten Soap," Auntie Says.

Making soap by hand, the way our grandmothers had to do, is one of the regular chores of old Auntie Annie Pope, of the colored section of Chapel Hill. The process of making one's own soap is almost unknown today, but this old Mammy employs it every time her supply gives out.

The soap is made from the accumulations of grease and fat that she saves from her cooking, combined with Red Devil Lye. She says that she likes to make it, but that "folks is got too proud these days to make soap—they has to go git boughten soap."

When she makes it she gets a large iron tub and builds a fire under it right out on the sidewalk. She stirs the tubful mixture with a stick as she boils it. After it boils, she allows it to cool and then cuts it up into cakes resembling Octagon soap.

Soap-making in private homes is an industry almost extinct. Very few people go to the trouble of making the soap they need—in fact, very few people know it can be done. The process is a most interesting one, and one that draws a large crowd to stand around and watch. Soap-making time used to be like hog-killing time, said Auntie Annie, as she stirred the golden-brown mixture. She was very proud of her ability to make soap, and claimed that she would match it against anybody's brand.

SPAIN MOBILIZES RAIL EMPLOYEES

Hard-pressed Spanish Government Musters All Available Forces to Break Strike.

Madrid, Oct. 9.—(UP)—The besieged Spanish government today ordered the mobilization as soliders of all railway employes between the ages of 20 and 38 in a bold attempt to break the backbone of the revolutionary strike which, it has been estimated, has killed 400 and wounded 1,500.

A Spanish legion from Morocco, 3,000 strong, is enroute to the mainland to join the continental forces.

Firing in Streets

Beginning at 5:00 o'clock this afternoon discontented masses of Madrid indulged in a wave of bitter attacks against authorities, pouring a murderous hail of bullets upon the streets from roof tops causing sudden disorder.

Apparently the disturbances were directed by master minds and guerilla strategists among the rebels.

Meanwhile the government is gravely concerned over reports of disrupted communications from northern sections.

The general strike which is proclaimed as the forerunner of a socialist-communist revolution continued to spread, paralyzing industry at Seville, Granada and Coruna while trade in Madrid is at a standstill.

PARAGRAPHICS

"Women Represented in New Deal," says headline. It's O.K. by us just so they don't trump our ace.

More than $15,000,000 per year is spent in the United States on futile remedies. Wonder what part of that figure comes under the head of cosmetics.

It couldn't be that Gen. Johnson wept because there are no more uncontrolled businesses to conquer?

What the Papers Said

With the best of intentions to avoid making these columns bear the stamp of something akin to a book publisher's blurbs, we publish a few excerpts from state papers' comments on President Graham's speech at the annual opening convocation of the University of Virginia at Charlottesville. Our own position in the matter is one of some pride that he should have received such an ovation for what will stand out as one of the most ringing declarations of human liberties ever delivered in the Old Dominion.

Commenting on Dr. Graham's exhortation to educated men to be alive to the social changes of our generation, the Raleigh News and Observer sets forth one of the fundamental purposes of education as inspired by his address:

> The man who uses his education to serve himself alone is no better than the miser who counts only the gain on his gold. Education may be—and too often, has been—put to the service of exploitation. There is overwhelming need today for education to serve the enlightenment of a still too dark world. If educated men were to follow the creed framed for them by Dr. Graham this would be a happier state and a happier world.

R. R. Clark in the Greensboro Daily News mentions Dr. Graham's defense of collective bargaining:

> . . . [He] expresses in clear and unmistakable language what nearly all of us profess to believe are the rights in a democratic country of all men and women, of all classes and conditions. That is the ideal of justice. While there is professed, theoretical, adherence to the standard, it is unnecessary to say that its practical application is quite different. It has been that way, but that a change is impending is recognized by all except those who are so blind they will not see.

The Charlotte News, in the president's home town, takes up the same issue provoked by his speech:

> . . . All men may know by these Charlottesville and other presents of Frank Graham that he believes with every fibre of him that workers have the same right to organize in an effort to better their wages, hours, and working conditions as have their employers to get together in a manufacturers' association.

The Charlotte Observer, entitling its comment "Protocol of a New Civilization," asserts that Dr. Graham has voiced the sentiment of the people of North Carolina:

> Dr. Frank Graham, head of the University by virtue of the influence and prestige thrust upon him by the people of North Carolina, through his present position has thus been given the solemn and far-reaching function of gathering up the feelings of the people of North Carolina, of analyzing their hopes and fears and of speaking their aspirations and their resolutions to the world. . . . . Never will Dr. Graham wittingly misconstrue what he believes to be in the public mind of his fellow-countrymen nor will he ever be found faithless to his trust to make their sentiments vocal.

That his speech was acclaimed as the manifesto of truth that it was, is evident in the statewide approbation that it received. We can add nothing to this appreciation of it that has already been expressed by leading journals of North Carolina. President Graham's principles not only stand for themselves, but the true liberals of this state stand behind them.

Making the State Fair

Yesterday North Carolina's "great show window," the 1934 edition of the annual State Fair, raised its curtains, as it were, when Governor Ehringhaus led the marshals' parade to start things off.

State fairs are very interesting events not so much for the gorilla-headed woman in the side show (who, of course, has her own sweet appeal) but more for the review which they present of the progress of the state since the last exhibition. Cows and pigs and cabbages and potatoes all have their particular charm and importance in the fair's lineup because they collectively act as indeces of how conditions are and where they are lacking or yielding.

The exhibitions attract all those not interested in the livestock and vegetables and reports have it that things along this line are better than ever before. It might be a valuable suggestion for us to advise that along with the frolic you add a little smattering of inquisitiveness out by the stables or in by the farmers' booths. Nature's workings, you know, are what make the state fair.

Peace Of Mind

The attempt of the Y. M. C. A. to foster a deep interest in war, its problems and intrigues, its effects and causes, and most of all, its utter uselessness, is a worthy endeavor that is well planned and effective.

But the fact remains after the first two lectures in the highly instructive series that the student body is not responding to the offer to participate in the discussion and to share the interest of the speakers. Consequently, while a limited number of serious-minded collegians are taking advantage of the greatest problem in the world, the great majority of the student body rolls along unaware that there is anything at all significant going on under their noses.

We can't suggest any means to wake up the inert spirits except to start a war ourselves and then ask them what to do about it. But we know that the state legislature wouldn't stand for that, and besides, we are naturally of a peaceful nature. We do feel, however, that someone is missing a rare opportunity to get some first-hand information about a vital subject. If another national crisis occurs, we'd rather have intelligent cannon fodder express its opinion than uninformed pacifists.

Nicely Recovering Administration

Alma Mater is again rousing her giant frame from slumber. Progress is in the air. The campus is humming with the sounds of manual labor, and slumbering students are roused of mornings by the cheery sounds of men going to their work.

For a time, at least, it seemed as though the farce of Graham Memorial were to be repeated, and that we should again have a gaping, unfinished skeleton of a building on the campus, to the sorrow of all beholders. For months, Person hall has been a melancholy ruin, with weed-grown, piled earth, decaying scaffolds, scattered bricks and girders surrounding it. But now the walls are springing up overnight, and the structure hums with activity.

Much the same thing could be said about the unfinished tennis courts. If Carolina is to hold her crown in this sport, there must be plenty of courts on which to play, not only that the varsity may not be crowded, but also that raw material may be encouraged to grow and develop. Therefore, the fact that work on the all-weather courts is going briskly forward may be interpreted as an encouraging sign.

Only one thing now is lacking to make the triumph of progress complete. The monster athletic field, with the track that was to have been the largest of its kind in the south, and the enormous facilities for diversified games, is now an undistinguished mud-hole. The plan was to use this field as a practice football field for the varsity, thus saving wear and tear on the costly turf of Kenan. It is to be hoped that this eminently desirable project can be accomplished in the near future.

"Walt Whitman" will be discussed by Richard Chase this afternon at 4:30 o'clock in the Bull's Head bookshop.

Dr. R. B. Vance will be unable to appear as scheduled, announced Elizabeth Johnson, director of the Bull's Head. "Mr. Chase," she said, "is a Whitman enthusiast and we are very fortunate in securing him to talk in the absence of Dr. Vance." Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, will introduce the speaker.

A recent scientific survey in a large eastern university showed 60 percent of the students sleep through at least three hours of classes each week.

Series Tied Again As Paul Dean Whips Schoolboy,4-3

"Daffy" Also Knocks in Winning Marker of Great Battle

Paul "Daffy" Dean got sweet revenge yesterday for his big brother, "Dizzy's," defeat Sunday when the younger Dean pitched and hit his way to a thrilling 4-3 victory over the mighty Lynnwood "Schoolboy" Detroit.

The victory for St. Louis over Detroit again tied the baseball championship series, this time 3-3. Today's game at Navin Field will decide which is baseball's best team and end another World Series until another year has passed.

Yesterday's battle was a nip and tuck all the way with the Cardinals forced to take the lead three times before finally getting the victory. Paul Dean, himself, drove out a single in the seventh which scored Leo Durocher from second with the winning tally. The Red Bird shortstop had gotten on second as a result of a smashing double to centerfield.

Both Pitchers Last

Both "Daffy" and "Schoolboy" lasted the entire game for their respective teams, Dean giving up seven blows, while Rowe was nipped for 10 safe knocks. However, Dean didn't allow an earned run, while Rowe was the victim of two. Dean got four men by strikes and Rowe fanned five.

St. Louis led off with a marker the opening inning. After Pepper Martin had popped-up, Jack Rothrock cracked out a double and then with two men gone, "Ducky-Wucky" Medwick lined a bingle to right field bringing his mate home.

Tied Up

Jo-Jo White and Manager Mickey Cochrane teamed up to tie the count for Detroit in the third after two were out. Dean walked White and then the speedy centerfielder went all the way to third when Manager Frisch missed Bill DeLancey's peg from the plate. After fouling off six straight pitches, Cochrane tapped a grounder to Rip Collins between first and second. The plucky manager beat the throw to first but received a bad injury to his knee in doing so. Of course White scored on the play.

The Cardinals took the front again in the fifth, this time counting twice. Durocher led off with a single and Dean bunted him down to second. Martin then hit a single to "Goose" Goslin in left field and the "Goose" attempted to catch Durocher at the plate but the throw was wild and the shortstop counted while Martin went all the way to third. Martin came home a moment later on Rothrock's out, short to first.

The fighting Tigers came back in the sixth to deadlock the count again. White led off with a walk and Cochrane sent him to third with his third straight hit of the afternoon. Charlie Gehringer hit a grounder to Dean who errored, White scoring and both Cochrane and Gehringer getting safe.

Goslin attempted a sacrifice bunt but Bill DeLancey, North Carolina receiver, was fast on the play and caught Cochrane at third. Billy Rogell flew out but Big Hank Greenberg brought the tying marker in with a single. However, Dean brought in the final and winning tally for the Cardinals in the first of the next frame.

Both hurlers got in numerous other holes but masterful pitching and some more great field-

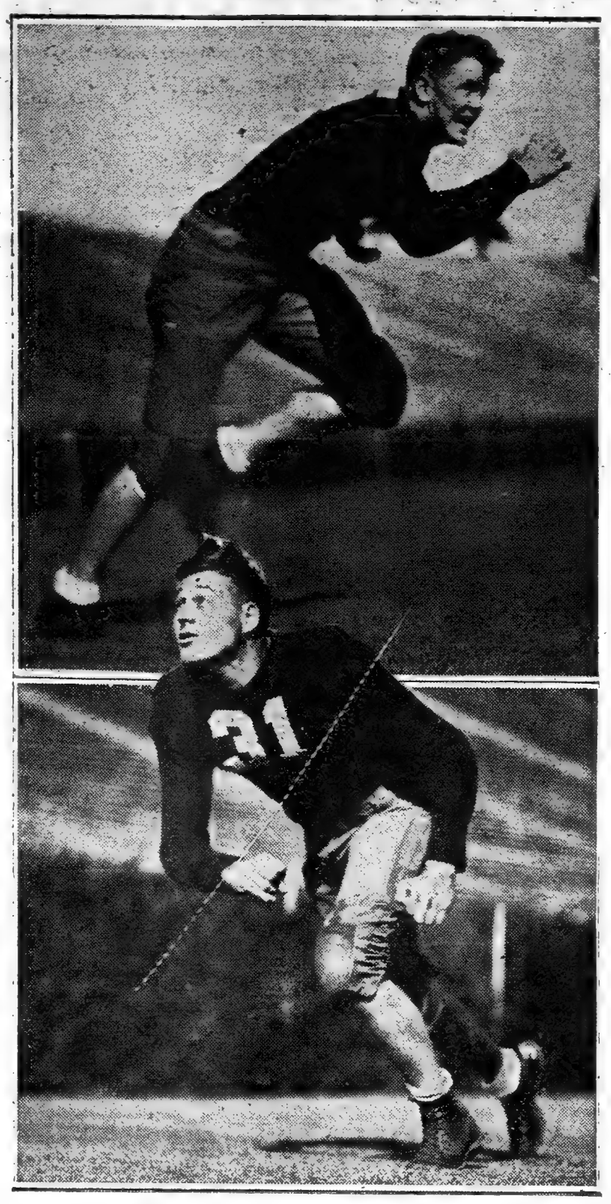
World Series Shorts

It looks like a real World Series now with anything likely to happen before the seventh and sure final game this afternoon. Many a year has passed since such a close and hard fought series has been staged. The last championship games that can even be compared with the present ones were played back in 1926 between the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees. That series also went seven games with Grover Cleveland Alexander finally pitching the Cardinals to victory.

Much today will depend on what pitchers the rival managers use. Manager Cochrane shot his ace yesterday in the person of "Schoolboy" Rowe hoping to end the series, so now the great catcher is on the spot for a likely hurler. He could use Auker, who won Saturday but who allowed four runs and so doesn't look much like a sure winner. Some are saying that he will send Chief Hoggsett, Indian, who has done some nice relief work, to the hill, while he might even call on Tommy Bridges who worked such a fine game just two days ago, or Crowder, who started the opening tilt only to be the victim of misplays.



Manager Frisch also is in a slight hole as to who will be the best man to go into the box. "Dizzy" Dean, with only one day of rest may get the call again despite his loss or Frisch may take a chance on Wild Bill Hallahan once more. Hallahan twirled the second contest allowing only two runs over eight and a third frames.

Two records were certainly tied, one broken, and possibly a couple of others tampered with yesterday. Jo-Jo White walked a couple of times more and tied Babe Ruth's old record for walks in a series which stands at eight. "Ducky" Medwick hit two more singles and tied the record of nine. Frankie Frisch continued to break his own record of World Series games played in. And Ernie Orsatti must have done something with records when he caught seven flies in centerfield, three of his putouts coming in one inning.

Mural Tag Football Opens With Klutz And Betas In Close Wins

Only Two Games on Opening Card; Klutz Downs Old East In Thriller, 18-6.

SWAIN-NEW DORMS TODAY

Mangum, 1933 Campus Champs, Opens Year Meeting Everett; S. A.E. vs Lambda Chi's.

The 1934-35 intramural athletic season got off to a flying start yesterday afternoon as Klutz Building downed Old East 13-6, and Beta Theta Pi romped over Pi Kappa Alpha, 18-2, in the opening tag football contests.

With fraternity rushing a thing of the past, today's sessions should find the championship battles in full swing as Mangum, 1933 campus titlist, opposes Everett in the feature game.

Klutz over Old East

Klutz Building and Old East furnished the best action in yesterday's encounters. Though the former was outgained, 6-4, in first downs, fine passing enabled it to come through victorious, 13-6. All scoring was done in the opening half.

Craig went over for the first touchdown for Old East, and Wilkens knotted the count shortly after for the Klutz gridmen. Just before the opening period closed Terry scored for Klutz and converted the extra point, virtually clinching the contest. Old East fought gamely in the second half, gaining six first downs to two for Klutz, but the latter's defense was sturdy and repulsed every threat.

Betas Take First

The Betas went one-up in the fraternity league as they snowed under Pi Kappa Alpha, 18-2. Tallies by Rose, Tennille and Rand accounted for the winners' points, while the Pikas' lone score came when an opponent back stepped behind his own goal line to count a touchback. The winners led 6-2 at the half.

Law School was handed a victory as Old West failed to show up, and Kappa Sigma won on a forfeit from S. P. E. Swain Hall and New Dorms postponed their game until this afternoon.

4:00: 1. Swain Hall vs. New Dorms.

5:00: 1. S. A. E. vs. Lambda Chi Alpha; 2. Delta Tau Delta vs. Phi Gamma Delta; 3. Mangum vs. Everett.

Frosh Boxing

Coach Crayton Rowe of boxing wants all freshmen who are interested in boxing to report to him at Emerson field this afternoon sometime between 2:30 and 4:00 o'clock. Training will probably get underway this week.

NETMEN TO HOLD SCHOOL TOURNEY

Singles Play to Begin October 17, Doubles Follow; All Entries Register Early.

A school tennis tournament, open to all students except lettermen in that sport, will get underway Wednesday, October 17, and will continue until one player finally emerges as the University champion.

Coach Kenfield expects a large turnout and will split the entries into two divisions if the list exceeds sixty. This arrangement will pit freshmen against their fellow-mates and the non-letter upper classmen will battle among themselves.

All students are urged to enter and should notify the managers or Coach Kenfield at the tennis court before October 16. Entries will be received from 3:00 to 5:00 o'clock every afternoon until the closing date.

At the completion of the singles competition, a doubles contest will be inaugurated and a new set of doubles champions will also be ushered in. The matches will be of regulation length with two sets out of three deciding the contest. The final match will be a three out of five affair so as to definitely select a title holder. In the event of separate tourneys for freshmen and non-lettermen, the winners will engage in a super final.

All prospective entries should file their entries as early as possible so that Coach Kenfield can arrange the draw for the opening day.

Five Veteran Boxers

Instead of just four lettermen returning for the boxing team as stated in the DAILY TAR HEEL last week, there will be five veterans back for the 1935 ring team. Captain Sam Giddins, Eustler, Jim Carruth, and Marvin Ray were the letter winners named, but Morty Ellisberg, scrappy middleweight fighter, is also back and will add much to the strength of Coach Rowe's outfit.

First String Looks Good on Runs By Jackson and Bell, but Yearlings Hold Reserves.

MEET GEORGIA SATURDAY

Practice on New Lateral Pass Turns Out Well; Trimpey Is Only Injury.

A scrimmage between the freshmen and reserve elevens featured yesterday's grid practice on Emerson field.

After having outplayed the Tennessee Vols during the first half in last Saturday's game, the Tar Heel's weakening was due in part to the lack of capable reserve strength.

Reserves Work

Determined to build up a dependable team of reserves, Coach Snavely devoted most of his time yesterday to teaching the second and third stringers how the game should be played.

Except for a few nice runs by Don Jackson and Mac Bell, the first-year men held the reserves pretty well in check. Several times the freshman backs broke loose for nice gains around the end. The punting of freshman Burnett was an outstanding feature.

At the beginning of the practice session Coach Snavely gave the first string a new lateral pass that was executed nicely by Dashiell, Shaffer, and Snyder.

The first string then engaged in a light workout followed by calisthenics under the direction of Coach Reed.

The Carolina team emerged from Saturday's affray with only one casualty—John Trimpey, 220-pound tackle, suffered a broken nose. However, he was in uniform today, and Trainer Quinlan promises that he will be ready for heavy work by Wednesday.

The remainder of the week will probably be given over to heavy drills in preparation for the game with the Georgia Bulldogs at Athens Saturday.

French Club Meeting

The first meeting of the French club will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Episcopal parish house. Records of Lucienne Boyer, French torch singer, will furnish entertainment. All students interested in the French language are invited to attend.

Activities for the coming year will be discussed.

DEBATING SQUAD TO MEET TONIGHT

Professor Schwenning to Speak On Trade Unions, Topic of Coming Debate.

Professor G. T. Schwenning of the commerce school will again address the debate squad at its meeting at 9:00 o'clock tonight in 209 Graham Memorial.

Professor Schwenning will speak on trade unions in connection with the coming debate with Oxford University on the query: Resolved, That a strong trade union, organized on a national basis, is essential to civilized society. The Carolina team will uphold the negative side. The date for the debate has been tentatively set for Wednesday, October 31.

Scheduled Debates

Professor William A. Olsen announced yesterday that a debate was scheduled with a team from the National Union of Students of England for December 11. He also announced that plans are being made for a debate with the University of Georgia to be held early in November.

At the meeting last Thursday, it was decided that the debate squad will meet regularly every Tuesday, at 9:00 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

The debate council will meet Wednesday at 7:30 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

'Y' GROUPS JOIN TO DISCUSS WAR

Heath, Vance and MacFarland Lead Discussion in Joint Session of 'Y' Cabinets.

A brief discussion on "Capitalism and War," led jointly by Professor M. S. Heath, Dr. R. B. Vance, and George MacFarland, was held at a combined session of the freshman, sophomore, and junior-senior cabinets last night.

The session was presided over by MacFarland, who made brief introductory remarks on the question. Statements were made by Heath and Vance, and then questions were directed at the speakers from members of the cabinets.

Capitalism Blamed

Quoting the author of "Merchant of Death," MacFarland stated, "To prohibit war capitalism must be destroyed," and pointed out the work of heads of capitalistic organizations in causing war.

Dr. Vance brought out the fact in opposition to the idea of abolishing capitalism that the world had wars before capitalism existed.

Heath showed how capitalism and nationalism were knit together in causing wars and stated that "all wars are destructive to both the winners and the losers."

Because of the small number in attendance the convocation was made a joint affair, instead of carrying out the regular plan of having three separate meetings.

BOOKSHOP PURCHASES TWO NEW PUBLICATIONS

Two outstanding books have recently been added to shelves of the Bull's Head bookshop, it was announced yesterday by Elizabeth Johnson, director.

Keith Fowler, author of "All the Skeletons in All the Closets," hails from Wilmington, N. C., and was a former student at the University.

"Najinsky" is a story of a ballet dancer by his wife, Romola Najinsky. The dancer is still alive today, though the book gives his life a tragic ending.

COMER TO LEAD PEACE WORKERS

Local Townspeople Form Delegation to Interview Senators Friday in Raleigh.

A committee to work up a peace delegation to visit state senators Robert R. Reynolds and Josiah Bailey Friday was appointed here yesterday.

The delegation will be headed by Harry F. Comer, director of the Y. M. C. A., and will include Dr. O. T. Brinkley, Mrs. Taul White, Mrs. Ed Browne, and Mrs. George Logan.

The committee will carry to Raleigh a petition urging the senators to support the peace program of the International Woman's League for Peace, as outlined by Mrs.. Sherman Barnes in her talk here Friday.

Included in the program for international peace are the following main objectives: to urge the adoption by Congress of a permanent peace plan; to urge the reduction in armaments, in order to definitely end the "race" between nations for military supremacy; to urge Congress to take steps to end the corrupting influences of munition manufacturers.

The league advocates a policy by which the government will actually take over the control or ownership of the production and sale of all munitions. By this method of control, the war department could cut munition prices to cost and at the same time reduce war propaganda.

The Woman's Democratic league, a state organization, enthusiastically adopted the program of the Woman's league and pledged their local support. The Chapel Hill committee is very anxious to get up a large delegation to go to Raleigh Friday.

Series Tied Again As Paul Dean Whips Schoolboy Rowe, 4-3

ing pulled things out of the fire.

Ernie Orsatti, centerfielder, was the big star in assisting Dean on the defense. Orsatti turned in seven putouts and twice raced back to get sure extra base hits off the bat of "Schoolboy" Rowe, one being the final out of the game.

Orsatti also took one fly and pegged it home to hold Charlie Gehringer on third. Bill DeLancey, behind the plate, helped the Cardinal cause quite a bit with his play. The rookie receiver had three beautiful assists besides six putouts.

However, probably the biggest star of the contest was Manager Mickey. Coming back after hurting his leg in the play at first, Cochrane continued to catch a great game. Once he was toppled by Orsatti in a close play at the plate, but the fighting leader came up with the ball. He got singles his first three times at the plate and may have gotten a fourth blow if his bad leg hadn't slowed him up.

Besides Cochrane's three for four, Durocher also got a trio of blows in four, one of his going for a double. Medwick and Rothrock each had two knocks in four, one of Rothrock's going for two bases. Fox got the only other extra base tap, another double.

Big Plans For Homecoming Day Are Announced By Jake Snyder

Newsreel Men May Be Here for Parade

Prizes to Be Offered to Stores, Dormitories, and Fraternities for Best Decorations.

Elaborate plans for Homecoming Day, October 20, were announced yesterday by Jake Snyder, chairman of the University club committee sponsoring the celebration.

The occasion will be the day of the Carolina-Kentucky football game here in Kenan stadium, and special arrangements have been made through the cooperation of campus groups to welcome visitors and alumni.

Gala Array

The entire campus will be in gala array with local stores, dormitories, fraternities, and University buildings adorned with decorations suitable to the day.

Prizes will be offered to stores, dormitories, and fraternities for the best exterior decorations.

Sponsors for the football game will be selected, and there will be a special program of entertainment during the half with new cheerio stunts, Rameses III, and other gala surprises being presented.

Reunions will take place for old football team members, and special celebrations and meetings will be arranged for these groups.

Friday night there will be a torchlight parade and a pep meeting. There are possibilities that newsreel men will be here for the parade, according to Snyder.

Invitations have been extended by the University club to Ex-Governor O. Max Gardner, Governor Ehringhaus, Lieutenant-Governor Graham, and other prominent state officials. Also included in the list of visitors will be the president of the University of Kentucky, and officials from that institution.

During the week before the Kentucky game, a radio broadcast will be given over station WBT, Charlotte.

Individual Homecoming affairs will be held in several of the University fraternities. Phi

John G. Beard Talks On Pharmacy Week Over Durham Station

Pharmacy Dean Speaks in Nationally Sponsored Series.

Last night, Dean John G. Beard of the University pharmacy school gave a 15 minute talk over station WDNC in Durham. This talk was one in a series being sponsored by the pharmacy societies of this country and abroad.

These broadcasts are features of the program of the International Pharmacy Week, in progress this week.

The subject of Dean Beard's speech was the "Objects and Purposes of International Pharmacy Week." He compared the modern methods of pharmacy with the old in regards to the manufacture, exportation, and retailing of products.

The purpose of this week's program is to give the public a clear idea of the useful work being done in the field of pharmacy and to send out to druggists data on experiments being carried on in pharmaceutical laboratories.

Publications Board

At a meeting of the Publications Union board in Graham Memorial yesterday it was decided to allow Don Becker, DAILY TAR HEEL photographer, to sell sports pictures to other than the aforementioned publications.

Other business included the decision to pay three censors $1.00 each for censoring the Finjan, humor magazine, and allowing the Yackety Yack office an overhauled typewriter.

ASSEMBLY HEARS SPEECH BY HOUSE

Life of Intellectual Interest Is Stressed in Talk; Di Debate Challenge Is Accepted.

"The thing that must live in the Phi assembly is the intellectual interest, especially in debate," said Dean R. B. House to members of that body at its weekly meeting last evening.

Dean House, a member of the Phi when, together with the Dialectic society, it controlled almost every aspect of extra curricular life at the University except athletics, said that he never expected to see the Phi attain its former political supremacy, nor did he desire it to do so. "Let the weight of your authority be intellectual," he told the members.

Unexploited Field

"There is one field that has not been exploited at the University," he said, "That is a means for closer relation between students and faculty. I hope this organization may help provide this means."

After Dean House's speech, the challenge from the Di senate to hold a debate between the respective organizations was accepted.

Three committees were appointed the parliamentery rules committee, composed of Winthrop Durfee, chairman, Albert McAnally, and Edward Vick; the Yackety Yack committee composed of Alexander Thompson, chairman, Winthrop Durfee, and Wiley Parker; and the debate committee composed of John Dudley, chairman, Billy Sewell and John Hodges.

FERA CHECKS NOT HERE

Edwin S. Lanier, head of the self-help bureau, announced yesterday that the FERA checks for September had not been received.

The money is expected within the next few days and when the checks are ready for delivery, an announcement to that effect will appear in the DAILY TAR HEEL. Until then, students holding FERA positions are asked not to make application for salary.

Math Seminar

The meeting of the mathematics seminar will take place at 3:00 o'clock today in room 360 Phillips hall. Dean Hobbs will address the meeting on some phase of teaching mathematics.

DISTANT ALUMNI TO HEAR GRAHAM SPEAK BY PHONE

President to Address Northern Clubs by Long Distance Tomorrow and Friday.

OBSERVE FOUNDER'S DAY

Dr. Frank Porter Graham, president of the Greater University of North Carolina, will speak tomorow night through a special long distance telephone arrangement to University alumni convening at a banquet in Boston.

By the same telephone set-up, President Graham will speak Friday night to Pittsburgh alumni who will be convening at a special business session.

Phone Calls

The talks will take the form of long distance telephone calls, and at the banquets in Boston and Pittsburgh special amplifying set-ups will be attached to the receiving devices to enable all members in the convocations to hear the University president.

Both the Boston and Pittsburgh clubs are permanent University alumni organizations, and the sessions will be the annual convocations of the groups.

Former University students now studying at Harvard University will be invited to attend the Boston convocation. Among the alumni present will be Claiborn Carr, editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL last year.

Dr. Graham's speeches will be informal and will only last about ten minutes. The subject for the talks have not as yet been announced.

INITIATION RITES HELD BY SENATE

Reception Follows Initiation; Annual Debate Challenge Is Issued to Phi Assembly.

Approximately 25 new members were initiated into the Dialectic senate at its meeting last night in the senate chamber in New West.

The entire program for last night's meeting was devoted to the conducting of these new men into the society. An especially prepared initiation ceremony was performed.

A brief business session was called during the course of the meeting at which time, by a unanimous vote of the senate, it was decided to challenge the Phi assembly to a debate.

Challenge Accepted

The challenge was conducted to the Phi hall where it was accepted. Speaker Smithwick predicted that his organization would win the contest.

This challenge of the Phi by the Di has become an annual affair. Last year the debate was made into a freshman contest and resulted in a unanimous victory for the Di.

After the formal meeting of the senate had been completed, there was a reption for the new members. Refreshments were served.

New Teaching Fellow

W. A. McKnight of Shelby has been taken into the romance language department as teaching fellow in Spanish. McKnight, a graduate student here last year, received his B.S. degree at Davidson.

JUGOSLAVIAN DICTATOR KILLED

Murder Precipitates Turmoil; French Cabinet Acts In Crisis

Paris, France, Oct. 9.—(UP)—The French government, led by President LeBrun, removed tonight to Marseilles, where an urgent cabinet meeting was called at 6:00 o'clock to consider the international turmoil stirred by the slaying of King Alexander I of Jugoslavia, a guest on French soil.

Marseilles, France, Oct. 9.—(UP)—A good-will gesture toward France on the part of Jugoslavia was brought to an abrupt and tragic end today when King Alexander I, dictator of Jugoslavia, and Louis Barthou, foreign minister of France, were slain by political assassins.

King Alexander and the French Minister were passing through the street in an automobile when a fusillade of about 20 shots was fired from the crowd. The king was mortally wounded by three shots.

Assassin Killed

One of the murderers, Petrus Kalem, was beaten down and killed by guards.

The visit of Alexander to France was regarded as of great diplomatic importance.

The Jugoslav king was cheered by throngs as he passed through the Marseilles streets. He was riding in the first automobile of the procession past the stock exchange when the shots were fired. His car was the only one of the entire procession to be hit.

The king was taken at once to the prefecture where surgeons began their emergency work. Their efforts to save his life, however, were in vain.

Two high officials who also died in the affair were General Alphonse of France and Alexander Dimitriejevitch, marshal in Alexander's court.

A policeman shot in the melee also died tonight.

Six others, including Admiral Berthelot of France, were gravely wounded while scores of spectators suffered saber and revolver wounds.

King Alexander was on one of the most important missions of the year involving Jugoslavia's relation to the new Franco-Italian rapprochement.

The assassination came with the crushing effectiveness of its historical parallel at Sarajevo when Archduke Ferdinand of Austria was killed in 1914.

The assassin was armed with an automatic revolver. He was a member of a secret political society pledged to kill Alexander because his dictatorship had killed the Crotian movement for autonomy.

Eleven-year-old Petar, son of Alexander, became defacto king of Jugoslavia.

Late Yackety Yacks Will Be Distributed

Those people who did not receive their Yackety Yacks last spring may get them by calling by the Yackety Yack office today or tomorrow between 2:00 and 5:00 o'clock.

Graduate students will be required to present a notice from the business office stating that they have paid the necessary fees before they receive their annuals.

Students who were not in school for all three quarters last year will have to pay $1.35 for each quarter in which they were absent and therefore did not pay the publication fees.

UNIVERSITY GETS NEW LOAN FUND

Charles L. Coon Memorial for Wilson High School Graduates Amounts to $1,000.

The University has come into possession of the Charles L. Coon memorial loan fund, amounting to approximately $1,000, according to an announcement made yesterday by Felix A. Grisette, director of the alumni loyalty fund.

This fund was created several years ago by the students of the Wilson public schools in memory of their superintendent for many years, Charles L. Coon. Every year since, the graduating class of the Charles L. Coon high school has added to the gift.

Given by Trustees

From the date of its creation the fund has been administered by a board of trustees consisting of several prominent Wilson citizens, of which Mr. K. R. Curtis, superintendent of Wilson schools, is secretary.

Henceforth it will be administered by the University loan fund committee in the same manner as other unrestricted University loan funds, with the exception that the beneficiary of the fund must be a graduate of the Charles L. Coon high school.

Miss Mary Ida Blackburn is the holder of the award for this school year.

STUDENT DIRECTORY LOST

The single typewritten copy of the annual student directory, which is now being published, disappeared from the desk of the Y. M. C. A. office Saturday afternoon.

Since it is needed to verify the addresses of students, authorities hope that it will be returned.

Spruill to Speak

"Contemporary Monetary Experiments" will be the topic for discussion when the economics seminar holds its weekly meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock in room 113 Bingham hall.

Professor Spruill will be the principal speaker at this second meeting of the seminar for 1934-35.

CALL CABINET MEETING TO ESTABLISH REGENCY

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Oct. 9.—(UP)—Jugoslavia tonight was swept by a wave of apprehension which was reflected in the frantic cabinet meeting called at the palace.

The ministers met at 7:00 o'clock this evening to discuss the crisis and long after midnight the lights were still burning.

It is believed that the first step will be the establishment of a regency, probably consisting of three men, to rule the nation until young Petar VI comes of age.

PARAGRAPHICS

Secret practice at the football field. Wonder if that's when they practice huddles.

"Graduates Have Affair Tonight"—Headline in reputable campus daily. Those old fellows certainly get all the breaks.

Chicago scientists on their way to Alaska discovered a herd of 500 rare northern sea elephants, did they? It must have been a temptation not to bring 'em back in incubators for the world's fair.

Aid, State And Federal

The outlook for federal aid for North Carolina public schools has become exceedingly cloudy again as Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, announces that no plans have been made about the matter following a conference with Secretary Ickes, Public Works administrator.

Congress made no specific appropriation for the public schools, as it was asked to do, so administrator Hopkins declared that nothing could be done for them except for unemployed teachers, who would be treated on the same basis as all other unemployed folk.

As the Raleigh News and Observer bureau presented it, "since North Carolina teachers, although very poorly paid, are not unemployed and the schools not closed, adherence to this philosophy would mean that the state would receive nothing at all."

Despite the fact that North Carolina school teachers are miserable examples of educational inspiration—which is due in some measure to the low salary scale—we feel that the system is better maintained at an admittedly low standard than not exist at all. There are many, however, who believe that a system such as this state supports with the money it can scrape up is doing more harm than good; but for all practical purposes, it must be steadfastly asserted that any system is better than none to a community such as Carolina.

Last year North Carolina received, after much delay, $500,000 in federal aid. This year state officials were hoping for a million and a half or two million. With no appropriation, the future would present a most disheartening picture.

The Advisory Budget commission of the state has been requested to recommend to the 1935 legislature that the appropriation for operation of the public schools of the state be increased from $16,000,000 to $20,200,000, which would make possible a salary increase for teachers of 25 per cent. Upon this appropriation, in face of federal abandonment, will depend the future of our educational standard.

A report upon the state's recollection of revenue brought some hope of a salary increase in our educational system. It is felt that public school teachers will have first call on whatever money the legislature makes available for salary increase. That at least is somewhat encouraging.

There is one action that state officials must not take at any costs, regardless of the condition of the exchequer: the standard must not be allowed to get lower than it is now. Close up half of the schools, but for the love of state posterity, maintain what standard we have.

Student Entertainment

We mentioned in these columns earlier this month that the Student Entertainment committee has arranged for presentation this year an extremely well-balanced and choice group of select entertainments. And now we add that if the rest of the series comes anywhere as near pleasing a hard-to-please student body as "Green Pastures" did Monday night, we will suggest that the whole committee be nominated to drink from the Sacred Skull in the first issue of the Buccajan.

We don't remember a student entertainment completely "clicking" with so many students. Not in the rôle of dramatic critic—goodness knows "Green Pastures" needs none of our meager opinion—but as interested critics of this student body, we believe that there were very few students who left Monday night's performance with anything but praise for the committee's selection. Northerners liked the satire, southerners enjoyed the reality, westerners applauded the music, and the faculty was absorbed with everything except the acoustics, which neither it nor anyone else appreciated.

The series is off to a good start. If the quality keeps up, the Student Entertainment committee will have that for which it has looked for a long time and has never obtained—mass approval of the student body.

Start It Up Again

Summer came along and nobody read the newspapers or became all upset when a bunch of foreigners (according to probable rumors from the front) assassinated each other. So when this fall brought students back to Chapel Hill, we find that it forgot to bring the Foreign Policy league with it.

Of course, everybody's been busy getting off on the right foot—or the left—and besides, the national instigators of the student peace movement seem to have completely forgotten that there is a University of North Carolina.

Spain's uproar perhaps will serve the purpose of awakening this league again on the campus. It was a noble group and seemed destined to a definite position in campus affairs. We hope the old members remember to get going again.

Get Yourself A Rule Book

The national rules for the great Existence Race are being changed. If you remember, the old rules were bound in a big massive cover of stodgy design, and entitled Rugged Individualism, or Every Man for Himself. The reorganizer of the rules, a man named Demovelt, has already selected a modernistic design for the cover, and has named the new rule book, The New Deal.

When the Rugged Individualism issue of the rules came out back in the good old days, it was quite adequate, because the number of runners was small, and the track was wide. Large and small alike were able to reach the goal with very little difficulty. But of late years the number of participants in the great race has increased so, and the track has become so crowded, that when, in 1929, several of the big boys slipped and crashed, causing practically all the others in the race to pile up on them in great confusion, it became definitely apparent that a reform in the rules was necessary.

Mr. Demovelt tells us that he has no intention of returning to the great riotousness of before 1929. He tells us that the rules are going to be much more stringent, and that some of the boys who have been going along merrily, stepping on other people's toes, are going to find their own trod upon. He tells us that some of his rules, temporary as they are, have already helped to pull some of the smaller boys to their feet, and to get them started goalwards again.

It looks as if the new rule book, when finished, will be decidedly different from the old edition, and will require plentiful study on the part of the neophytes in our race, the college graduates. No longer are they going to be able to go out and run right through the crowd, as has been done heretofore. There are too many others running to permit that. Instead, they must expect to lend a helping hand here and there, give some other runner a push, to have a social, instead of an individual viewpoint. In short, the race for existence is to be run entirely differently from the former practice.

We'd better sharpen up our spikes and buy a rule book.

The Peace Of Europe

When King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Foreign Minister Barthou of France were killed yesterday in Marseilles, they were on their way to a conference which was regarded as of great diplomatic importance to France and the Little Entente, of which Yugoslavia is a member.

The visit involved France's attempt to bring Italy into a peace bloc; which resulted in five deaths.

"Fame Means Little After 70 Years," Says Star Of "The Green Pastures"

Richard Harrison, "De Lawd" of Negro Drama, Took All Roles in One-Man Repertory Company Formed upon His Graduation from Dramatic School.

"Fame and stardom mean little to a man after seventy years."

A portly old gentleman with a kindly face and a full rich voice was talking in the Playmakers theatre Monday afternoon, telling the experiences of a varied and picturesque life which in his old age finds him the creator of one of the best loved roles in this decade of American drama.

Richard B. Harrison, "De Lawd" of "The Green Pastures," was speaking of his life in and out of the theatre. On his 70th birthday he was made a star, and yet the old man said he didn't know what it meant. He is the same man and he played his part in the same way. Being a star could not alter that.

Plays are not made by stars, he pointed out. "The smallest part in "The Green Pastures" is as important as the largest," he said. Every character is essential to the whole, and the secret of the never-ending freshness of "The Green Pastures" is in the feeling of the cast that every night must be a first night and that no actor may get out of character even for a moment.

Thrice a Doctor

This principle, according to Dr. Harrison (he is a doctor thrice over, having been showered with LL.D.'s), is the essential if acting is to be a living experience and something of permanent worth. This feeling is the outgrowth of a life which has taken him over the whole of the United States and Canada and brought him into contact with nearly the whole range of human experience.

Like so many of his race, he was born with a love for acting, and the winning of a prize in a reading contest when he was nine years old made the lure of the stage a very real thing for him. But he was not destined to become a famed actor until 56 years had passed.

His early life in Ontario was divided between working in a distillery, in a hotel and many other places in rapid succession. During this time he was studying in a night dramatic school and seeing every great play and great actor that came near him.

After his graduation from a dramatic school and a special course in Shakespeare, he felt that he was ready to act. But somehow his plans did not work out. Twice he was on the verge of being employed by famous companies, but each time the objection to his race kept him from the job. But his determination was as strong as ever, and so he formed a one-man Shakespearean repertory company.

Took All Roles

Speaking of this Harrison said, "I played all the parts. In "Julius Caesar" I murdered myself in the senate, said 'Et tu Brute' to myself, and last of all delivered an oration over my corpse. In the "Merchant of Venice" I was Shylock, Portia, Basanio, Gratiano and all the rest in turns." In a short time he had a repertory of four Shakespearean plays and a good old fashioned "rantin' play" called "Damon and Pythias."

Thus began his barnstorming days. Finally, however, he had to give it up because it didn't pay. He became a Pullman porter, a waiter in a private car, and later superintendent of the mailing department. "Here again I played all the parts," he said, "being my own assistant, clerk and delivery boy."

By this time he was married and the father of two children, but he was far from settled. After further wanderings, during which he spent some time in Greensboro at A. & T., he arrived in New York in January, 1930, in the capacity of reader for the Federated Colored Churches of New York. It was here that he was offered the role that was later to bring him fame and stardom.

When he was first offered the part of "De Lawd," he refused, and it was only after much persuasion that against the advice of friends he accepted. He and Mr. Connelly disagreed as to the interpretation of the role but no amount of persuasion would change Harrison. The show opened before the usual hard-boiled Broadway audience of first-nighters, and Harrison and the entire cast took New York by storm.

After that first night performance Mr. Connelly came to "De Lawd" with tears in his eyes. "Harrison." he said, "you have made me."

"That goes both ways," replied Harrison, "for you have made me. We'll go fifty-fifty on that, but don't you ever try to tell me how to be a Negro. I've been one for 65 years."

The present cast of "The Green Pastures" is the same that opened with the play except for Noah and Gabriel. Five of the original cast have died—two were Noah and three were Gabriel.

The historical program will proceed from there to the Playmakers theatre, where the Carolina Playmakers, under the direction of Prof. Frederick H. Koch, will present "Agatha," a historical play by the former Jane Toy, of Chapel Hill.

The scenes of this play are laid in pre-Civil War Hillsboro. The former Miss Toy, now Mrs. Charles Coolidge, of New Jersey, is visiting her mother, Mrs. W. D. Toy of Chapel Hill, and will see her play presented tonight.

Today the bureau of information which has been established in the Carolina Inn will be moved to the lobby of Memorial hall.

GERMAN ETCHING GIVEN TO UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

The Coral-Schurz foundation, which last winter sponsored an exhibition of German graphic arts in Chapel Hill, has presented the University library with an etching by Kaethe Kowlwitz entitled "The Peasants Revolt."

This picture was voted the favorite of the University students who attended the exhibition last year.

The etching is now stored with the University library and will be shown at a later date.

Cards Win World Series As Dizzy Twirls Superbly To Shut Out Bengals, 11-0

St. Louis Gets 17 Hits From Six Pitchers; Auker Starts.

"Ducky" Medwick Driven from Field by Bleacherites.

Navin Field, Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean today put the masterful finishing touches to his most illustrious 1934 baseball season by white-washing the Detroit Tigers, 11-0, and bringing to his St. Louis Cardinals the World's Championship.

By winning the seven-game series, the Missouri nine comes into possession of the title which they have won six times in the past ten years. They last won it in 1931 by upsetting the Philadelphia Athletics.

Each Cardinal victory was credited to the arm of one of the Dean Bros. Both twirlers annexed a pair of wins each to gain for their nine the diamond crown and became the only pitchers of the 1934 series to win more than one game. "Dizzy" pitched three of the games, losing one.

Dean Just Right

In winning today the elder Dean turned in the first shutout of the series and also some of the best pitching seen on either Navin Field or Sportsman's Park during the last week. "Dizzy" was superb today, the complete master of ceremonies. He allowed six hits but they were far between. Five of the Tigers whiffed as Dean bore down mercilessly.

The whole Cardinal team was playing inspired ball, confident of victory after having eked out a 4-3 decision over the renowned

World Series Shorts

The old record of 13 hits in a World Series held by "Shoeless" Joe Jackson and "Pepper" Martin failed to go down before the two hard-hitting outfits. Four players managed to get 11 safe blows, Martin, "Ducky" Medwick, Rip Collins, all of St. Louis, and Charlie Gehringer, Detroit. Incidently, Collins, like Medwick, got four of his blows in a row, tying the record. Medwick and Gehringer managed to get up to bat less times than the other boys so led the batting for the series. Each had a mark of .379 and were folowed by Collins and Martin with .367 and .355. It just so happened that Gehringer and Medwick were the leading hitters on their respective teams all through the pennant chases.

Martin was in front with eight runs, while Jo-Jo White, walk artist, followed him with six. In spite of his failure to come through in the pinches on numerous occasions, Big Hank Greenberg, Tiger first sacker, led in runs batted in with seven; Jack Rothrock, Cardinal right fielder, drove in six. Greenberg also headed the strikeout victims with nine fans. He was followed by Collins and Medwick with eight and seven.

* * *

Only four home runs were hit in the entire series, which is quite a contrast to the past years of Ott, Foxx, and Ruth. Gehringer, Medwick, Greenberg, and Bill DeLancey each had a four base knock. No player was able to get more than one triple while Pete Fox led the double hitters with six. Bill DeLancey came second as he cracked out four two-base blows.

Paul Dean had the best pitching average while Jerome led in strike-outs with 17, followed by Bridges and Rowe.

PHI GAMS, S. A. E. WIN TAG GAMES

Delta Tau's Lose to Phi Gams as S.A.E. Downs Lambda Chi's; Mangum Forfeits.

The second day in the race for tag football honors found but two games being played as Phi Gamma Delta displayed wonderful teamwork to defeat Delta Tau Delta, 25-14, and S. A. E. pushed over a lone tally to win from Lambda Chi Alpha, 6-0, yesterday.

Last year's campus champs, Mangum dormitory, gave notice that they were not to be a serious threat to retain their title as they forfeited to Everett, and Swain Hall also added a victory via the same method from New Dorms.

The Phi Gams did not take any too much time in settling down to things, and after but two minutes of play, quarterback Hodges dropped back at midfield and shot a long pass to Hoggard for a touchdown. Another pass from Hodges to Keel added the extra point. Shortly after, Johnson side-stepped several Delta rushers and passed to McDaniels, who raced 20 yards for another tally.

The second contest of the afternoon, while not as spectacular from a scoring viewpoint, presented two fine defensive teams battling on even terms throughout, with Freeman carrying the ball across in the opening half to give the S. A. E. squad a 6-0 victory over Lambda Chi Alpha.

Today's schedule:

4:00—(1) Manly vs. Ruffin; (2) Phi Alpha vs. A. T. O.; (3) Chi Phi vs. Z. B. T.

5:00—(1) Kappa Alpha vs. Sigma Chi; (2) Lewis vs. Graham; (3) D. K. E. vs. T. E. P.

FROSH GRIDSTERS WORK HARD FOR FRIDAY'S BATTLE

Yearlings Look Good in Practices; Expected to Outweigh Wake Forest Freshmen.

PUNTING, PASSING GOOD

Carolina holds high expectations of presenting one of the strongest freshman teams in the history of the school this Friday afternoon out on Kenan Memorial field. The opening kick-off at 3:00 o'clock will pit the promising Tar Babies against a smaller, but no less powerful edition of the Wake Forest yearlings.

The frosh are entering into the final days of practice in preparation for a hard battle. Coaches James and Fysal shot their charges through a long and stiff workout yesterday afternoon on Emerson field. As the frosh went through their paces they appeared to be a well finished product of the Snavely school. The plays they tried were executed with bullet-like precision.

Punting Good

One of the most outstanding features of their practice was the expert punting. A great majority of the kicks spiraled from forty to fifty yards through the air. Burnette, an outstanding back, appeared to be the leading exponent in this field, but he was closely followed by a large group of backfield aspirants and also quite a few versatile linemen.

CROSS COUNTRY OPENS SCHEDULE WITH N. C. STATE

Captain Williamson, McRae, and Waldrop to Lead Tar Heels On Six Meet Schedule.

SEVEN LETTERMEN BACK

Harry Williamson, National Junior A. A. U. 1500-meter champion, captains the University of North Carolina cross country team, which Coach Dale Ranson is rapidly whipping into shape for the stiff schedule, opening with N. C. State here October 27.

The Tar Heels also run at Washington and Lee November 3, at V. M. I. November 5, at Davidson November 10, and at Duke November 17. The annual Southern Conference run November 24 will bring the season to a climax.

Conference Champs

Coach Ranson is banking on three stars from last year's crack track team, Captain Williamson, Edwin McRae, and Ed Waldrop, who won the conference championship at a half, mile, and two miles, respectively, for the veteran nucleus of the team.

Four lettermen are available in addition to Williamson, McRae, and Waldrop. They are Haywood Curlee, Fab Haywood, Louis Conte, and Gerry Goldman.

Graham Gammon, Bob Gardiner, and Marvin Allen, who tied for first place in the annual Cake Race last fall, are the leading sophomores. Other rookies who are making a bid for places are Capasso, Gabori, Aderholt, Blue, Bower, Daniel, and Hairston.

Varsity Footballers Given New Tricks To Use Against Bulldogs

BLUE DEVILS TO TACKLE GA. TECH IN SAT. HEADLINER

Game in Durham Resembles "Grudge Battle"; Jackets Present Fast Aerial Attack.

DUKE WORKS ON DEFENSE

Durham, N. C., Oct. 9.—Facing what is probably the best-equipped team in the south for the aerial, Duke's Blue Devils are working overtime on pass defense this week as they make preparations for their all-important "revenge" battle with Georgia Tech in Duke stadium Saturday.

With Jack Phillips, Tech captain and fullback and rated as perhaps the best passer in the south, returning to action in top condition, the Blue Devils may expect aerial thrusts from all directions in Duke stadium Saturday.

The Duke defenders did not look "so hot" in knocking down passes Saturday and two Georgia Tech scouts in the press box noticed the fact, and that apparent weakness was probably the story they took back to the head coach, Bill Alexander.

Followers of the Blue Devils do not have to be reminded of Phillips' passing ability. It was his accurate heaving of the ball into the waiting hands of Tech receivers that led directly to the Yellow Jackets' victory over Duke in Atlanta last year. He gets his passes off fast and they travel bullet-like.

And Phillips is not the only Tech back who can toss them. Bill McKay, Durham boy, who starred as Phillips' substitute in the Clemson game and can play either halfback or fullback, is also a great passer. Other chunkers are Shorty Roberts, quarterback, and Pug Boyd, halfback.

The aerial game can off-set a lot of ground-gaining and from the way it looks now Tech will have the throwing game all to themselves, for Duke's passing has been ineffective in the Blue Devils' first two games.

Snavely Works First-Stringers and Reserves Long and Hard to Get Team in Shape.

COONER LEADS RESERVES

Shaffer and Jackson Stand Out for First Eleven in Scrimmage with Reserves and Frosh.

The Tar Heels football aggregation worked until well after sundown in Kenan stadium yesterday.

Coach Snavely began the practice session by teaching the team some new trick plays which he hopes to run against Georgia this week-end.

Charlie Shaffer, Don Jackson, and Randy Cooner were the backfield luminaries in the scrimmage which followed. Jackson broke loose for a 70-yard run, only to be run down from behind a few yards short of the goal line. He later carried the ball around the second team's end for a score after three line plays had proved unsuccessful.

Shaffer made the second touchdown against the reserves on a beautiful 40-yard run with an intercepted pass.

Cooner Outstanding

The running, punting, and passing of Randy Cooner was the highlight in the second string backfield. He shows promise of developing into a triple threat to any opposing team.

A fighting freshman team was sent in to oppose the first stringers, replacing the second team. The yearlings held the varsity on defense, and also made appreciable gains against the first team on offense. The varsity fumbled several times while in the shadow of the yearlings' goal line. Shaffer ripped through tackle for ten yards and the final score, after the freshmen had lost the ball on a blocked punt.

UNC Heads Big Five

With N. C. State's surprising defeat at the hands of the powerful Wake Forest Deacon eleven, the Carolina football team took undivided honors for first place in the second week of the 1934 Big Five gridiron race.

JANE TOY TO SEE 'AGATHA' REVIVED FOR U. D. C. GROUP

Author and Former Playmaker Will Attend Presentation of Her Play Tonight.

PLAYMAKER CAST NAMED

Delegates to the U. D. C. convention will see a revival of "Agatha," by Mrs. Charles Coolidge, nee Jane Toy, presented by the Carolina Playmakers this evening.

"Agatha," originally produced by the Carolina Playmakers in January 1923, included Miss Toy in the role of Agatha. Wednesday night Mrs. Coolidge will see the same part performed by Fowler Spencer, a Carolina student.

The coming special performance is part of the entertainment planned for the delegates to the 38th annual U. D. C. convention. Harry Davis, assistant director of the Carolina Playmakers, will be in charge of this production. Robert H. Proctor, Carolina student, will design the settings for the play.

Plantation Play

"Agatha," a romance of the plantation days, takes us back to the Carolina of sixty years ago. The author, a native of the section where the scene of the play is laid, heard the story of the recalcitrant Confederate officer who, at the close of the war, hit upon the idea of renaming his daughters after famous southern generals. It seems that he actually carried out the idea. This is the theme for the play.

Although the period of the play is that of the bitter Reconstruction days, Miss Toy retains in "Agatha" the old spirit of romance which not even the shadow of a devastating war could dispel. The play holds a charming atmosphere—an atmosphere of crinolines, of crystal chandeliers, and sweeping courtesies—an atmosphere far different from ours of today.

Cast Announced

The cast for the performance, as announced by Professor Frederick H. Koch yesterday, is as follows: Colonel Joseph Pettiway, Moore Bryson; Miss Molly Pettiway, Eloise Sheppard; Amabel, Hester Barlow; Angela, Frances McCraw; Agatha, Fowler Spencer; Major Benjamin Baity, Douglas Hume; Fairfax Merriman, Charles Lloyd; Shadrack, Felix Hamrick.

812 Taking French

The Romance language department announces the greatest enrollment since the fall quarter of 1930. French leads the other two languages, Spanish and Italian, with 812 students. Spanish is next with 368 students. Only nine students are taking Italian. This gives a total of 1,198 students, as to 1,248 in 1930.

French classes, which usually have enrolled about twice as many as in Spanish, are a little heavier this year.

PRESS EXECUTIVES WILL CONVENE HERE

The executive committee of the North Carolina Press association will convene here October 20 to make plans for the annual newspaper institute in January, it was announced yesterday by Russell M. Grumman, extension division director.

The January meeting will be the eleventh annual convention of the institute and will bring representatives here from all over the state.

The institute will be jointly sponsored by the North Carolina Press institute, the University, and Duke University.

Cards Win World Series As Dizzy Hurls Superbly

"Schoolboy" Rowe yesterday. They hopped on Elton Auker, the same Auker who had beaten them three days ago, at the very first and knocked him from the mound. Likewise did they pepper five other Tiger twirlers, amassing a grand total of 17 base knocks for 26 bases.

"Rip" Collins broke into batting stardom as he parked out four singles in five trips to the platter and batted in a pair of runs.

Same Ole Pepper

"Pepper" Martin again was up to old tricks as he scampered to two stolen bases, beating the powerful throw from the arm of Mickey Cochrane each time. He also crossed the pan three times and garnered a pair of hits.

Frisch led afield with nine chances perfectly. Gehringer also took nine but had one error.

For the first time in World Series history, the Baseball Commissioner, Judge Landis, was called on to make a decision concerning Series play.

It all happened in the sixth inning. With Martin on second and two down, Joe Medwick poled out a long triple, scoring the Cardinal third baseman. "Ducky" Joe slid for the bag and, in doing so, upset Owen who was covering the base. Both went tumbling to the ground. Getting up, they started to mix up with their fists but other players intervened.

Medwick Stormed

When the Cards went to field, Medwick started to his garden. But, the bleachers did not want to be associated with this young fellow who had run into their own player, so they politely gave Joey a nice fruit shower, with a few pop bottles thrown in for good measure. The game was held up. The field was cleaned off. Then more came out of the stands, this time the whole lunch basket. Again it was cleaned off and again there came the downpour.

Then the Judge came into the picture. After much deliberation, he ordered Manager Frisch to remove the left fielder. As Medwick left for the bench, the whole bleacher rose in one soft, gentle "Boo!" "Chick" Fullis replaced Medwick.

The Cards scored in only three innings, their big canto being the third. They came within three runs of tying the series record for the most runs scored in one inning.

Durocher opened the inning against Auker by flying to White. "Dizzy" himself started the ball rolling by socking a long double, sliding into second in beautiful style. Martin singled but Dean was held on 3rd. Rothrock got a free ticket, and then Manager Frankie Frisch came through with a scorching double to clean the sacks. Here Rowe came to the mound to save the day, having pitched but the day before. He forced Medwick to roll to Owen for the second out, but Collins got him for a single to score Frisch. DeLancey followed with a double to race Collins across for a score. Then the "Schoolboy" retired for Hoggsett.

Orsatti walked and Durocher singled scoring DeLancey. "Dizzy" came next and got his second hit of the inning filling the bases. Martin followed and worked pitcher Hoggsett for a walk and forcing in a run. Tommy Bridges relieved the mound then and immediately forced Rothrock to roll into a fielder's choice for the final out. Seven runs cross the home plate during the melee.

The Cards scored again in the fifth and sixth on five hits, led by the triples of Medwick and Durocher.

Dean was in tight places on only two occasions. Only marvelous twirling in the pinches prevented the Bengals from scoring. In the fifth Greenberg singled. Owen flied out, but Fox popped out his first two-bagger of the day, Greenberg being held on third. Then Dean tightened and fanned Bridges and forced White to roll out.

The American leaguers again attempted one of the typical ninth inning rallies but this time to no avail. Gehringer opened with a single but was out at second a moment later on Goslin's fielder's choice. Rogell singled, placing runners on first and second with only one out. But Greenberg was the victim, as he swung on his third strike for the third time of the afternoon. Owen hit a fielder's choice to Gehringer who tossed to Manager Frisch for the last pitch of the series.

DEAN GETS DATA FROM FRESHMEN

Bradshaw Outlines Curriculum Difficulties Offered by Biology.

Dean Francis F. Bradshaw, speaking in the freshman assembly yesterday morning, outlined some of the difficulties with which the University is confronted in changing its curriculum to place a biological science in the freshman schedule for next year.

Considering the advisability of placing this course in the freshman curriculum he wished to determine how much biological science the average freshman had taken in high and preparatory school. Each freshman wrote the desired information on a slip of paper and turned it in to the dean.

Dean Bradshaw also announced that because of the U. D. C. convention there will be no chapel tomorrow. On Friday, 9:30 classes will end at 10:00 o'clock, at which time the University's birthday celebration will begin in Memorial hall. 11:00 o'clock classes will be canceled, the rest of the schedule remaining unchanged.

NEW RENOVATIONS ON MED BUILDING NEAR COMPLETION

Animal Rooms Built; Interior Painted; Lighting Corrected.

The renovation of Caldwell hall is nearing completion. The building has been under reconstruction practically all summer, with an expense of approximately $10,000.

Quarters for the animals, heretofore in the basement, have been moved to the attic. Each animal has its individual cage, built over a tile floor. Space for exercising and sunning the animals has been provided on the roof. Two overhead, outdraft fans supply ample ventilation for the cage compartment.

Adjoining this compartment is the diet kitchen. All food for the animals is prepared here.

Another room has been equipped with modern and complete conveniences for the care of sick animals.

Other changes have been made also. The entire building has been repainted inside. The lighting system, until now one of the poorest, has been modernized, making the medical building one of the best lighted on the campus.

PLAYMAKERS GET ACTOR'S PORTRAIT

Portrait of Strudwick Will Be Placed in Green Room.

A portrait of Shepherd Strudwick, famous actor and alumnus of Carolina, will soon be placed in the Green Room of the Playmakers' theatre.

The portrait will hang alongside those of other Carolina highlights in the world of the theatre: Paul Green, Lula Vollmer, Hatcher Hughes, and Ann Bridgers. Strudwick was a member of the Playmakers several seasons ago and it was here that he received all of his training.

He recently played the lead in Maxwell Anderson's Pulitzer Prize play entitled "Both Your Houses." Opposite Ina Claire, he was featured in the New York Theatre Guild's production of "Biography." In "Tight Britches," a play of the Smoky Mountains of North Carolina, he played the leading role.

Commenting on Paul Green's new play, Strudwick said, "Saw 'Roll Sweet Chariot'—it is beautiful; one of the finest things ever done, that I have seen."

University Press Announces a Contemporary History.

The University Press recently announced the publication of a book by Hugh T. Lefler entitled "A History of North Carolina Told by Contemporaries," published by Edwards-Broughton Co. of Raleigh.

In this book, Dr. Lefler outlines the history of North Carolina from the time of its discovery by Sir Walter Raleigh in 1542 up to the present day by compiling and editing contemporary accounts of economic and social conditions in North Carolina.

Some of the accounts are reprinted in full, some in part, and from others merely pertinent quotations are given. These all combine to make a well-balanced, highly-readable book, both interesting and illuminating.

EXTENSION CLASS TO BE ORGANIZED

Organization of two local extension classes will take place tomorrow afternoon in the Chapel Hill high school building, it was announced yesterday by Russell M. Grumman, director of the University extension division.

The courses have been planned for teachers and for others in the community especially interested. The time of the convocation has been tentatively set for 4:00 o'clock, according to Grumman.

UNIVERSITY CLAIM AS OLDEST SCHOOL BEING CONTESTED

Pennsylvania, Vermont, and Georgia Question Claim.

Nearing the celebration Friday of its 141st birthday, the University finds its claim of being the oldest state university in the United States contested by the state universities of Pennsylvania, Vermont, and Georgia. North Carolina's claim, however, seems to be stronger than that of any of the three.

Classes in the University of Pennsylvania began earlier than here; but that school is not really a state university, because, although the state of Pennsylvania does contribute to its maintenance, it is privately endowed and managed.

The state of Vermont chartered its university in 1791; but classes did not begin there until 1800, while they began here in 1795.

The University of Georgia was chartered in 1785, but the cornerstone of its oldest building was not laid until 1803. Construction of Old East began in 1793.

Classes will be cut short on Friday for the observance of the founding of the University. Included on the program will be an address by President Graham, which will be his first official appearance before the entire student body of 1934-35.

Jugoslavs Fear Dictatorship Controlled By Military Clique

National Disunion Is Greatest Danger

Popular Demonstrations Attest Belief That Italian Powers Engineered Assassination.

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Oct. 10.—(UP)—It is feared that the army clique may seize control in the name of King Peter II.

The Jugoslavs realize that the greatest danger is the possibility of national disunion, and fear that the death of the King might bring the warring elements to active hostilities.

To prevent this the Serbians who control the army are believed to be planning a dictatorship based on military strength.

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Oct. 10.—(UP)—Peasants of Jugoslavia faced the specter of possible military dictatorship tonight.

Outwardly calm, the nation seethed internally as indications increased that the military directorate is controlled by Serbian powers.

Anti-Italian demonstrations were reported throughout Slovenia tonight as the population charged Italians were the brains behind the assassination.

No Bloodshed

Police were able to disperse most of the demonstrations without bloodshed.

Zagreb, Jugoslavia, capital of the Croatian province and a hotbed of enmity towards the Serbians who hold the governing power, appeared tonight to be reconciled towards the new political regime growing out of the death of Alexander I.

Alexander's gesture naming two Croatians to the regency which will rule in the name of King Petar II is regarded as the most effective bond between the antagonistic elements since the creation of the kingdom.

A former Playmaker, Green soon after leaving the University in 1927 achieved world-wide recognition when his "In Abraham's Bosom" won the Pulitzer prize.

For the past two years he has been working for Warner Brothers during which time he has written the screen versions for "Cabin in the Cotton," "Doctor Bull," "Voltaire," and more recently, "Anthony Adverse."

Roosevelt Aims to Keep Wages Up to Prices

Grants That Prices Will Rise More Before Stabilizing.

Washington, Oct. 10.—(UP)—President Roosevelt believes prices must be higher before they will be stabilized, but he is determined to keep wages abreast of the increased cost of living, he said today.

He stated his belief that substantial progress has been made by recovery projects in raising the general price level.

Statistics available tonight show that since the low of last January farm products prices have increased 26 per cent, food prices 21.2 per cent.

The club will also make some decision about Yackety Yack pictures and may discuss a revision of the roll along the lines of attendance and non-attendance.

LEHMAN GRANTS N. J. EXTRADITION IN MURDER CASE

New York Governor Approves Transferring of Hauptmann Case to New Jersey.

FAWCETT FIGHTS SHIFT

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 10.—(UP)—Governor Herbert Lehman late today approved the extradition of Bruno Richard Hauptmann to New Jersey where he will face charges for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

A special courier is ready to race to New York City with the extradition papers which will be given Police Commissioner Valentine, it was learned today.

Fawcett Fights

Governor Lehman signed the papers after a conference with Bruno Hauptmann's attorney, James Fawcett, who announced plans to fight the extradition. Fawcett stated that he will file an application for a writ of habeas corpus tomorrow.

Forty-six thousand, six hundred and eighty-one of the $50,000 ransom has been accounted for, it was announced yesterday by police. The Washington department of justice tonight announced that it had concluded active participation in the Lindbergh case.

The Washington department of justice has withdrawn due to the fact that no federal charges are being pressed. Hauptmann is under murder indictment in New Jersey and extortion charges in New York.

University Founders Dedicated Local Site To Highest Principles

October 12, 1793, 141 years ago tomorrow, the cornerstone of Old East was laid and the University of North Carolina founded.

At that ceremony were present the most distinguished men in the state, among them William Davie, "the father of the University, statesman, diplomat, and general;" Alfred Moore, later a Supreme Court justice; John Haywood, state treasurer; John Williams, founder of Williamsboro and judge; and Thomas Blount, a congressman, all of whom were trustees.

Hill Dedicated

Speaking at the ceremony, Dr. Samuel E. McCorkle, another trustee, said: "May this hill be for religion as the ancient hill of Zion, and for literature and the muses may it surpass ancient Parnassus.

"We this day enjoy the pleasure of seeing the cornerstone of the University, its material and the architect for this building, and we hope ere long to see its stately walls and spire ascending to their summit. Ere long we hope to see it adorned with an elegant village, accommodated with al necessaries and conveniences of civilized society."

Roosevelt Names R. D. W. Connor As Keeper For Federal Archives

Archivist

Dr. Robert D. W. Connor, University Kenan professor of history, who has been appointed by President Roosevelt to fill the new federal position of archivist. He will have charge of the Archives building, now being constructed in Washington, and will head a staff of 600.

Selection Follows Recent Conference

University History Professor to Fill Recently-Created Post; To Confer with Graham.

President Roosevelt yesterday announced the appointment of Robert D. W. Connor, Kenan professor of history at the University, to the new government job of federal archivist.

While Connor was in conference with the President in Washington last Wednesday, he was told that he had been selected to fill this important position which had been created by the last session of congress.

600 Assistants

As federal archivist, Connor will be in charge of the new Archives building, which is nearing completion and should be ready for occupation by March of next year. This building will house all government records, and a staff of about six hundred will be required to carry on the work of this department.

Professor Connor's appointment came about after the American Historical association had been asked to make a suggestion to the President, naming a man whom they thought was suitable to hold this position. The President acted upon the recommendation of the association and Connor was appointed.

"I shall not leave my present position until a conference with President Graham concerning the future of this department," Professor Connor stated.

C. C. C. HELP HERE WILL STOP SOON

Durham Laborers, Who Have Been Working on University Property, to Move Camp.

Dr. W. C. Coker stated yesterday that the botany department will soon be deprived of C.C.C. aid. The Durham camp, from which the workers have come, is going to be moved to another section of the state.

C.C.C. improvements on University property include nine miles of foot trails around the University lake and a number of trails in the woods south of the campus.

Training Courses

Coach Bob Fetzer is planning to use some of these paths for track team workouts.

Important trails have been opened in Battle park, and the woods have been improved by the removal of unsightly material.

Two roads have been cut through the University forest southeast of the campus for the purpose of fire control. One of these extends from the south border of the forest to Mason farm, belonging to the University.

The workers also planted trees of several kinds, mostly pine and locust, on the open fields around the lake and on Mason farm.

Late Yackety Yacks

Last-Year Annuals Are Available in Graham Memorial.

Today is the last day that the 1934 Yackety Yack may be secured at Graham Memorial by those persons who failed to receive it last spring.

A booth is situated directly across from the Yackety Yack office in Graham Memorial and will be open from 2:00 to 4:00 o'clock.

Graduate students are required to present a receipt from the business office stating that they have paid the total fee for the annual. Those persons who were not in school all three quarters last year will be charged $1.35 per quarter, as the publication fee unpaid because of their absence.

COUNCIL ADOPTS DORMITORY RULES

Inter-Dormitory Body Reverses Decision on Decoration for Homecoming Day.

In a meeting late last night, the Inter-Dormitory council adopted a set of rules for dormitory conduct, reversed its former position on decorating dorms for Homecoming Day, appointed committees to work out a system for collecting dormitory fees and to draw up a point system for the awarding of the intramural trophy, and passed a resolution requesting the buildings department for glass-enclosed bulletin boards.

Haywood Weeks declared that more spirit is being shown by the dormitories this year than ever before.

Dormitory rules go into effect immediately and are to be enforced by the councilors on each floor. Unnecessary noise or disturbance is prohibited, and the dormitory council is to have full authority in case of infraction of regulations by a member of the house.

Student Council Enforcement

The dormitory council is authorized, in extreme cases, to refer the case to the student council. These rules are to be mutually co-operative among the dormitories. In addition, each dormitory council is instructed to hold weekly meetings.

In reversing its position in regard to decorating dormitories, the council last night declared itself opposed to decorations for homecoming week, maintaining that the dorms do not lend themselves to the idea. Seven dormitories were definitely opposed to decorations, and the rest evidenced tacit opposition.

PARAGRAPHICS

We hope the Tar Heels when they meet the Bulldogs Saturday get a new leash on life.

We heard someone say that a paragraphic is like St. Simeon: a foolish thing perched atop a lousy column.

Then there's the one about the U. D. C. stalwart who thought a Phi Delt double-decker was a new-fangled game of pinochle.

Old Gag

The announcement of plans for Homecoming Day is marked by a deplorable little hoax which, we take it, is justified in the eyes of the University club by the possibility that it may draw a big crowd for the program. The trick of saying that newsreel cameras may be grinding away for the occasion has been used before on this campus when other events were scheduled for which a large and enthusiastic attendance was desired.

Now, we do not mean to say that the University club is deliberately falsifying a situation, but we do know that making such a statement on the bare possibility that newsreel cameramen may be here, is not quite ethical publicity. The University club, for all we know, may already have arranged for the cameramen; if such arrangements have been made, however, the group would appeal to the universal desire to be in the movies far more effectively by stating positively that the cameramen would appear. If they have made no definite negotiations, their action in allowing the statement that "newsreel men may be here" seems to us a mistaken interpretation of campus naivete and a publicity stunt that cannot redound to that organization's credit.

Dervishes And Dictators

"What sane and healing words in a world full of spinning dervishes," exclaimed Ludwig Lewisohn in a current issue of Harpers of President Roosevelt's speech over the radio. The New Deal, explained the President in that speech, was seeking to hold in check only "the comparative few who seek to retain or to gain positions or riches or both by some shortcut which is harmful to the greater good."

What excited Lewisohn's admiration was the contrast to Europe of the New Deal. Parading under no shibboleths of class hatred, it stands out as a revolution of sanity while the "spinning dervishes," the brotherhood of dictators such as Mussolini, Hitler, Stalin, and others, turn back the clock of civilization in their own countries with their radical reactionarianism.

Yet it is also interesting to observe the comment of one of these dervishes on the Rooseveltian administration. In a United Press interview, Stalin, conversing with H. G. Wells, declared that the New Deal cannot possibly succeed. One of his chief arguments was that: Society is fundamentally divided into two classes—the exploiter and the exploited—and any effort to reconcile their interests is impossible.

Granting that the U. S. S. R.'s head man is right in his latter conclusion, who but a spinning dervish would accept the over-simple premise that "all society is divided into two classes—the exploiter and the exploited"? Life is not so easily classified, social strata are not so yieldingly separated, and only for propaganda's purposes and for the engendering of a bitter class struggle and consequent violence can Stalin's principle be considered an adequate criterion of the New Deal.

No wonder, then, that Mr. Lewisohn finds reassurance in one of the President's "fireside talks" and a welcome contrast to European turmoil on his return to America.

School Lesson

A deficit of approximately $700,000 is now anticipated in the state school fund for 1934-35.

LeRoy Martin, secretary of the state school commission, stated that the teachers' salaries will not be reduced but he was at a total loss to explain how the expenses will be met. The salaries constitute the largest item of the school budget.

From Washington again, following Harry L. Hopkins' announcement that a grant of relief money for North Carolina schools is unlikely, we hear the voice of another administrator. Says Dr. L. R. Alderman, head of the educational division of the FERA: "I hear that the state of North Carolina is receiving more for its tobacco this year than the entire country received a few years ago." Consequently, he avers, North Carolina should be in a position to finance its own public schools.

We mentioned in yesterday's paper that it is our firm conviction that the somewhat low standard of our battered system be at least maintained and not allowed to slip lower. Now even the year's crop may affect it.

Which might mean that tobacco is an evil for school children, after all.

More About The Weed

About 25 years ago the editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL couched his majestic indignation in an angry protest something like the following:

"At last night's entertainment [a noted actress was lecturing], we were deeply shocked and humiliated by a sight which was a blot on the fair name of Carolina. The speaker was a person to whom every mark of respect should have been accorded; yet the audience was affronted by the sight of two freshmen, who were calmly leaning over the balcony of Gerrard hall, puffing away on a pair of cigarettes.

"The heedless act of these men was a mark of disrespect to an eminent personage, and did not further the hypothesis that every Carolina man is a gentleman. We suggest that these fellows either conquer their subjection to the weed, or else remain away from the entertainments in the future."

Which reminds us that about 25 years later, Monday night to be exact, ten or fifteen students fired up pipes, cigars, and cigarettes after having been asked specifically not to. It only goes to show after a quarter of a century that the Carolina gentleman is still a trifle weedy.

Still Good

Once upon a time the Di and Phi societies had things pretty well under control. If you were rendered an outcast by the vote of either group you might as well have packed up the pipe and Greek book and trekked homeward. Everyone was a member of one or the other, so they didn't need a student council because the societies had the power to suspend, expel, or pardon.

Having been relegated to a position of comparative unimportance insofar as campus administration and control are concerned, the two societies nevertheless are definitely a part of the University's educational program. The "intellectual interest" set forth by Dean House is obviously their major function; a man who can stand on both feet and argue pro or con about various subjects has gained an important part of his early training for life in the cold beyond.

A New Phi Bete?

Dr. William A. Shimer, secretary of Phi Beta Kappa, declared in his last report that the standards of the organization are changing. The scholastic Greeks are drawing away from the idea that the criterion of scholarship is the "accumulation of course grade marks." Several instances of leaders in Phi Beta Kappa failing comprehensives and other examinations covering the whole field of their college work were brought to light by the recent Carnegie report, giving more or less conclusive proof that quarterly or semester grades are a poor indication of intellectual advancement.

Dr. Shimer reports that the organization is adjusting itself to the changing standards by accepting "broad honors work, comprehensive examinations, the accumulation record, and subjective estimates by teachers" as the new criteria. Regardless of the fact that we believe the required standards of Phi Beta Kappa have not been lowered on this campus in recent years, the organization here would do well to consider the addition of Dr. Shimer's suggested prerequisites in choosing new candidates.

Photo Appointments

Upperclassmen Should Take Pictures Before Saturday Noon.

The Yackety Yack requests that all juniors and seniors who failed to keep their photograph appointments have the pictures taken before Saturday at noon.

They are also asked to take the photo receipt, received at registration, with them, since no picture can be taken unless this is presented to the photographer.

HERMAN SCHNELL ENTERS EXTENSION DIVISION WORK

Herman Schnell, director of intramural athletics, has been added to the staff of the extension division as half-time assistant to the director, R. M. Grumman.

Tar Heels Take Drill In Rain For Battle With Bulldogs This Saturday; Georgia Big Favorite Squads Practice on Offense and on Defense Against Notre Dame Formations.

MANY OUT WITH INJURIES

The Tar Heel gridsters worked out on a rain-soaked field yesterday, while a steady drizzle continued throughout the entire practice session.

Coach Snavely drilled the team in "dummy" blocking during the early part of the session and later sent them through a tag scrimmage.

A freshman team using the Notre Dame shift was unable to make any ground against a defensive second team.

Georgia Uses Shift

The Georgia Bulldogs, whom the Tar Heels engage this weekend, also employ the Notre Dame system; but in all probability they will execute it better than our first year men.

Don Jackson started for the first stringers as they were put against the third team in a tag scrimmage. The running of Hutchins and Shaffer and the blocking of Snyder were also outstanding in the first team's backfield.

"Red" Thurman and Jim McCachren alternated at the blocking back position on the second team. They will be ready to relieve "Hump" Snyder, if needed, in Saturday's game. Don Jackson and Dick Dashiell alternated at the right halfback post on the first team.

Gardner on Bench

Ralph Gardner was not in uniform yesterday due to a knee injury sustained in scrimmage the day before. John Trimpey, who suffered a broken nose in the Tennessee game, was "breaking in" a new nose guard and will probably be ready for action Saturday.

Indications are that the Tar Heels may be forced to the air often. Georgia's big, powerful, hard-charging line limited Furman to a net gain of 51 yards on running plays last week.

The Bulldogs should be even stronger this week, with Buck Chapman, 200-pound fullback, Leroy Moorehead, all-southern guard, and one or two other regulars due to be back in the lineup.

Coach Carl Snavely plans to spend most of the last two days of practice at setting a defense to check the driving Notre Dame attack and the star backs that Georgia commands.

Carolina's slight hopes for an upset over their highly respected rivals have faded considerably. The injury list continues to mount and the second team has failed to show expected improvement.

Unless Coach Snavely can work a miracle with the reserves in the next two days, the Tar Heels will have to depend almost entirely on their veteran starting eleven.

Cake Race Hints

In view of the coming cake race, training for distance running is an important consideration. The mere running and exercising yourself to the point of exhaustion every afternoon does not mean that you are conditioning yourself.

Coach Dale Ranson points out that the important thing in training for a distance running event should be approached with the following points in mind:

Physical Condition

There is no form of athletics where the lack of condition is more apparent than in the longer races. There is no substitute for actual running in this process though supplementary exercises are necessary and beneficial. Deep breathing, stretching, and bicycle exercises are among the best. These preliminary exercises should be carried out conscientiously; do not rush through each exercise, but allow ample time to do each one completely and thoroughly.

Competitive Running

Every runner would like to win his races. The athlete who knows his pace and sticks to a smooth time schedule during the early stages of his race will probably find himself in both better condition and better position to race his opponents than he would if he ran an irregular or varying pace.

NET TEAM WORKS FOR TURKEY DAY BATTLE WITH VA.

Open Tournament Is Next on Program and Will Be Tune-Up for First Meet.

Tennis practice has started in earnest and the University open tournament will be the first of various competitions to take place before the selection of a varsity squad to combat Virginia Thanksgiving.

This tournament will be in reality a tune-up for the players and will also give Coach Kenfield an opportunity to judge the boys under fire. The possibility of discovering new talent is also an important reason for the running of this competition.

This gala event has been an annual affair and many outstanding tennis stars have held the school non-letter title in former years. Last fall Frank Shore, a freshman, lashed his shots through a strong field to emerge victorious after two weeks of play. Shore won his final match handily, besting Byron Abels, 6-1, 6-,2, 6-1, to annex the title.

No Defending Champ

There will be no defending champion as Shore has not returned to school, and many a hard tussle will be waged in the battle for the unprotected crown. A few years back Bernie Friedman of Philadelphia, who is now playing fine tennis in eastern tournaments, won top honors in this event. Harvey Harris, pres-

FROSH GRIDSTERS READY FOR FIRST GAME TOMORROW

Coach James May Use Three Teams Against Baby Deacons; Fast Tilt Expected.

Coach George James, frosh football mentor, will send a heavy team out on the turf of Kenan stadium tomorrow afternoon in an attempt to wear down the strong Wake Forest frosh, before shooting a lighter and faster crew of reserves into the fray.

The followers of freshman football can expect numerous surprises, for the experienced coaching staff has mapped out many strategic moves which will be revealed only during the actual playing of the contest.

There will probably be wholesale substitution during tomorrow's game, as Coach James has three elevens, equally as good as each other, ready to take the field as separate units. Two of the squads, due to their weight, are dependent chiefly on power plays, while the third squad, a light, tricky outfit, will use its speed to great advantage.

Probable Lineups

The probably starting lineup will include: at ends, Kenny and Bershak, who throughout long weeks of practice have kept their places at the top of their positions, starring on both the offense and the defense; at tackles, big 220 pound Juliper, who, despite his bulk, manages to go places in a hurry, and Maffitt, a veritable whirlwind on the offense and a stone wall on the defense; at guards are Gatus and Smith, two solid specimens of youth who are sure to gang up on many a play; and at center is the steady Avery.

In the backfield at quarter is Walfourn, in the halfback positions are Burnette and Thomas, and at fullback is Ditt.

This quartet of triple threat men all carry a scoring punch through the air as well as on the ground. The average weight of the line is 190 pounds, while the backfield averages 185 pounds.

Tag Games Rained Out

The intramural tag football schedule received another set back yesterday afternoon as old "Jup" Pluvius entered upon the scene shortly before the kick-offs. All games scheduled for yesterday will be incorporated later in the schedule.

The following games are scheduled this afternoon. There will be no games Friday on account of freshman grid game.

4:00—1. Zeta Psi vs. Phi Sigma Kappa. 2. Chi Psi vs. S. P. E.

5:00—1. Aycock vs. Y.M.C.A. 2. Phi Kappa Sigma vs. Theta Chi. 3. Sigma Nu vs. Phi Delta Theta.

YOU'LL ENJOY this thrilling response in your flow of energy!

"Even the greatest writers are supposed to find writing a hard task, and if you ever have to do any writing you know just how hard a time the rest of us, who don't aspire to genius, have in expressing ourselves," says Douglas E. Jones, '36. "Majoring in English, I put as much energy into writing as a man would use up in heavy physical labor. When I feel played out I smoke a Camel. Camels give me a real snapback in energy. They are so mild that I can smoke all I want without upsetting my nerves."

Ruark Commends Intellectual Spirit Shown At Carolina

New Physics Dean Is Impressed by Quiet and Independence of Chapel Hill.

"One reason for my coming to this University," said Dr. Arthur E. Ruark, new head of the University physics department, "is the presence here of such an eager intellectual spirit. I am glad to be among a group of scholars who are free from the cares and distractions of metropolitan life."

Lecturing here last spring, Dr. Ruark was most favorably impressed by the way in which things are done here. He likes the quiet, almost aloof existence in Chapel Hill, and the interdependence of town and University.

Dr. Ruark's career to date has been an interesting one, even to those not interested in physics. He was born in Washington, D. C., of English, Scotch and Scotch-Irish ancestry. He did both his undergraduate and graduate work at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland, where he got his Ph.D. degree in 1924. He started out in civil engineering in college, but switched to physics while still an undergraduate.

He was a member of the atomic structure section of the U. S. Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. C., 1921-1926. He was appointed assistant professor of physics in the Sheffield Scientific school of Yale University in 1926.

In 1927 he married Miss Sarah Grace Hazen, a graduate of St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., and a member of Pi Beta Phi and Phi Beta Kappa. Previous to their marriage, she had been engaged in research on the measurement of radio wave lengths at the U. S. Bureau of Standards, where Dr. Ruark had formerly worked. They have two little girls, Peggy Ann and Helen Louise.

Earlier in the year, in view of his approaching marriage, he went into commercial work to get more money, as he had found teaching more interesting than lucrative. He became located at the Mellon Institute of Industrial research in Pittsburgh, Pa., doing research on oil production for the Gulf Oil corporation. Later, the group of men doing research for this company was organized into the Gulf Research laboratory, working on problems of the flow of fluids, methods of increasing production of oil wells, and geophysical methods for finding oil deposits.

In 1930, he was appointed professor of physics in the University of Pittsburgh, where he taught graduate classes and did research on radio activity and the structure of the atomic nucleus and cosmic rays. From Pittsburgh he came to Carolina this fall.

Among Dr. Ruark's writings are two significant books. With Harold C. Urey, professor of chemistry at Columbia University and discoverer of "heavy hydrogen," he wrote "Atoms, Molecules, and Quanta." Another of his books worthy of note is "Modern Atomic Physics," in the writing of which he was assisted by six colleagues on the University of Pittsburgh staff.

He is a member of the board of editors of the following periodicals: "Physical Review," "Review of Scientific Instruments," and "Philosophy of Science."

ent top-ranking player, was also a former winner, taking the tourney in 1931.

The next competition scheduled is a varsity-freshman match which will immediately follow the school tournament. This meet will be watched with interest as the frosh squad looks powerful and capable of extending the varsity to its limit. This contest will probably occur a few days before the tennis team departs for Virginia to engage the Cavaliers in the annual Thanksgiving meet.

New Economics Instructor

F. S. Wilder is a new instructor in the commerce school. He has a teaching fellowship in economics.

After obtaining his M.A. here at the University of North Carolina, Wilder spent five years as headmaster of the Mission high school at Ahmednagan, India, about 169 miles east of Bombay.

race. From now until the race each new entrant has six days to get in his six work-outs. These workouts are very important, as shown in the past when every winner and nearly all top placers have been those who took the required practices and more.

To date only 78 men have signed up. A good number more are expected to check in today to make the total rise to more than a hundred. All fraternity and dormitory athletic managers are warned to get their teams out to work today.

Last year Gammon, Allen, and Gardiner tied up for first honors, coming in holding hands. These three have developed into the three outstanding soph prospects for this year's track team and look great in the middle and longer distances.

Prizes of all kinds will be awarded the ranking finishers. Last year the first fifty received awards. To date the total list of prizes has not been completed. Cakes form the major part of the prize list, going to the individual and team winners.

Intramural points will be divided as follows: teams represented by the first 15 men to finish shall receive points as follows: first, 15 points; second, 14 . . . fifteenth, one. Team (composed of four men) winner shall receive 25 points; second, 20; third, 15; fourth, 10; fifth, 5. Teams having most entrants shall receive points as in the preceding rule. No team, however, shall be able to receive more than a total of 150 points.

Freshmen interested in boxing or in trying out for positions as managers of boxing are requested to meet with Jim Lothian in the Tin Can today at 4:00 o'clock.

UNIVERSITY CLUB PLANS PROGRAM FOR HOMECOMING

Club to Present Two Radio Programs Next Week, in Charlotte and in Raleigh.

TO SPONSOR PEP RALLIES

Plans for Homecoming week-end occupied the greater portion of the University club's meeting last night in Graham Memorial.

The event this year will surpass even the program of last year, according to Jake Snyder who is in charge of arrangements for the occasion.

First on the program includes two radio programs for the Kentucky game, one of which will be presented over station WBT in Charlotte and the other over station WPTF in Raleigh. Music, speakers, and cheering will be included on these programs. Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra will play on the WBT program.

Pep Rallies

Plans were made for two pep rallies next week, one of which will be a preliminary rally Thursday night, and the other a monster rally on Friday night. Elaborate preparations are being made for both these rallies, and also for other events of Homecoming.

The Cheerios, University cheering organization, will be reorganized with freshmen as a nucleus, next week. This group will be trained in the Carolina cheers and songs, and also in performing "stunts" with blue and white cards, which will feature their work at the Kentucky game. The local civic organization has co-operated with the club by declaring a legal holiday for Saturday, October 20.

Other routine University club work included a vote which authorized the group to have two pages in the Yackety Yack for the coming year, and the appointment of a committee composed of members Allen, Tayloe and Lowe to collect the torches from dormitory stores next week.

CONNOR TO TAKE FEDERAL POSITION

Date of University History Professor's Departure for Washington as Yet Undecided.

After a conference with President Frank P. Graham, Professor Robert D. W. Connor announced yesterday that he will accept the position of federal archivist to which he had recently been appointed.

The date of his departure to take charge of the new archives department in Washington has not yet been decided upon, but will be determined at further conferences between him and President Graham.

Re-organization of the history department, of which Professor Connor is the head, has not yet been undertaken.

The position to be occupied by Professor Connor carries with it a salary of $10,000, and is one of the most important positions which the Federal government offers.

Graham's Letter

President Frank Graham's appreciation of Professor Connor's value to the University and preeminent fitness to be the first national archivist were expressed in a letter which he wrote President Roosevelt last summer. Part of that letter is quoted herewith with President Graham's consent:

"Professor Connor, before coming to the University of North Carolina, organized the North Carolina Archives and Historical Commission which soon stood out as one of the best organized and most efficiently administered in the United States.

"He has had an important part in the movement to establish the national archives. When asked by the committee of the American Historical association to allow his name to be presented for the position of National Archivist, he declined. I felt, myself, that he was indispensable to the life and work of this University at this time. However, the committee of the American Histor-

DUKE PRESIDENTS TO TALK BEFORE TUESDAY CHAPEL

Y. M. C. A. Brings Leaders to Further Friendly Relations Between Student Bodies.

WILL EXCHANGE SPEAKERS

Bill Burke, president of the student body at Duke, and Don McNeal, president of the Duke senior class, will address the freshman assembly Tuesday.

The Y. M. C. A. exerting its influence to promote the furtherance of friendly relations between the student bodies of Duke and Carolina, has arranged for an exchange of chapel programs between the two schools.

The Carolina representatives, Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, and Jack Pool, senior class president, will address the Duke assembly on a return engagement.

Growing Friendship

Concrete evidence that there is a growing friendship between the two universities was witnessed last Saturday at the Duke-Clemson football game. When the Duke stadium loudspeaker announced the halftime score of the Carolina-Tennessee game, (Carolina 7, Tennessee 6) a voluntary wave of cheering and handclapping swept through the Duke stands. The friendly gesture was spontaneous and whole-hearted.

REGENCY SET UP FOR JUGOSLAVIA

Cabinet Resigns, but Is Persuaded to Remain in Office Until Government Is Set Up.

Belgrade, Oct. 11.—(UP)—Amid wide-spread demonstrations against Italy and Hungary, Prince Paul Karageorgevitch today accepted the task of governing Jugoslavia in the name of 11-year-old King Peter II.

Immediately after the establishment of the regency the entire Jugoslavian cabinet handed in its collective resignation, but was prevailed upon by Karageorgevitch to continue in office until the formation of the new government is completed.

Gesture of Respect

As a gesture of respect to the dead king, parliament today passed a resolution declaring Alexander a "hero-king."

Members of the opposition have decided to take no steps for the present to combat the new regime, according to observers.

Sarajevo, Jugoslavia, Oct. 12. — (UP) — Anti-Italian demonstrations broke out last night and continued through the early morning hours, spreading through the entire city.

Paris, Oct. 11.—(UP)—King Peter II departed tonight enroute to Belgrade, accompanied by his grandmother, Queen Marie of Roumania, and his mother, Marie of Jugoslavia.

Meanwhile French police arrested two alleged conspirators who were with Petrus Kaleman, the assassin, before the slaying Tuesday of Alexander I and the French foreign minister Louis Barthou.

University Honors Illustrious Men Responsible For Founding School

"A long procession of people for the first time is marching along the narrow road, afterwards to be widened into a double avenue. Many of them are clad in the striking, typical insignia of the Masonic fraternity, their Grand Master arrayed in the full decoration of his rank. They march with military tread, because most of them have seen services, many scarred with wounds of horrid war. Their faces are serious for they feel that they are engaged in a great work." This is from Kemp Battle's "History of the University of North Carolina."

Provided for in the Constitution of 1776 and chartered in 1789, the University was opened for the matriculation of students January 15, 1793, from the point of operation the oldest state university in America. It seems a remarkably significant fact that the University was chartered in 1789 by the same legislature which voted to make North Carolina a state in the Union. The cornerstone was laid in 1793.

In the famous inaugural procession were men who were or were to become great leaders. William R. Davie, so-called "Father of the University," and Alfred Moore, whose ability secured for him a position on the bench of the Supreme Court, were two.

The academic procession which will form today will be a far cry from the one that marched 141 years ago. The century and two score years intervening have witnessed the growth of the University from a student body of 41 to an enrollment of 2700.

Many and illustrious are the famous leaders and sons of the University. One is reminded not only of Davie but of David Caldwell, its first president; of James K. Polk, a distinguished son who was later elected to the highest office in the land; of John Motley Morehead, the builder; of Charles B. Aycock, who dedicated his life to the gospel of universal education.

Today, too, the University honors Kemp Plummer Battle, president of the University 1876-1881, who played the major part

PARAGRAPHICS

After the Vols refused to be vaulted we must concentrate on biting the Bulldogs. That would be news.

Triple-threat backfield men must drink three-in-one oil.

Then there's that freshman who thinks that extradition means a second helping.

Now We Are 141

Today is Founder's Day. It was 141 years ago that some of the state's most distinguished men gathered at the cornerstone-laying ceremonies of Old East and dedicated this University to the highest principles of religious and educational advancement.

From experience we cannot sketch the changes and developments of the years of this institution, cannot trace its progress upward from a small country college to one of the nation's leading educational forces. But we can in reverence attest to those ideals which this University has cherished and stimulated and supported since its founding in 1793.

We have the reputation of being the most liberal of all southern universities, the importance of which we seldom realize; we boast a faculty the excellence of which is famous from coast to coast; we enjoy a wholesome relationship among ourselves and with our contemporaries. We have pride in our affiliation with an institution of such high principles.

Being young we look to the future with hopes fortified by the experience which the University's 141 years bring us. We shall emerge safely through our crises because we cannot be denied. Ours is tradition and ambition; ours is the University.

Reward And Honor

It must be a source of satisfaction to one who has taught history to know that he will make history. The appointment by the President of Dr. Connor as federal archivist, of course, means that he is the first man to hold this new government position, created by the last session of Congress. For that reason, as well as because it comes as a well earned reward for his long devotion to his subject, this honor to a member of the University faculty is doubly blessed.

But so it goes. Dr. Connor's gain in distinction and North Carolina's resultant prestige is the University's loss. He is one of the real teachers of this faculty. An authority in his field, he is a meticulous searcher for facts, never satisfied with a generality, and careful always to make the distinction between truth and probability. Yet in spite of the prosaicness that must accompany this practicality, Dr. Connor has always impressed his classes with being a romanticist in the field of history—a thing possible only by the love of history itself, which brings to fruition the glamor of the past and to life the dead facts of chroniclers.

That he has accepted the position is no desertion of the University's cause, however, even though his loss is a blow to the group of teachers in this faculty. Dr. Connor carries with him, whenever he may leave, the good will of his long association with the University.

Study in Limelight

The DAILY TAR HEEL wishes in no wise to draw any lesson from the incident of Red McAdams that may have bearing on the case of football versus studies. Like Emerson's mountain-and-squirrel proverb, we prefer the recognition of two separate abilities rather than the usual collegiate perversion of it that if one can carry the pigskin neither will he crack a book.

The chief source of controversy over the fact that McAdams, one of State College's stalwarts, is not at present eligible can be laid at the door of rumor, on which the public thrives and newspapers starve. The Raleigh News and Observer, we notice, has printed a retraction of its statement that David Clark, Dick Reynolds, and "Hunk" Anderson made personally a visit to Chapel Hill to call down all fire and brimstone on what seemed to them a distinct unkindness to one of the mainstays of the State College football hopes. Now, this does not sound like probability in that none of the three named impress us as being so unfamiliar with President Graham's policies that they might believe that a delegation would bring back McAdams' eligibility if he did not come up to curriculum scratch. Therefore, we discount it as having any pertinence to the issue and find satisfaction in the acknowledgment of its error.

Still, there is another misapprehension that has nourished the case and in part was even responsible for bringing it to public attention. We have it from an authoritative source that most of the trouble started when McAdams was understood to say that he had already passed the course which he took at the second session of summer school and which stood in the way of his eligibility. As a matter of fact, McAdams probably actually said, as he was known to repeat on another occasion, that he only had to make a certain grade to pass—quite a different thing. The resulting disappointment due to this misunderstanding after it became known that he had not passed the course undoubtedly paved the way for argument.

The upshot of the whole affair is a study of the football player in the limelight and how anxiety over his eligibility may be heated to the point of controversy and bitterness. Less publicity to like occurrences might do more to soften the criticisms of those who decry over-emphasis on present-day football.

The Road To Durham

We must acknowledge with true respect and appreciation the courtesy tendered this University by the students of Duke University in their show of friendship.

Not only by the action of cheering loudly at the Duke-Clemson game when Carolina was announced as leading Tennessee but by the sincere expression in the Duke Chronicle remarking on this action and furthering the feeling towards better relations between the two schools, has this friendship been manifested.

When the presidents of the Duke student body and senior class address our freshmen here Tuesday and our students holding similar offices speak to their frosh next Saturday, the bond of friendly union will be considerably strengthened. There has never been any reason for severe animosity between the two institutions; the Rameses hoax last spring was a good example of the negligible importance of those events which have often been misconstrued and held against the rival organization.

We'll see you next month, you Blue Devils!

Co-operation And Cuckoos

The dormitory council reversed its decision favoring the decoration of dormitories for the annual Homecoming Day festivities the other night and thereby threw a few monkey-wrenches into the well-oiled machinery of the University club committee preparing for the event.

Not because of the machinery, which can be fixed, but because the action was unpatriotic and thoroughly uncommendable do we take this opportunity to scorch in our own simple way the dormitory lads. If this Homecoming Day is going to be a success, it is absolutely necessary that everyone co-operate, even if it's nothing more than draping the dormitories with sugar-bag string and old shoe laces.

At the same meeting, the president announced proudly (we guess it was pride) that "more spirit is being shown by the dormitories this year than ever before." Which strikes us as being decidedly on the farcical side; but it must have sounded pretty good to the boys.

Some of the effects created by the dormitories' efforts last year were remarkable and, to say the least, whole-heartedly appreciated by the alumni and the sponsors. That all the trouble to which the committee in charge has gone will result in no effort on the part of the dormitories—and some fraternities, too, we understand—is an extremely disappointing situation.

Even Everett, the experiment, did not "lend itself to the idea." Even white rats don't do what the scientist expects.

Around the Well

By VERMONT C. ROYSTER

Those older members of the campus who remember the more or less regular appearances in this sheet of that eminent journalist's "Our Times" will also recall that he once said every columnist should apologize for inflicting himself upon the daily readers or at least offer sufficient explanation for his appearance. We apologize forthwith and explain by saying that our purpose is to loiter about the Old Well and observe with a very casual eye the comings and goings of the campus, jotting down all the while the little bits that may prove of interest to those who find time to peruse this column over their morning coffee. We do not intend to "enliven morality with the wit and temper wit with morality," for we leave the morality to the adjacent columns and the wit to those hearty souls who are already launching the good ship, Finjan. Ours will be a menial and unromantic task.

Mention of the Finjan reminds us that Pat Gaskins appears a good bit on the jollier side than we saw him in Greensboro shortly before school opened. We have observed that there is nothing sadder than an editor with nothing to edit, and Pat was indeed wallowing in the deepest of doldrums. But now that he has his toys back the wailing from the second floor of Graham Memorial has stopped. Here we can't resist the temptation to say that since the Buccaneer has changed its name we hope it will cease pirating its jokes.

We have this one from Richmond P. Bond, revealing the secrets of the English department's inner sanctum. It seems the scholarly world came near to losing a new doctor of philosophy when in examing a candidate the question was popounded as to whether Swift's work was called "A Tale of a Tub" or "The Tale of a Tub." We had never realized before the true importance of this in the scholarly world nor the mental brilliance required to arrive at a logical conclusion upon it. The American scholar, we remember reading somewhere in Emerson, is man thinking, and it is gratifying to learn to what depths our embryonic scholars are required to go. We are indeed surrounded by homines multarum literarum.

Horatio Alger's orphan boys had nothing on "de Lawd" Harrison. The aged actor spilling talk in the Playmakers theatre the other afternoon bore evidence to the adage that truth is stranger than fiction. From newsboy, Pullman porter and bellhop, he has reached the summit of histrionic fame and still remains a genial, earthy old man without the slightest touch of temperament. He was treated with more reverence by the crew than any actor of our color would have received.

The best one he tells is his reply to Marc Connelly's objection to his interpretation of "de Lawd." Said Mr. Harrison, "Stop telling me how to be a Negro when I've been one for sixty-five years and you never have and never will be!"

University Honors Founders of School

in re-opening the institution after the enforced closing in 1868. President Battle will be remembered as the author of the official history of the University. Easily the most valuable book concerning the school, it is fit testimony to the love and devotion its author bore the University.

President Battle's successor, George Tayloe Winston, had the unusual record of having served as president of three colleges: Texas, Carolina, and State.

Edwin Anderson Alderman, sixth president of the University, and one of the great orators and educators of the south, was heir to Winston. Alderman also held the distinction of having been president of three schools, for he later went to Tulane and thence to Virginia.

No less an orator was Edward Kidder Graham, who followed Alderman to the presidency in 1914. Cousin of the present president, Dr. Graham's brilliant career was cut short in 1918 by a fatal attack of influenza.

Graham's responsibilities fell to Marvin H. Stacy, who had been dean of the college of liberal arts for five years. Unfortunately, Stacy, whose wife is the present dean of women, did not live to be elected president. He, ike his predecessor, was stricken by the influenza epidemic.

Founder's Day, the commemoration of the men whose energy and foresight laid the foundations for the University, will again be observed today in solemn ceremonies.

Tar Baby Gridsters Open Against Baby Deacs Today

First Freshman Battle Will Start at 3:00 in Kenan Stadium.

The battle of the so-called babies will be waged this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock on the gridiron of Kenan stadium, when the scrappy Carolina Tar Babies go up against the powerful Baby Deacons of Wake Forest.

The Wake Forest yearlings have already gone to the wars, opposing a flashy Oak Ridge team, and after a hard see-saw battle were held to a scoreless tie. Aside from the fact that the Baby Deacons have gained experience through their first contest, it can give no exact idea as to the ultimate outcome of today's game, as the Tar Babies' opponents have improved immeasureably since their uneventful debut.

Baby Deacons Favored

Carolina frosh, an unknown quantity, go into this game as the underdogs. The Wake Forest frosh are slight favorites due to the experience and also on the basis of the reputation earned through last year's championship eleven.

Aside from a few minor injuries the Tar Babies will be in good condition when they take the field for the opening kickoff this afternoon. Coming down the home stretch, in preparation for the game, many of the regulars were hurt.

Most notable of these is Ax, the right guard, who sprained both of his ankles; and along with him is the mighty "man of the mountain," Juliper, who emerged from Wednesday's scrimmage with a badly bruised hand; but he will undoubtedly start, as it will take more than a damaged hand to keep the giant left tackle out of the fray.

Coach James Doubtful

Coach James appears extremely dubious that his charges will come through with flying colors. He believes that they are still too green for the already broken-in Baby Deacons. James says, "My men lack scoring punch on the ground, and though our passing and kicking is as much as a coach could desire, I believe that if we are victorious it will be by dint of power plays.

"We have not had enough time to drill the boys in a capable offensive and so we are forced to rely on a stone wall defense, but despite all our incapacities I know the boys will battle every inch of the way."

MARYLAND READY FOR NAVY CONTEST

Old Liners Have Hope of Victory Despite Loss to W. & L.

University of Maryland's football team is looking forward to the game with Navy at Annapolis Saturday with much hope despite the 7-0 defeat of the Terps by Washington and Lee last Saturday.

Except for the Generals' touchdown in the second period which followed a poor kick, the Old Liners outrushed and outpassed the Lexingtonians and including the runbacks more than held their own in kicking.

Want Dry Field

Maryland hopes for a dry field Saturday as its fast backs and passing game are handicapped in the heavy going such as prevailed last week.

The Old Liners reeled off nine first downs to Washington and Lee's two, Sothoron contributing runs of 26, 21 and 20 yards, Stonebraker of 19, Guckeyson one of 25, and Nelson one of 16. The other came on aerials.

NEW COURSE FOR CAKE RACE FIXED

Entrants Come in Slowly as Time Draws Near for Run; Many Prizes Are Offered.

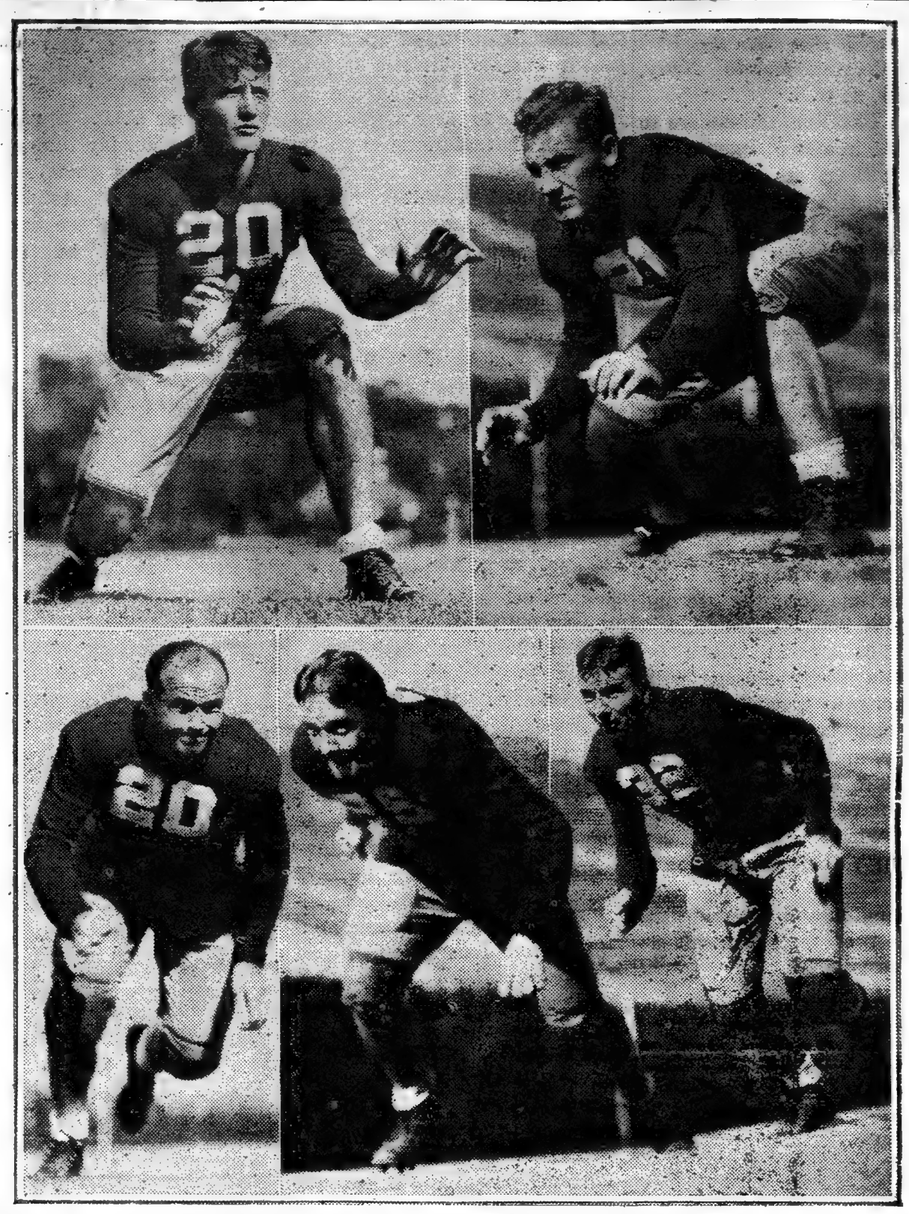
With the coming eleventh annual Cake Race just around the corner entrants for the event are still very slow. It is not believed that the total enrollment will approach the number which participated last year.

The race this year will be run over a new course. This course is 1.9 miles long as compared with the 1 3-4 mile-course last year. The race will start at the west end of the freshman football field. The runner will pursue a course westward passing in front of the bell tower, to the highway right to the Carolina Inn; at the Carolina Inn the course turns right down Cameron avenue until the intersection of the streets at Hillsboro street; here the runners turn right pass in front of Aycock and Lewis dormitories and continue to the gate at the west end of Emerson; the course goes through the gate, around the track, and will finish in front of the stands.

Men Urged Out

Men are urged to participate in this annual intramural track event. Not only is a great deal of fun and experience gained from entering into this race, but there is a chance to win an individual prize. Also teams may gain many points necessary in winning the all year intramural award.

Be sure to check-in in order to obtain credit for your work-outs. Past intramural tag football games will count as two work-outs. It is very imperative that men who have been lax in entering the race enter at once and get off the six required work-outs so they might be permitted to participate Thursday.



It has been shown through past Cake Races that boys with hidden ability have proved themselves to be dark horses by finishing among the earlier contestants. It has given the track coaches a chance to get a line on the boys and enabled them to develop some of Carolina's ace runners.

PART OF GEORGIA'S STONE WALL

Here are some of the boys Carolina's backs will need to get by if they expect to go very far against the Bulldogs at Athens tomorrow afternoon. Top, left, is Brown, big veteran tackle whom the Tar Heels remember from last year. LeRoy Moorehead is left on the bottom row. He was one of Georgia's bids for all-American post in 1933 and along with Captain Barclay was rated as one of the best guards in the south. At the bottom, right, is Dave McCullough, another veteran guard.

Carolina Football Team Will Leave Tonight For Battle With Bulldogs

First String Works on Defense; Trio Clubs To Make Trip.

The Tar Heel gridsters will leave by train tonight enroute to Athens where they will meet the University of Georgia's Bulldogs tomorrow afternoon.

It is not definitely known how many players will make the trip; however, Coach Snavely will probably take about three teams.

Coach Snavely will put the finishing touches on the Tar Heels in a light workout this afternoon. Today's practice has been scheduled for 2:00 o'clock in order not to conflict with the Wake Forest freshman game.

Yesterday's Work

In yesterday's workout on Emerson field the first team engaged in a defensive tag scrimmage against the freshmen. The varsity line broke through to smear most of the yearlings' running plays; however, the first year men completed several dangerous passes over the first string backs.

The third and fourth teams engaged in a "tug o' war" on the other practice field. "Red" Thurman ran about 30 yards with a lateral pass from Martin, but outside of that neither team was able to accomplish very much.

The entire Tar Heel squad ran intact yesterday, although Trimpey, Gardner, Dashiell, and Snyder were still feeling effects of limps and bruises.

Net Tourney Notice

All those desirous of entering the all-campus tennis tourney must register at the courts or with the managers by Tuesday night, October 16.

FOUR FAST GRID TILTS YESTERDAY

Phi Sigma Kappa, Kappa Alpha, Phi Kappa Sigma, Y.M.C.A. Get Tag Game Victories.

Four fine contests featured yesterday afternoon's play in the intramural tag football championship race as Phi Sigma Kappa, Kappa Alpha, Phi Kappa Sigma, and the Y. M. C. A. gridsters emerged victorious. Only one forfeit marred the day's schedule as S. P. E. failed to oppose the Chi Psi eleven.

In the opening game, Phi Sigma Kappa started its season off with a hard fought 6-2 win over the strong Zeta Psi combine. Paul Kaveny went across for the only touchdown early in the opening half. The losers dented the scoring column late in the game as Harrison nabbed Mahony behind the Phi Sig goal.

Theta Chi Loses

Another evenly matched battle saw Theta Chi losing out to the Phi Kappa Sigma aggregation as Queen pushed over a touchdown and converted the extra point early in the contest. Both teams showed fine teamwork and garnered five first downs each.

After playing forty minutes to a scoreless deadlock, Kappa Alpha was awarded the decision over Sigma Chi by virtue of four first downs to one. The rules state that "in the event of a scoreless contest, the team with the most first downs automatically takes the win."

In the final game of the day, the Y. M. C. A. gridmen got off to a fast start and downed the Aycock team by a 32-13 margin. Daniel carried the ball over for the initial tally after the game had been underway but a few minutes. Additional touchdowns by Daniel, Glenn, Pool, and Shapiro, and two extra points by Pool ran the "Y" score upward. However, Aycock came back strong and a pass from Turk to Farmer and a long run by Chaikin netted touchdowns. Voncanon converted a extra point.

Cake Race Hints

Yesterday conditioning was discussed with the idea of physical training for the race, and hints on competitive running.

Today we will look at the training in regard to form. In all running the body should be leaned slightly forward from the vertical; the arms should be developed so as to work harmoniously with the legs in order to secure the proper balance and co-ordination, opposite arm and leg. That is, when the right arm is in the air the left leg should be forward and vice versa. The arms should be flexed, swung from the shoulders, set at the elbow. As for the hands, at the end of the front swing they should be even with the opposite elbow. The hands at the end of the back swing should be even or slightly past the hips.

Baptists Beat Baptists

Florence, S. C., Oct. 11.—(UP)—Furman defeated Wake Forest, 3-2, in the South Carolina State Fair game here this afternoon.

Furman made a field goal during the first quarter, and the North Carolina Baptists scored in the last minute of play when the South Carolinians made an intentional safety.

INTERSECTIONAL GRID GAMES ON CARD TOMORROW

Duke-Georgia Tech Battle at Durham Heads Long List of Inter-Conference Tilts.

CAROLINA PLAYS GEORGIA

By ALAN MIMS THOMASON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 11.—(UP) — The color in games scheduled by Southern Conference schools this week-end is going to be provided in inter-conference contests, and the Duke-Georgia Tech affair at Durham, N. C., probably will be the brightest.

Duke came out with a 26 to 6 victory over Clemson Saturday and was atop the southern race with two wins.

Right behind were Washington and Lee, victors over Maryland, 7 to 0, and University of South Carolina, whose Gamecocks whipped Virginia Military Institute, 22 to 6.

One Conference Tilt

Only one game within the conference is on the calendar this week-end and that it the South Carolina invasion of Raleigh and the lair of the North Carolina State Wolfpack.

The Wolves were beaten Saturday night, 13 to 12, by little Wake Forest, but that doesn't mean a thing. State is notorious for getting whipped by the Deacons and then turning around and smashing championship hopes of some strong Southern Conference title contender. The game will be played under electric lights.

Clemson goes to Lexington, Ky., this week-end to take Kentucky U., a Southeastern Conference outfit which has already been licked by one Southern Conference eleven—W. & L.

MANY ENTER FOR NET TOURNAMENT

More Than 30 Tennis Aces Already on List; Many Vets Have Not Yet Signed.

Entries for the school tourney are flowing in at a steady rate and the prospects for a large field are exceedingly bright. Late yesterday afternoon, the entry sheet, which is posted on the bulletin board outside the tennis courts, showed a list of more than 30 future tennis stars who had already entered.

All other entrants are requested to sign their names as soon as possible and also to indicate the division in which they expect to compete. All intending doubles combinations should also ist themselves on the same sheet.

Veterans Not Yet Out

The list already entered does not contain the majority of the veterans that are considered the threats in this tournament. Very few of last year's freshman squad have entered as yet and neither have the present freshman stars signified their intentions.

These additional players will swell the list considerably and will probably cause it to exceed sixty. This will automatically cause the tournament to become a two-division affair and should provide more interesting play.

As yet the freshman entrants are not equal in number to half of the non-letter players and all freshmen, regardless if their games are exceptional or not, are urged to enter for the competitive practice this tourney will provide.

EC GROUP HEARS SPRUILL'S SPEECH

Dr. C. P. Spruill at Seminar Especially Mentions Use of Gold Standard Today.

Addressing the economics seminar Wednesday evening, Dr. C. P. Spruill spoke on the subject, "The Role of Money in a Regime of Economic Nationalism."

After a brief survey of the recent experience of Japan and France, he considered the uses of devaluation as an instrument of international competition.

Effects Limited

Professor Spruill argued that the price-raising effects of devaluation of the dollar in the United States has been limited by the inability of the banks to mark up the value of their reserves. As foreign nations have already pointed out, the administration is too reluctant to use its gold as a basis for more currency.

Next the speaker raised the question of the uses of gold in a modern monetary system. He stated that the type of gold standard prevailing before the World War has not been restored during any part of the period since the war.

The present uses of gold are strongly suggestive of sterile hoards, but gold holdings are actively sought and jealously guarded. It may be that they are worth their cost in their reassurance to a public unwilling to depart from a traditional standard of value, the speaker averred.

HALF OF LIQUOR SOLD ILLEGALLY

Code Authority Claims Federal Government Is Defeating Its Own Purpose.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—(UP)—The bootlegger, laughing up his sleeve at repeal, is selling half the liquor consumed in the United States every day, the National Code Authority for the wholesale alcoholic beverage industry claimed tonight.

The assertion that every other drink that goes down the throats of the American people is "moonshine or worse" was made by Joseph Triner, chairman of the code authority, as he called 21,000 liquor wholesalers together for a price stabilization conference.

"The situation is far worse than the public realizes in its greed for legalized liquor," he said.

Price Conference

The bootlegger, with half the business now, will have the entire field to himself unless liquor taxes are reduced and license fees lowered, Triner added.

The price stabilization conference, opening here Monday to launch a campaign against high taxes and bootlegging, will be held in connection with a "liquor and beer world's fair."

"The government is defeating its own purposes by failing to take the bull by the horns and rid itself of the bootlegger," Triner charged.

"Millions of dollars are being stolen from under the noses of government officials through the illicit traffic of liquor—some of it no better than the bath-tub variety of prohibition days."

Attending the price stabilization meeting will be representatives of 18 code regions of the United States. Several government officials will speak.

Liquor concerns from all parts of the world will display their wares at the "Alcoholic World's Fair," exhibiting rare vintages and the brews and liqueurs of faraway lands.

ginia. Virginia lost to Navy, Saturday, 21 to 6.

North Carolina, tail-enders to Tennessee in a 19 to 7 game Saturday, will try its luck with Georgia at Athens Saturday. Although Henry Krouse, Tennessee quarter, raced away with the opening kick-off for a 98-yard run and touchdown against the Tar Heels, Carolina scored and held Tennessee, 7 to 6, until the third quarter. Then, the Vols pushed over two more touchdowns to win.

New York City fans will see the Cadets of V. M. I. in action against Columbia University. V. M. I. was mauled in its first game by Duke and didn't recover in time for the second game with South Carolina, losing 22 to 6.

Virginia Tech, leading with two touchdowns, saw Florida's gators play heads-up football Saturday, and was finally defeated 20 to 13. This week-end, V. P. I. plays William and Mary, 20 to 8 winners over Emory and Henry, before Richmond fans.

Washington and Lee will play University of West Virginia at Charlottesville, W. Va.

Duke Presidents to Talk Before Tuesday Chapel

son for booing announcements of Carolina victories in the past generally brought forth no better reply than this from Duke men: 'Well, they do it to us, so why shouldn't we do it to them?' The lack of logic in this argument is self-evident. Perhaps Carolina students did greet the news of Duke victories with anything but acclaim. But a start has to be made in the other direction—and we are proud that Duke students made it Saturday.

"If the intense rivalry between Carolina and Duke can be confined to the times when the teams of the two universities meet in actual competition, success of a true friendship between them is assured."

DATE FOR FILING RHODES SCHOLAR APPLICATIONS SET

November 17 Is Deadline for Scholarship Applications.

Professor C. P. Spruill announced yesterday that applications for Rhodes scholarships are due November 17, 1934. Elections will be held the first week in January, 1935, and scholars elected at that time will enter the University of Oxford in October, 1935.

Rhodes scholars are elected for two years with a stipend of five thousand dollars. No restriction is placed upon a scholar's choice of studies. A candidate may apply either in the state in which he lives or in the one in which he has received at least two years of his college education.

To be eligible, a candidate must be a male citizen of the United States and unmarried; be between the ages of nineteen and twenty-five; and have completed at least his sophomore year at college.

Many Qualities Necessary

There are several qualities which will be considered in making the selection. Chief among these are the qualities of manhood; truth, courage, devotion to duty, and fellowship.

The candidate will also be judged by his literary and scholastic as well as his physical vigor as shown by interest in outdoor sports or in other ways.

Each state may receive two scholarships annually. Prof. Spruill is the institutional representative for the University as designated by President Graham.

Last year Robert Barnett, graduate student of the University, was awarded this scholarship. Barnett, who comes from China and North Carolina, was a student of economics and is continuing his work at Oxford.

Student Contests Expulsion in Court

Topeka, Kansas, Oct. 11.—(UP)—Whether Kansas State College at Manhattan can force its students to take compulsory military training is to come to a showdown in a court test.

A temporary injunction, issued by Judge Paul Heinz of the district court, forbids President F. D. Farrell and the Board of Regents of the school from expelling Raymond McMahon, student from Logan, Kan.

McMahon, through his attorneys, states he is conscientiously opposed to war and military training, and further charges that the government, in granting the land to the state for a school, made no specification that military training was compulsory. He further charges that no legislature has conferred on the Board of Regents the power to make such training obligatory at the college.

These students were confined to the infirmary yesterday: Gwendolyn McReynolds, T. P. Jimmerson, Manny Kirschner, Roy Percy, C. R. Weinsberg, Elizabeth Stoker, Hugh Primrose, W. M. Ford, Lawrence London, J. R. Raper, and Peggy Ann Harris.

GRAHAM DEPICTS EDUCATION'S AIM IN ADDRESS HERE

President Exhorts Students to Seize Intellectual and Spiritual Opportunities of Education.

DR. H. B. HAYWOOD SPEAKS

Delivering the Founder's Day address here yesterday, President Frank P. Graham called upon the students to interweave the basic things—mind, body and spirit—with the elements found here—faculty, curriculum and traditions of freedom and honor.

The exercises celebrating the 141st birthday of the first of America's state universities were marked with extreme simplicity and dignity.

The principal address by President Graham, a greeting from the alumni delivered by Dr. Hubert B. Haywood of Raleigh and a roll call of alumni who have died during the past year were features of the program.

Debt to Forefathers

"The new thunder of science and human experience is no less impressive than the ancient thunder communicated to us in the experience of the great Jewish race with a moral sovereignty which runs through the nature of man and the universe," President Graham declared.

"Mastery of body and mind is not enough," he said. "Moral stamina and courage for great human causes come from sources deeper than body and mind. Body and mind may miss the way of life because not lighted by the light that shines from within. The deeper the spiritual resource the higher the personal life."

College Opportunity

Running through his talk was the emphasis upon the opportunity of college men to develop "unified victorious personalities, spiritually radiant in the work and the adventures of mankind to make a freer and fairer world for all men."

He closed on the note of his

M'NIDER ATTENDS BOSTON MEETING

Pharmacologist Presides at Meeting of International Anesthesia Research Congress.

Dr. W. deB. MacNider, head of the Pharmacology department, left last night for Boston to attend a meeting of the International Anesthesia research congress, of which he is president. The congress will be in session October 15-19.

Members of the society are scientists interested in research on the physiology and pathology of substances that induce a state of anesthesia and the experimental and clinical use of such substances.

The meeting is held in Boston mainly to commemorate the work of Horace Wells and W. G. T. Morton, who did early work on the use of anesthetics on human beings.

The first person to use an anesthetic substance to bring about a condition of anesthesia was Dr. Crawford W. Long, of Georgia, in 1842.

The organization includes 15 representatives from foreign institutions.

The color-bearers leading the parade are Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, and Jack Pool, president of the senior class. Weathers is carrying the flag of the United States, and Pool that of North Carolina. To the right of the parade can be seen the bulletin board on which the alumni office posted telegrams of congratulations from alumni.

DEAN ADDRESSES GRADUATE SCHOOL

Ruark, Zimmermann, and Taylor Also Speak; 206 Graduates Are Enrolled This Year.

Discussing this fall's enrollment figures of the University graduate school, Dr. William W. Pierson, dean of the graduate department here, addressed members of the school in Smith building last night.

Dr. Arthur E. Ruark, new dean of the University physics department, also made a brief speech following Dr. Pierson's talk.

Other speakers were Dr. E. W. Zimmermann, economics professor here, and Dr. George Coffin Taylor of the English department.

The total registration of graduate school this fall is 206, according to figures presented by Dr. Pierson. These 206 students received their master's degrees from 92 different institutions in the country.

Dr. Pierson said that 83 of the 206 had already received their master's degrees from 27 other institutions in the United States.

Among the graduates were representatives from 27 states and two foreign countries. There are 147 men enrolled and 59 women.

Following the talks a social hour was held among the students, and refreshments were served.

"The law limits the speed of cars to 20 miles an hour in the business district and 30 miles an hour elsewhere," said Manager Caldwell.

GRAHAM STATES NEED FOR FUNDS

Boston and Pittsburgh Alumni Hear President Graham Speak over Telephone.

In a Founder's Day address Thursday night by long-distance telephone to an alumni meeting in Boston, President Frank P. Graham stated the University's need for larger endowments and appropriations and a return to the old salary scale.

He emphasized the meaning of the University Day meetings such as the Boston meeting, to the University, coming as they do at the time when she is in need of the loyal support of all her sons and daughters.

Faculty Losses

President Graham spoke also on the significance of the loss this year of such faculty members as R. D. W. Connor, C. T. Murchison, and N. P. Bailey.

He reminded the Boston alumni of the coming of strong new men like Arthur E. Ruark, head of the physics department; Glen Haydon, music department head; J. E. Mulder of the law school; and Carl Snavely, head football coach.

Constructive Studies

The president told of studies made as a basis for intelligent consolidation and of the faculty's critical and constructive re-examination of the curriculum and its relation to University life.

President Graham spoke over long-distance telephone last night to a similar meeting of alumni in Pittsburgh. Interviewed before the speech by a DAILY TAR HEEL representative, he said that he would make an address with a different setting from that of the Boston speech but would emphasize many of the same points.

STOLL INDICATES RANSOM GRANTED TO INTERMEDIARY

Family of Kidnaped Woman Asks Police for Chance to Contact Kidnapers.

KENTUCKY POLICE READY

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 12.—(UP)—Forty-eight hours after the abduction of Mrs. Alice Stoll developments indicated that the stage was set for the climax of one of the south's most daring and brutal crimes.

B. V. Stoll, husband of the kidnaped woman, indicated tonight that the $50,000 ransom demand has been placed in a predetermined spot or else in the hands of an intermediary. He also stated that all ransom requirements have been met.

Police Withdrawn

All city and federal officers have been withdrawn as a result of a plea on the part of the Stoll family that they be left in complete isolation, so that they might be free to contact the kidnapers.

Stoll has requested that there be wide publicity of the fact that ransom demands have been met and said that he has pledged immunity to the kidnaper if his wife is returned safely.

Police Ready

General Darnhardt, police authority, said that he had 50 members of the new Kentucky state police force ready to act at a moment's notice but that he is holding them back for the present.

Mrs. Stoll was taken from her home late Thursday by a man who entered her home on the pretense that he had come to the fix the telephone.

Mrs. Woolet, who is a maid in the Stoll home, said that the man "looked and acted like a fiend."

The Chapel Hill peace delegation petitioned the Senators to support the following measures: to urge the adoption by Congress of a permanent peace plan; to urge the reduction of armaments, in order to definitely end the race between the nations for military supremacy; to urge Congress to take steps to end the corrupting influences of munition manufacturers.

Plans for the delegation were made here following the address by Mrs. Sherman Barnes of the International Woman's League for Peace.

DUKE PROFESSOR TO TALK MONDAY IN GERRARD HALL

Dr. E. M. Carroll to Speak at Third "Y" Discussion on War and Peace.

IS AUTHORITY ON FRANCE

Dr. E. M. Carroll of the history and government department of Duke University will speak at the third of the series of Y. M. C. A. programs on war and international relations in Gerrard hall Monday night.

Students and faculty are invited to hear Dr. Carroll's address. The convocation will be a regular meeting of the joint "Y" cabinets.

Author on Subject

Considered one of the leading authorities on present conditions in Europe, Dr. Carroll has spent many years in Europe since the war and is the author of numerous books on international relations.

Dr. Carroll is the author of "French Public Opinion and Foreign Affairs," a publication dealing with trends in Europe from 1870 until 1914. He has also written "The Origins of the Whig Party," a publication of the American historical association.

Studies in Europe

During 1927 and 1928, the Duke professor traveled in France, and later in 1931 and 1932 he went to Germany, France, and England. During the summers from 1922, 1925, 1926, and 1930, he spent studying and in travel in other countries.

The lecturer will soon publish a book, "Germany, and the Great Powers, 1866-1914."

The Monday meeting will follow two discussions which have already been held by the cabinets. Last Monday, Professors M. S. Heath and R. B. Vance led a discussion on capitalism and war, and the Monday before Dr. English Bagby of the psychology department spoke, discussing that which makes people take part in wars.

Through the faculty bulletin, all members of the University teaching staff have been invited to attend the Monday lecture, and officials of the Y. M. C. A. also invite all students.

Amateur Frank Bucks "Bring Back Alive" Loose Bear From State Fair

When it comes to bear-catching, animal-cager Frank Buck has no edge on Senior J. V. Woodward, Phi Delta Chi. For, together with some of his fraternity brothers, he succeeded in "bringing back alive" to Chapel Hill a half-grown native black bear.

Woodward, with J. D. "Sheriff" Mitchell and other Carolina boys were enjoying the State fair at Raleigh, Monday night. When, at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, the general exhibits building, a large frame structure, burst into flames, the local boys were still on hand.

Animals Wild

In the melee that followed, all the animals within the exhibit building were released. As the prize livestock of the state poured forth from the doors of the exhibit, the citizens present helped themselves to all they could carry.

With all the furred and feathered folk that came forth from the burning building came two half grown bears who had been on exhibition inside. One young bruin headed straight for the executive offices, deserted in the confusion. Hot on his trail followed the local animal-catchers.

They cornered the bear in an empty room and closed in. The bear also closed in and succeeded in tearing off the better part of Woodward's trousers. But finally, persistence was rewarded and the bear was subdued. Elated at their success, the boys put out after the other bear, who after a merry chase eluded his pursuers.

The captured bear was placed in an auto and transferred to the Hill. All who doubt the veracity of the mighty animal catcher's story may see the evidence chained in a garage in the rear of the Phi Delta Chi house.

PARAGRAPHICS

We suggest for the backward dormitories that they decorate their structures with some of South building's red tape.

There's nothing like reading the papers to keep abreast of things. We see by the News and Observer that money problems are now claiming world-wide attention.

The AAA has certainly done a lot, of course, to relieve the farmer, but it took Carolina to make the nation corn conscious.

Oh Shux!

Well, folks, it looks like it's all over but the shouting. True to the hoary old Carolina tradition, the proposed student-faculty day has become so involved in administrative red-tape that we may as well settle back and wait until spring comes around again and then see if the boys can outwit the old foxes.

In the first place, the committee in charge of preparations for this student-faculty get-together lost about two weeks of valuable time trying to locate someone who could tell them when the faculty would have a meeting. There wasn't any animosity about the thing; the boys just wanted to know whether the pedagogues were figuring on having a meeting or not, and if so, would have been tickled to death with the opportunity of putting the proposition before them for approval, or hermetical-sealing.

They finally found the official, but it was too bad, because they would have felt a lot better about it all if he would never have been located. You see, this official thought the matter over and decided that the faculty—when they did meet—wouldn't think much of the idea because—well, just because they probably wouldn't especially like another holiday interrupting the eternal fitness of things.

So the official suggested that instead of going directly to the faculty, the boys present the plan at the meeting of the Student Welfare board on Monday. If this group approved it, then they would blow the trumpets and gather the professors together and the chances would be a little better that the faculty-student day might become a reality.

But, of course, by the time the faculty could give their weighty consent, it would be too late to get much done in the way of preparation before the 30th, the date for which the jamboree has been set.

So, with pure, cold logic, it was suggested that the plan be dropped until spring, when the weather would be balmy and nice and the faculty wouldn't mind about the holiday and the boys could have three or four months finding officials and having meetings so that they could get underway.

The way our administrative system along such lines runs is certainly startling. Nobody has become upset at all; in fact, everybody seems to think that spring would be a wonderful time for any kind of gathering for students and pedagogues because the oaks wouldn't be shedding their nasty old leaves all over everyone and the birds would be singing sweeter and all that beautiful sentiment.

So, with perfect resignation, we put the noble plan on the shelf along with the functions of the Student council and the Interfraternity council and the student activities committee and a few other local organizations. Shux, this old school has been going for 141 years and just because things are going slowly these days it doesn't mean the University is going to quit, does it?

Let's Have A Christening

Carolina! There's magic in the name.

At least, we thought so. The old school has struggled along for 141 years bearing that title, and no one objected. Nobody, reading the headlines, ever had to stop and say, "Carolina? Um—lemme see—that's the state university, ain't it?" Alumni spoke the word with rapture, schoolboys with awe and reverence; prattling infants lisped it with unconscious gravity. The only chance for confusion in the public mind lay in the fact that people might confuse the school with a similarly-named institution to the south—which, when you stop to think about it, is not worth worrying about, anyway.

But now we are part of a Greater scheme of things. And the devotees thereof don't intend to let the public forget that State and Carolina are just cogs in a wheel. The sum of the Greater University is mightier than any of its parts, and so its partisans figure that the public ought to quit hearing about Carolina and State instead of the Greater University. So what do they do but get together and figure out a plan to junk Carolina, traditions and all, and bring forth something called Chapel Hill unit. In the same way, State would become Raleigh unit.

Well, let's see. Might be a good idea, after all. Suppose Chapel Hill unit and Raleigh unit were playing football. The band woud begin the festivities with a snappy rendition of "Tar Heels"—no, that's out—"Chapel Hill units on hand." A cheerleader wouldn't stand "Chapel Hill unit" long—probably abbreviate to Chapel Hill and Raleigh. Then it would sound like a battle to the death for the high school championship.

They say the name "Carolina" is too all-embracing for one school—unit, pardon us; that it ought to be sort of rationed out among the three of us. Well, if the protagonists of this idea think that State would take over our name and sing "Hark the Sound," then that's a matter to be settled between them, State, and the State alumni. Meanwhile, we'll remain Tar Heels.

Hello, Everybody

In the hustle and bustle of present-day campus life, we seem to forget one of the time-honored customs of Carolina gentlemen (we still insist we're gentlemen!).

When this University was founded every student knew every one of his classmates, because there were only six boys enrolled in the first year. However, as the enrollment grew it became increasingly difficult for the boys to remember their schoolmates' names, so the practice of "hey-ing" and "hello-ing" between every student was begun and became a tradition.

We understand from authentic sources that there is more homesickness on this campus this year than ever before. There is a tremendous amount of encouragement in a cordial greeting when one student passes another which should aid mightily in staving off this and other maladies.

And even if the person addressed has no maladies at all, speaking on this campus is a healthy habit and a friendly gesture. Hi, pal!

Speaking The Campus Mind

(BRIEFLY AND LEGIBLY)

From Alphabet Soup To . . . Nuts!

Editor the DAILY TAR HEEL:

There are, we have heard, two sides to every question—even the questions that arise upon every move made by President Roosevelt. We dare say that we will be accused of sacrilege for this statement, for we seem to be in a hotbed of devout Roosevelt worshipers who have long since acquired the habit of murmuring "Amen" to every statement made by him to the public.

We, or to drop the editorial plural which might bring censor upon the DAILY TAR HEEL, I come from a family of white collar workers which, since Roosevelt's entrance into the White House, has been following the trend of his administration with dismay. And having adopted this attitude from observation of the havoc wrought upon our mode of earning a living, we are avid readers of anti-Roosevelt news items, editorials, magazine articles, and what not.

Not only do we read criticisms of Roosevelt, but we hear them daily, coming not only from our neighbors in the north, but from old friends living in the deep south. That statement might startle many of us who, from reading southern newspapers and their one-sided interpretations of Roosevelt's activities, have been led into the belief that the President can do no wrong and that such a thing as an opposition party is non-existent.

Let me hasten to assure you that nothing is farther from the truth. The President, in catering to the laboring class and disastrously flouting the intelligent white collar man, has stimulated the growth of an opposition that existed from the moment that Roosevelt took his oath of office. This opposition does not disregard the benefits that have come from the present regime, but it does refuse to be swayed by the sensational propaganda and hitherto unequalled policy of favorable publicity that has accompanied every move made by the Man in Washington. It may concede that unemployment has been decreased, but it will argue soundly and doggedly that it has been done in a manner that is unhealthy for the future. It may agree that Roosevelt's tremendous expenditures have been moderately successful, but it refuses to lose sight of the fact that the deficit that would, by Roosevelt's estimation six days after his inauguration, exceed $5,000,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year "unless immediate action were taken," now stands not at the feared $5,000,000,000, but at $9,500,000,000! It may agree that prohibition repeal has been for the common good of the people, but it denies that the national income from federal liquor taxes has been as large as was once predicted. It may agree that the old bootlegger and speakeasy have been abolished, but it offers for your consideration the fact that the government is now actively engaged in enforcing repeal and carrying out an expensive campaign against tax-avoiding liquor producers and retailers.

What I say is not conceived in imagination; it is based on facts that might be sneered at, but cannot be denied. There are two sides to every question and a bit of secondary thinking must persuade us that all is not well in America, and that the crisis, for which Hoover is unjustly blamed, has not been materially relieved by Roosevelt, but, perhaps, so handled by him that its curse will be felt far into the future.

CULTURAL NOTE

In the Pi Phi (sorority) library, there's a set of six biographies. Five of them, we noticed, are intact with jackets and uncut pages. They are: "Disraeli," "Franklin," "Lincoln," "Bismark," and "Queen Victoria." The sixth has no jacket, and shows signs of active wear and tear. And its title is "Daughters of Eve."

EARNEST CORRESPONDENT

The University Extension Division received a letter from a lady who wrote in to ask if she couid take by correspondence Mr. Ernest Groves' course in "How to Get Married."

THE DEPRESSION ISN'T OVER

A bulletin from Florida informs us that John D. Rockefeller, now 95, has not only stopped giving away shiny new dimes, but has given up golf. It's hit us all pretty hard, hasn't it, Jack?

EDUCATIONAL TRENDS

On one of the papers more or less connected with registration, one freshman writes that he wants an "A.B. in medcine," another wants a "B.S. in Medisin," a third wants an "A.B. in Journilism," and the brightest of them all wants an "A.B. in Generalism." Another brags that he is a graduate of Bells High School, N. C., and that "Bells is in the north east of Cathamham (Editor's note—Chatham) county of this state." But, remembering the evils attendant upon registration day, we're almost inclined to sympathize with them, especially when a Carolina graduate writes from Columbia on registering: "Even at that though, it's less complicated here with the thirty thousand students than it is at Carolina."

"CALL FOR NOAH WEBSTER"

The Romance Language department has fished up some swell errors in spelling: "proswagon" for persuasion, "shurf" for sheriff, and "anxiousiety." The French word farouche was translated "faroucious." And two prize statements: "When knighthood was at its highest pedestal," and "In Marie de France's writings one finds many grammerical errors."

FAREWELL TO ARMS

You may or may not know that all antiques are admitted to this country duty-free. Dr. Erich Zimmermann tells one about somebody who bought a reproduction of the famous Venus de Milo in Italy, and got it in duty-free. It passed for an antique because the arms were broken off.

WHO SHALL NEVER SEE?

You've probably noticed that the big oak tree in front of the infirmary is being doctored. All the rotten wood is chiseled out of the center, and though it's held together with metal braces until the concrete will be poured in, you can see light through the center of the trunk for about fifteen feet. Somebody asked the tree-doctor, a fellow named Dickinson who used to be a student here, why he didn't cut the tree down first before he cut it in half. Dickinson says he'd like to put the fellow who said that in the center of the tree, and concrete him up. Nobody would ever know the difference.

HISTORICAL NOTE

In a history theme, a student found it necessary to quote from an ancient writer whose message had been somewhat garbled by a typographical error. The quotation was as follows: "The priests violated their cows." The student added a footnote, which read as follows: "It seems to me that this should have been left to the papal bulls."

Varsity Gridsters Battle Strong Georgia Bulldogs Today On Athens Field

Students Use Gridgraph in Memorial Hall to Witness Game; Kick-off at 3:00 O'clock; Coach Snavely Banking on Durability of First String as Reserves Have Not Come Through.

THE PROBABLE LINEUP

CAROLINA	POSITION	GEORGIA

Daniel	C	McKnight
Kahn	R. G.	Moorehead (C)

Snyder	Q. B.	Griffith
Shaffer	L. H.	Grant
Dashiell	R. H.	Causey
Hutchins	F. B.	Chapman

Coach Carl Snavely with a squad of thirty-one strong left yesterday afternoon at 6:30 o'clock enroute to Athens where the Tar Heels will invade the camp of the mighty Georgia Bulldogs this afternoon.

The following score and eleven men accompanied Coach Snavely on the Tar Heels' initial conquest on foreign soil: McCarn, Childers, Evins, Ray, Trimpey, Daniel, Gardner, Kanner, Barclay, McIver, Pendergraft, Tatum, Wren, Kahn, Joyce, Webb, Buck, Barwick, Dashiell, Jackson, Martin, Hutchins, Stuart, McCachren, Snyder, Dunham, Shaffer, Bell, Montgomery, and Cooner.

The kickoff at 3:00 o'clock will bring a galaxy of stars into action. Captain George Barclay of the Tar Heels and Captain Moorehead of the Bulldogs, both all-southern guards last year, will be battling for the spotlight in the line. On the other hand our backs will have to measure up to such ball luggers as Chapman and Cy Grant of the Bulldogs.

Students See Gridgraph

Tar Heel fans may see a play-by-play account of this afternoon's game on the gridgraph in Memorial hall.

The Mehre-coached men seem to be the slight favorites. Carolina is strong as long as the first string can hold out as shown last week against the Tennessee eleven. The reserves have not come along as they should have during the past week.

Injuries also have played their havoc to the Snavely camp, claiming Trimpey, Snyder, Gardner, and Dashiell. None of these miscues are serious, however, and each of the men is able to play if need be.

The Tar Heels are quite polished up on their aerial attack, which on paper seems their only means to victory. The powerful Georgia line last week held a likewise strong Furman Hurricane to exactly 51 yards gained through the line.

Coach Snavely has well drilled his men on the Notre Dame system which the Bulldogs employ. For several practices the frosh used their group of Notre Dame shifts against the first and second stringers.

N. C. State's Wolfpack and South Carolina's Gamecocks battle in Raleigh tonight, the kick-off being at 8:00 o'clock. The battle appears to be close, but with Hunk Anderson's men favored.

"You didn't go to Athens for the ball game, I see. I couldn't go either, but I'm going to the next best thing right now. Why not come along? Where? Yeah, I'm going up to Memorial hall to see the gridgraph . . ."

If you could not make the trip down to the Bulldogs' lair, come up to the Memorial hall and join the crowd watching the Carolina gridgraph, which gives a play by play account of the actual game.

The athletic bureau is trying to give the Tar Heel students all it can, so it goes to the extreme to provide the student body with such a vivid account of the real game.

Resembles Regular Field

The gridgraph is like the regular playing gridiron only on quite a bit smaller scale. An electric light serves as the ball and moves on the graph as the real pigskin moves on the field down in Athens. Every play is recorded accurately. On forward passes the light passes as does the ball, and if the throw is incomplete the light comes back to the former position.

Each play comes into Chapel Hill by telegraph and the officials working the gridgraph relay the action to the light.

On the sides of the regular playing field on the gridgraph, are the lineups of the two teams. Lights are beside each player. Substitutions are recorded in the lineups as soon as they occur. On each play the fellow carrying the ball has his name lighted, and likewise with the man making the tackle.

At the top of the graph, is a list of possible plays, each of which is lighted as it is run off. First downs are registered in the same manner as well as what down it is and how many yards to go. The injuries are announced.

In other words, the gridgraph gives a complete and thorough summary of the game as it actually goes on.

The admission is only 25 cents and this is enacted only to defray the necessary expenses which the lighting and telegraphing cause.

Commerce Picnic

The members of the commerce department and their wives will have a weiner roast and picnic from 5:00 until 8:00 o'clock tonight at the University lake.

TWO TAR HEEL THREATS

The old, old story about "Man bites dog" may come true again today when the Tar Heel football men invade the lair of the Georgia Bulldogs. But Mehre's Bulldogs are known for their viciousness and may prove too dogged for the Snavely men.

"Babe" Daniel (right) ranks among the best centers of the south. He is steady on offense and a stone wall to the enemy offensive attacks. The "Babe" also possesses an educated toe which is especially adapted to booting placements for extra points.

"Baldy" Snyder (left) has taken the role of blocking back under Coach Snavely's modified Warner system and is well living up to all pre-dope that he could make the grade. "Baldy" has shown what blocking really is in the two games the Carolina eleven has played, as he paved the paths for many a run. Against the Vols he carried the ball three times, once for 30 yards.

Wade's Blue Devils And Ga. Tech Mix At Duke In Today's Feature

Duke Favored to Get Revenge For Defeat Handed Them Last Year by Jackets.

Durham, N. C., Oct. 12.—With a capacity crowd of 35,000 expected and a series of before, during and after game celebrations that promises to make it a most colorful game, Duke of the Southern Conference and Georgia Tech of the Southeastern will meet in Duke stadium tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

As an exhibition of football, it should be one of the greatest in the south this season, with two fine football elevens, directed by two nationally-known coaches, fighting it out on the gridiron.

This is only the second year of rivalry between Duke and Georgia Tech but it so happened that the one year they met, last year, was the lone defeat on the Blue Devil's schedule and the Wademen are determined to even it up.

Wade Holds Edge

While it will be the second time the two institutions have met, it will mark the ninth time Coaches Wallace Wade of Duke and Bill Alexander of Tech have matched wits. Wade's teams have won four times, Alexander's three and one was tied.

If the Blue Devils can stop Georgia Tech's aerial attack, they should have an even chance to win. However, the overhead game of the Yellow Jackets is rated probably the finest in the south with the best thrower in Captain Jack Phillips, fullback. In the years Phillips has been on the Tech team, they have probably completed more passes than any other team in the country.

It will be a battle of outstanding stars. Phillips for the Jackets and "Corky" Cornelius, Duke's side-wheeling halfback, are two of the greatest backfield men in the country.

In the line there are several veterans on each team who will

FOOTBALL

FACTS AND GUESSES
By
Bill Anderson

Today Carolina will have more than its share of trouble in licking another fine University of Georgia football eleven. The Bulldogs, although crippled throughout their 1933 season dropped only two games, Auburn and Southern California.

And the only thing bothering Coach Harry Mehre in duplicating and even perhaps bettering last year's fine record is that old jinx, injuries.

At the beginning of this fall's schedule, a great Furman eleven gave Georgia fans a real scare. But two of Georgia's sterling players were on the shelf nursing injuries, Buck Chapman, big fullback who can make two touchdowns difference in the score of any game; and Leroy "Baby Face" Morehead, a splendid guard.

This Chapman lad is tremendous. Last year at the Yale Bowl where he proved to be a sensation, Chapman hurt his leg, causing a varicose vein to press against the main nerve of his right leg. This trouble brought Coach Mehre no little bit of worry last year; sometimes Chapman would be going like a "Four Alarm Fire" and then again he would fall in his tracks with apparently no good reason. Last spring, the surgeons looked over the trouble, and now they claim Mr. Aubrey Chapman is good as new . . . watch for him this afternoon at the gridgraph.

Today Coach Mehre will have as substitues for Chapman, either David or Gaston. In the backfield, the star Homer Key has graduated, but Jack Griffith is a close second as a cagey field general. Cy Grant and John Graves Also Plays Brilliantly; Constantly on Offensive.

Power and speed, more power and more speed was the way a potential Carolina yearling football squad, which numbered up to 60 men for the entire fracas, ran roughshod over a smaller Baby Deacon eleven from Wake Forest in Kenan stadium yesterday, by the tune, 33-7.

Playing in the Deacons' territory practically all afternoon, the Tar Babies were ever on the offensive, driving up and down the field at a pace which they themselves were able to set. From the opening on, the Blue and White had the game as they wished, to make or break. They made 24 first downs to the Deacs 7 and had to punt only twice.

Substitutes were quite in style from the Carolina bench as more than four complete outfits entered the melee as a group. The first three teams were King Kongs to the Deacs and did quite as they pleased, the third team using a neat conception of the Notre Dame shift. But the fourth quad, much lighter and playing under the "prayer-formation," gave the Deacons their only score.

Last Play Scores

This donation of a touchdown to the losers came on the very last play of the meet. The fourthers had entered the game with only a couple minutes to play and the Baptists started a deadly aerial attack which landed on the Carolina two-yard line. Here the varsity frosh went in and held the Deacs on two line plunges. Then Allen, sub back, flipped a high lob over the goal which Butler, amid two Tar Babies, reached up and brought down.

The play of the Carolina teams was marked by the offensive drive of all the backs, Captain Burnette being the star of the game. Squirming for extra yards, plunging for first downs, passing to welcome arms, punting, and drop kicking for extra points, this blonde back truly was the man of the day.

Playing ball right up with their captain, were the whole first string. Walborn, Thomas and Ditt carried the pigskin to gain yard after yard, Ditt scoring two of the touchdowns. Both flankmen, Keeney and Bershak, played superb football as they snagged passes out of the air on the offensive and smashed play after play on the defensive.

Graves Stars

George Graves led the second stringers which at some times far outplayed the varsity. This Graves was probably the most elusive back of the game as he stepped off yard after yard. His passes also were accurate as a bullet. Bricklemyer and Partin, each of whom tallied a touchdown, played heads-up as well as Scherer and Ax in the line.

Oliver was the big shot of the third stringers as he got off several long runs of 35 and 36 yards, one for a touchdown after he had gone off tackle and then turned in some beautiful broken field running. Henderson, Mc-

ENTRIES FOR NET MEET WORK HARD

Closing Date for Entrants in Tennis Meet Is Set for Next Tuesday.

Practice for the campus tennis tournament is going at a rapid clip as the various players are whipping up their games to their highest pitch. Entries are coming in very slowly but if the expected late rush occurs a large field will swing into action on Wednesday.

All students are reminded that the closing date for entries is Tuesday, October 16, and are advised to get their entries in early.

Yesterday the courts were in constant use as various players worked out. Frank Rericha and Sid Weinstein staged a stirring duel late in the afternoon with Rericha winning out in an extra-game set. Rericha is considered a sizable threat and along with Ramsay Potts, Eddie De Gray and others, the tournament promises a display of fast-moving action and plenty of skillful tennis.

Archie Henderson, Johnny Foreman, Morty Singer, and Gene Robinson are others who have been seen testing their strokes on the courts in preparation for this tournament. Campus tennis champion is an esteemed honor and in addition the winner is always marked down as future varsity material, proving beyond doubt that every racqueteer will be giving his best when the tournament gets underway.

Cross Country

All varsity cross country men are to meet at Emerson field this morning at 11:30 o'clock and are to have a trial run on the regular course. Coach Dale Ranson urges all men to be on time.

Tar Baby Footballers Defeat Baptists, 33-6; Score in Every Period

Donald and Tyson, rounding out the backfield were outstanding as well as Dixon, acting captain, on the defense.

The Tar Babies started the game with their drive. They had kicked off but Wake Forest was forced to punt after failure to make first down. Burnette on the first play went off tackle for 20 yards to put the ball on Wake Forest's 40-yard line. Again Burnette took the ball and picked up 5 on a reverse and then Ditt scampered off tackle for 10 more and first down. Burnette hit tackle for five and then passed to Keeney for seven. Again Burnette made 8 off tackle to make it first on the Deacs' 3-yard stripe. Ditt carried it over center on the first play for the points. Burnette converted the extra via drop kick route.

Here the second team went in. Soon after they obtained the ball on Wake Forest's 37. Bricklemyer and Graves hit the line for 8 yards. After an off-sides penalty, Graves passed to Bricklemyer for 15 yards. Bricklemyer scooted off tackle for 20 yards to make it first down on the Baptists' 3-yard line. Partin scored on the first play. Bricklemyer place-kicked the one-pointer.

The Perfect Play

The most perfectly-executed play of the game came in the middle of the second quarter. With the ball on the 10-yard line, the Babies tried a forward-and-lateral pass. Burnette passed to Walborn who perfectly lateralled to Ditt who in turn had an open field for the end zone and a score.

Graves featured the attack early in the second half. The drive started as Wake Forest punted. Graves made a running catch of the punt and sprinted down the sideline for 30 yards. This same fellow individually made the first down on Wake's 20. After fumbling and recovering, Graves passed to Keeney for 9 and then went off tackle for the remainder to a score.

In the fourth quarter, Oliver personally led the assault. Wake had punted out of bounds on Carolina's 10. Oliver took the pigskin and ran 35 yards before being stopped. Next he passed to an end for 15 yards. Another first down followed and then this same Oliver maneuvered off tackle for 36 yards and the final score for the Tar Babies.

McCarthy and Dalings were the Deacons who were the spark plugs of their team. Each was fast on offense, making all the Deacs' gains, and also hard hitters on the tackling end. Allen, the sub back, featured on the last-moment drive which netted a touchdown on the very last play of the game.

renew the battle they had last year in Atlanta. Dave and John Wilcox, the Tech guards, will represent their "brother act" against that of Duke in the Dunlap brothers, Jack and E. B.

The game will be preceded and followed by one of the biggest celebrations ever connected with a football game in this state. Saturday morning there will be an all-star baseball game between outstanding players of the major leagues who will then attend the football game that afternoon.

Duke's probable starting lineup is as follows: at ends, Wentz and Tarrall; tackles, Durner and Power; guards, Johnston and J. Dunlap (C); center, E. Dunlap; quarterback, Parker; halfbacks, Cornelius and Ward; fullback, Alexander.

Coach Alexander will probably send the following lineup into the opening kick-off: at ends, Katz and Gibson; tackles, Williams and Dean; guards, D. Wilcox and J. Wilcox; center, Preston; quarterback, Roberts; halfbacks, Perkerson and Ferguson; fullback, Phillips (C).

Facts and Guesses

Bond do the punting. Grant is a fine broken field runner while Bond can ram a line with the precision and nicety of a Rameses III.

Back to this Chapman, we can't get him off our mind; he's darn good and it will take our whole team to keep him silenced.

Last fall he streaked across 28 yards to our goal line early in the first quarter on a marvelous reverse. Last year in the Yale game, Chapman gave the Elis a dose of the same medicine he handed out Carolina, scoring in the opening period.

A scintillating run of Homer Key had placed the ball on the Yale's 28. Three line smashes, one a tandem and a couple through the center of the Yale push, and Georgia had scored, Chapman carrying the ball all the time!

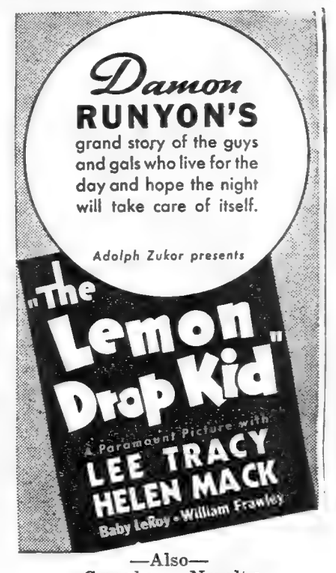
Now for the win picking. Three games stand out as hard to pick: Georgia Tech-Duke; N. C. State-South Carolina; and West Virginia-W. & L. Georgia Tech may not have looked impressive against either Clemson or Vanderbilt. Watch out for Tech's "Shorty" Roberts, 135-pounds of dynamite and fight; "Wink" Davis and Jack Phillips. Duke's fine line will equal the Tornado's. The question is can Cornelius, Ward, and Parker, Blue Devil's ace backs, stack up against the Techs? We believe they can, and pick Duke.

We also pick N. C. State to lick South Carolina. Mauney, the Gamecocks' best bet, will have a hard time getting past the vastly improved, we hear, Wolfpack line. And now, West Virginia- Washington and Lee: W. & L's. fighting Generals have already tasted withering fire, and have upset the fine Kentucky U. eleven, 7-0. Jack Bailey and Joe Arnold, fine junior ball-carriers, will give Eck Allen, West Virginia's stellar quarterback, and his mates a fit; Washington and Lee.

Other games: Kentuckey over Clemson; George Washington University over Citadel; Virginia over St. John's; Columbia over V. M. I.; V. P. I. over William and Mary; Navy over Maryland; Tennessee over Ole Miss.; Vandy over Cincinnati; Alabama over Mississippi A. & M.; Tulane over Florida and L. S. U. over Auburn.



OLSEN TO SPEAK AT BULL'S HEAD

Subject to Be "Left and Right," Discussion of New Deal.

Material from publications on the New Deal and President Roosevelt's aides will be the basis of a talk by Professor William A. Olsen of the English department, who will speak at the Bull's Head bookshop Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

The viewpoints of two commentators, representing pro and con angles of the debate over the present administration, will be brought out in the discussion. POLICIES OF U. S. AND OF GERMANY CLASH ON ISSUES

U. S. Contends That German Plan Discriminates Against American Bondholders.

TREATY IS ABROGATED

Washington, Oct. 13.—(UP)—The policies of the American and German governments met in collision today on two important issues.

The first issue in dispute is the manner in which Germany proposes to meet interest payments on her bond issues. The United States contends that this plan is a discrimination against American bondholders.

The German plan consists of half payment of interest in cash and the balance in "register marks."

Abrogation

The other issue concerned the "most favored nation" treatment employed by the German government in her commercial relations. The American government said that Germany's decision to abrogate the "most favored nation" clause in the German - American commercial treaty "struck at the heart" of the pact.

The commercial treaty between Germany and America is a result of diplomatic negotiations carried on in Washington two years ago in which Germany acknowledged war debts by offering to favor American trade and shipping.

The abrogation of this treaty is interpreted by some in official circles to mean that Germany no longer seriously considers the existence of her post-war debts.

COLLEGE HONORS GREEN TUESDAY

Campbell College Will Dedicate New Paul Green Theatre; Many Notables Expected.

Campbell College will signally honor one of her sons Tuesday night when their new outdoor theatre will be formally dedicated and named the Paul Green Theatre, in honor of Paul Green, professor here, Pulitzer prize-winner, and a graduate of Campbell College.

Special invitations have been mailed to the college trustees, several college presidents, and editors in the state and friends of Mr. Green. There will be a 6:00 o'clock dinner for a small group from this number in the dining hall. Miss Estelle Burt is head of the reception committee.

To Give Play

The Shaw University Players, from Raleigh, will present one of Mr. Green's plays, "The Man Who Died at Twelve O'clock." Lamar Stringfield's Little Symphony orchestra will open and close the program with concert numbers.

Professor H. F. Page, a former teacher of Green, will appear on the program after President Leslie H. Campbell extends greetings to all present. Paul Green will then make a short talk.

Green is now on leave of absence from the University, where he is a professor of philosophy. He recently returned from New York, where his musical play, "Roll, Sweet Chariot," opened October 2.

W. A. Olsen Scheduled For Bull's Head Talk

Professor W. A. Olsen of the English department will be the principal speaker on a program sponsored by the Bull's Head bookshop Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. He will present pro and con angles of the debate over the present administration.

GRAHAM IS 48

Dr. Frank Porter Graham, president of the Greater University, today celebrates his 48th birthday. Dr. Graham served as president of the Chapel Hill unit from 1931 until last year when he was elected by the trustees to fill the post of president of the Greater University. The consolidation of the three state institutions was largely due to his efforts.

"These Fish Have A Weigh With Them," Say Two Co-eds Referring To Gold Scales

By JEAN CANTRELL

"These fish have a weigh with them," Benny said. "Yes," replied Chris longingly. "Such lovely gold scales!" And with these sentimental comments, the saleslady at the goldfish counter in Durham's Kress store knew that she had made a sale.

Under the supervision of Christine Maynard and Mary Alice Bennett, she fished out four distinguished-looking animals, not very long and not very wide, and in spots, not particularly gold. With them she sold a small box of green pellets, which she indicated were to be used for the fishes' nourishment. Had she but known the ignorance of the new parents in the care of young children, she might also have included a pamphlet containing details in regard to fish-rearing.

Demise of Jay Bee

For the four fish, after two days of apparently healthy and happy adjustment in the new fish-bowl, (parked in a window overlooking the arboretum), began to fade. The first to go was Jay Bee, a very dark fish with only the merest suggestion of flaxenish gold on its tummy. "He was called Jay Bee because he so resembled Fredric March," one parent exclaimed mournfully. "And then death took a holiday!"

Benny stated that she remembers that the poor fish was molested by a many-legged insect the day before his death. They noticed at the autopsy that two eyelashes were missing; this was perhaps due to the tweezers Benny employed in removing the insect.

Fredrica, so labelled because of her northern accent, passed away twelve hours after Jay Bee. Tenderly, her parents spoke of her: "She was a bit obese, of course; it was becoming though. She hit the scales at three ounces. It was seldom that one didn't see her swishing about with a cast in her left eye. Hers was the most fannish tail of all."

Poisinality Boy

For all his magnificent independence, Hoiman seemed to have suffered a death of pining. His parents have definite proof that he curled his mustaches to make an impression on Fredrica. "Yes, he probably pined away. We loved him best of all. It was his abundant poisinality (one wondered if it was not Hoiman's "poisinality" that killed them all). And he wasn't one to give you a fishy handshake. The lace on his fins annoyed him, but he made up for it by the extreme masculinity of his splendid mustaches."

The last to go was Kochie. "Kochie would have the last word," Chris said. Kochie was very blond. He had a way with the women. After he was thought dead, he revived for at least five seconds, "as though he was afraid we weren't sending flowers or something."

When asked if they did nothing toward getting medicinal aid, both parents exploded, "Indeed we did! And 'Twould probably have been better if we hadn't. Margaret Ross, the girl next door, put iodine in this water and salt on their nostrils. You'd pass out too if someone put iodine in—well."

Rites

The funeral took place before the cremation. Chris mounted a chair and began to declaim. Quietly weeping, Benny sat beneath on a footstool. A cold-blooded observer leaned in the doorway, a twinkle in her eye. It was at the most tragic point

Kyser Broadcasts To Tar Heel Team

Former University Cheerleader Plays Alma Mater.

Kay Kyser, former Carolina head cheer-leader, and at present filling an engagement at the Black Hawk restaurant in Chicago with his orchestra, gave an informal Carolina pep rally of his own on his radio program over station WGN yesterday morning at 1:30 o'clock.

Kyser had been playing a medley of college songs, and was playing Georgia's alma mater when he announced, in substance, "Georgia plays the University of North Carolina, our Alma Mater, later today. Last year Georgia beat us 30-0, but we and other Carolina alumni hope the result will be different this year. Come on you Tar Heels, let's go!" Then Kyser played "Hark the Sound."

HUSBAND PLEADS WITH KIDNAPERS

Fears Wife Has Been Abandoned By Abductor Who Fled With $50,000 Ransom.

Louisville, Ky., October 13.—B. V. Stoll, whose wife was kidnaped last Tuesday, pled today with the kidnapers to guard his wife's fragile health.

He expressed fears that she had been abandoned, bruised and weakened by sickness while the abductor fled with the $50,000 ransom paid by Stoll to an intermediary yesterday.

Spirited Away

Authorities have advanced the theory that she might have been spirited away in cabin cruiser down the Ohio river. Sportsmen who frequent the river front have reported that an old building on the river bank had been broken into and occupied for a short while, and that they had seen a cabin cruiser tied up in front of this building.

It was learned late today that the ransom money had been shipped to Nashville, Tenn., but it is not known whether the kidnaper has received it.

Assassination Is Part Of International Plot, Investigators Reveal

Instigated by Exiled Croatian, Paris Police Find.

Paris, Oct. 13.—(UP)—Uncovering additional evidence, the Paris police today disclosed an international plot which led to the assassination of King Alexander I of Jugoslavia, and rounded up scores of suspects throughout the whole of France.

Questioning the suspects it was learned that the plot was organized by a Croatian exiled to Hungary and Switzerland and was designed to involve various European powers, including France and Italy.

The objective of the plot was the dismemberment of Jugoslavia with the ultimate independence of Croatia.

Douty Returns

H. M. Douty of the economics department returned to classes Friday, after having been called to Baltimore on the sudden death of his mother.

"Did Not Remember Date," Says Graham

President of Greater University Will Spend Quiet Day at Home on Anniversary.

Frank Porter Graham, president of the Greater University, celebrates today his forty-eighth birthday. He was born in Fayetteville, October 14, 1886, the son of Alexander and Katherine Sloan Graham.

Interviewed about his plans for the day, the president said vaguely, "Well, I don't know. I guess I'll just spend the day at home. You know, I'd forgotten it was my birthday."

Before young Frank could talk his parents moved with him to Charlotte, where his father became superintendent of the Charlotte schools.

After his graduation here he taught in Raleigh High School, was secretary of the "Y" here, later teaching in the University from 1914 to 1930, at which time he was named president of the University. Last year he was elected president of the Greater University of North Carolina.

PARAGRAPHICS

The Chi Psi boys showed quite a faculty for keeping the tea weak Friday.

Coach James told his western Pennsylvanians to pass at will against the Baby Deacs; they couldn't find Will so they took it easy and ran five across.

The Intercollegiate Chess association numbers among its members a considerable number of co-eds. Which suggests, matrimonially speaking, that some of them might turn out to be stale mates.

Scholarships And Fraternities

A number of freshmen, we learn, applied for scholarships. On finding out that they could not join fraternities if they held scholarships, they passed up the latter in favor of membership in a Greek-letter organization.

Now, if this is true—and we don't doubt that it is—something should be done to make it known to our freshman classes, and the campus at large, for that matter, that scholarships are not given at this institution to help prospective pledges pay their fraternity dues. We assume, giving those freshmen in question the benefit of the doubt, that it was ignorance or thoughtlessness on their part that led them to apply for a scholarship with the idea of joining fraternities in the first place. If this is not the case, then the need for more careful investigation into the financial need of applicants is apparent. Donors of scholarships, we fancy, would hereafter become hesitant with their generosity if it became known to them that the money endowed by them was considered potential revenue for fraternities.

The Team Rides Late

The Carolina football team pulled out of Union station in Durham sometime Friday night for Athens, where it played yesterday a crucial game. It had a distance of some 400 miles to ride the iron pony with little more than 18 hours before game time. Yet, when the boys get to Athens, we naturally expect them to ride the Georgia Bulldogs with the same fervor that they might have shown had they just risen from a peaceful slumber and were trotting out on the field at Kenan stadium. No matter what a player's physical condition may be, his energy must needs be sapped to a certain degree by such a lengthy trip, and the effects must be made doubly worse by the fact that there is hardly time enough left on arrival for much more than a bite to eat.

There must be reasons for the team's leaving at the last moment. But whatever they are, the students owe it to their team to see that it has the best of accommodations if they are in any way within ordinary reach.

Note on College Humor

Bigger and better than ever, College Humor has now come out under the editorship of George Delacorte, remembered as the man who was responsible for piloting Ballyhoo to its circulation pinnacles. Thereby, perhaps, we of the blue noses may find an actual example of a long-referred-to parallel between college humor in general and Ballyhoo in particular, especially since Pete Ivey, former editor of the Buccaneer, tells us that the new issue has honored the one-time Buc by reproducing several of its cartoons.

Another parallel, which may or may not be quite badminton, is that Editor Delacorte is now running a feature which he has titled "Non Campus Mentis." (Why, oh why, does that Ballyhoo man have to drag the column of our present Carolina Magazine editor into this?) Our suggestion to Editor Sugarman, for the purloining of this perfectly good name for a column, would be to sue for the blemished reputation of the classics and college literature.

If It's Not One Thing . . .

It looks like the men of this fair campus just haven't a chance any more.

Even yesterday we were literally beseeched by a group of indignant sorority—yes, we said sorority—girls who swore their groups were fraternities, not sororities. Now, we ask you! We can even remember from our prep school Latin days that "frater" means brother, and now the girls take the pants and the Granger Rough Cut and everything else, and even swipe our cognomen!

Here we thought we had ONE inviolable, invulnerable, impeccable right. But they are stubborn about it. They insist that in 100 per cent girls' schools, they are sororities, but in a co-ed institution, they become fraternities. Now that makes it even worse. When it doesn't make any difference one way or the other, they're satisfied with being just sororities; but when they have such a perfectly marvelous chance to pull one over on us unsuspecting males, they creep up and call themselves fraternities.

There just ain't no justice!

Gentlemen, Be Seated!

The Bulldogs of Yale (that's where Albie Booth went) and the Gentlemen Nassauites of Princeton, setters of sartorial fashions, are now engaged in taking a few friendly dirty digs at each other. It's all because Old Nassau is building a beautiful new library, with expensive Gothic ornamentation and everything, and Old Eli, already having one, is not particularly well pleased with the idea.

The latter institution isn't the least bit jealous, mind you. The inmates just feel that Princeton is not going about the thing in the proper educational spirit. You see, the money for the new Princeton library is raised by the alumni, which should not be because, as the Yale News glibly puts it, "it is difficult to see why alumni would give for such a purpose rather than for more legitimate educational aims." The Yale library, of course, was built with money "given for specific building purposes and could not be used otherwise."

In the new Princeton library, too, reports have it that two "richly furnished lounges, each complete with kitchenette for tea and refreshments, will be provided." There will be movable partitions, private alcoves, individual desks and lockers, and lots of innovations. The sons of Eli forgot about all this new stuff in building theirs or else, as they say, regarded it all as not "significant factors in the cultivation of keenly trained, cultured intellects."

Personally, we think the Yale boys are shouting up the wrong alley. Or else they're trying to cultivate those "keenly trained, cultured intellects" by putting their agile minds to the task of finding something wrong with their mutually efficient "clothes-styles-setters" down at Princeton. Or maybe they don't like Gothic architecture and tea up at Yale.

It Was So Wonderful

We're sorry to see that grand old institution, the N. C. State Fair, finish up for the 1934 season.

The pigs were great; they consumed tons and tons of frozen custard, gobbled weiners industriously . . . well, they surely were mighty fine pigs. We enjoyed the side-shows, too. Some fine young University gentlemen provided some of the best features of the entire exhibit, but unfortunately, were not recompensed for their efforts. The amateur standing rule, you know.

It certainly has been a year of progress. We hear reports of students who "took the fair in like it should have been taken" and, statistically speaking, there was evident considerable progress in youth's efforts to break the N. C. State Fair endurance records.

"Fair Attendance Shatters Record." Yes, they weren't half bad at that.

Marching Through Georgia

We didn't have to "Vault the Vols" in order to "Take the South."

Yesterday's great victory means a lot more than the won-lost column will ever show. It means that the Tar Heel spirit did not flinch after Tennessee's victory.

It means that we're going to show Coach Snavely and his charges that we're with them to the limit; Carolina is taking the south!

Alonzo Fenderson, who recently performed at Memorial hall in the presentation of "Green Pastures," died early Thursday evening shortly before the play was opening at the Rialto Theatre in Danville, Virginia.

When the play arrived in Danville, Fenderson complained of illness and died of acute uremia later in the evening.

Fenderson's performance in the role of "Moses" will be long remembered at the University and the news of his death will be a cause of deep sorrow to thousands who witnessed and appreciated his portrayals.

in Chris's soliloquy that the housephone rang impressively. The cold-blooded observer answered it and returned solemnly, "Someone upstairs has got violently hungry. Could I offer them a fried goldfish?" Chris dismounted the chair, indignation bulging out of her eyes. "NO!"

Suggestions were in order for methods of cremation. Benny thought it would be better to have an ash-blowing ceremony after the cremation, while Chris read a poem in German called "Death." The cold-blooded observer interposed, "I think it would be nice to use the ashes for tooth powder." Chris muttered bitterly, "Economical to say the least. Will you please go home?"

He said the campaign was no flash-in-the pan crusade but a sustained program which will continue relentlessly to bring the criminals to justice.

He cautioned the public against that faction which seeks to persuade it that the present undertaking is a mere high-pressure effort to stir temporary enthusiasm.

UNC DEFEATS GEORGIA, 14-0

Charlie Shaffer, Barclay Play Great Ball To Lead Snavelymen In Upset

Tar Heels Outplay Ga.; Passes and Fumble Cause Scores.

Jackson, Snyder, Tatum, Daniel Shine for Carolinians.

Athens, Ga., Oct. 13—Coach Carl Snavely's fighting Tar Heels sprang one of the greatest upsets in football history by soundly trouncing the University of Georgia's Bulldogs 14-0 in today's grid classic here.

An irresistable offense force plus an immovable defensive object equalled the Tar Heel football team today. Time after time the Carolina offense, led by Shaffer, Snyder, and Jackson, came through in the pinches when precious yardage was at stake, while the forward wall of the Snavelymen formed an impassable barrier when the Bulldogs were threatening dangerously.

Tar Heel Stars

It would be difficult to pick the individual Tar Heel stars in yesterday's game. Big Jim Tatum featured in every play which came around his side of the line. Tatum played the entire game. Babe Daniel's accurate passing from center added much to the Tar Heel's offensive punch, and his defensive playing was truly a sight for sore eyes.

Captain Barclay lived up to all expectations, showing that he was surely of the All-American mettle. The running and punting of Charlie Shaffer proclaimed him as one of the greatest backs ever to don a Carolina uniform. The accurate passing and hard running of Don Jackson helped greatly in the Tar Heel's offensive attack.

"Hump" Snyder proved himself to be one of the greatest blocking and defensive backs in the South. Mention should also be given to the great relief work rendered by Pendergraft, Childers, and Gardner.

Carolina Starts

Jim Tatum kicked off to Georgia to open the game. After the Carolina line, led by Captain Barclay and Tatum, had subdued the threats of Bond and Grant, the Tar Heel fireworks

HILL AND DALERS TAKE LONG WORK

Williamson Leads-Ranson Runners over Five-Mile Course; Team Looks Good.

Headed by Captain Harry Williamson a very fine array of cross country prospects limbered themselves up yesterday over a five-mile course.

This has been the longest run taken by the team during their period. Although a few of the boys indicated that they needed to take their training a little more seriously, Coach Ranson seemed to be pleased with the squad as a whole.

Facing the hardest schedule undertaken by any Carolina cross country team within the last five years and the prospects looking better than they have been in the last few years, the team is straining itself daily to round into top condition.

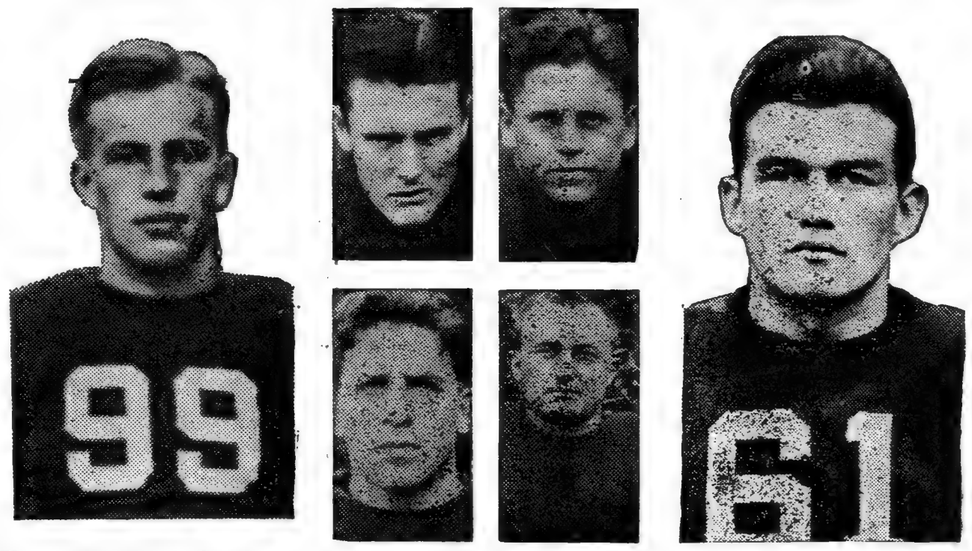
Play By Play Of UNC-Ga. Game

FIRST QUARTER

Ga. won the toss and elected to defend the east goal. NC to kick.

Tatum kicked off to Bond on the Ga. 12 yard line. He was stopped by Daniel on the Ga. 30 yd. line. Ga.'s ball, 1st down. Grant failed to gain and lost 2 yards at left guard when Evins dropped him. 2nd and 12 to go. Grant skirted right end about 8 yards, to the Ga. 37 yd. line where Buck and Barclay nailed him. 3rd down and 4 to go. Grant was stopped at left guard by Tatum without gain. 4th down 4 to go.

Bond, standing on his 26, punted to Dashiell on the NC 26 yd. line. He ran out of bounds on the NC 38. NC's ball, 1st down.



Shaffer failed to gain at center when the mass piled him up. 2nd and 10 to go. Shaffer got loose around his left end, sidestepped 3 tacklers and ran to the Ga. 29 yd. line before Bond downed him and ran him out of bounds and the Tar Heels took time out. It was a great piece of broken field running and made first down.

Substitution, Ga., Minot went in at right half for Georgia. Play resumed. Dashiell went over right tackle 1 yd., being stopped by Chapman and Bond. 2nd and 9. Shaffer fumbled but recovered, losing a yard as Wagnon tackled and it was 3rd down and 10 to go. Dashiell around right end, running behind Kahn, gained 2 yards, Minot making the tackle. 4th down, 8 to go. A pass from Dashiell intended for Hutchins was intercepted by McKnight who returned it to the Georgia 42 yd. line. Georgia's ball, 1st down. Minot was stopped at the line of scrimmage when the line piled him up but NC was offside and took a 5 yard penalty. 1st down, 5 to go.

Buck Chapman smashed center hard for a scant yard when Kahn hit him hard. 2nd down, 4 to go. Bond around right end gained about a half yd., when Hutchins dropped him. 3rd down, 4 to go. A pass from Bond was complete on the NC 20 yd. line, Minot running to the NC 7 yd. line, being stopped there by the NC safety man. It made a first down. It was good for 42 yds. It was Dashiell who

AND THEY "MARCHED THROUGH GEORGIA"

The sextet of men above were the leaders of the University of North Carolina's gridiron attack yesterday down Georgia way. The Tar Heels emerged with a 14-0 victory which was completely the opposite from what all "those-in-the-know" had predicted.

Captain George Barclay (left) was the firebrand in the melee. He plugged holes for the Carolina backs and stopped up holes which the Bulldog backs were aiming for.

The spark-plug of the Snavely backfield was Charlie Shaffer (right). This brilliant halfback slid off tackle for many gains, snagged passes for yards and one touchdown, and, most of all, put his toe behind some of the most beautiful punting of the season throughout Dixie.

Big Jim Tatum (upper left) and Eddie Kahn (lower left) were the leaders of the Tar Heel stone wall. Both stalwarts stopped the Georgia play with rare consistency and made holes on the offense.

"Babe" Daniel (upper right) played one of his best games yesterday at the pivot position. His ball snapping was accurate on offense and gains through his section of the line were few and far between. The "Babe" also place-kicked the two extra points to make the total for the season at five out of five attempts.

"Hump" Snyder (lower right) continued his outstanding contribution—blocking. "Hump" knocked out many would-be tacklers as the fast-stepping backs went on for extra yardage.

Kentucky 'Cats Meet Tar Heels Homecoming Day

Will Be First Encounter of Two Teams Since 1903; Both Are Using New Coaches.

The Carolina-Kentucky Homecoming feature here next Saturday will find both teams offering new coaches and systems as they clash on the gridiron for the first time since 1903.

Kentucky switched to the Notre Dame and Carolina to the Warner system with the advent of Chet Wynn and Carl Snavely, respectively, as their head coaches this year. Wynn made a brilliant record at Auburn and Snavely likewise at Bucknell.

Alumni, students, and townspeople are making elaborate preparations for a big, colorful Homecoming program, and the volume of advance ticket sales indicates that a near-record throng of old grads will come back for the game and festivities.

Look Good

Judging from season records and statistics, the two squads will stack up on close to even terms. Kentucky, after losing to W. and L. in the opener, defeated Cincinnati, 1933 Buckeye Conference champs, 27-0, in its last start. Carolina surprised Wake Forest 21-0 and gave Tennessee's mighties a good scrap before bowing, 19-7. Kentucky downed the Clemson Tigers, 7-0, and Carolina the Georgia Bulldogs, 14-0, yesterday afternoon.

The Wildcats have an unusually powerful team physically, according to reports of Carolina scouts. "Big Bill" Jobe and "Little Ernie" Nevers are said to be the biggest pair of tackles in the country. Other stars are Captain Rupert, end, and Bert Johnson, Bob Pritchard, and Jack Jean, backs.

N. C. State Beats S. C., 6-0; Duke Whips Ga. Tech, 20-0

Wolfpack Ekes Out Narrow Margin over Gamecocks; Cornelius Leads Duke.

Riddick Field, Raleigh, Oct. 13.—(UP)—Hunk Anderson's N. C. State's Wolfpack came back strong here tonight to trounce a powerful Gamecock eleven from South Carolina, 6-0. Neither team seemed to have the advantage over the other, but State managed to push over their one touchdown. It was South Carolina's first defeat in the Southern Conference in two years.

Duke Stadium, Oct. 13.—Wallace Wade's powerful Blue Devils got sweet revenge for their defeat last year at the hands of Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets by running wild in the first periods to chalk up a 20-0 win.

Corky Cornelius got off to several nice long runs, but Clarence Parker, soph star, took the honors of the day. Parker's punting was the feature of the contest, getting one off from behind his own goal line for 85 yards.

"Shorty" Roberts was completely subdued as he was a "marked man." Each time he got the ball three or four Devils

DELTA PSI BEGINS MURAL FOOTBALL

St. Anthony Replaces S. P. E.; Daniel, Y.M.C.A., Leads in Tag Football Scoring.

Only one important change will take place in the intramural tag football lineup this coming week as Delta Psi (St. Anthony) will replace S. P. E. in the fraternity league. The latter was forced to withdraw due to the inabilty of its men to meet the schedule times.

Despite the fact that only a few games have gone by the boards, the race for individual scoring honors is on. The Y. M. C. A. scored high for team totals with 32 points, while one of its star performers, Daniel, leads the campus in individual tallies with 12.

The individual leaders are as follows: fraternity league—Shores (D. T. D.), 8; Queen (Phi Kappa Sigma), 7. Dormitory league—Daniel (Y. M. C. A.), 12; Poole (Y. M. C. A.), 8; Terry (Klutz), 7.

Schedule

The schedule for the first of the week is as follows:

Monday: 4:00—(1) Manly vs. Ruffin, (2) Phi Alpha vs. A. T. O.; 5:00—(1) Law School vs. Mangum, (2) Chi Phi vs. Z. B. T.

FROSH GRIDSTERS DISPLAY PROMISE IN DEAC BATTLE

Power Plays and Speedy Runs Are Well-Worked by James-Coached Yearlings.

BURNETTE, GRAVES SHINE

After Friday's spectacular victory, the Carolina Tar Babies went about their daily chores once more, fully blessed with the idea that they were on their way to the most successful season in the history of the University. Although their victory was not as great and clean cut as it could have been, it left no doubt as to their possibilities.

The new-born Tar Baby eleven unveiled a powerful running attack which swept all defence unmercifully before it. The sight of their protegees sweeping unceasingly down the gridiron with the use of sheer power and lightning-like trickery, brought extreme satisfaction to the hard-working coaching staff headed by George James.

Burnette, the shifty half-back, was not only the best but most promising player on the field. He brought back memories of the flashy Johnny Branch, one of the foremost players in Carolina's history. He was all over the gridiron Friday, a tornado on the offense and a stone wall on the defense. Time and again he made his own holes and plunged through to large gains.

Along with Burnette on the first team was Ditt, the powerful fullback who plunged over for two of Carolina's touchdowns, and stands to give Jim Hutchins a strong fight for the fullback position on next year's varsity.

Duke Defeats Tech

were upon him. Phillips was likewise covered, although he did complete several long passes during the closing periods.

Duke's first score resulted from Phillips' fumble. Cornelius' run and Parker's pass to Wentz over the goal gave the first score. The second came with Parker running and passing for the necessary gains. Cornelius caught the pass to score, and booted both extra points.

Via an intercepted pass in the second quarter, Duke was again in Tech's territory. On the 31, Cornelius took the ball and ran across the goal, but was ruled out of bounds on the two-yard stripe. Alexander carried it over in several attempts.

In the last half, Duke stayed on the defensive, with Tech making only one bid for a score. Johnston fumbled a punt on Duke's 27 and Tech recovered. Phillips then passed to Hayes but was incomplete. However, the officials ruled interference by Johnston and the pass ruled complete on the 8-yard marker. Here, the Duke line held for four downs and Parker's 85-yard boot saved the occasion.

U. N. C. DEFEATS GEORGIA 14 TO 0

started. On the first play the Georgia line piled up and stopped Shaffer for no gain at the center of the line. With the ball on Carolina's 38-yard line Shaffer got loose around left end for 35 yards before he was run out of bounds by Bond. It was a great piece of broken field running as he sidestepped three tacklers.

McKnight, Bulldog center, intercepted Dashiell's pass to put the ball on Georgia's 42-yard line. After Eddie Kahn completely smashed two line plays featuring Georgia's mighty Buck Chapman, the Bulldogs completed a 36-yard pass and a six yard run by the receiver to place the ball on Carolina's 7-yard line. After several line plays failed, Bond attempted to kick a field goal from the 20-yard line. It also failed.

March Through Georgia

In the second quarter Jackson, who had replaced Dashiell in the Carolina backfield, breaking through a hole made by Captain Barclay, ran 30-yards to place the ball on Georgia's 25-yard stripe. Jackson circled the end for 5-yards on the first play, and passed to Jim McCachren on the next play for a first down on the Bulldogs 14-yard line.

Georgia took the ball on downs on her own 11-yard marker. Jackson received Griffith's punt and was stopped on Georgia's 36. It was here that Shaffer crossed the goal line for the first score of the game after catching a pass from Jackson. Babe Daniel converted the extra point.

With only a few minutes left in the first half Georgia began a dangerous march which was checked by the time keeper's whistle on Carolina's three yard line.

Snavely's Stone Wall

Aided by a penalty, Georgia was able to get a first down on the Tar Heel's 1-yard stripe early in the third period. With a Georgia touchdown seemingly inevitable the Snavelymen's forward wall tightened its grip and held the mighty Buck Chapman who like a mad bull was battering at the center of the line. Sophomore Paul Pendergraft, who had replaced Captain Barclay, was playing a whale of a defense at this point in the game.

After Carolina had displayed such a powerful defense, both teams flashed great offensive spurts—standing behind his own goal line, Shaffer punted 65-yards to Johnson who returned it to Carolina's 8-yard line.

Carolina's last score came after Hutchins had recovered a fumble on Georgia's 33-yard line. Shaffer got loose with a lateral pass and raced to Georgia's 7-yard stripe where he was tackled by Bond. Georgia was penalized to its 3-yard line for excessive time outs. At this point Coach Snavely sent in Captain Barclay, Kahn, and Evins to pave the way for the touchdown play. Shaffer carried the ball across on a reverse from Hutchins. Babe Daniel again kicked the extra point. The game ended a few minutes later.

KIDNAPER FIGHTS AS JERSEY TRIES FOR EXTRADITION

Trapped into Admissions; Wife Attempts to Establish Alibi; Testimony Is Vague.

CONFESSES LYING TWICE

New York, Oct. 15.—(UP)—Richard Bruno Hauptmann, trapped time and time again into damaging admissions, fought with all the tenacity at his command against the efforts of New Jersey authorities to extradite him during a three hour questioning today before a packed court room.

The German immigrant, wanted by Jersey officials for trial on a charge of murder, was forced to admit that he had lied at least twice previously in his statements to police.

Hauptmann confessed that he had not told the true source of the money hidden in his garage and that he had placed its sum at an incorrect figure.

"Not Ladder Builder"

However, he stoutly denied that he had built the ladder used in the kidnaping, insisting that on the night of March 1, 1932, when the Lindbergh baby was stolen he had dined with his wife in the Bronx and then gone home with her.

He explained that the gold certificates were hidden in the garage because he feared arrest on a charge of hoarding, but neglected to give a satisfactory explanation of how they came into his hands.

The pistol was also secreted, he said, because he had no license to possess it.

Mrs. Hauptmann and another witness sought to corroborate Hauptmann's alibi but their testimonies were vague and established no defense.

Tomorrow New Jersey will begin to prepare witnesses who will show that Hauptmann was in the vicinity of the Lindbergh home on the night of the kidnaping.

WILLINGHAM SETS SPECIAL MEETING

Will Discuss Plans for Homecoming and Broadcasts.

The University club will convene in special session tonight at 7:00 o'clock in 209 Graham Memorial, it was announced by Frank Willingham, president, yesterday.

This meeting is called to discuss and complete plans for Homecoming Day and the two radio programs which the organization is sponsoring this week.

The group will discuss the project of the pep rally scheduled for Friday night, and the use of a card system in the cheering section which it plans to have completed for the Kentucky game.

There will be a broadcast over station WBT in Charlotte from 8:30 to 9:00 o'clock under the direction of Jack Clare, chairman of the radio committee of the organization, and one over station WPTF in Raleigh conducted by Agnew Bahnson, president of the club last year.

The Charlotte program will include speeches by prominent Charlotte alumni and music by Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra.

Entertainment of the visiting team will also be discussed.

"Work On Small-Town Paper First," UP Official Advises Journalists

Thomas R. Curran Says United Press Often Has Trouble Finding Right Man for Job.

By NELSON LANSDALE

"The best experience in the world for a would-be newspaper man," says Thomas R. Curran, general manager of the southern division of the United Press, "is to work on a small-town paper where you have to do practically everything but run the linotype machine. You write obituaries and news stories and editorials and advertising copy day in and day out, and you can't help learning a lot about the newspaper game."

Curran's visit to Chapel Hill bears no relation to the fact that the DAILY TAR HEEL has recently installed the UP service. His headquarters are in Atlanta, Georgia. He and Mrs. Curran spent the week-end here as the guests of Dr. W. Leon Wiley, of the romance language department, and Mrs. Wiley. Young, sandy-haired, sparsely-built and pleasantly energetic looking, the United Press official evidenced great interest in publications at the University, largely because, he explained, the majority of the men working with the UP have come up into the service from college papers.

Journalism as Major

It has often been asserted by newspaper men that they prefer to engage a man who has not majored in journalism in college, on the grounds that they have one system to unlearn and another to pick up. When asked about the UP's principle on this, Curran said: "I don't think it hurts. Whatever you have to unlearn after taking journalism in college is more than compensated for by the general idea you get of what makes the wheels go 'round on a newspaper."

Speaking of unemployment, as acute in the newspaper world as in any professional field, he said: "You hear a lot about unemployment, maybe, but it very often happens that the UP has trouble finding a man for a job. Not that there aren't lots of names in the files—there are plenty. It's just a case of many applicants and few men suited for the job."

And Curran wasn't speaking of high-salaried executive positions in his organization. "You see," he said, "promotions in the UP are always made from the bottom up—nobody is imported

Telephone Service Disrupted; Water Several Feet Deep.

Manila, Oct. 16.—(UP) — A roaring typhoon ripped through Manila today causing great property damage and a probable loss of life.

Telephone services were disrupted as the water flooding the city reached a depth of several feet many places.

Hugh waves rolling before the disturbance also caused a suspension of transportation services and the streets were filled with trees uprooted by the wind and carried along by flood waters.

LIBRARY RECEIVES NEW COLLECTIONS

Dr. J. G. deR. Hamilton of History Department Gathers Southern Material.

Hundreds of thousands of books, pamphlets, diaries, and letters, donated by individuals from all parts of the south, are pouring into the University library.

Most of these documents are acquired by the Dr. J. G. deRoulhac Hamilton of the department of history, who makes frequent trips in this and neighboring states in search of them. Dr. Hamilton is directing an unique and important undertaking intended to throw a new light upon the history of the south and even to rewrite it in parts.

This undertaking is the extensive gathering together of material pertaining to southern history. At the present time the task of classifying the mass of material is being pushed forward by the University with the aid of government relief funds. Mrs. Lyman A. Cotten is in charge of this work.

Pettigrew Collection

So far, only thirteen groups of papers have been completely classified. Of these the Pettigrew collection is the most valuable. Beginning with a will dated 1685, one of the oldest North Carolina wills in existence, and containing letters written as late as 1931, this collection comprises more than 10,000 documents.

NO WORD HEARD IN STOLL KIDNAP

"Zero Hour" Passes; Family Fear Woman Is Abandoned as No Message Is Received.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 15.—(UP)—The zero hour set by the kidnapers of Mrs. Berry V. Stoll passed late today apparently without word from the victim or the kidnaper.

The ransom note received by relatives threatened death to the victim "unless you get in touch with us in five days." The five days ended at 4:20 o'clock this afternoon.

Relatives have repeatedly denied that any word has been received from her abductor. A mysterious telephone conversation was reported Thursday between Berry V. Stoll and some anonymous person. After a few words were exchanged, the conversation was abruptly terminated.

The family of the kidnaped woman has apparently taken every possible step to facilitate contact with the abductor. All telephone wires and roads to the estate have been kept cleared and all federal officers and other police have been withdrawn.

When no word had been received at the end of the time limit today, the relatives' fears that Mrs. Stoll had been abandoned in some lonely spot received partial confirmation.

Committee Favors Student-Faculty Day

The Student Welfare board, in session yesterday afternoon, expressed itself in favor of the proposed student-faculty day as presented by Agnew Bahnson and J. D. Winslow.

The board favored the general idea of having a day set aside for the jamboree and appointed a committee, consisting of Bahnson, Winslow, and Albert Ellis, to draw up a written tentative program which is to be further considered by the board.

The group will meet in special session Thursday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock to consider the committee's program. The measure will be passed on to the faculty after Thursday's meeting with or without the board's approval. The faculty is to be the final authority on the matter.

Communism, Fascism Are Biggest Threats

Dr. E. M. Carroll Discusses Rise And History of Movements; Metzenthin Argues.

Speaking on the character and history of the crisis facing liberalism today, Dr. E. M. Carroll of Duke University addressed a joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. cabinets last night in Gerrard hall.

"The greatest threats to liberalism today are communism and fascism," Dr. Carroll stated, tracing the rise of these two rival political institutions.

The common principle of communism and fascism is the concentrating of social organization for certain prescribed aims, he said.

Nationalism

"The underlying motive of communism and fascism states is the strengthening of the authority of power in the nation, rather than the improving of the social conditions of the state."

Dr. Carroll discussed the rise and history of communism and fascism, especially in Germany and Italy, and told of their victories over liberalism. "The world war precipitated forces against liberalism which were already in operation at the beginning of the conflict," he stated.

"Liberalism has two distinct advantages over its two rivals. Our institutions based upon freedom have the facility of a peaceful transfer of power from one political group to another without a revolution; and liberalism is founded upon the sovereignity of the people."

Clean House

Freedom needs a housecleaning, according to the Duke professor, who said that liberalism has to have the ability to adjust itself to the new problems of the future.

"Freedom must profit by the past mistakes of its enemies," he

COMMITTEE GIVES DECORATING PLAN FOR HOMECOMING

Fraternities to Decorate Around "Beat Kentucky" Theme.

The Homecoming Day committee of the University club yesterday announced the arrangement for the decoration of fraternities for Homecoming.

The decorations are to be built about the general theme of "Beat Kentucky." This plan of a general theme was decided upon so that there might be a definite basis of comparison for the judges in making their selection of the best decorations.

The decorations, which are not to cost above $15, must be completed by 10:00 o'clock Saturday morning, and will be judged between 10:00 and 12:00 o'clock.

The judges will base their decision mainly on the originality displayed, but the artistic merit will also be considered.

A silver loving cup is to be awarded the fraternity which, in the opinion of the judges, has the best decorations. This cup, on display in the window of Stetson "D," will become the permanent possession of the fraternity which wins it three consecutive times. It was won last year by Sigma Nu.

In Re of Student-Faculty Day

It was good to learn at the meeting of the Student Welfare board the true extent of the faculty's attitude toward student-faculty day. Of course, in any discussion of such an undertaking some objections occur in connection with problems that are bound to arise, but this is only natural. Although the board has deferred action until Thursday, the tenor of the opinions spoken by leading faculty members such as Dean House, English Bagby, W. S. Bernard, and others was highly encouraging.

The DAILY TAR HEEL hopes that this good news will prove to the satisfaction of all concerned that it will be possible to make a success of student-faculty day. The students, we believe, are on the whole very eager to set aside this one day in the year for the promotion of friendships and good will between faculty and students, two groups that are mistakenly thought of as having incompatible interests. And as for the faculty, what opinion we heard expressed in yesterday's meeting seemed to indicate no unwillingness to co-operate in the observance.

Our reference to the difficulties that must be ironed out before the plans can go through needs explanation. They are not in any sense difficulties over opposition to the student-faculty day itself. On the contrary, they arise in connection with the execution of plans. One of the questions that was raised concerned the matter of students leaving Chapel Hill for the day on which the student-faculty programs were to be presented and which is planned as a holiday from classes. Taking this as an example to bring out a point, the DAILY TAR HEEL submits, with reasonable confidence that it is expressing the feeling on the campus, that the students would be willing to make any necessary concessions to obviate any similar objection. The students are anxious to see student-faculty day become a tradition at the University. We have confidence in the committee that has been planning the observance and are sure that if the faculty accepts the idea whole-heartedly it will prove a success.

Plans must go forward rapidly, however, and definite approval from the faculty is needed at its next meeting if the day is to be a success. It was suggested at the Student Welfare board's meeting that the day should be a sort of exhibit of the University, the exhibit being the common bond between faculty and students. Although this was only a suggestion, we feel that it was a good one. The student-faculty day committee may see fit to follow it, and if it does, it will naturally take some preparation and expansion of plans to carry out the idea. The whole program, in fact, needs careful working over if the day is to be a genuine and enjoyable tribute to the University, its faculty, and its students. Therefore, the need for immediate action is obvious. Definite approval of the day on the part of the faculty will go a long way towards reassuring the campus that the day will be a reality and providing an impetus for the committee to polish up its plans.

Duke and Hackney

No sooner had we experienced a feeling of genuine co-operation and friendship with our sister institution, Duke University, than we witnessed a spectacle Saturday afternoon that not only surprised us considerably, in face of the recent movement on the part of Duke to better our inter-relations, but also made us wonder just how sincere this movement has been.

When it was announced at the Duke-Georgia Tech game that Hackney, of North Carolina, would act as linesman, a long, loud booing reverberated throughout the stands. Of course, we recognized the fact that Hackney wasn't particularly popular with Duke fans, since we remembered that at the Tech game last year when the undefeated Blue Devils were riding high in their last game, this same official called their all-American Freddie Crawford offsides in a crucial play. The fact that Tech finally won the contest and spoiled Duke's Rose Bowl chances, marring an otherwise perfect season, didn't do much towards increasing their love for Hackney.

We'd like to attribute Saturday's action to this personal motive—however unsportsmanlike—rather than to animosity still existing toward our school in the Duke student body. But we cannot help feel that the booing, which brought unfavorable comment from all sides among the visitors, was not the fine type of sportsmanship which we believed was going to characterize our relations in the future.

We may be wrong about the whole thing. It's up to the Duke students to prove that they mean what their Chronicle expressed in its sincere advocacy of better Carolina-Duke relations. We're willing to meet them halfway and more.

Truth and Freedom

Dr. Howard K. Beale, in his article entitled "Forces That Control the Schools," published in a recent issue of Harpers Magazine, presents in very convincing fashion, and with astounding factual background, a decisive case against the present school situation. He describes the controlling forces as "partly outside pressure groups, partly elements of the school system, and partly subjective forces within the educators themselves." Through the action of these forces, ranging from the D. A. R. and the American Legion to the school boards themselves, educators are being restrained in their freedom to teach what they believe to be the truth.

Ideas which are sanctioned and considered beneficial by the forces in control, too often composed of utter strangers in the field of education, alone are taught in the majority of our schools. Liberal thinking in the classroom is looked upon as being the preachment of "prejudice" and biases" when it does not coincide with the "prejudice" and "biases" of the orthodox multitude—the interested groups or forces in control. This only means that the children in our schoolrooms are not being educated in how to think, but in what to think.

We can attribute, without great inexactness, our present great economic unheaval to the amazing ignorance by Big Business of economic laws and social problems. This ignorance is, doubtless, largely due to the inadequacy of our educational system in producing men equipped with a complete knowledge of economic and social truths. Ambassador-to-Germany Dodd, an authority on the antebellum south, attributes the precipitation of the Civil War to the fact that free criticism and objection by teachers to the slave system was restricted by opposing forces.

The American public is prone to take the school system for granted. As long as Johnny learns how to read and write, and possibly add a column of figures, his schooling is looked upon as being sufficient, and, what with a few P. T. A. meetings, everybody's happy. But there is more in education to be considered than that. Johnny must not only know what the three R's are, he must know what to do with them. He must be able to think, and determine for himself what the real truth is. Only children exposed from early childhood to the conflicting claims of "right" and "wrong" will be able to stand on their own feet and look at the world with an unflinching gaze. To quote Dr. Beale, "The only freedom that matters is the freedom that allows others to express views you know are dangerous or untrue. The very essence of freedom is belief in the power of truth if left free to overcome error. This makes "wrong" views harmless, yes, even serviceable in determining and strengthening "right" views."

Let us awake from our inertia and complacency, and give more attention to the freedom of pursuit of "truth" by teachers and students.

SPEAKING the CAMPUS MIND

Ask Ambrose, He Knows!

Editor the DAILY TAR HEEL:

As an interested and rather progressive student, I would like to put in a few words concerning the administrative red tape and the apparent ignorance shrouding so much of our student activity.

This student-faculty plan is becoming a farce. I understand it has to go to the Student Welfare board again and then the faculty next Monday. It will then be October 22, and of course, this makes the original date of October 30 out of the question for the event. It took four weeks to find out that there wouldn't be time to put the affair on! What's the matter with you student activity men?

Then we have the student council-Buccaneer episode. After passing a motion, the lawmakers found they didn't have the power to do what they did. So, with the "fee" excuse, they started all over again and nothing has been changed except the poor editor is on probation, the book will be clean (that's interesting), and the name will be changed.

In connection with this same episode, the council appointed Publications Union members to a board of censors. Wasn't THAT absurd? Any molycoddle knows that the function of the latter board is financial management, not editorial dictate.

Then we have the Interfraternity council farce when they chop off a day of rushing season and then find out that the faculty has the final authority, so they let it drop. Aren't there any rules which the smart leaders go by or is EVERYTHING on this campus done in the hit-or-miss fashion?

Last year the Publications Union board tried to revise its membership and it took them three weeks of hot-air to get to first base. It obviously was not their fault. Just too much red-tape and too little knowledge on the part of the student government officials.

Maybe the student executives aren't a bunch of wooden-skulls, but if they aren't, they haven't any excuse for doing things without knowing whether it is or is not within their power to do them.

It gets some of us on the campus pretty well fed up. We might have the finest student government in the country but it takes a lot of time going around in circles. —AMBROSE.

Up-turned Noses

Editor the DAILY TAR HEEL:

I am a freshman who could not afford to go a fraternity, but most of my friends did so. Now I find that they look down on me because I am not one of the Greek pledges.

There's no reason for first-year men getting uppety just because they're going to get certain parts of their anatomy all warmed up next spring. Of course, I know that fraternities are great institutions and would join one in a minute if I could do so, but they're not so wonderful that a mere pledge to one of them has to get high-hat just because he is a pledge.

I enjoy the DAILY TAR HEEL's editorials dealing wtih the fraternity subject, especially the one relating to the importance of the lodges. It was stated that the fraternity is not essential to freshmen even though it offers several obvious advantages. But I didn't read anywhere about the change of attitude that results when freshmen shake hands with the lodges.

Some day I may be able to join a fraternity but I hope I will have retained enough of my personality to refrain from elevating my organ of smell just because I have done so.

A FRESHMAN.

Curran is frankly glad that he got started in newspaper work before the depression started. He is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, and while there was actively associated with the Daily Nebraskan, the undergraduate paper which also serves as the daily for the town of Lincoln. He became Lincoln correspondent for the International News Service, worked with the Associated Press for a while, and then was given the coverage of the state of Nebraska for International. He was promoted from there to the Los Angeles bureau of the International service. While working in Los Angeles, he was offered a job with the United Press, and has been with them ever since. He expressed his gratification that the new UP service in the DAILY TAR HEEL has been so well-received on the campus.

Smaller is the Kitchen collection. It is composed principally of the correspondence of Claude Kitchen, a North Carolinian who served as majority leader in the House during the World War. In this group are found letters dealing with all the important issues of the war period. Many of these letters were written by men of national importance, there being more than 100 communications from President Wilson alone.

The letters of the late Senator Overman also contain information concerning modern history.

The southern collection is growing rapidly. As it grows, Dr. Hamilton predicts, "This great library will draw investigators from everywhere. In economic, social, religious, scientific, and political fields will be gathered a mass of hitherto unknown facts, making possible new and more accurate conclusions in relation to the past."

Coach Snavely Heaps Praise On Gridsters In Georgia Tilt

Tar Heel Mentor Thought Entire Club Played Sixty Minutes of Real Football.

LIGHT WORK YESTERDAY

Reserves, However, Take Scrimmage; Bill Moore, End, Is Only Serious Injury.

"Yes, indeed, the boys looked like a football team for about sixty minutes in the Georgia game," Coach Carl Snavely remarked with a sardonic smile when interviewed by a DAILY TAR HEEL sports writer yesterday.

In fact the Tar Heel mentor was highly elated over the outcome of last Saturday's contest. "The team seems to have gotten the idea out of their system that they can win by playing a defensive game," Coach Snavely continued. "Did you notice what they did after they made the first score Saturday? They didn't try to freeze the ball—they tried to put across another touchdown and succeeded."

Liked Some Reserves

When asked what he thought of the Tar Heel reserve material, Coach replied: "If Georgia thought Barclay was the only football player we had, they probably learned differently when Pendergraft got in the game."

Pendergraft, who replaced the injured Carolina captain at guard, was a big reason why Georgia's mighty Chapman failed to score after getting a first down on the Tar Heel's 1-yard line.

Coach Snavely heaped praises upon the entire group of Tar Heel linemen with special mention to the performance of Captain Barclay, Jim Tatum, and Babe Daniel.

Take Light Practice

The players who saw service in Saturday's game worked out rather lightly in yesterday's practice in Kenan stadium. Coach Snavely gave them a new play to use in Saturday's game with the Kentucky Wildcats, and the remainder of the practice session was given over to passing against a freshman eleven.

The second and third stringers scrimmaged until after dark. Cooner, Dunham, and Moore were the luminaries in the second team's backfield, being credited with one touchdown each. Dunham and Moore both made long runs for their touchdowns. Dunham did a beautiful piece of broken field running for about sixty yards through the center of the third team's line. Cooner scored on a hard plunge through the line for about five yards.

Except for Bill Moore, veteran end, the Tar Heels came out of Saturday's game in fairly good condition. Moore received a bad sprained knee and will be out of the Wildcat battle. Odell Childers, famous as a dash man, looks like the choice to replace Moore in the first line.

Captain Barclay continues to be bothered with his trick knee and took it easy yesterday but will be "raring to go" again against Kentucky. Jim Tatum also took it easy with a slight injury, while John Trimpey had his broken nose well guarded with a mask.

Co-ed Tennis

All girls interested in tennis are requested to report to the girls' tennis courts at 2:00 o'clock this afternoon. Several treats in store for the especially good players are a tournament coming next week and a varsity team which will play other colleges at an intercollegiate playday in November.

TAR HEEL BOXERS BEGIN WORKOUTS

Sam Giddins to Lead 1935 Ring Team; Four Lettermen Back Plus Several Good Sophs.

With the addition of four new sandbags and three punching bags, the Tar Heel leather pushers set to work yesterday afternoon in workmanlike fashion to round into shape for the coming ring season. At present, the boxers will take light workouts, gradually working up to a peak that Coach Rowe hopes will make them Southern Conference champions.

The squad will be built around Captain Sam Giddins, who was a very potent factor in many of the meets won by the ringsters last year. "Gids" boxed in the 155-pound class last year and will probably be at that weight this year. Among the other veterans that Coach Rowe is building his squad around are: Ernie Eutsler, classy little 118-pounder, Morty Ellisberg, scrappy 165 pounder, and Marvin Ray, a busy two-fisted light-heavyweight.

Several Not Back

The failure of Jimmy Williams, Norment Quarles, and Jimmy Carruth to return to school, has left openings that members of last year's freshman team hope to fill. Nat Lumpkin, who is well remembered for some of his sensational bouts last winter, has been taken from the squad by graduation.

Among the promising sophomores to report to Coach Rowe are: Marion Diehl, Dick Price, Tim O'Flaherty, Joe Fisher, Julie Medynsky and Maxie Novich.

Coach Rowe had the following men report to him as candidates for the yearling squad: W. Rowlay, L. Hendel, H. Beasley, R. Mullen, H. Alfson, M. Shmurak, H. Lee, R. May, N. Gilliam, H. Walker, H. Steingrob, W. Shores, E. Yount, E. O'Hearn, L. Miller, J. Sutton, C. Benton, and J. Hedrick.

Cake Race Hints

Today we will endeavor to devote our attention to the form of the legs.

Parallel foot and leg action lengthens the stride, thus the muscles of the legs function best with a straight leg drive. A moderate high stride is desirable as this allows sufficient leg extention to cover a fair amount of ground. Sharp, full extention of the rear leg at the end of the stride helps the knee flexion that follows. Strive to develop even muscle tension.

Mental Condition

A minor point but very vital one to keep in mind during your training is your mental condition. Take the attitude of cheerfulness and faithfulness throughout your workouts, and enter the race with the frame of mind that this is just another workout.

Praise Barclay Again

Captain George Barclay who is a leading candidate for all-American, continues to have the highest sort of praise bestowed upon him by coaches of teams met by the Tar Heels. After the Carolina-Tennessee game here two weeks ago Coach Bob Neyland of the Vols said Barclay was one of the greatest guards he had ever seen, and last Saturday Coach Harry Mehre described Barclay's play as one of the most important factors in Carolina's victory.

LEAD WILDCAT INVASION

Here are recent camera shots of Coach Chet Wynne and Captain Bob Rupert of the University of Kentucky gridiron squad. The Wildcats will make their only appearance in North Carolina this season at Chapel Hill next Saturday when they meet Coach Carl Snavely's up-and-coming Tar Heels in the first football game between these two institutions since 1903. Coach Wynne went to Kentucky this year from Auburn where he made a fine record. Captain Rupert is regarded as one of the best ends in the south.

CLOSE CONTESTS FEATURE ON TAG FOOTBALL CARD

Ruffin Downs Manly, 12-6, in Best Tilt Yesterday; Z.B.T., A.T.O. Get Victories.

LAWYERS WIN BY FORFEIT

Three close games featured yesterday's session in the intramural tag football competition with Ruffin winning a 12-6 seesaw battle over a hard fighting Manly eleven in the outstanding contest. Z. B. T. and A. T. O. took other settos, while the Law School received a forfeit from Mangum.

All scoring in the Ruffin-Manly fray was made in the first half as McKinnon sent the eventual winners into a lead as he took a pass over the goal line for a touchdown. Manly then tied up the game shortly after, but McKinnon again sent his team out ahead as he raced across for the final tally of the game. Manly out-gained the winners five first downs to four, and was threatening its opponents' goal as the final whistle blew.

A. T. O. opened its season with a close 6-0 win over Phi Alpha, with Bill Phillips racing across for the lone score late in the game. Both teams battled evenly throughout, but the winners' forward pass attack was more fruitful than its opponents', garnering five first downs to two.

In the final fracas of the day, the Zeta Beta Tau team scored a 14-0 triumph over Chi Phi. All scoring was made before the intermissison as Goldstein and Zamber made touchdowns. Both free tries were missed, but an opposing back stepped behind his own end zone to add two more points to the winners' total. Chi Phi rallied in the final half, but coult not penetrate the Z. B. T. defense successfully enough to push across a tally. The losers garnered four first downs to two for the Zetas.

Today's Games

4:00—(1) Klutz Bldg. vs. New Dorms, (2) Lambda Chi Alpha vs. Beta Theta Pi.

5:00—(1) Sigma Nu vs. Phi Delta Theta, (2) D. K. E. vs. T. E. P., (3) Delta Tau Delta vs. Pi Kappa Alpha.

Yearling Boxers

Coach Rowe wants all freshmen interested in boxing to report to the Tin Can for work this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

MANY CAKESTERS TRAIN FOR RACE HERE THURSDAY

Something Over a Hundred Prepare for Annual Intramural Run Over New Course.

MEDALS WILL BE GIVEN

With the intramural run just two days off, there are something over a 100 ambitious 'Cakesters' awaiting their chance to pay respects and do what justice they can to the new course.

This new course which is 1.9 miles long will begin at the west end of the co-ed field. It continues westward passing the bell tower to the Carolina Inn; here its course turns down Cameron avenue.

Continuing down Cameron, crossing at Hillsboro st., out past the Forest theater, circling the tennis courts out to the Raleigh road, here a right turn and then, westward until the Tin Can; at this point the runners enter the west end of Emerson, circle the track once, and finish in front of the stands.

Course Well Marked

Red Markers will be placed along the course to indicate right turns. Also guides will be posted at points along the way to aid the runners.

All entries are requested to go by and make sure that they have indicated properly the fraternity or dormitory which they wish to represent.

As customary, the first five finishing will receive intramural medals. The next forty-five men will receive numerous prizes which have been donated by merchants of Chapel Hill. Among these prizes are theatre passes, sweatshirts, tickets good for fixing of shoes, and a certain amount of trade redemption from various local business concerns. The first five teams will receive cakes as their compensation.

Being a new course a number of the entrants have expressed their desire to set a course record which will be a mark for the future 'stump jumpers' to aim at.

FROSH GRIDSTERS WORK FOR STATE

Yearlings Practice on Kicking in Preparation for Battle with Wolflets October 27.

The Tar Babies settled once more into a long grind preparatory to their forthcoming gridiron struggle with the N. C. State freshmen on the night of October 27 at Greensboro.

Coach James worked his men long and hard out on Emerson field yesterday afternoon brushing up on their fundamental mistakes of last Friday. He especially lent a lot of his time to kicking the point after touchdown and to punting.

Coach Snavely has developed his varsity to the point where the place-kick after a score is always converted, and that is just what Coach James is trying to drill into the uneducated toes of the frosh.

Punting, too, will come in for a lot of bombardment during the next game, for though that defensive weapon was not used during the last combat, it is understood by the coaching staff that the future games will call for extensive use of it.

Three Ironmen

Three Carolina stars pulled the "ironman stunt" and played the whole game against Georgia last week. They are Jim Tatum, tackle; Jim Hutchins, fullback; and Charlie Shaffer, halfback. And they vow they are ready to do the same thing here Saturday if it will help their team's chances of winning its Homecoming classisc with Kentucky.

Bulldogs to Wildcats

Carolina's blue line whipped its weight in Bulldogs last week. This week it will try to whip its weight in Wildcats. Kentucky is coming to town with a massive, powerful eleven, and all indications point to a close scrap and a colorful Homecoming celebration.

CAROLINA'S FIRST BACKFIELD READY FOR NEXT GAME

Quartet of Snyder, Shaffer, Jackson, and Hutchins in Good Shape for Kentucky.

CHILDERS WORKS AT END

The quartet of Herman Snyder, Don Jackson, Charlie Shaffer and Jim Hutchins, which was Coach Carl Snavely's first choice for Carolina's number one backfield, but which was disrupted by injuries to Jackson, is being groomed to start its first game as a unit Saturday.

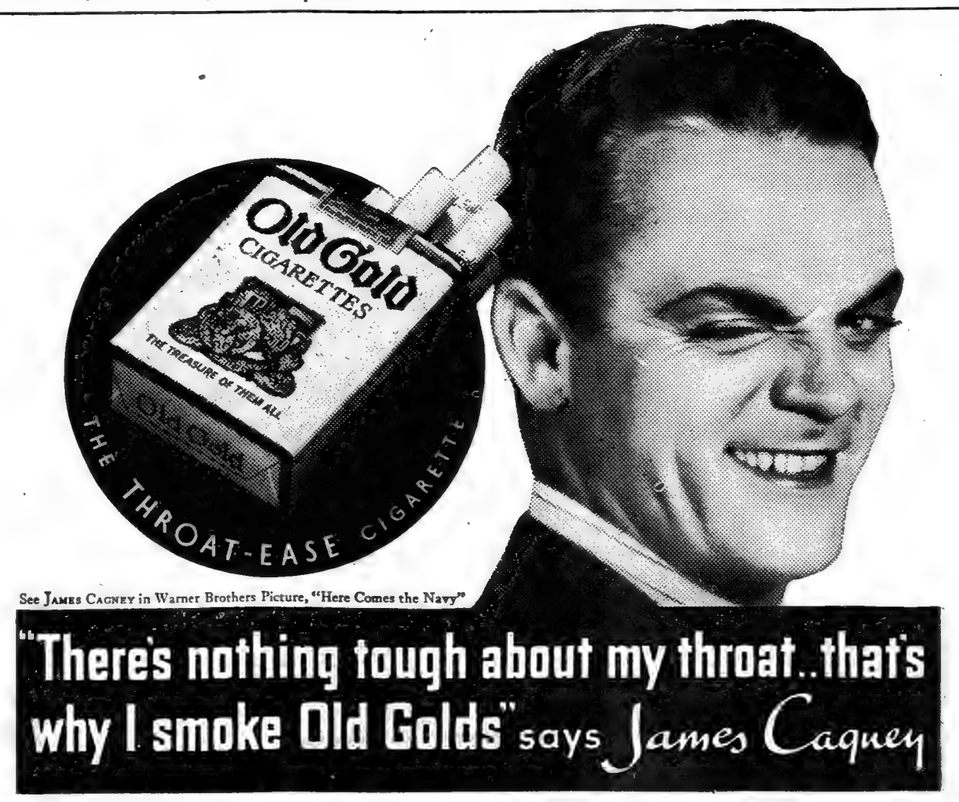
The Tar Heels will play host to Chet Wynne and the Kentucky Wildcats, who blanked Cincinnati, 27-0, and Clemson, 7-0, in their last two starts and who loom a stiff foe for Carolina's Homecoming battle.

This is the same quartet that furnished the fireworks in Carolina's 14-0 upset of Georgia last week and is thought to be the Tar Heels' best bet against the powerful Kentucky eleven.

Jackson passed to Shaffer for one of the touchdowns, and Shaffer hit the line for the other. Both boys did some splendid running, while Snyder and Hutchins gave able support as blockers and in the defense. Shaffer, in addition, did a wonderful job in punting role, kicking 10 times for a cool average of 43 yards.

Odell Childers is the only new face in the big, speedy line which Carolina is counting upon to hold Kentucky's elusive and driving backs in check. The sprint star replaces the injured Bill Moore at end.

Line Shows Power



The Tar Heel forwards covered themselves with glory last week, stopping every Georgia thrust and holding the Bulldogs once for four downs on the one-yard line.

Carl Snavely, the Carolina coach, added his own word of praise for Captain George Barclay's heady generalship, for the Carolina captain, in addition to his many other duties, calls the plays for the Tar Heels from the huddle.

Eddie Kahn at the other guard, Jim Tatum at tackle, and Childers were other standouts. Tatum, Shaffer, and Hutchins played the whole game.

Net Entries Due

All entries for the campus tennis tournament must be posted today. The tournament begins tomorrow afternoon and no entry will be accepted unless it is received before 7:00 o'clock tonight.

"Old Joe Clark Steps Out," by Dr. Charles G. Vardell, Jr., dean of music at Salem College, Winston-Salem, was played. Dean Vardell's composition is an orchestral version of a piano piece, suggested by an old folk dance tune.

Kay Rickert Plays

Another outstanding part of the program was the violin solo played by Kay Rickert of Charlotte, concert master of the orchestra. She was heard during the rendition of "The Young Prince and the Young Princess," from "Scheherazade," by Rimsky-Korsakov.

Miss Rickert is an accomplished musician. At the age of 12 she was a competent pianist and was playing the violin in a symphony orchestra. Within two years of her matriculation at Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh, she was concert master of a 75-piece symphony orchestra. She has played with the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra and was staff artist for a large radio station.

The program included "Meistersinger Overture," by Richard Wagner; Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C Minor; and "Marche Slave," by Tschaikowsky in addition to those named above.

Students And Faculty Review Activities Of Student Council

'34 Administration Reviewed by Barnes

Faculty Pleased with Council's Handling of Cases Formerly Under Its Authority.

TO MEET EACH QUARTER

At a joint supper in Graham Memorial Monday night the student council and the faculty executive committee met and discussed the activities of the student council during last year and also plans for the coming year.

This meeting was the only one planned for this quarter. The council and the executive committee have made arrangements to meet only once each quarter.

Dr. Spruill made the statement that the faculty was pleased with the new arrangement that the council be given the right to try all faculty cases. This ended the first year of the new plan and the faculty indicated that it would be satisfied to continue under the same arrangement.

Pledge Revision

The advisability of revising the pledge to make it read "I have neither given nor received aid on this quiz and have not seen any violation of the Honor system" instead of the usual pledge was discussed but no action taken.

Also the advisability of giving men, especially freshmen, a second chance for breaches of the Honor system was discussed. Appeals, where there are sufficient grounds, will be carried to Dean House, who will decide whether a new trial should be granted, and whether by the student council again or by an appeals committee appointed by himself.

BRADSHAW BACKS DRIVE FOR POOL

Dean Encourages Plans of Dialectic Senate to Obtain Swimming Facilities Here.

A letter from Dean Francis Bradshaw commending the Dialectic senate for its initiative step taken for the obtaining of an adequate swimming pool for the University was read at the meeting of the senate last night.

"I commend your movement and hope you will not let up," Bradshaw said. It seems to me distinctly possible that the students of the University, speaking out of their own self need to the responsible leadership of the state, would be able to accomplish things that no representative of the University administration could accomplish.

Assistance

"I would suggest that you get the assistance of the DAILY TAR HEEL and all responsible student groups back of this movement for improved facilities for physical education, and especially swimming."

The bill concerning this movement was referred to a committee appointed by the president, the committee consisting of Chairman Bob Williams, Fred Stein, and Charles Rawls.

The other bills were tabled for later discussion.

Bill Weaver, president pro-tem, presided.

KIDNAPED WOMAN RETURNED HOME

Husband Finally Establishes Contact with Abductor.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 16.—(UP)—Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, kidnaped six days ago, is alive and enroute home with a Department of Justice agent, it was learned here late tonight.

Berry Stoll had intimated earlier tonight that he had good reason to believe that he would hear from his wife's kidnaper since the house had been isolated to facilitate easy contact. Stoll had said that he expected a phone call at any minute.

How the contact was finally made could not immediately be determined tonight but it has definitely been learned that Mrs. Stoll is now out of danger and on her way home.

NEW YORK TRIAL REACHES CLIMAX

Justice Hammer Calls Recess in Hauptmann Case; Decision to Be Announced Soon.

New York, Oct. 16.—(UP)—Richard Bruno Hauptmann's fight to escape extradition to New Jersey approached a climax tonight when an evening court session was called, presumably for the purpose of announcing the court's decision.

New York, Oct. 16.—(UP)—Bruno Hauptmann lost the superior court fight to escape extradition to New Jersey to face charges of murdering the Lindbergh baby, it was learned here late tonight.

New Jersey rested the case late this afternoon. Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer called a recess until 8:30 o'clock tonight. He gathered up the exhibits and documents of the case and retired to his chambers.

State Witnesses

Attorney General Wilentz produced only four state witnesses. He is apparently hoarding all evidence possible until he gets the prisoner before a jury in New Jersey.

Thus far the decision of the court in which Hauptmann is being tried has not been announced.

The witnesses called in today's session were called in an attempt to establish the fact that Hauptmann was in the vicinity of the Lindbergh home the night of the kidnaping.

HUNGARIANS WIN STRIKE FOR INCREASING WAGES

Funfkirchen, Hungary, Oct. 16.—(UP)—The last of 1200 coal miners emerged from pits near here today, victorious in a mass suicide threat in a demand for more pay.

All the fraternity houses on the campus will decorate for the day. The decorations which are not to exceed $15 in cost, are to be based upon the theme "Beat Kentucky". This plan of building decorations around a definite theme is inaugurated this year in order to give the judges a definite basis for comparison.

KIDNAPERS GET ANOTHER VICTIM

Son of Wealthy Merchant Held For $20,000 Ransom.

New York, Oct. 16.—(UP)—It was learned tonight that Louis S. Esposito, 23, son of a wealthy Bronx merchant, has been kidnaped and is being held for $20,000 ransom.

Esposito disappeared last night after driving his grandfather home. His parents received a call saying that the boy will be killed unless the ransom money is paid. They were warned against notifying the police.

Eposito's parents have failed to contact the kidnapers as was specified in the phone call, and therefore notified their lawyer who advised them to call the police this morning.

The automobile in which young Esposito was driving at the time of the occurence of the crime was found abandoned in the Bronx.

DUKE DELEGATION ASKS FRESHMEN FOR COOPERATION

Presidents of Student Body and Senior Class Ask Frosh to Increase Friendly Relations.

GLAD OF GEORGIA VICTORY

Bill Burke, president of the Duke University student body, and Don McNeal, Duke senior class president, asked yesterday in freshman chapel for co-operation between Duke and Carolina students.

Burke said that he was glad to see the friendly feeling that has been increasing between the two schools for the past several years, and he appealed to freshmen to further this feeling.

Clean Rivalry

"Let's have good, hard rivalry on the football field," he said, "but regardless of who wins, let's shake hands after the game and say that it was fine."

Burke extended congratulations for the victory over Georgia, saying that it came not from him alone but from the entire undergraduate school.

The Duke student body president welcomed Carolina students to use the Duke library and to visit Duke boys and girls.

McNeal related an action of friendliness toward Carolina on the part of Duke students when the score of Carolina and Tennessee was announced at the Duke-Clemson game.

Friendliness

He said that he was pleased to see growing friendliness between the student bodies although he thought a reasonable amount of rivalry added color to intercollegiate games.

J. D. Winslow, president of the Y. M. C. A., who is sponsoring the better-relations program, expressed pleasure at the movement inaugurated at the freshman class assembly.

The former system of prizes was offered for the best windows, with no particular basis for judging.

GRAIL ANNOUNCES ADDITIONAL DANCE

Fuller Will Play for Extra Affair Friday Night.

The Order of the Grail will sponsor two dances this week-end instead of the usual one, it was announced yesterday.

The first, on Friday night, will be the regular Grail dance, with Jimmy Fuller and his orchestra playing from 9:00 to 1:00 o'clock.

The Saturday night dance will be given under the auspices of the Grail, but will be in honor of the Monogram club, to which part of the proceeds will go. Jelly Leftwich will play at this dance, which will last from 9:00 to 12:00 o'clock.

The admission charge will be $1 for each dance.

BAND WILL PLAY FOR SOPHOMORES

Freddie Johnson's Carolina Tar Heels to Play for Sophomore Assembly This Morning.

The latest of Carolina dance orchestras, Freddie Johnson and his Carolina Tar Heels, will make its initial appearance this morning in sophomore assembly at 10:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Johnson has gathered together a corps of 13 musicians, featuring a five way brass combination, four piece rhythm section, and four saxophones, with the director sometimes playing the fourth, giving added harmony to the reed section.

Original Arrangements

The Carolina Tar Heels are playing their original arrangements only of popular dance melodies. Randy Blanchard, first trumpet player and music student here in the University, is the author of these arrangements which accent the brasses, thereby affording tempo reminiscent of Casa Loma's popular conception of melody.

Freddie Johnson has arranged an interesting musical program for this first appearance, he announced today. Melodies ranging from hot dance tunes to waltz numbers will be played. The Carolina battle songs will be presented on this audition.

PRESIDENT FORMS NEW COMMITTEES

Issues Orders Creating New Groups Under Textile Board.

Washington, Oct. 16.— (UP)—President Roosevelt tonight issued four executive orders creating under the Textile Relations board three boards under a common chairman. These boards are to investigate the work load assignments of cotton, wool, and silk mills.

The orders are a blow to the stretchout system. The boards are ordered to make recommendations to the President by January 1st for a permanent plan regulating the work load of these industries.

Meanwhile President Roosevelt ordered the present work load frozen until February 1 in cotton and silk mills. It is already frozen in woolen mills.

The new boards are composed of one representative from the industry it is to investigate, one from the workers in that industry, and an impartial chairman.

Club Schedules Set For November 16-17

Affair Will Be Held in Tin Can Following Carolina-Duke Football Contest.

PASSES ON SALE MONDAY

Isham Jones and his internationally famous orchestra will furnish the music for the fall German club dances on the week-end of the Duke-Carolina football game November 16-17, it was announced yesterday by Chapin Litten, secretary-treasurer of the organization.

The fall set of dances, the first to be staged by the club this year, will consist of two tea dances and two evening dances.

The series will start Friday afternoon, November 16, with the first tea dance in the Tin Can from 4:30 to 6:30 o'clock.

The other three dances will also be held in the Tin Can. The Friday night affair will run from 9:00 to 1:00 o'clock.

Following the Duke-Carolina game Saturday afternoon, the second tea dance of the series will start at 5:00 o'clock and end at 7:00 o'clock. The final dance will take place from 9:00 to 12:00 o'clock Saturday night.

Election Tomorrow

All members of the German club will meet tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall to elect dance leaders for this first series of the year.

Tickets for the fall set may be procured after Monday from officers or members of the executive committee of the German club.

Jones and his band have been playing over the Columbia Broadcasting System from Cleveland recently. He will be remembered by many students on the campus by the tour he made of this state year before last, playing in several neighboring cities.

Officers of the club this year are: Joe Webb, president; Bruce Old, vice-president, and Chapin Litten, secretary-treasurer.

SUGARMAN PLANS LARGER MAGAZINE

P. U. Board Agrees to Increase In Size Provided Advertising Offsets Increased Cost.

The Publications Union board yesterday approved Joe Sugarman's proposal to change the dimensions of the new magazine on the condition that the additional cost to be incurred would be offset by the increase in advertising.

The format of the Carolina Magazine will be slightly different from that which was proposed last spring when it was decided to make the magazine a separate publication instead of a bi-monthly supplement for the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Full Page Engraving

The printed copies will be eight and one-half by 11 inches, instead of six and one-half by ten inches as it was first proposed.

This change was made principally because it was found that the first size is not one for which national advertising can be easily obtained.

The board also gave the magazine editor permission to have a full page engraving made for the first issue.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official newspaper of the Publications Union Board of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where it is printed daily except Mondays, and the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Spring Holidays. Entered as second class matter at the post office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under act of March 3, 1879. Subscription price, $3.00 for the college year.

PARAGRAPHICS

Maybe they hid silver in the Confederate statue (dedicated 1912) to keep Sherman and his men from getting it, but we thought they were all killed in the World War.

And nobody has told Professor Bill Olsen yet that his talk at the Bull's Head, "Left or Right," might be understood as a burlesque on a woman driver trying to make up her mind.

At that, though, we'd say it was "Frankie in Ponderland" instead of the usual version.

Good Will At Large

In freshman assembly yesterday two of the foremost representatives of Duke University's student body, its president and the president of the senior class, declared themselves willing to do all within their power towards instituting better relations between Carolina and Duke students. Carolina should welcome this declaration with appreciation and should answer it with a similar declaration, just as sincere as that issued by the Dukesters. It is planned that Jack Pool and Virgil Weathers shall return the good-will visit in the near future.

But the students themselves should follow up this exchange with efforts to ameliorate the inter-school attitude. The two formidable instruments that they have to work with here on this campus are the Y. M. C. A. and the University club.

Nothing is more in order or more necessary for maintaining the Carolina gentleman's code than that this idea of better relations should be carried out to the fullest extent that two student bodies are capable of.

A Successful Homecoming, Anyway

In view of all the preparations that have been made for Homecoming Day, there is no reason why this monument to University friendships and alumni loyalty will not be a greater success than any in the past few years. The town of Chapel Hill, through Mayor Foushee, has shown an unsurpassed willingness to co-operate with the University next Saturday, and an impressive array of visiting notables has been secured already. The program at 10:30 o'clock will be broadcast over WPTF, with Carl Goerch, popular editor of The State, acting as master of ceremonies. And besides the presence of Governor Ehringhaus, it is probable that Ruby Laffoon, governor of Kentucky, and President McVey of the University of Kentucky will also attend the occation.

Only one instance of non-co-operation mars the program this year, and that is the failure of the dormitories to agree to decorate for Homecoming Day. Those of us who remember the way in which decoration of dormitories enlivened last year's occasion find considerable cause for regret that the practice has not been continued. While it will hardly affect the success of this year's program, this apparent unwillingness to assume their share of the responsibility on the part of the dormitories is hardly a credit to that group.

Confidence Of the Students

Carolina's football team, by winning Saturday against a strongly favored Georgia eleven, has shown the students one thing in particular—that they have a team that will fight to the finish no matter what the odds against winning. Captain Barclay and his men, a number of individual stars among them, fought from the very first against a team which they were not conceded a chance to beat.

An instance of the courage that the team displayed was Carolina's stand against the powerful Bulldog eleven in the shadow of the goal posts. Chapman, the battering line-plunger who demolished last year's Tar Heels, ran up against an adamant forward wall that would not yield. The result was that the big Georgia back could not make two yards in four tries, when gain would have meant a score.

Now that the team has built up a well-deserved confidence, the students have taken a new view of the football outcome that will mean they will be unstintedly behind this year's team. If Coach Snavely expressed himself to a DAILY TAR HEEL reporter as being pleased with the brand of football his proteges showed last Saturday, the students are no less behind him and the team that he has turned out in one of the most hopeful beginnings that a coach has ever made here at the University.

Note on the Pledge Revision

The student council, meeting in its first joint meeting of the year with the faculty executive committee, presented a revision of the honor pledge to read "I have neither given nor received aid on this quiz and have not seen any violation of the honor system." The last clause was not a part of the former pledge.

We do not know how students will react to this. It seems obviously an improvement in several respects. For one, we mention that it will make reporting obligatory because students, if they see cheating, cannot sign their own pledge without confessing it. The professor can then trace the cheating and justice can be administered.

It will be interesting to watch the student reaction during the council's discussion period.

Speaking The Campus Mind

(BRIEFLY AND LEGIBLY)

30 Pieces Of Silver

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

The Southern Conference has made a selfish mistake in not broadcasting any of the football games this fall. There are thousands and thousands of alumni from the southern schools who are kept at home every Saturday on account of business, on account of home ties, on account of distance, on account of depression. The Southern Conference says broadcasting the game is what keeps people away. This is a mistake; it is a selfish mistake and a very short-sighted policy on the part of the conference officials. They are saying that football is played for money. The conference is saying that they do not care for the thousands and thousands of alumni who are unable to attend. The Southern Conference is saying to the young high school boys, "We do not care for your interest in football. We feel no responsibility in helping to build up a greater interest in the sport."

Yes, the Southern Conference has gone commercial. They have sold out for the 30 pieces of silver and have forgotten that in the long run they are cutting the very tap root which is giving substance to the growth of football interest.

Suppose, for example, that the newspapers should be refused the privilege of printing the details of the game. Suppose the colleges should say to the press, "We don't want your stories of the game because it hurts our ticket sales." How long would it be before interest would completely die if the daily stories were withheld from the press? Only a very short time. The radio acts as a means of increasing a greater and greater interest. The radio builds up interest from season to season, from game to game. Why is the world series becoming more popular every year? Because it has always been broadcast, and people will listen to a broadcast who will not read a paper, and the more we read and know of a sport the more we desire to be present at the field or diamond.

When colleges stoop to the place that they are going out only for the money that a sport brings them, forgetting entirely their responsibility to those who are unable to attend by denying them the privilege of a broadcast, then I say that our colleges, like picture shows and other commercial enterprises, are not thinking in terms of helpfulness, education, true ideals of sportsmanship, and they should be stamped as selfish money-grabbers, for they have forgotten their larger responsibility.

presented a report of the activities of the council last year, after which the meeting was adjourned. Immediately after being adjourned, the council met and tried a freshman brought before them for damaging a dormitory telephone. The two cases of having women in the dormitory were dismissed.

The case of perjury before the council received a sentence of suspension for 2 quarters.

The case of the election fraud was put on probation for the rest of his time in school and deprived of the privilege of voting in future elections.

The one case of a bad debt received a warning to pay it within a reasonable length of time.

In the case of the fraternity house disturbance the president of the house was warned.

The decrees made were: that seniors with photos in the Yackety Yack pay the $1.50 photographers fee; that, the president of the sophomore class having failed to return, the vice-president shall succeed him; that the student council recommend to the Yackety Yack that the annual be withheld for students who have not paid class fees until they pay or sign a three-months note.

Varsity Works Overtime With Stiff Passing Drill

Coach Snavely Prepares for Fine Passing Tactics of Kentucky Coming Here Saturday.

SCRIMMAGE WITH FROSH

First String Also Practices on Going Down Under Punts, Weakness in Ga. Game.

Coach Carl Snavely worked his football charges until after dark yesterday in Kenan stadium, preparing them for the Homecoming battle with the powerful Kentucky Wildcats this Saturday.

Fearing Kentucky's fine passing attack which counted the only marker against Clemson last week, the Carolina coaches sent the Tar Heels through a long passing drill in which both offense and defense were stressed.

Down Under Punts

Coach Snavely was far from satisfied with the way the Carolina line went down under punts at Georgia Saturday and as a result had Charlie Shaffer booting against a freshman team. The veteran kicker got off some long high punts and with Eddie Kahn leading the way, the varsity line stopped the receiver dead on almost every kick.

The Tar Heels also worked on receiving kick-offs, trying out a new play. Burnette, yearling star, place-kicked twice all the way to the end zone, making the varsity start from just about as far back as possible.

Scrimmage with Frosh

Carolina topped the afternoon's work with an offensive scrimmage against the freshman using several new plays made especially for scoring purposes. With Charlie Shaffer doing some nice stepping and Hump Snyder and Jim Hutchins turning in fine blocks the majority of the plays clicked for long gains.

Bill Moore, letter end, is almost sure to be on the bench Saturday with a sprained knee. However, "Chilly" Childers, dash man, has been developing fast and is being groomed to take Moore's place in the first string. Coach Snavely was highly pleased with Childers' performance against the Bulldogs last Saturday.

Barclay and Tatum Out

Captain George Barclay and Jim Tatum, senior linemen, again took it easy yesterday.

ONLY ONE GAME AMONG BIG FIVE

Duke and Davidson Battle for Only Contest Affecting State Standings.

Only one game is scheduled this week-end which will have any effect on the Big Five standings for the gridiron, that being the encounter between Duke and Davidson Saturday on Richardson field.

The game will be Duke's first among the Big Five circles and Davidson's second. The Wildcats lost to State in a night affair, 6-0.

Duke is the big favorite to take the game, but there is always the possisbility of an upset. The Wildcats are known for their fight when the odds are heavy against them. And again there is the triple-threat backfield star, Mackorell, who has to be stopped. But everything looks rosy for the Blue Devils with such scoring punches as Cornelius and Parker.

All the other Big Five teams play out-of-state foes. Carolina is host to the University of Kentucky, State journeys to Florida, and Wake Forest battles Presbyterian College at home.

Cake Racers Set For Annual Trot Late Tomorrow

Starting Gun Fires at 4:45 Tomorrow Afternoon on the Freshman Field.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4:45 o'clock has been definitely set for the start of the eleventh annual cake race, Coach Dale Ranson and Director Herman Schnell announced late yesterday.

A group of more than one hundred runners will await the starting gun at Freshman field to battle it out over the new 1.9 miles course, which finishes in front of the east stands on Emerson field.

This late starting time has been set so as to give those taking lab periods a chance to compete in the race, one of the outstanding individual tests of the intramural athletic program. All participants are asked to report sometime after 3:30 o'clock to receive their numbers.

Big Entry List

All competitors who have not as yet indicated the organization for which they will run must do so without fail this afternoon. Final training requirements will be checked off late today, and it is hoped that one of the largest entry lists ever will be ready for tomorrow's test.

For the past few weeks, many hill and dalers have been practicing in anticipation of this event—the classic marathon of the annual intramural season. All participants are required to have run the distance at least six times before entering the competition. This is very necessary as long distance running is one of the most severe tests of condition.

Coach Dale Ranson, as well as the intramural board, believes the race will be one of the outstanding battles in the history of the event, inaugurated in 1923 by John Pursar, then director of the intramural program. As this is the first time that the race will have been run over the new course, the winner will therefore be the establisher of a record.

Last year 111 starters heeded the gun, and Graham Gammon, Bob Gardiner, and Marvin Allen triple-tied for the first place position. Since they have all "graduated" to the varsity cross country and track squads, they will be ineligible to compete, but will be on hand to congratulate their successor or successors. Ruffin is the defending team titlist.

As in the past, the winners will receive prizes for their efforts, with the first man to finish, the grand team titlist, and the individual team winner all receiving cakes. The first fifty individuals to cross the tape will also be recipients of prizes and the first five finishers will receive medals.

Liners Look Good

College Park, Md.—The Old Liners outplayed the Middies last Saturday on the gridiron by a wide margin in everything but point scoring. Maryland piled up the almost amazing total of 349 yards, 209 on running plays and 140 by aerials. Navy's total of 180 yards, 125 on running plays and 55 through the air. After the first twenty minutes of play the Terps practically stalled the Middies, the winners making only two first downs in the last 40 minutes of action.

FROSH GRIDSTERS TACKLE VARSITY IN FAST SKIRMISH

Burnette, in Kick-off Practice, Boots Several Beauties Back of End Zone.

AX AND DITT ARE INJURED

The yearling football squad met the varsity yesterday in a short skirmish, with the frosh taking the defensive end of the play as the Snavelymen tried out their scoring punch.

The Jamesmen turned in some vicious tackling and charging in spite of near perfect blocking on the part of the varsity leaders.

On kick-off practice, Burnette, flashy star of the Wake Forest encounter, put his toe to two long boots, each of which sailed into the territory behind the end zone. Both were high floating beauties, giving his team plenty of time to get under them.

The first and second teams worked on their formations in preparation for the State Wolfiet game in Greensboro on the night of October 27. With the exception of Ax and Ditt, who are laid up with injuries, and Keeney, who was out yesterday, the first string remained intact, as the same which played against the Deacons.

The first string men seem to work together better than any other combination which Coaches James and Fysal are able to assemble. Graves and Bricklemyer are certain of moving up into the selected group by their brilliant showing to date.

MANY BIG GAMES ON GRIDIRON LIST THIS WEEK-END

Pitt-Minn Battle Heads Schedule For Intersectional Highlights This Saturday Afternoon.

U.N.C.-KY. HEADS SOUTH

New York, Oct. 16.—(UP)—This week-end will find many spectacular intersectional gridiron battles featured throughout all sections of the country.

Minnesota's intersectional brawl with Pittsburgh stands out on this sparkling schedule like a giraffe in a pack of daschunds. Since both Michigan and Southern California have been booted out of the national championship race, this fight takes the lead in attention and may the best team win.

Both Jock Sutherland's Panthers and Bernie Bierman's Gophers loom as potential champions in the East and Midwest and the winner stands a big chance of going into the national crown finals early in December.

Big Battles in Dixie

The south holds several real games in store. In the Southern Conference, North Carolina and Kentucky meet in the best affair while North Carolina State and Florida also will attract much attention. In the Southeastern end, three battles are on schedule which should have much effect on the finals of the conference standings. The six leaders for the crown meet in the battles—Alabama-Tennessee, Tulane-

Kentucky Wildcats Invade N. C. With Array Of Fast Gridsters

Triple-Threat Halfback Bert Johnson Heads Chet Wynne's First Gridiron Edition.

VETERAN FIRST STRING

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 16.—Bert "Man O' War" Johnson is the only sophomore who has been able to break into the lineup of the Kentucky Wildcats, who invade the University of North Carolina Saturday, and the "Ashland Flier" has lived up to the appellation, "sophomore sensation," and more in the first four games.

So much so that the 185-pound triple-threat halfback is being liked to the immortal Bo McMillan, Centre College star of a decade ago, and already is being hailed as Kentucky's leading candidate for all-American honors.

This year's game will mark the first time that the Wildcats,

ON YOUR MARK! GET SET! GO!

When Charlie Shaffer kicks those long spiraling punts in the Wildcat game this Saturday, he will have a pair of race horses to speed down under those kicks and nail the receiver.

There will be a real race to see who gets to the receiver first between Tom Evins, hefty tackle, and "Galloping Chilly" Childers, newly-crowned first string end. Big Tom has been the fastest man in the line in spite of his 190 pounds.

But now that Childers has come up into the select, Evins has to take second place in speed. The reason is that "Chilly" is quite a dash man, holding the state record for the 220 and also runs the 100 in 9.9 seconds.

This battle to see who can make the tackle first under punts will be quite an added feature for the Homecoming carnival.

School Tennis Tourney Opens This Afternoon With 75 Entries

Play Begins This Afternoon at 1:00 O'clock with Four Matches Going Off.

ABELS, DE GRAY RANKED

Upper and Lower Bracket Competition; Eight Seeded in Upper, Four in Lower.

The annual campus tennis tournament gets underway this afternoon at 1:00 o'clock with seventy-five eager entrants raring to go in an effort to acquire the school title.

Due to the large number of entries, the tourney will be separated into two divisions, with the winners meeting in a grand finale.

Upperclassmen List

The upper bracket will be composed of upperclassmen, headed by Byron Abels, who burned the courts up with the frosh squad last year. Seeded second to Abels is the dangerous Morris Whitaker, who in turn is followed by Jimmy Johnston and Archie Henderson. If these boys gain the semi-final as predicted a pair of corking matches will be the result.

The remaining four ranking upperclassmen are in order of their seeding: Floyd Fletcher, a former Wake Forest star; Bill Clover, of Illinois; Mark Lynch, and Syd Weinstein, last year's outstanding freshman.

Lower Bracket

The lower division will be a strictly freshman affair with the flashy Eddie DeGray at the top. Enough competition is expected from Gene Robinson, Johnny Foreman and Ray Bartelman to keep DeGray on his toes throughout the tourney. DeGray is prospective varsity material this coming spring and interest is centered on the impression he makes in this competition.

The doubles tournament will not start until the completion of the singles play and combinations may yet enter the tourney. Approximately sixteen teams are expected to wage battle for the doubles title.

There are 33 entered in the freshman section and 42 in the non-letter upperclassman divi-

BETA THETA PI'S TALLY 45 POINTS TO LEAD MURALS

T. E. P. Downs Dekes; Pikas Beat Delta Taus; Snakes Over Phi Delts.

GRIMES-LEWIS TILT TODAY

Beta Theta Pi's strong tag football team featured yesterday's session in the intramural race as it hung up the largest score of the season by snowing Lambda Chi Alpha under by a 45-0 score to take its second win in as many starts.

The Pi Kappa Alpha eleven eked out a hard 12-6 win over Delta Tau Delta, T. E. P. handed the Dekes a 13-8 setback, and Sigma Nu sent Phi Delta Theta down 19-0 in the three other games on the program. Klutz Building, with one win already to its credit, received a forfeit from New Dorms, and thus kept the record of at least one forfeit a day on file.

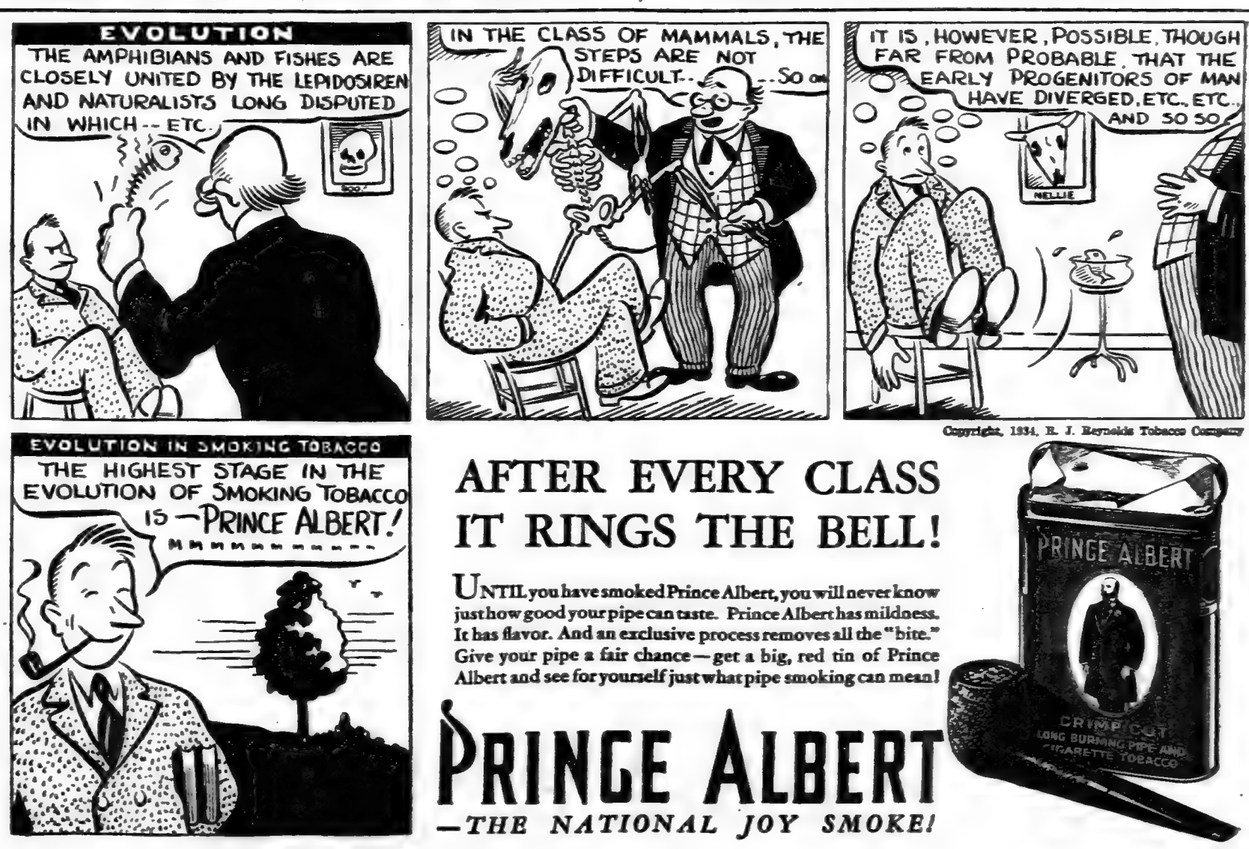
Betas Get Hot

A strong Beta offensive, though netting only one first down while keeping its opponents rom any, pushed over five touchdowns in the opening half and went into a 32-0 lead at the intermission. The second half found the Lambda Chi Alpha team fighting valiantly, but the victim of two more tallies.

Rand, flashy Beta right end, took the campus scoring lead as he snagged four passes for touchdowns. Reid, Beta pivot man, scored two six pointers and added a free try, while Rose pushed over the remaining touchdown and Richardson and Tennille accounted for the other tallies.

Pikas Take Close One

Delta Tau Delta met its second close setback as it battled on even terms with the Pikas throughout, only to have touchdowns by Chears and Robeson in the last half send its hopes to the winds. Shores accounted for the sole touchdown of the losers. The winners outgained the Deltas five first downs to three.



After holding the powerful Sigma Nu for more than half of the opening setto, the Phi Delta Theta defense collapsed and permitted its larger opponents to push across three touchdowns and add an extra point. Sigma Nu led by 13 points at half time.

The winners held the Phi Delts from gaining a single first down as it penetrated the oppo-

OLSEN DISCUSSES NEW DEAL BOOKS

English Professor Comments on Publications Dealing with Government Policies.

"Roosevelt can stand up under it," said Professor W. A. Olsen yesterday, commenting on the heated attacks made against the New Deal in recent publications. Professor Olsen was speaking on the regular Tuesday afternoon Bull's Head lecture program.

"I don't think that the conservative party, logically, has much to stand on in regard to the 1936 campaign," continued Dr. Olsen in the discussion period. He had formed this opinion, he said, from the outlook of present conditions.

Fascism

Replying to the question of whether fascism would ever invade this country, he said, "I consider fascism possible within the next decade or possibly the conservatives will get back in." He supported his opinion by showing that part of the fascist movement had already gained a foothold in this country and that some of the principles were already being used.

Professor Olsen read from "Frankie in Wonderland," a travesty on the New Deal. The book deals with the adventures of Frankie Roosevelt in Wonderland, with all due apologies to Lewis Carroll. The author called himself a Tory and, in parts of the book, succeeded in making an amusing farce. Dr. Olsen did not read all of the book, saying that portions of it were not very graceful and a bit too personal.

Biographical Sketches

"The New Dealer" by an Unofficial Observer, furnished material for the rest of Dr. Olsen's talk. The general tone of the book was sympathetic with the present administration. A series of biographical sketches of the various persons who go to make up the New Deal constituted the text. It showed that the only public enemies of the New Deal were opposing ideas, not persons. Dr. Olsen commented here that these adviseries, though temporarily out of the picture, are still busy. "The threat of war looms as the greatest enemy to the administration," he said.

who are on the rampage again under new Coach Chet Wynne and who showed lots of strength in their shutout victories over Cincinnati and Clemson, and the Tar Heels have clashed on the gridiron since 1903, when Kentucky won an epochal game, 6-5.

Veteran Team

Except for Johnson, the Wildcats will present a veteran team, composed of three seniors and seven juniors. The line averages 185 and the backfield 168 pounds.

Kentucky's big, powerful, hard-charging line also lists several brilliant performers, including Captain Joe Rupert, all-Southeastern Conference end; "Big Bill" Jobe, 227-pound tackle and the fastest lineman on the squad; and "Honus" Wagner, who was credited by many with outplaying Duke's Freddie Crawford last year.

Backfield standouts in addition to Johnson are Bob Pritchard, dashing fullback; "Abie" Ayers, who passed and ran the Wildcats to their victory over Clemson; "Double-O" McMillan, heady field general; and Langan Hay, who does the punting when he is in and who averaged 45 yards with a wet ball on a muddy field in the opening race.

sition for seven. Bost accounted for two touchdowns, Glace for one, and Slytle and Whitaker for extra points to comprise the Sigma Nu total of 19.

Teps Stage Comeback

The final contest of the afternoon saw the T. E. P. eleven come from behind an 8-0 deficit to take the D. K. E. gridmen into camp by a 13-8 margin. A touchdown by Pruden and a safety gave the Dekes a seemingly comfortable margin at half time.

However, the T. E. P. men reentered the contest with a little more pep than they had started with, and touchdowns by M. Ellisberg and Lessem, and an extra point by Ellisberg brought their score to 13 and victory. The Dekes won out in first downs, five to four.

Today's games:

4:00—(1) Everett vs. Old West, (2) St. Anthony Hall vs. Chi Psi, (3) Phi Kappa Sigma vs. Zeta Psi.

5:00—(1) Lewis vs. Grimes, (2) Kappa Alpha vs. Phi Gamma Delta, (3) Swain Hall vs. Aycock.

There will be no games on Thursday because of the annual running of the cake race. However, play will continue on Friday.

Georgia, and Vanderbilt-Auburn.

In the east, next to the Pitt-Minn. game, the St. Mary's-Fordham scrap will attract the most attention. However, the real spirit of this battle has been lessened by the unexpected defeat of the Gaels by a weak Nevada and Fordham's close win over Boston College.

In the midwest, two intersectional bouts take the limelight. They are Colgate vs. Ohio State and Michigan vs. Georgia Tech. In the Big Ten circles powerful Chicago takes on Indiana and unbeaten Wisconsin meets Purdue.

On the Pacific coast, California meets U. C. L. A. and Southern California takes on Oregon State. In the Rocky Mountains, the Utah-Denver skirmish tops the list. The Southwest holds one real game for the week-end fans in the Texas-Centenary battle while Texas Christian and Texas Aggies meet in the lone conference brawl.

Chemical Engineers Hear Talk by White

Dr. A. M. White addressed the local chapter of the American Institute of chemical engineering last night on "Chemical Engineering."

Dr. White spoke on the history of chemical engineering and its relationship to chemistry. He explained how mathematics, chemistry, and physics were the fundamentals of chemical engineering.

Speaking on chemical engineering as a life work, Dr. White enumerated the various aspects of chemical engineering in the operating of intricate machinery, in designing machinery, in selling industrial machinery, and in spending time in the research laboratory.

R. L. Huber, president of the local chapter, spoke of the history and future plans for the chapter.

PHI DEFEATS BILL TO COMPEL FROSH TO STAY IN DORMS

Assembly Kills Bill 21-19; Makes Plans for Appointing Speakers to Discuss Bills.

TO NAME CRITIC LATER

The bill, Resolved, that all freshmen be required to room in dormitories, was defeated at the regular meeting of the Phi assembly last evening.

Representatives Albert Ellis, A. S. Kaplan, Albert McAnnally, and Charles Poe advocated the bill which was killed by a vote of 21 to 19, while Representatives Winthrop Durfe and June Grimes, and J. W. Frink spoke against the issue.

Critic Named

After a discussion and vote, the speaker was given the authority to appoint an "efficiency expert" for each meeting to criticize the procedure of the assembly during that meeting.

It was also decided by vote that the discussion at the regular meetings be centered about one important question, with four speakers appointed at a previous meeting to give the fundamental issues of that question.

Speakers for next week's debate on the question, Resolved, that students be allowed to sell their athletic passbooks, are Albert McAnnally, Francis Fairley, Wiley Parker, and C. W. Griffin.

An initiation for all those who desire to become members of the assembly will be held at the regular meeting next week at 7:15 o'clock in Nw East building.

TAME THE WILDCATS

VARSITY WORKS OVERITME IN STIFF PASSING DRILL

Barclay is having trouble with his knee while Tatum is still feeling the effects of playing the entire game against Georgia. Both will probably be ready to go against the Wildcats.

Coach Snavely sent Paul Pendergraft and Charlie McIver, both sophomores, in to sub for the Tar Heel leader, while John Trimpey worked at Tatum's tackle position.

Coaches Max Reed and Walt Skidmore, who scouted the Kentucky eleven last week, were of the opinion that Carolina and Kentucky will stock up on about even terms, despite the Tar Heels' victory over Georgia.

The Wildcats use the Notre Dame system as taught by Chet Wynne, former Rambler star. Kentucky is especially strong at circling the ends and gaining through the air. The Carolina scouts believe the aerial attack is even more dangerous than that of the Bulldogs.

The Wildcats are heavy but fast and have a fine looking squad physically, according the report brought back by Skidmore and Reed. "Man O' War" Johnson, 185-pound triple-threat halfback, is the big ace in the backfield along with Pritchard, hard hitting fullback.

Troop School to Meet

The 316th Field Artillery troop school will meet tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in Davie hall.

Pete Ivey, editor of the Carolina Buccaneer last year, will act as manager during the evening hours.

UNIVERSITY CLUB SPONSORS RALLY TOMORROW NIGHT

"Kentucky Kunnel" and Rameses To Lead Torch Light Parade Through Town.

OSTROW TO LEAD CHEERS

Torches will blaze in the village streets, a bonfire will light up Emerson field, the student body will yell, and Rameses III will baa as features of the giant cheer rally tomorrow night under the direction of the University club.

Led by Rameses and the "Kentucky Kunnel," whose identity is a dark secret, the torchlight parade will get underway at 7:45 o'clock in front of the post office, and go directly to Emerson field.

Players to Speak

By the light of the bonfire there, the old Carolina spirit will be further revived by speeches from leading Tar Heel footballers and cheers led by Cheerleader Ostrow.

The Carolina cheerio section of about 100 students at the Georgia game yelled louder, according to the Atlanta Constitution, than the whole Georgia student body. Other Atlanta papers reported that the Carolina rooters displayed the greatest exhibition of spirit ever seen on the Georgia football field.

"Let's keep up the good work," says Frank Willingham, president of the University club. "If 100 Carolina students can do that, let's see what 2,000 can do!

Torches for the parade will be on sale in the dormitory stores for 10 cents, and there will be an oil barrel in front of the post office for the torches.

CAROLINA FROSH BELOW AVERAGE

Test Shows Freshmen Have Less English Preparation Than National Average Student.

Returns on the 1934 Barrett-Ryan English testing program in which the University of North Carolina freshmen participated last month, indicate that the English preparation of Carolina freshmen is below the national average, Dr. A. P. Hudson said yesterday.

Tabulations show that the Carolina median score for 760 freshmen was 102.3 out of a possible 150 points. Of the 23 colleges and universities using the same form of the test, Carolina ranks 17th, on the basis of the percentile score of the school median. By the standard of medians alone, Carolina ranked 14th. Most of the colleges and universities with which Carolina is compared are small institutions in the far west and the middle west.

Investigate Tests

Dr. Hudson states that two FERA students under his direction are working on the frequency of correct responses to various items of the test and on the distribution of scores by state and out-of-state trained freshmen. He expects to send to the high schools of North Carolina, a study similar to that given out last spring under the auspices of the English department and the extension division.

Scores made by the 510 North Carolina high school graduates will be compared with those made by the 250 graduates of out-of-state schools, and these totals with those made by the 4,345 students in the United States who took the same test.

GERMAN MINERS BEGIN NEW WAR TO RAISE WAGES

Are Unsatisfied with Settlement Of "Mass Suicide" Strike; Abandon Former Tactics.

WANT FORMER WAGE RATE

Funfkirchen, Germany, Oct. 17.—(UP)—A new strike of nearly 3,000 coal miners started here tonight coming on the heels of "mass suicide" starvation strike which was thought to have come to a conclusion yesterday.

The strikers did not repeat the entombment process resorted to in their last effort to better their labor conditions and wages.

Dissatisfied

The miners were dissatisfied with the recent settlement of the earlier strike and demanded the immediate restoration of the eight per cent wage cut to which they have been subjected. Negotiations with mine authorities were begun immediately.

The miners' first protest against what they have termed as starvation wages culminated yesterday when 1,200 workers came from the catacombs of the mines where they had been "buried alive" for some days. They said that they had rather starve in the mines than starve at work. They had been receiving a wage of $2.00 per week.

Yackety Yack Sports Men

The following men on the Yackety Yack sports staff are asked to report to the office this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock: Irving Kalminoff, Jack Spies, Skip Sherer, Joe Atkins, Robert Nahikan, Smith Barrier, Fletcher Ferguson, Stephen Mazur, and Tom Bass. Others interested in trying out for the staff are also asked to report.

As a list of the members of the cheerio club will be taken, all students desiring membership are asked to be present.

SURVIVORS SAVED FROM SEA WRECK

Five Newsreel Plane Crash Victims Picked Up by Liner.

Aboard SS Washington, at sea, Oct. 17.—(UP)—The liner Washington steamed toward New York tonight carrying five survivors of a newsreel plane who were rescued this morning when their machine dived into the ocean 650 miles out.

One life was lost. The man killed in the crash was Henry W. Johnson of New York, the plane mechanic. The newsreel men flew out to pick up pictures of the assassination of King Alexander of Jugoslavia from a ship in order to get them to New York a day sooner.

Selden's 'Player's Handbook' Reaches Best Seller Mark

Enthusiastic Comments Received by Author of Book Which Is Best Seller for July at Drama Book Shop; "Most Simple and Most Thorough of All Books of Its Kind," Says Critic.

"A day or so ago I purchased a copy of your 'Player's Handbook,' and I can't any longer refrain from telling you that it is a perfectly swell affair. Surely the best book about the infernally difficult business of acting yet put on paper." This exerpt from a letter written by Belford Forrest, head of the Town theatre in Columbia, S. C., to Samuel Selden, associate director of the Carolina Playmakers, is only one of the enthusiastic comments that Selden has received on his new book.

Used by Warner Brothers

"Player's Handbook" concerns the theory and practice of acting. The exercise materials cover body control, pantominic sketches, vocal control, reading selections, exercise in character development, and Loretto Carroll Bailey's one-act play "Cloey," for use as a final exercise.

At present the book is being used in the Warner Brothers' studios for a class of young film actors. Daniel Reed of this organization says of the "Player's Handbook," "It is the most simple and the most thorough of all books of this kind that I have ever seen. Since it deals with the most essential element in the composite art of the theatre, it should be read by playwrights, stage designers, and directors as well."

Highly Praised

At the Drama Book shop during the month of July, Selden's book was one of the three best sellers, the others being Dawn Powell's "Jig Saw" and the Theatre Guild's "Stevedore."

"Player's Handbook" has been highly praised by many of our leading authorities on the drama including Barrett Clark, Hubert Heffner, Arthur Quinn, and Daniel Reed. It has been reviewed in the Boston Transcript, and will be reviewed in the November issue of the Theatre Arts Monthly.

Phillips Russell discussed it in his Literary Lantern: "The author presents his material—gathered through eleven years of practical observation on professional and non-professional stages—in progressive steps from principle to practice. A highly useful, a truly valuable book."

From Barrett Clark, the famed drama critic and author, came the praising comment, "Samuel Selden knows his business and in his "Player's Handbook" he has explained it in a straightforward and intelligible manner."

UNIVERSITY SEEKS STUDENT MISSING FOR THREE DAYS

J. W. Idol Has Not Returned to Room Since Sunday.

The whereabouts of James Wilson Idol of Kernersville, Carolina freshman who has been missing since Sunday afternoon, remained unknown to University officials last night.

An investigation to locate the boy was begun yesterday afternoon through the office of Dean Francis Bradshaw, when efforts were made to communicate with his family.

Idol was reported by J. L. Crutchfield of Greensboro, his roommate, to have left the campus about 5:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon with the intention of hitch-hiking to Durham. He was last seen on the Raleigh road.

According to Crutchfield the missing student has not returned to his room for three days. His instructors report that he has attended no classes this week.

Idol is the brother of John and Percy Idol, both graduates of the University. Percy was formerly captain of the Carolina wrestling team.

DORSETT DESIGNS 'R. U. R.' SCENERY

Henry Pierson Aids in Planning One Scene Set for Playmakers' Robot Play.

The Playmakers scene shop is hard at work creating scenery for the coming production of Capek's "R. U. R.," to be given here October 25, 26, and 27.

This play, placed in the future at it is, requires a mechanistic setting. Circles, cubes, and parallelograms are needed for the appropriate atmosphere in which the story about the making of mechanical men is told.

Designed by Dorsett

Two of the three sets for "R. U. R.," have been designed by Wilbur Dorsett, the other by Henry Pierson. Ora Mae Davis, director of costuming, has charge of the decorating.

Striking lines and colors are employed in achieving the distinctive picture in which the robots and their masters fight for economic supremacy.

All of the furniture is being made by the scenic workers. Boxes, barrels, tin, beaver board, rope, and odd pieces of lumber are being utilized in the construction.

The scene shop workers include George Pearson, Wilbur Dorsett, Billy Robinson, Willard Miller, Sammie Ruth Bell, Jean Walker, Frances Caffey, Clyde Shaw, John Walker, Henry Pierson, Bill McNair, and Kenneth Bartlett.

PARAGRAPHICS

"Bradshaw Backs Drive for Pool." In return, we bet Jack will teach football game Ethics for the Dean.

We read where the work load is frozen in the woolen mills. Nothing like being cold-blooded about this depression thing.

Alma Mater, Davie Clark's version: Hark the Sound of Tar Heel Vices.

All Wet

Despite the fact that the Dialectic senate and Dean Francis F. Bradshaw seem to think that the students here should make a drive for an adequate swimming pool for the University, we hasten to disagree, not because we don't think one is needed but for several other reasons.

In the first place, this University is asking for enough as it is. The legislature has its hands full trying to figure out how the present appropriation demand can be met. That we can expect appropriations from that source considering the present financial maladjustment is mere foolishness.

If, on the other hand, the local organizations endeavor to obtain a water-hole from alumni support, they will still be barking up a coonless tree. What alumni funds are being furnished are applied to the strict necessities, such as scholarships and loan funds. Furthermore, there are few alumni who would contribute to such a cause when money is needed so badly for other and more essential projects.

We admit that we wouldn't jump into Bynum pool even inside a bathosphere, but we still insist that it will be better if we let the bathing idea go for a while until this University gets on its economic feet. Which feet, we might add, could stand a few dips in a pool, at that.

Seats of Students

We hear numerous students complaining that in Kenan stadium on football days the student body is not getting a fair deal in the seating arrangements. They argue that the middle sections all the way to the top should be reserved for University students, not just the lower half of these sections.

These students don't realize that they're getting about the best break in seating arrangements of any school in the south. The middle four sections, 17, 18, 19, and 20, are reserved for students from row A to row Z. Above row Z the seats are sold on reserve.

In former days, students were permitted to sit only in sections 16, 17, and part of 18, the middle sections being entirely reserved for cash customers. With the advent of "Bo" Shepard, who disclaims any credit for the change, the new arrangements were made.

In fact, the athletic association really loses considerably by helping the students under the present plan. The fact is little appreciated. There are over 2500 seats reserved in the lower part of these four middle sections which are ample to take care of the student body in attendance.

Hurt the Sound Of Tar Heel Voices

When our freshmen, 600 strong, open their lusty mouths this morning in the University club cheer practice, we will shudder as before when we listen to their efforts at pouring out "Hark the South" in a spirited manner.

It won't be the first time we've shuddered, either. It seems that our freshmen have not only neglected to learn the words to our Alma Mater but have also utterly disregarded the tempo and tune. We are not condemning them, because everyone must learn before he becomes adept, but we are offering sincere suggestions that the frosh get "on the ball" so that the next time they join in with the rest of us in the famous old war-cry they won't have "Tar Heel voices" down where "ringing clear and true" ought to be.

Incidentally, this University is the brightest star "of all," not "above." There's a difference.

Either Here Or There

To all intent and purpose the University is a University for the students—but it works the other way, too. The students must be for the University, and they have to stay here now, then, and always. Notice in the current issue of the University catalogue, page 63: "No student is allowed to absent himself from the University without written permission as provided in Article III, Section 1 [dealing with University activities, illness, and emergencies]. This permission may, at the discretion of the executive officer, be granted only upon the formal request of the parent or guardian."

That students should take such liberties in their interpretations of definite rulings by the powers that be of the University is really a slap in the face to someone or other. Perhaps the authorities are a little rusty on their rulebook, or maybe a trifle more liberalism is worming its foul way into the sanctum of Chapel Hill. Maybe, but personally we don't think they care much where we are. Nevertheless, the whole thing might be cleared up satisfactorily if such an obsolete ruling were jerked out and relegated to the University's museum of antiquities.

Good for Ambrose

Our "Speaking the Campus Mind" column, long in disuse or misuse by students wishing to vent their rage or express their personal feelings against someone who whisked by with upturned nose, is coming into its own again. Originally a column reserved for the expression of student feeling on subjects of interest to the University and for constructive criticism, it has become in the past few years a means of attacking individuals, or individuals standing for organizations.

In the contribution written in Tuesday's paper, Ambrose, whoever he may be, has come back to the original idea of the column. His points are well defined, not vague and indeterminate, and he is pointing out definite campus failings. More open letters like that and "Speaking the Campus Mind" will be achieving its true purpose.

Voice in The Mountains

Down in Wolf Mountain, N. C., Robert M. Hardie, '27, became a bit ruffled about this Southern Conference ruling prohibiting radio broadcasts of football games under conference jurisdiction. In these columns yesterday Mr. Hardie didn't mince matters when he says that conference officials are admitting that "football is played for money." The reason broadcasts are not allowed, we all know, is to maintain attendance standards in southern stadiums.

There is considerable truth in what Mr. Hardie says. Somehow or other, though, we do not feel that any member of our athletic association organization is a money-grabber and lays down rules with the financial instead of the sporting features uppermost in his mind.

We suggest that the S. I. C. change its name to "Slickers in Collaboration" and U. N. C., a rebellious martyr to sport for sport's sake, instead of "Us Need Cash" become "Ubiquitous and Non-profit Competition." Which wouldn't do much good, of course, because the slickers would still keep us off the air—but it sounds good.

Improvement In School Spirit

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

In your today's [Tuesday's] issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL you omitted to state the fact that on Saturday afternoon at the gridgraph when it was repeatedly announced that Duke was leading in the Duke-Tech game, Carolina students cheered time after time.

If you will investigate the above statement you will find it an absolute fact.

Washington, Oct. 17.—(UP)—Industry and labor will bear the major cost of the unemployment plan now being studied by administration experts for submission to the next congress, President Roosevelt indicated today.

He made it clear, however, that the program is still in its formative stages. Meanwhile the treasury reported that the emergency recovery expenses have reached a total of more than $1,000,000,000 since July 1.

The Saturday night dance will be given in honor of the Monogram Club

You speak into the telephone. Your voice, your personality, part of you is projected far and wide. In effect you are in two places and times at once—evening in New York, afternoon in San Francisco. Or you're in Washington today and in Sydney, Australia tomorrow—at one and the same time!

The telephone's power to put a person where he wants to be—at the psychological moment—proves tremendously valuable. In domestic and foreign business, in national and international affairs, in friendly social contacts, it permits a quick interchange of ideas and immediate understanding.

Cake Runners Race Today With 124 Men Competing

Starting Gun at 4:45 On Freshman Field; Report Early.

Run Will be Held over New 1.9 Mile Course.

This afternoon at 4:45 o'clock, 124 runners will battle it out over the new 1.9 miles course in the eleventh annual running of the intramural cake race, with Ruffin dormitory as defending titlist.

The start will be made at the corner of Freshman field on the Raleigh road, going on up the highway, turning down past the Carolina Inn and into Cameron ave.

The course continues up Cameron ave., through the center of the campus, out past the Forest theatre, and back onto the State highway, into and around Emerson track, finishing at the east end of the stands.

Report at 2:00

In his final instructions to competitors, Coach Dale Ranson stated that all runners must report at the Emerson field office sometime after 2:00 o'clock to get their competition numbers. These will be worn on the front outside of their jerseys.

All participants must check in at 4:30 o'clock on the track in order to be eligible to start. Instructions for warming up will be given at that time by the coaches. Judges will be placed along the route and runners must circle them, not cut across corners.

More Than Last Year

This year's entry tops the 1933 list by 13, but falls short by 114 of equaling the record set in 1924. Despite the laxity of that tremendous entry, the intramural board feels certain that this year's wealth of talent will more than compensate that shortage, resulting in one of the toughest races in Carolina history.

The computation to decide the winner will be figured on the following point basis: entering a team—25; first five teams with most entries—25 down to 5; first 15 finishers—15 down to 1; first five teams—25 down to 5.

As the runners may run either on the road or on the walkways, it is asked that spectators will please not crowd the route and force the individuals off the course. Upon entering Emerson field, the runners will circle the track in a clockwise direction.

Quintet of Cards Win National Honor

Chicago, Oct. 17.—When Jerome "Dizzy" Dean was recognized as the most valuable player in the National league for 1934, he became the fifth St. Louis Cardinal to win the honor since 1925.

The honor was first given in 1924, when Dazzy Vance of Brooklyn copped the prize. The next two years two Cards came through, these being Rogers Hornsby and Bob O'Farrell. Hornsby won the honor twice, once as a Card and again as a Chicago Cub.

The remaining winners to date are as follows:

1927 — Paul Waner, Pittsburgh.

1928—James Bottomley, St. Louis.

1929—Rogers Hornsby, Chicago.

1930—Hack Wilson, Chicago.

1931 — Frank Frisch, St. Louis.

1932—Chuck Klein, Philadelphia.

1933 — Carl Hubbell, New York.

1934—Jerome Dean, St. Louis.

Seeded Players Advance In Net Singles Tourney

De Gray and Abels Lead Their Brackets in First Round of School Tennis Meet.

The struggle for tennis laurels commenced early yesterday afternoon, and after five hours of bitter play, was brought to a close by the rapidly settling darkness. Throughout the day, which witnessed continuous action at all times, no upset was scored and the favorites that entered into play, emerged victorious by wide margins. However, a few matches went the limit and produced some brilliant and exciting tennis.

Eddie De Gray and Byron Abels, the top seeded in the two divisions, both advanced into the second round without any difficulty. Abels, particularly, had no trouble, winning by default from Wall, whereas De Gray coasted through Joey Patterson by a 6-3, 6-2 count to lead the freshman contestants into the second round.

Seeded Stars Win

Archie Henderson and Floyd Fletcher were the other seeded upperclassmen to romp through their first round encounters. Henderson swept aside Charlie Davis with crushing 6-1, 6-0 scores. Fletcher, who last year played second singles for Wake Forest in college competition, stroked his way past Ditch by the comfortable margin of 6-3, 6-3.

The three seeded behind De Gray in the freshman bracket all came through with flying

Two Teams Play Mural Contest To Scoreless Tie; Chi Psi And Zeta Psi Win.

CAKE RACE IS TODAY

The tag football rules have a clause governing tie games relating to the fact that the team gaining the most first downs takes the win. However, the intramural board will have to go one step further after yesterday's games as Kappa Alpha and Phi Gamma Delta played to a scoreless finish and also amassed three first downs apiece.

Delta Psi made its debut into the 1934 season in a none too auspicious manner as it fell before the onslaught of a hard-fighting Chi Psi eleven by a 32-0 score. St. Anthony had only a 7-0 deficit at half time, but the winners pushed across four tallies in the final session. Manley led the rampage with two touchdowns and an extra point.

Grimes Nosed Out

The closest game of the day was Lewis's 13-0 victory over a hard fighting Grimes combine. Both teams were on even terms at the intermission, but six pointers by Cook and Leight and a conversion by Gruen spelled defeat for the upper quadrangle team. Lewis gained nine first downs to two for the losers.

Featuring a 65-yard run for a touchdown by Heddrick, the strong Everett gridsters stopped Old West 20-0 in a well-played game. Both teams registered three first downs. Wright intercepted a pass for the victors' second score, and a third tally and two extra pointers by McRae sent the winners' total to 20.

FROSH LOOK BAD IN DEFENSE PLAY AGAINST VARSITY

Center of Yearling Line Shows Up Weak as Snavelymen Plunge Through.

GOOD PUNTING, PASSING

The freshman football squad invaded Kenan stadium yesterday afternoon and indulged in a hard scrimmage with a much improved varsity team. The varsity second team came up against the frosh's first eleven and split their line for numerous gains.

The freshmen seemed unable to cop with the hard running offensive that the second team has developed during the past week. Never once were the freshmen allowed to catch their stride as the second eleven pounded unceasingly down the field.

Avery along with Arthur Gatus were unable to stop the tide which swept through their center and guard positions. Many of the plays aimed at the center of the line were successful due to the fact that Avery could not pile up on the interference that preceded the runner.

Time and again the fast second eleven broke the fast weakening Tar Baby line to smithereens and were only stopped by the yearling secondary defense. Coach James was greatly disappointed with the poor showing of his supposedly strong line.

Net Tourney Notice

All students entered in the campus tennis tournament and who have not yet completed their first round match, will be defaulted unless they appear at the tennis courts before 4:00 o'clock this afternoon. Play will commence at 1:30 o'clock.

Beattie Feathers Reaches Stardom In Pro Football

New York, Oct. 17.—(UP)—Beattie Feathers, the greatest of all the great Dixie gridiron heroes, formerly of the Tennessee Vols and now with the Chicago Bears, today is the chief ground gainer of the National professional football league.

This flashy Bear has carried the pigskin 47 times and has amassed the total yardage gained of 511 yards. This gives him an average of 11 yards per try.

Feathers, in his first year among the big-timers, is far ahead of the runner-up Warren Heller of Pittsburgh who has gained a total of 364 yards.

Bob Monnett of the Green Bay Packers leads the individual scoring with 28 points and this same Feathers follows not far behind with 25 tallies.

Feathers plays halfback on Chicago Bears who have won five straight victories this season.

A romantic and energetic group of pigskin artists were tossing passes long after the moon had risen over Kenan stadium yesterday evening.

The team, still jubilant over last Saturday's victory at Athens, displayed high spirits in yesterday's practice. They are looking forward toward making the contest with Kentucky this week-end one of the best Homecoming games in history.

Barclay Returns

Captain George Barclay returned to the first string lineup, after having been out with minor injuries for the past few days. Jim Tatum missed practice yesterday due to a slight cold, but he will be in there at his regular tackle post this afternoon.

The remainder of the team is intact with the exception of Bill Moore. His leg injury will probably prevent him from seeing action against the Wildcats Saturday.

tion left open by Moore. He is a good blocker and also a dangerous man on the receiving end of passes.

Yesterday the first team worked on pass defense against a freshman eleven. Later they engaged in a tag scrimmage with the third stringers. Dashiell, Jackson, and Hutchins did the passing while Charlie Shaffer was outstanding in the running attack. "Hump" Snyder did his usual good work at the blocking back position. Don Jackson looked good at catching passes as well as throwing them.

The third team was able to put over one touchdown against a freshman eleven in a few minutes of regular scrimmage. The running and punting of "Pepper" Martin featured in this scrimmage, while the defensive play of Thurman, Stevens, and Kanner was outstanding.

working to perfection, the strong Zeta Psi team handed the Phi Kappa Sigma aggregation a surprising 26-0 setback. Ben Carlyle snagged two passes for tallies, Ed Clark plunged over for another, and Bill Carr scored on a 40-yard run and added two extra points to account for the winners' points. Both teams garnered four first downs.

After holding a scant 7-6 lead at half time, Swain Hall returned in the second half to push over three more touchdowns and take the Aycock gridsters into camp by a 26-6 margin. The strong defense of the winners held Aycock from a single first down, while their offensive piled up six.

There will be no games today, due to the cake race.

colors, no opponent annexing more than one game from Robinson, Foreman or Bartelman. The first mentioned eliminated Marion, 6-0, 6-1; Foreman blasted a 6-1, 6-0 win from Lynch and Bartelman followed with a love conquest over Russ to send the ranking players into the second round with impressive victories under their belts.

Nightfall caused the postponement of three matches and these will be completed today, raising the total amount of games played yesterday to 20. Among these battles, the most advanced was the one in which Corwith was leading the mighty Kasen, 6-4, and 6-all in the second set. Mark Lynch, seventh placed upperclassman, was also tied up with Hinson Smith, 3 games apiece in the opening set. Phil Kahn and Bill Harrison are scheduled to continue warfare, their battle being temporarily halted yesterday.

The first round will probably be completed today and the second round matches are scheduled for Thursday.

The other results of yesterday were:

Upperclassmen: Gold over Bobbitt 6-4, 6-2; Kirsch over Mac Phee 2-6, 6-2, 6-3; London over Ellis 6-0, 6-3; Landow over Maynard 2-6, 6-2, 6-1

Missing Freshman Here Returns Yesterday

James Idol Shows Up in Dean's Office After Trip Home.

James Idol, missing Carolina freshman, presented himself nonchalantly at the office of the dean of students yesterday.

Idol, who had been at his home in Kernersville since Sunday, appeared surprised that the Dean should have worried over his absence from the University. He had come back, he said, as soon as he heard that the University authorities. were looking for him.

A detailed investigation to locate the boy had been begun late Wednesday by Dean Bradshaw, when efforts were made to communicate with young Idol's family.

The first alarm concerning the boy's disappearance was turned in by J. L. Crutchfield of Greensboro, Idol's roommate. He said that Idol had not been back to his room since 5:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when he had set out hitch-hiking to Durham.

Dean Bradshaw confirmed the fact that the boy was not here when his instructors reported that he had not attended classes this week.

HEER DISCUSSES DEPRESSION CURE

Dr. Heer Tells Economics Seminar of Use for Government Funds During Depression.

Dr. Clarence Heer addressed the meeting of the economic seminar Wednesday evening with a talk on the implications of popular economic theories on the fiscal operations of the government.

He said that the current writers on economic problems generally concede that we possess the requisite resources and technical skill to support everybody on the basis of a much higher standard of living than has ever been achieved. Yet in the midst of potential plenty, millions are now living in abject poverty.

Governmental Spending

One explanation of this paradox places the blame on the disparity between the rate of money savings and the rate of capital investment. Unless savings are actually spent on the production of new capital goods, purchasing power bogs down and a deflationary cycle is set in motion.

The deflationary effect of a decline in the production of new capital goods can and should be offset by a proportionate expansion of governmental spending. The government will get the necessary funds for this purpose, according to the proponents of the plan, by the use of its credit. The national income has declined by some forty billion dollars since the peak of the prosperity period.

As the price-pumping operations take effect and as the forty billion dollars of lost income is regained the need for further public spending will cease and the national income, restored to its prosperity level, will furnish the tax funds with which to retire the initially incurred indebtedness.

MacFarland Appointed Sophomore Officer

To Take Place of Harry Dosher Who Failed to Return.

George MacFarland was appointed treasurer of the sophomore class Thursday in place of Harry Dosher who was elected to the position last spring, but was unable to return to school.

MacFarland was named treasurer by Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, upon the recommendation of the sophomore executive committee.

The new treasurer, who is from Charlotte, has held offices in the freshman and sophomore "Y" cabinets, and has been a member of the staff of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Parade Will Start At Town Post Office

Crowd to March Down Franklin Street at 7:45 O'clock for Rally at Emerson Field.

In preparation for the Homecoming Kentucky football game here, the University club will sponsor a giant pep rally tonight in Emerson field at 8:30 o'clock.

A torch-light parade will be staged before the Emerson field affair and will start at 7:45 o'clock in front of the local post office.

Rameses

Rameses and the "Kentucky Kunnel" will lead the parade to Emerson field where a bonfire will be lighted and the Carolina spirit will be stirred up by speeches, yells, and songs.

The cheerleaders will take part in the Emerson field program, led by Lester Ostrow. Talks will be made by leading football stars and members of the student body and faculty.

Torches

Torches for the parade will be on sale in the dormitory stores for 10 cents, and there will be an oil barrel in front of the post office to provide fuel.

Officials of the University club are planning tonight's meeting to be one of the greatest rallies this year and urge all students to turn out.

FEDERAL AGENTS GET KIDNAP CLUE

Abandoned Automobile and Five Dollar Bill Found.

Louisville, Oct. 18.—(UP)—Federal agents tonight had their first definite clue as to the direction taken by Thomas Robinson, Jr., who is sought as the kidnaper of Mrs. B. V. Stoll.

An automobile abandoned in Springfield, Ohio, was identified through finger prints as having been driven by Robinson. Also the serial number of a five dollar bill that he gave a rooming house keeper coincided with the numbers of the Stoll ransom money.

Fled East

Although Robinson fled east it is considered possible that he may have doubled back, perhaps heading toward Chicago.

Federal agents do not anticipate his immediate capture but regard it as inevitable.

A special session of the grand jury has been ordered for Saturday to consider evidence against Robinson's wife and father, who are charged with violation of the Lindbergh law.

The victim of the crime was feeling fine today and reported as doing well.

Father Arrested

Thomas Robinson, Sr., father of the kidnap suspect, was formally arrested in Nashville late today on charges of aiding and abetting the abduction. Through Attorney Montagu Ross he pleaded not guilty.

The elder Robinson's bond has been set at $25,000. He was released shortly afterward.

A preliminary hearing has been scheduled for October 26.

PARAGRAPHICS

This bull-tossing is getting to be an old Spannish custom.

Then there's the shrewd freshman upon whom no fraternity could pin anything.

"Kitchen Shower Given to Mrs. Freeland," says headline in Carrboro Courier. Here's hoping it didn't rain any gas ranges.

Loss to Literacy

That Carolina freshmen showed less scholastic preparation in English than the national average as revealed by the Barrett-Ryan tests presents food for some very interesting speculation, not only in the specific subject of English but in the entire curriculum schedule.

North Carolina high schools must offer at best a meager preparation in English in comparison with better school systems in other states. We are not insisting that preparation in that study is less adequate than preparation in others in our public schools, but simply that the standard of English taught suffers naturally in a state that is no more highly urbanized than our own. Another reason for this deficiency is the lack of 12-grade high schools, which ultimately has its roots in the failing maintenance funds for the state's school system. Too much time cannot be given to Enlgish fundamentals, and this one year that the student goes without prior to entering college, undoubtedly has its effect on his ability to make a high showing in his preparation for the college work in English.

On the other hand, it has been our experience that out-of-state students, especially those from northern high schools, are much more equipped for college English. Carolina freshmen, however, whether hailing from the Old North State or from above the Mason-Dixon line, must bear the unwanted distinction of being below the national average in their preparation for one of the most valuable subjects that education can afford.

While this is to be regretted, it only serves as an instance to point out the true importance of English in both the high school and the college schedule of courses. Any circumstances that tend to devaluate the quality of English students that our educational institutions turn out are enemies of literacy and foes of one of the most practical subjects that college training affords.

Time to Celebrate

The October 13 issue of The State says, "We're out of the depression. . . . Farm crops are selling at a high figure and business conditions are good. There's a holiday atmosphere in the air and the folks ought to be given a chance to give vent to their exuberance."

If such is true, and present conditions in Chapel Hill seem to indicate that it is, then we certainly should do our best to make Homecoming Day a day of celebration. If the students and town make the occasion one of genuine rejoicing, our home-comers will have something to talk about when they go home besides Caroliina's victory.

They Also Serve

Where are the college graduates of the past five years? It is the firm conviction of many observers that the majority of those who happen to be so "unfortunate" as to receive college degrees, are either mixing dopes, filling gas tanks, or assorting canned goods.

After reviewing such statistics as are available on this question, one is forced to agree that too many A.B.'s and B.S.'s are behind the soda fountain instead of filling prescriptions or managing the window-displays. What else, though, can be expected to result from the run-down condition of the country along employment lines? How could even the most optimistic individual have hoped that every man or woman just graduated from the classroom would be successful in landing a position well up the ladder of his or her chosen profession, when even the position holders of twenty and thirty-odd years' experience were slipping?

Often the incumbent workers slipped completely to the bottom, though not creating positions at the top when they did. They were forced to start over again. Hence, the adverse conditions were made worse by the scarcity of jobs, supplemented by a minimum scale of income; and in the face of such conditions, the cry for experienced help was even more indistinct.

We are sincerely surprised to note the large percentage of men who, having finished school, were successful in securing positions at all. Conditions are opening up now and we wonder when we consider the college graduates patiently waiting for their chance, how many of them regret having taken advantage of the opportunities afforded in college. Our guess is that the number will not be large. They have faith, we believe, that their time will come and when it does, their experience garnered in college laboratory and classroom will hold them in good stead.

Konk the Kolonels

Handbills with "Konk the Kolonels and Devastate Dixie" will be distributed all over the campus today and tomorrow. The occasion, of course, is the invasion of the Kentucky football team of Kenan stadium to engage our Tar Heels in a Homecoming thriller.

We see no harm in the catchy "battle-phrases." We didn't "Vault the Vols" but the campus caught the spirit which handbills at that time expressed and it must be admitted that intense interest has been shown in the progress of the Carolina football machine through the south.

Devastating Dixie sounds a trifle brutal but all's fair on Homecoming week-ends.

Same Old Story

Nobody ever heard of Joseph Auer through the newspapers until he was found to be an old schoolmate of a man named Hitler. Joseph Auer is a stone-mason by trade; Adolf Hitler is a house-painter who has risen to the position of dictator of one of the world's greatest nations.

It is interesting to see just what this stone-mason has to say about that house-painter. "Hitler will not live long," he says. "He has fooled the people with his talk, but the German race will not long be fooled. I am the same age as the Chancellor and we went to the same school. Now he is a great politician and I am carving stones."

One of life's hugest jokes is summed up in this comment that one tradesman makes of an old friend. True, their trades have undergone a change since they last met. Auer is carving stones now in South Dakota. Hitler is attempting to sculpture a people to fit his design. Auer is living in a free country a simple life. Hitler is master of millions whose freedom he has taken away, whose civilization he has suppressed, whose books he has burnt.

Yet, there is a sort of spiritual significance in the fact that their trades have hardly changed so much, after all. Auer has improved now so much since he was a beginner that, says the United Press, he has now become one of the most skilled artisans in the middle west. Hitler is still house-painting, painting the walls of Germany to suit his fancy and occasionally decorating them for the world to see with crimson patterns. History is full of instances of men of humble birth rising to live by the sword, and the German house-painter is no exception. Neither is Auer's comment on his old friend anything unusual; many a corporal has recalled his acquaintance with a diminutive Corsican and has remained an unrecorded chapter in the life of Napoleon.

One thing, however, would probably be true of any of the old friends of the captains and kings who have conquered empires and ruled in state. They would always say the same thing about their old friends, and it would be put in much the same language as Auer uses. No, he wouldn't change places with him, he says. "Now he is a great politician and I am carving stones. But," he adds, "there are not hundreds of people who want to bump me off."

Joe Rivers Finishes First In 11th Annual Cake Race; Sigma Nu Team Winner

Victor Runs Course in 10:16; Davison, Bost Follow Leader.

Successfully matching every challenge over the last three quarters of a mile, Joe Rivers, Savannah, Georgia, freshman yesterday afternoon flashed to a brilliant victory in the 11th annual intramural cake race, while Sigma Nu fraternity aspired to the grand team championship.

The victor, carrying the colors of Ruffin dormitory, 1933 titlist, went into the lead at the Carolina Inn and was never in serious danger of being forced behind. His time of 10 minutes, 16 seconds establishes a record for the new 1.9 miles course.

Despite Rivers' great performance, his teammates could not keep up the pace and dropped to fourth place ranking, as a strong Sigma Nu squad of 13 men swept all opposition aside to gain a score of 99 points. An additional 50 intramural points, given to the first rating team, sent the Sigma Nu total to 149.

The ratings in the grand scoring, as computed by the DAILY TAR HEEL, follow:

Sigma Nu, 149; Manly, 68; Mangum, 61; Ruffin, 48¾; Everett, 47¾; Aycock, 31¾; A. T. O., 28¾.

Always close behind the winner was the trio of Johnnie Davison of S. P. E., Tom Bost of Sigma Nu, and Bill Daniel of Phi Gamma Delta, who eventually finished in that order. For the greater part of the race Daniel and Bost were running fairly even with Rivers, but as they turned the corner at Freshman field and headed into the track, Rivers sprinted and led by a margin of 20 yards at the finish.

It then looked like a battle for the runner-up post between Bost and Daniel, but on rounding the west turn, Davison came up fast and the two could not match his powerful finish stride and dropped back into third and fourth places. But a few strides behind was Allen Waters of Chi Psi.

Completing the first ten, and finishing all within close range of each other, were Kind of Z. B. T., Hairston of Sigma Nu, Shedd of Manly, Wakely of Zeta Psi, and Rowley of Pika.

In the computation for the grand scoring, points are awarded for entering a team, entering the most men, team placing, and scores for the first 15 individuals to finish. Sigma Nu placed first in all divisions.

The first fifty men finished in order as follows: Rivers (Ruffin), Davison (S.P.E.), T. Bost (Sigma Nu), Daniel (Phi Gams), Walters (Chi Psi), Kind (Z.B.T.), Hairston (Sigma Nu), Shedd (Manly), Wakeley (Zeta Psi), Rawley (Pikas), Napier (Everett), Jones (Everett), Bromitsky (Aycock), Whitaker (Sigma Nu), Studdert (Mangum), Flynt (Lambda Chi Alpha), Anderson (Mangum), Garland (Ruffin), Bowen (Manly), McKie (Mangum), Gove (Mangum), Rabb (Manly), Kesselman (Aycock), White (Phi Delts), James (Dekes), Davis (A.T.O.), Howard (Everett), Parnell (Mang.), Rose (Betas), Ascensia (Mang), Gwynn (Mang), Hasting (Man.), Bailey (Rufffin), Porter (Kluttz), Mullin (Aycock), Braxton (Mang.), Manning (S.A.E.), Myer (Mang.), Hollingsworth (S.N.), Eichorn (Mangum), Dudley (Mangum), Pressley (Delta Taus), O'Connell (Everett), Morrison (Sigma Nu), Sink (Ruffin), Darden (Mangum), Hoyt (Manly), J. Best (Sigma Nu), Bluestone (T.E.P.), and Brown (Manly).

COLONELS READY FOR UNC BATTLE

Wildcats Have Developed into Strong Outfit but Fear Carolina; First Contest Here.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 18.—Chet Wynne and his University of Kentucky Wildcats are apprehensive regarding the outcome of their game next Saturday at Chapel Hill, with the North Carolina Tar Heels, believing that the experience gained by the Carolinians in their hard games so far this year, will set them on edge for the invading Kentuckians.

The Wildcats never have played at Chapel Hill although Kentucky defeated North Carolina here by a narrow margin three decades ago. Kentucky has played twice at Durham in recent years, however, during a four-game series with Duke. The Wildcats, in those four games, were unable to score a single victory although outclassing the Blue Devils each time. Because of these losses to a North Carolina outfit, the Wildcats are more than eager to make a favorable showing in the Old North State.

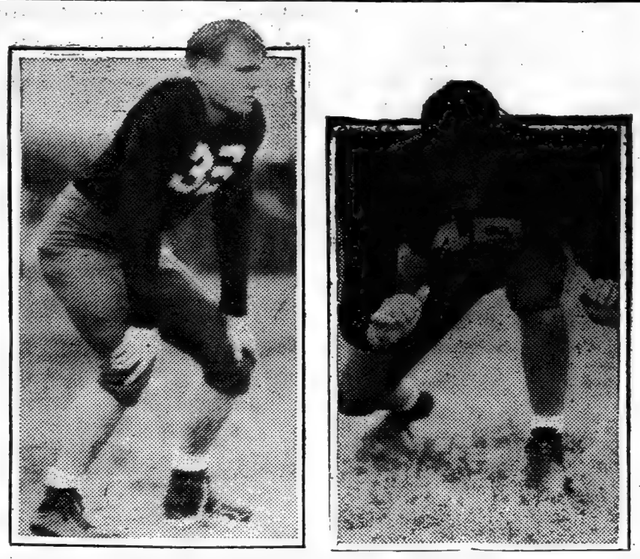
Under New Coach

Kentucky, like North Carolina, is playing this season under a brand new coach, Chet Wynne, one-time Notre Dame fullback, who came to Kentucky last spring to begin where Coach Harry Gamage left off. Wynne already had coached Creighton to a Missouri Valley Conference championship, and Auburn to a co-championship of the Southeastern Conference.

The Wildcats got off to a poor start, losing a heartbreaker to Washington and Lee in a downpour of rain which made handling of the ball almost impossible. Nothing could be done but punting. Bert Johnson, Kentucky's triple-threat backfield ace, punted 39 times in that game. His 39th was blocked and the Generals scored on the play.

The Wildcats were not disheartened, believing that on a dry day they could have whipped the Generals without difficulty, and enthusiasm was fanned to a fever heat the following Saturday when, given a dry field, they easily downed a strong University of Cincinnati team by 27-0 at Cincinnati. This same Cincinnati team held them to a 3-point victory last year.

The team has come along with a rush since then, downing Clemson's strongest team in several seasons, 7-0, and showing marked improvement with each scrimmage.



Now the Wildcats are getting ready for North Carolina. They respect and fear the Tar Heels but they believe that they are capable of giving the Carolinians a mighty interesting afternoon at Chapel Hill.

STUDENTS TO BOWL

All students interested in joining a bowling league this fall are asked to sign up in the Graham Memorial alleys as soon as posssible.

If enough are interested, an intramural league will be organized.

VETERAN COLONELS

Here are a couple of hefty Kentucky veterans who are expected to play a big part in the Tar Heel-Wildcat battle set for Kenan stadium tomorrow. Bob Pritchard, left, will probably spend most of the afternoon at fullback and runs both hard and fast. "Honus" Wagner, giant tackle, is the boy who was credited by many who saw the Duke-Kentucky game last year with outplaying the famous Blue Devil all-American, Freddie Crawford.

Grid Club Drills For Wildcat Attack In Practice With Frosh

First String Looks Impressive in Preparing for Homecoming Battle with Kentucky.

WORKS ON SECOND STRING

Snavely Looking for Strength From Reserves; Long Blocking Session Is Held.

Coach Carl Snavely ran his football aggregation against a freshman team using Kentucky plays in yesterday's practice session on Emerson field in preparing for the Homecoming battle tomorrow.

The first team looked rather impressive in smearing the Wildcats' plays as run by the freshmen; however, the first-year men completed several dangerous passes against the varsity reserves.

Coach Snavely has centered most of his attention for the past week on building up a stronger reserve machine. The second and third stringers will probably be expected to do considerable relief work in the Homecoming tilt with Kentucky tomorrow.

Work on Blocking

Coach Skidmore conducted a dummy scrimmage featuring the first string backs, while Coach Reed practiced the number one linemen in a long blocking session.

The Tar Heel linemen, who played brilliantly against Georgia last Saturday, will probably find difficulty in stopping Kentucky's powerful forward wall tomorrow. The Wildcats boast of such stars as Captain Ruppert, all-southeastern end last season, and Wagner and Jobe, both outstanding tackles.

"Man o' War" Johnson, Kentucky's 185-pound sophomore triple-threat back, will also cause the Carolina forward wall plenty of trouble.. He is the man that the Blue Grass fans are banking on for all-American honors this season.

Jim Tatum returned to his regular tackle post yesterday after having been laid up with a cold for the past few days. Bill Moore will be the only Tar Heel missing when the Snavelymen go on the field in the Homecoming affray tomorrow.

FROSH CLUB RUNS KENTUCKY PLAYS

Led by Oliver, Yearlings Complete Many Passes in Dummy Scrimmage with Varsity.

The third freshman team displayed the plays of the Kentucky Colonels to the vastly improved first and second varsity aggregations out on Emerson field yesterday afternoon. The scrappy Tar Babies went through the dummy scrimmage led by Ed Oliver who threw passes in all directions with splendid accuracy.

After missing on many forwards, the varsity finally hit its stride and stopped the yearlings' air attack, and at the same time ganged up on the Tar Babies' ground game.

The frosh were undaunted by this display of the powerful varsity defense and, moving over to another side of the field, started in to teach the second team varsity some new tricks. Ed Oliver again headed the attack and behind his fighting line completed numerous passes into the flat zone.

JOHNSTON UPSET BY DOWD IN NET TOURNEY BATTLE

Third Seeded Player Eliminated After Three Tough Sets; Other Seeded Stars Advance.

ABELS DEFEATS LYNCH

Featuring but one upset, the tennis tournament swept into the second round with another afternoon of wholesale elimination completed. Approaching darkness again caused the cessation of play which will be continued at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon with a group of outstanding matches scheduled.

Blonde Johnny Dowd caused a slight furor when he outlasted the third seeded Jimmy Johnston in a drawn out thrilling battle. Dowd dropped the first set, 6-4, but hanging on grimly he overcame a 6-5 deficit in the second set and went on to win at 8-6, 7-5 scores. The match was a successive exhibition of brilliant volleys, and only after an hour and half of play was Dowd able to wear down the red-topped Johnston.

Other Aces Win

A few of the other top notchers in the upper bracket saw action and came through with little trouble. Byron Abels, seeded at the top of the heap, swept aside his first real opposition when he downed Mark Lynch, 7-5, 6-2. Lynch was seventh ranked in the tourney and although he worked Abels to the limit in the opening act, the superior play of his op-

FROSH ASSEMBLY HEARS F. H. KOCH

Playmaker Head Says That Hunger of Spirit Counts More Than Bodily Hunger.

"The thing that counts in life after all is hunger of the spirit rather than the body," Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, told University freshmen in an address this morning in Memorial hall.

Describing bread and beauty as two of the greatest hungers, Professor Koch said that millions of men and women have died with their bodies unsatisfied but their spirit marched on. Art and religion come from impulsive spirit, he said.

Theatre Irresistable

"The highest expression of a people has always come through the theatre," Professor Koch stated. "The theatre is irrestible. Sophocles expressed for the Greeks the highest dream of the Greeks; Shakespeare did likewise for the English."

Professor Koch said that Chapel Hill is the home of American folk drama. "We have here at the University the first theatre in America to be devoted to native folk drama and we have built up a tradition of both national and international reputation," he said.

Dean of Students Francis F. Bradshaw presided. The exercises were opened with a singing of the University's anthem, "Hark the Sound." Invocation was offered by the Rev. Watt Cooper, student pastor of the Presbyterian church.

ponent finally caused his defeat. Sid Weinstein and Bill Clover were the other stars to score impressive victories.

In the freshman division, Johnny Foreman, number 3, paced the pack into third round with another sparkling victory. His crushing forehand caused the downfall of Bloom by 6-1, 6-3 counts.

Parker and Henggi, Stein and Kirsch, and Corwith and Frank, are asked to report early so that their delayed matches may be completed.

The results of yesterday's play:

Digest Poll Indicates New Deal Weakening

Washington, Oct. 18.—(UP)—A nation wide test poll released by the Literary Digest tonight indicated that the New Deal is losing strength and that 17 states, possessing almost half of the seats in the house of representatives, are definitely hostile to the administration.

The report also indicated, however, that President Roosevelt's policies retain the majority of the nation wide support.

KIDNAPER LOSES BATTLE AGAINST N. J. EXTRADITION

Fast Removal to Hunterdon County Jail in New Jersey Is Planned.

DECISION IS UNANIMOUS

New York, Oct. 19.—(UP)—Richard Bruno Hauptmann tonight lost his fight against extradition from New York to New Jersey when five judges of the appellate division of the superior court ruled against him.

A fast removal is planned for him from Bronx county to the Hunterdon county jail in New Jersey.

Bronx Justice E. L. Flemington and New Jersey justices heard the appeal of J. M. Fawcett, Hauptmann's attorney, to the dicision of Bronx Justice E. L. Hammer denying the German immigrant the right of habeas corpus.

Vote Unanimous

Flemington and the four who sat with him were unanimous in their decision against Hauptmann.

J. M. Fawcett refused to comment upon the failure of the appeal, but an associate, Bernard Meisels, said that the extradition fight has ended.

D. T. Wilentz, attorney general for New Jersey, who will prosecute Hauptmann, expects to begin trial within two weeks.

HOURS FOR CO-ED VISITING STATED

Chapter Presidents Sign Agreement Pledging Co-operation In Co-ed Visiting Rule.

At a meeting of the interfraternity council in Graham Memorial Thursday night each member turned in an agreement, signed by the president of his house, under the terms of which co-eds will be allowed to visit fraternity houses.

Only the social rooms, halls, porches, and dining room on the first floor will be open to the women students; there will be no visiting in other parts of the house. There will be no drinking or serving of intoxicating drinks and the atmosphere will be that of any well-regulated home.

Visiting Hours

Each fraternity will have the privilege of receiving women students as guests between the hours agreed upon by the University, which are: 1:00 o'clock to 10:15 o'clock and 10:45 o'clock on Friday and Saturday.

Since this is a privilege not granted to the women students of any other University or college in the country, it is hoped that both the men and women students will co-operate with the University in making the plan a success.

Time Has Article On New Archivist

Describes Connor as "Golfing, Poker-Playing Pedagog."

"A shy, heavy-set, golfing, poker-playing pedagog," says Time, weekly news magazine, of Dr. R. D. W. Connor, who was recently appointed the first federal archivist.

A portrait of the noted historian, together with an article from which the above quotation is taken, appears in the October 22 number of the magazine.

Written in Time's characteristically brusque style, the item on Dr. Connor's appointment by President Roosevelt tells of his work as archivist of the state from 1903 to 1921.

It also mentions his duties as federal archivist which, according to Time, will be, among other things, to weed out surplus records from bureaus and departments. And "Archivist Connor," says the magazine, "will also be permitted to collect sound films which he may show in a projection room" of the new Federal Archives building.

PHOTO APPOINTMENTS

The following have photo appointments at Wootten-Moulton this morning:

A. L. Cline, John A. Petrillo, E. F. Brooks, Jr., R. M. Query, J. T. Underwood, E. E. Correll, Alex Mark, R. P. Guarino, Wm. Crayton, G. C. Oates, A. K. Harris, and Willis C. Smith.

ENGLISH CLASSES ARE REARRANGED

Hudson Announces That Competitive System in Freshman Classes Is Doing Well.

According to the figures of the freshman English instructors, as compiled by Dr. A. P. Hudson, chairman of freshman English, the competitive system in use in first-year courses is working well this fall, as is shown by the figures on promotion and demotion to date.

At the outset students were tentatively placed on various levels of instruction in the course. About 100 of the 640 new registrants were placed in advanced sections, 450 in the middling sections of English 1, and 90 in English A, the non-credit course for the ill-prepared.

Changes Experimental

The students were told that these placements were experimental and that students in the advanced sections might be moved down, those in the average sections up or down, and those in English A up, according to their performance during the first two or three weeks. Thus incentives to the best work were given from the start.

Up to date, fifty-one changes in placement have been made. From English A 18 students were promoted to English I, and from middling sections of English eleven students were promoted to advance sections. On the other hand, fifteen students originally placed in English I were reduced to English A, and seven placed in advanced sections were moved down to the middling sections.

STOLL KIDNAPER IS HEADING EAST

Robinson's Wife Says Authorities Are Double-Crossing Her; States Husband Insane.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 19.—(UP)—The trail of Thomas Robinson, Jr., led steadily eastward tonight with strong indications that he is speeding through Pennsylvania with department of justice agents hot on his heels.

Meanwhile Frances Robinson, wife of the kidnaper, said that she had lived in mortal fear of her husband for some time.

Lunatic Husband

Mrs. Robinson also stated that her husband, who is a discharged lunatic, may have been insane during the kidnaping and must be insane now.

The grand jury which indicted Robinson also brought charges against his young wife and Thomas Henry Robinson, Sr., his father.

Protesting against her treatment, Mrs. Robinson stated that she has been double-crossed by the authorities after working with them in their hunt for the kidnaper.

The counsel for Mrs. Robinson will build its defense upon the assertion that she was ignorant of her husband's plans until it was too late to prevent them.

Sponsors

The sponsors and their escorts for the Kentucky-Carolina game will meet this afternoon in Graham Memorial at 1:15 o'clock. It is imperative that all attend since they will go to the game together.

Negroes Shout "Amen, Brother" As Parson Denounces Baseball

Colored Folks Hold Revival, Chanting as Evangelist Warns His Flock That He Won't Allow Them to Enter Heaven Unless They Give Up Sunday Baseball and Be Good.

"Amen, brother!" "Praise be de Lord." "Dat's de truth." "Now ain't it so!" With all these expressions, stamping of feet, clapping of hands, and chanting, the Negroes of Chapel Hill held a "revival" meeting the other night in the Holiness church. Across the top of the choir is the phrase "The Church of God."

The service opened with songs and readings, with all the brethren chorusing "Amen" to every statement made. Everybody in the church took part in the ceremonies. Nowhere but in a Negro church can one find such spirit, such passion, or such fervor displayed.

Preacher

The evangelist preached a stirring sermon with the "Amen corner" again chorusing agreement. He told the congregation that they couldn't "steal chickens in de week, and den sit in de choir on Sunday, spectin to git to Heaven." Everybody seemed to agree with him, for there were the usual expressions—"Amen, brother!" "Dat's right, it sho' is." He also warned them that when they got to the judgment bar, he would be there waiting, and he wouldn't "let 'em git by old St. Peter if'n they hadn' lived the right kin' of life." ("Amen, brother, we'll be dere!")

He was vehement in denouncing those who think "de Bible ain't nothin' but a Jew scrap-book," and he cracked down on Sunday baseball, shouting that "it is got to be so bad dat now we see de bishop throwin' to de preacher."

When the Negroes sang, they put all their souls into their singing. The voices were excellent, and had a beauty rarely found except among such singers of old Negro spirituals. As the singing of a hymn would progress, Negroes all over the church would "git de religion" and would go down on their knees praising the Lord and shouting His name in shrieks of emotion. At the peak of religious ecstacy, many of them rose and, in a simple but inspiring ceremony, joined the church, to a chorus of "Praise de Lord."

Time came to pray, and the Negroes got down on the floor and began to chant their prayers in a low monotone, led by the preacher. The humming tones of the choir, combined with what became frenzied chanting, stamping, and clapping, increased the feeling of the congregation, and shouting arose in volume and intensity. Unreserved and unashamed, every one of them took part.

Shouting Too

After the chanting, the congregation rose and began to sing with great feeling, while the presiding elders exhorted them to more and more expression of faith. The mixed voices of the Negroes blended harmoniously

State Drama Group Sponsors Production Of Negro Play Here

The devil played by a Negro with horns is one of the principal characters in "Heaven Bound" to be given by colored actors in Memorial hall tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

"Heaven Bound" is brought to Chapel Hill by the Carolina Dramatic association. Mrs. Irene Fussler, secretary, said yesterday she believed people of Chapel Hill would enjoy the acting and singing of the North Carolina Negroes just as much as the ones in "Green Pastures."

"Heaven Bound" is a contrast to "Green Pastures" which appeared here recently. Tonight's play has the scene laid in Heaven, whereas "Green Pastures" showed "De Lawd" coming to the earth. "Green Pastures" was written and directed by white men; the Negroes were mostly northern actors; the time of the play was back in Biblical times. "Heaven Bound" was written and directed by a Negress, Viola Thomas of Shelby; the Negroes are natives of North Carolina, their singing has a plantation richness; the time of the play is the present. Not sinners and saints of Bible days but the modern "hotcha" wayfarers are presented in the play.

Funny Devil

Satan is uproariously funny, but he still manages to horrify and warn the audience that Satanic sinfulness should be avoided.

"Heaven Bound" is a pageant, a sermon, a concert, which represents the instincts, traditions, ideals and religious conceptions of modern colored people. There is a naturalness, a soul-stirring quality and a freedom of expression in the play that makes it memorable.

The singing in the play has been hailed by audiences all over the south as some of the best ever presented on the stage. On one occasion the audience demanded an encore of some of the songs, and the actors sang their spirituals in such a way that the subsequent applause rocked the theatre.

This is the first time such a play has been presented by North Carolina Negroes.

The entire exercises will be broadcast over station WPTF in Raleigh.

At the conclusion of a fifteen-minute band recital, Mayor John M. Foushee of Chapel Hill will introduce the master of ceremonies, Carl Goerch, editor of The State.

ROOSEVELT TALKS BEFORE VETERANS

Can Expect No Bonus Now; Appeals for Co-operation.

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 19.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today told America's veterans in so many words that they couldn't expect payment of the bonus at the present time.

Avoiding a direct reference, Roosevelt left no doubt in the minds of his hearers as to his meaning when he delivered an address at the dedication of the new $1,700,000 veterans' hospital here.

According to Roosevelt, the veterans already possess privileges unaccorded to others and from the employment angle they are much better off than the majority.

The President pointed out that the government has an obligation to untold thousands of underprivileged persons in the United States—slum dwellers and others.

In closing, he appealed to the war veterans to co-operate with the administration in the search for a solution to the country's problems.

University On Parade

Starting through the initiative of a few students as a simple tribute to the harmony that should exist on this campus between faculty and students, student-faculty day has now assumed the proportions of a great undertaking. The student committee responsible for the idea met last Thursday with the Welfare board and presented a program for this day, which, if approved by the faculty in meeting, will mean a unique presentation in University history. The conception behind this program is that the University itself is the common bond between students and faculty; therefore, student-faculty day should be made into an exhibit of the University and the work that it is doing. To make student-faculty day a show-place and a carnival-time for the University—that has become the new purpose of the observance if it goes into effect.

The DAILY TAR HEEL wants to see it inaugurated this year as a permanent part of the traditions of the University. To make the initial effort a success, however, requires extensive preparation, and our only hope is that it will not be entered into by either students or faculty half-heartedly or with the idea that half-made plans, on the part of either of them, will suffice for the occasion. Like a snowball rolling downhill, already plans for student-faculty day have gathered immense proportions. They will continue to do so, what with the careful working out of detail that will be necessary before the program has acquired its final polish.

The Students Have a Voice

The student council has under consideration a revision of the present honor pledge. Whereas the present honor pledge reads, "I have neither given nor received any aid on this quiz" (or examination, as the case may be), the amendment that the council is thinking over will make it run, "On my honor I have neither given nor received any aid on this quiz and have not seen any violation of the honor system."

No action has been taken as yet on the matter and for the sake of the student body's right to make its voice heard in this proposed amendment, we hope none will be taken until it has been thoroughly publicized and discussed in every corner of the campus. The DAILY TAR HEEL will do all that it can to see that the question is viewed from every possible angle.

In these columns, however, where it has the freedom of its own opinion for what seems to be a thoughtful move by the council, the student paper wishes to endorse the measure—after, however, it has explained in full what is truthful conviction.

Public Service

With the November issue, "Popular Government," heretofore a quarterly, becomes a monthly magazine, taking its place, as it states, as "a clearing house of governmental information for officials, citizens, students, and teachers throughout this state."

Here is represented the most progressive movement embracing the careful study of governmental administration ever carried out in this state. The magazine is the mouthpiece for an organization created in December, 1931, by representatives of the rank and file of public officers, private citizens, and the schools of the people of this state. This organization is known as the Institute of Government and is directed by Albert Coates, professor of law at the University.

What are its objects? They embrace study of governmental conditions in this state in order to effect more efficient administration, study of school conditions in order to co-ordinate the theory of books with the practicality of state government, study of governmental requirements so that proper training can be given to future officials.

Problems of law enforcement, tax administration, administration of justice, and accounting methods and practices are being carefully scrutinized for methods of improvement to do away with overlapping of power, mal-training, inefficiency in administration, and needless expenditure of the people's money. The purchasing agencies for governmental units, street and highway safety, and other activities are being investigated for all possible sources of amelioration or increased efficiency.

Professor Coates and his helpers are doing the people of this state an invaluable service. Not only will their efforts, if maintained, result in public savings and in the increase of efficiency in their public servants, but it will also aid in training their children and increasing the adult population's knowledge of the government which administers for them.

See You in The Pictures

If Upton "Epic" Sinclair, Democratic nominee for governor of California, succeeds in chasing the moving picture industry out of that state as he threatens to do by exorbitant taxation, we understand that Chamber of Commerce secretaries in this fair state (where it never rains and very seldom freezes) are going to make a strenuous effort to make this state the new cinema center.

At least, Louis T. Moore, Wilmington Chamber of Commerce secretary, thinks it would be a grand idea. Acting under the assumption (we guess) that none of the other 47 avaricious states gave birth to a similar idea, Mr. Moore and W. C. Denmark, executive secretary of the Cape Fear progressives, is going to set forth his ideas for the approval of the secretaries at a conference in Raleigh on October 31.

This state, according to Mr. Moore, can offer "scenic, climatic, and other advantages" for such an industry. He probably had in the back of his active mind that there is a perfectly good University "somewhere up in the western hills" available for sets for the glamorous "college life" productions with which the various cinema corporations take such delight in flooding the country.

Surely, we have all the advantages of California with a few of South Carolina's thrown in. However, we can't see Upton Sinclair, Socialist or not, driving out an industry bringing thousands of people and millions of dollars a year to the fair shores of sunny California. It may be more logical if Mr. Moore, before he faces the secretaries, would talk it over thoroughly with Denmark.

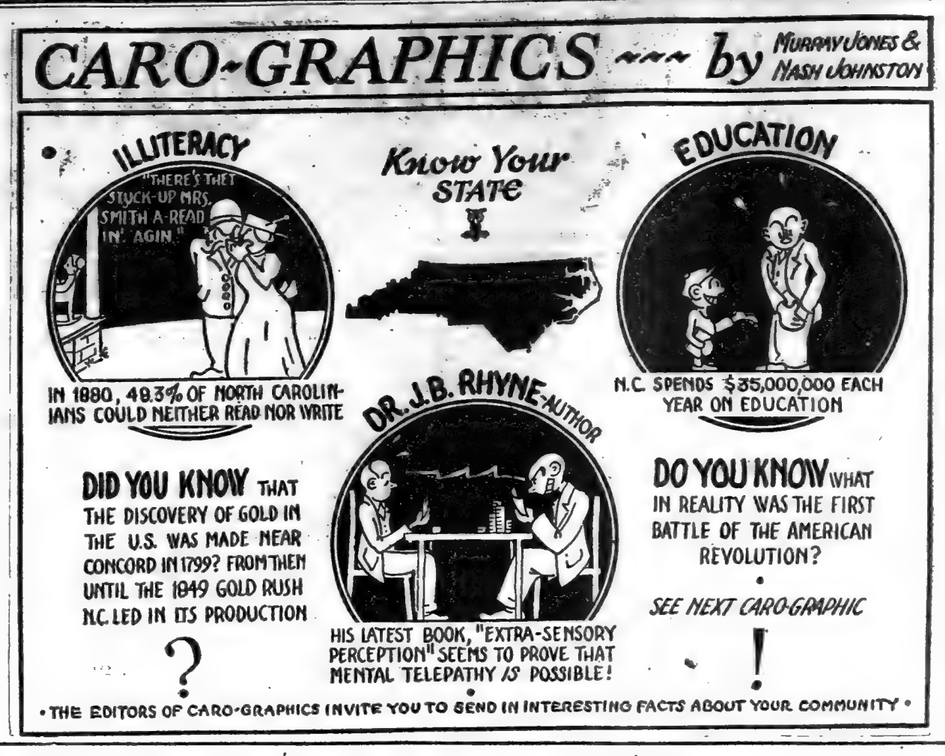
Speaking The Campus Mind

(BRIEFLY AND LEGIBLY)

Ain't No Justice?

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

Is there justice on this campus? I was talking with a boy the other night who is now working at Swain hall and has previously been enrolled on the FERA force. Now, he does not see any hope of getting placed on the FERA until after Christmas, if then.



This boy worked here for the better part of last year and was promised work this fall. However, he was denied work, not because he didn't need it but because there came to the Y. M. C. A. self-help bureau a group of needy athletes and others who had to have work in order to stay in school. They got it!

On this campus there are a number of fraternity pledges who also are among the needy enrolled at the Y. M. C. A. self-help bureau. These would-be fraternity men trod the same worn steps that my friend has wearily climbed so many times. They, too, were in search of work "to keep them in school"—and they got it.

This quarter my friend, through the advice of the dean of his school, is taking only two courses. He was promised FERA work this fall. Perhaps next quarter when he is taking four courses to make up for this deficiency he will be given work.

What is going on behind the doors of the self-help office to let such as this occur?

QUESTION MARK.

BE SURE YOUR SINS . . .

A gentleman was eating soup in a local restaurant when he discovered a fly in same. He called Jack, the black waiter, and asked for more soup. Jack took it out, and in a few minutes he returned and put a steaming toureen down in front of our man, who asked him to wait a minute. He took his spoon and fished around in the bowl a few minutes, and finally dredged out what he wanted. There on the spoon, with some vegetables and some grease, was a shiny new penny. "I put that penny in the soup that had the fly in it, Jack," said the gentleman sternly.

"Yes-suah," answered Jack, repressing a hee-haw with difficulty. "Yo' all sho'ly is smart. Ah'se been doing dat for seben y'ars, and you all is de fust to kitch me."

A DELIGHTFUL TIME WAS HAD

From the Houlton Pioneer-Times, of Houlton, Maine, comes the following social note: "At the Baptist parsonage last Wednesday was solomized the wedding of Mr. Donald Atherton, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Atherton, and Miss Dorothy Grant, daughter of Mrs. Mary Grant by the Reverend W. B. Chase."

WHO IS THIS TAUCHNITZ, ANYWAY?

On page 237 of E. M. Delafield's "Gay Life" you will find the following statement: "And Chrissie Challoner had visited three libraries and bought eight Tauchnitz volumes, of which Morgan carried six, and Patrick four."

C'EST LA VIE

From New York City, "Metropolis of Mankind," as the National Geographic Magazine rather grandly puts it, comes the reminder that it is after all, tsk-tsk, a pretty small world: "Four of us went to the Manhattan Club and heard Hal Kemp. One of the boys with us knew one of the boys in the orchestra, from Raleigh, and during the intermission invited him over. When he started playing again, they gave an inimitable rendition of "Hark the Sound," followed by "Old Davidson." Naturally, we clapped madly, thinking we would be the only ones who would. But there was an uproar. A few minutes later, the brighter lights were turned on and we saw that the place was full of boys from Davidson who had come up for the West Point game! We knew some of them already and soon met the rest. From then on, it was some party!"

EDITORIAL WE

A very dignified gentleman strolled into the office of the DAILY TAR HEEL the other day, accompanied by a tiny black dog, of what denomination or gender we have been unable to determine. At any rate, the gentleman asked if he might see the editor. "I'm sorry, sir," said the reporter, "but he isn't here just now."

"Oh, that's all right," said the gentleman as he perched himself comfortably on the edge of a desk. "We'll wait."

PEACE ON EARTH

The advertisements in Bolivia, a magazine published by the Bolivian consulate in New York "to present information dealing with all phases of Bolivian life and to provide in handy form information which is desired alike by importers and exporters" strike us as indicative of the growing spirit of brotherhood in the world. On the inside cover is a picture of a Curtiss-Wright Osprey plane. In the little magazine are advertisements for Remington, Colt, the Federal Gas Munitions, and American Armament Corporation.

HONOR-BRIGHT

Our suggestion for a new pledge for the bottom of all quiz papers is that original statement of a freshman on a quiz recently: "I have neither give nor receive pledge."

PEP RALLY

The greater part of the student body turned out for the greatest cheering demonstration of the year last night.

A giant parade led off the festivities. It started in front of the post office, marched down Franklin st., and around the block to Emerson field.

Before a huge bonfire in the center of the field, Dean R. B. House, Jack Pool, Don Jackson, Charlie Shaffer, Captain George Barclay, and the Kentucky head cheerleader spoke to the large turnout of students and visitors.

Infirmary

The following students were confined to the infirmary yesterday: W. A. Hart, Stewart Melvin, J. E. Everette, Ernest Hancock, A. Shaeffer, George Stoney, Bill Moore, J. R. Raper, C. M. Ivey, and Charles Adams.

Coach Chet Wynne of the University of Kentucky and Coach Carl Snavely of the University of North Carolina will each say a few words to the visitors.

After a few announcements have been made, the remainder of the hour will be turned over to the band.

At the dinner period, Homecoming visitors will attend various reunion luncheons about the campus.

At 2:00 o'clock blows the whistle for the kickoff in the Caroline-Kentucky football game.

Under the direction of Lester Ostrow, the University's organized cheerio section will make its first appearance. The card-flashers will have a reserved section in the center of the Carolina stands.

Between the halves of the game, the University band will put on a snappy parade with the colorful assistance of the specially chosen sponsors for the two universities and with the help of a guest drum major.

Escorts for the Kentucky sponsors at the game include: J. B. Croft, Jack Fontz, and Wm. Eversole of Kentucky and Agnew Bahnson, representing Kentucky in the interests of the University club.

Virgil Weathers, president of the Carolina student body; Jack Pool, president of the senior class; and Frank Abernathy, Jason of the Golden Fleece, will escort the Carolina sponsors.

One of the sponsors representing the Carolina team will be Miss Barclay, sister of Captain George Barclay.

The flowers for the gala occasion will be furnished by Doyle, florists of Chapel Hill and Durham.

If I can CONVINCE YOU

That you can look for the same kind of gay and thrilling entertainment you found in "The Thin Man"—that, like "It Happened One Night," this new charm picture is one of the year's surprise hits and will capture the town, you will be the first to see it and thank us for the tip-off! You'll find "Hide-Out" the most exciting merriment you've found in a picture in months.

Both Carolina and Kentucky took their last polishing workouts here yesterday afternoon in preparation for the Homecoming battle in Kenan stadium today at 2:00 o'clock.

The contest will be the first time the two clubs have met in over thirty years and dope has it that they will stack up on just about even terms. Both teams are in top shape and, judging by their peppy workouts yesterday, more than ready for the starting whistle. Bill Moore, veteran Tar Heel end, is the only man out as a result of an injury.

The Wildcats took their final drill first which was short and snappy, consisting only of exercise and going down under punts.

However, Coach Carl Snavely sent his charges through a long but light practice. The Carolina mentor touched on every phase of the game, stressing the defense against passes.

Coach Snavely was certain of his starting lineup except for one

UNC-Ky Tilt Today May Settle Battle Between Sections

Atlanta, Oct. 19.—(UP)—The North Carolina-Kentucky gridiron battle tomorrow looms as the rubber game between the two conferences to determine which will hold the most wins over the other.

It seems things are about even-steven to date. The offspring Southeastern conference has annexed four victories and the parent southern loop has won three. But the parent division has tallied 68 points to the child's 58.

Tomorrow two interconference games are to be staged. N. C. State has journeyed to Tallahassee to meet University of Florida 'Gators. The outcome of the game is a toss-up.

North Carolina is the favorite to cop honors in the Tar Heel-Colonel game in Chapel Hill and should she do the expected, that will about even things up between the two groups—at least until next Saturday.

FOOTBALL

FACTS AND GUESSES
By
Bill Anderson

Not since the days of William Tecumseh Sherman has Georgia grieved so much. Last week both Georgia University and Georgia Tech were given sound thrashings by splendid North Carolina football teams.

Carolina marched through Georgia 14-0 and left not one green blade of grass standing in Sanford stadium. An inspired Duke University eleven turned back an ambitious Georgia Tech club 20-0, chalking up sweet revenge for the Tech defeat which kept the Blue Devils from the Rose Bowl last January 1.

Today, Coach Carl Snavely's boys will be up against another fine team in Chet Wynne's fighting Kentucky Wildcats. The Kentucky Kernels boast a fine offensive machine, capable of gaining at will through the air or on the ground. The key man in their offense is "Man o' War" Johnson, triple threat back who is the only sophomore to break into the lineup of the Kentucky eleven this fall.

And except for this lad Johnson, the Kentuckians will present a veteran and seasoned club in Kenan stadium this afternoon. The line tips the scales at 185 whereas the backs weigh in at 168 pounds. In the forward wall are such stalwarts as Captain Joe Rupert, all-Southern Conference end; and "Big Bill" Jobe, gigantic tackle who weighs 227 but is the fastest of their hard-charging linemen. Then there is one "Honus" Wagner who is credited with playing rings around Freddie Crawford, Duke's all-American luminary last fall.

Watch out for "Double Naught" McMillan, the visitors' quarterback, today; he's cagey as old Renard the Fox, himself. Then "Abie" Ayers who passed the Wildcats to their 7-0 victory over Clemson. Finally, Langan Hay who averaged 45 yards with

MAYBE THEY'RE WILDCAT TAMERS

These gridsters above have all seen fire and have come through as Tar Heels. Every man is tried material. All these lettermen are scheduled to start for Coach Snavely this afternoon, with the exception of Bill Moore at end. Childers will replace Moore who is out with an injury.

Upsets Of Seeded Players Feature In Tennis Tourney

Singer and Landow Take Extra-Set Matches from Seeded Clover and Fletcher.

QUARTER FINALS THIS A.M.

No Upsets in Freshman Ranks As De Gray Looms as Likely Champion.

The campus tennis championships moved into the quarter final rounds yesterday with two seeded stars falling by the wayside as other ranking players mowed down their various opponents in short order.

Morty Singer, already famed as an upsetter, moved his huge frame about the court with sufficient speed to top Bill Clover, in a long two hour struggle. Singer, aided by his terrific first service, kept pace with Clover through two extra sets, and then after appearing beaten in the final set, he raised his game to a new height and finished strongly to win at 6-3. Clover was seeded sixth.

Seeded Man Upset

Another extra set affair witnessed Irv Landow drop the fifth seeded star from the running, when he downed Floyd Fletcher 6-3, 8-10, 6-3. The match was well played and Landow emerged the victor due to his supperior steadiness and consistency.

HARRIERS GET SET FOR STATE MEET

Ranson Runners Look Good on Three Mile Run; Show Desired Improvement.

The Ranson hill and dalers took their first real tough mass workout yesterday over the three mile freshman course in preparation for the race with the runners of N. C. State College here next Saturday.

The time which was turned in for the run was much better than that for the same distance covered last week, and shows the desired improvement of the early season training. The squad displays all signs of being the strongest cross country team Coach Ranson has had in years.

Three Tie for First

Practically the whole team competed in the trial run with Graham Gammon, Ed Waldrop, and Marvin Allen finishing in first place for a three-way tie. Bob Gardiner came in not far behind for second and Louis Conte crossed the line in third, not far ahead of Jack Bowers. Aderholt and Lynch followed.

Captain Harry Williamson, Ed McRae, and Haywood Curlee were not in the trial mass run but took a hard workout also.

Three Tag Teams Take Second Win On Mural Grid

A. T. O., S. A. E., and "Y" Get Second Victory in Muraldom.

The A. T. O., S. A. E., and the Y. M. C. A. grid teams all came through with triumphs in yesterday's play in the intramural tag football competition to remain in the select circle of the undefeated. St. Anthony came through with a win in the fourth contest, and the Theta Chi-Phi Sigma Kappa game was postponed.

After being held to a lone tally by Jack Pool in the opening half, the "Y" team came back strong to push three more touchdowns over and gain a 24-0 victory over Old East. Two beautiful passes from Pool to

YEARLINGS TAKE LIGHT WORKOUT FOR STATE GAME

Only Signal and Dummy Practice Yesterday; First String Team Plays Tag Game.

BATTLE IN GREENSBORO

The freshman gridsters went through an uneventful day at Emerson field yesterday afternoon, practicing the basic fundamental plays of the Snavely system in a short but snappy drill.

The squad split up into four elevens, two of which romped through their plays, running the pigskin up and down the gridiron, while the remaining two aggregations indulged in a somewhat playful but nevertheless helpful game of touch, which they used as a means of perfecting their aerial attack.

Tom Burnette completed many passes, throwing them with an uncanny accuracy into the arms of "Speedy" Henderson, who showed a remarkable ability in eluding the tackler and racing free from his pursuers.

This group of yearlings displayed an expert piece of precision work in executing their prize forward-lateral pass play, the ball going from halfback Burnette over the line of scrimmage to the waiting end who in turn relays it to halfback Henderson coming wide around end. This play scored against the Wake Forest freshmen and looks to be a dangerous offensive threat when the Tar Babies meet the N. C. State Wolfiets at Greensboro this coming Friday.

The entire squad ran through a dummy drill in an effort to perfect their blocking. The first string forward wall, composed of Kenney, Juliper, Ax, Avery, Gatus, Maffitt, and Bershak, finally snapped out of their lethargy and swept the stuffed opposition aside as if their very lives depended on it.

Two Trained Toes

Today two real punters meet. The Tar Heel punt artist with the educated toe is Charlie Shaffer who averaged 43 yards for the three games this season.

The kicking Colonel is Bert Johnson, who incidentally is Chet Wynne's triple-threat backfield star. "Man o' War," as he is called, holds some kind of a record for the number of kicks in one game. Against W. and L. he punted the muddy pigskin exactly 39 times!

Old Wagon Route Recalls Passage Of Famed General

The celebration at Yorktown this week of the 153rd anniversary of the surrender of Cornwallis, brings to mind the legend that the famous British general passed within several miles of where Chapel Hill now stands. This is a fact little known now, but most of the older residents of this village recall the story that Cornwallis came close to crossing the site of the University.

Just on the other side of Carrboro, one can see the sunken wagon road which was cut through the wilderness by Cornwallis and his redcoats when the University was nothing more than an idea in the back of General Davie's head.

In Fear of Rebels

Cornwallis, making his memorable trip through the southern colonies, was on his way from the state capital at Hillsboro to the port of Wilmington. Legend has it that Cornwallis had to keep part of his men on guard constantly while the others hacked a way through the wilderness because of the ambushes of the rebel farmers. Several skirmishes occurred on this part of the road, and the British marched in terror of their unseen foes. The general and his men deviated from their route from time to time to pillage and plunder the farms along the way.

The old road lies to the west of the town of Chapel Hill on the other side of what is now the village of Carrboro. Now it is a washed-out, narrow wagon road, in use only by the farmers of the neighborhood.

Haunted

For many years after the Revolution, the old road was still in use as the only road from Pittsboro to the capital at Hillsboro. Now the farmers who use it for a wagon trail point it out to strangers with pride, referring to it as "Cornwallis' Road." The farms along the way are among the oldest in the state, and they have in many cases the descendants of colonists living on their ancestral farms.

NEGROES SHOUT "AMEN, BROTHER"

in a way that seemed to inspire them to further shouting. Finally, they fell back in their seats exhausted.

After more preaching and reading from the "Holy Book," the preacher called on the congregation to give all the money they could. He appointed two of the brethren to come forward and change money for the givers, and he told the people to "rise from yo' seats so you can git to yo' pocketbooks." The congregation marched up one by one, and made their contributions with loud "clinks" that could be heard all over the church.

Six Cents

After he made a count, the preacher wanted "six cents more," and called on "our white frens to help us." The visiting students then went up from the back of the church, and made contributions amid a chorus of "May de Lord bless you!" "Praise to de Lord!", and "Amen!"

When the collections had been made, things seemed to be about over. The preacher got them all to promise to "git the baptism," and then the meeting closed with a fervent benediction, with the usual "Amens." As soon as the last words had been said, the crowd started pushing out, and with much talking and jostling, homeward bound, filled with "dat good old-time religion."

DECISION ON FETE GOES TO FACULTY

Student-Faculty Day Decision Is Referred to Faculty Meeting.

The faculty advisory committee, meeting in the office of Administrative Dean R. B. House Thursday night, decided to refer the matter of a Student-Faculty day to a regular faculty meeting for its consideration.

The faculty will consider the question at a special meeting Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock, in Bingham hall.

Plans Unaltered

The committee did not alter the plans for the proposed jamboree as approved by the Student Welfare board. Faculty action on these plans will be final.

November 7 was selected by the welfare board as the only available date in the fall quarter for Student-Faculty day.

position, left halfback. Both Don Jackson, veteran passer, and Slippery Dick Dashiell, sophomore jackrabbitt, are in first class condition for the first time this season. Regardless of who gets the call to start, both will see plenty of action.

Odell Childers, famous as a sprinter, will replace Moore at right end in the first line. Childers played an excellent game against Georgia last week and has shown fine form in practice all this week.

Evenly Matched

According to past records the two contenders are as evenly matched as they can possibly be. Both were poor clubs last season but have come out strongly under new coaches this year.

Chet Wynne, former Auburn mentor, took over the football duties at Kentucky, while Carl Snavely moved from Bucknell to Carolina. Their records so far are the same, two won and one lost.

The Wildcats' only setback came in the first contest of the year when they went down in the mud before Washington and Lee, 7-0, after a blocked punt. Since then the Colonels have turned in a couple of shutouts, running over Cincinnati, 27-0, and last week defeating Clemson, 7-0.

Both are excellent defensive outfits as shown by their scores. Coach Snavely fears the Kentucky passing attack more than anything and has drilled his men all week for defense against this weapon. However, the Colonels also have some nice steppers in "Man 'O War" Johnson, triple-threater, Bo McMillian, and Bob Prichard.

Both clubs have all-star captains: Captain Joe Rupert, Wildcat end, making all-Southeastern last year, while Captain George Barclay, Carolina's jack-of-all-trades, was easy choice for all-Southern.

The Kentucky line will also feature two fine tackles in "Honus" Wagner, who outplayed Crawford, and "Big Bill" Jobe, 230-pounder. Besides Barclay, Jim Tatum and Eddie Kahn, seniors, are the biggest guns in the Carolina line.

his punts on a sloppy field.

The Carolina club performed brilliantly last week-end. Those stand-by stars: Captain Barclay, Jim Tatum, Ed Kahn, and Tom Evins. Two men came through in fine shape as reserves: Paul Pendergraft and Odell Childers. These men were instrumental in making such a fine stand against the Georgia Bulldogs on the one yard line.

Speaking of the Tar Heel defense. It was a surprise to the Georgia scouts. They were the men who went back home with the report: "Carolina has no defense — absolutely nil." The experts were Shivar and Smith, both all-American ends.

Now for the southern football games and the pickings: Carolina over Kentucky; Alabama over Tennessee; Maryland over V. P. I.; Tulane over Georgia; Vandy over Auburn; Dartmouth over Virginia; Rice over Creighton; Michigan over Georgia Tech; Princeton over W. & L.; Army over Sewanee; Furman over Mercer; L. S. U. over Arkansas; Duke over Davidson; Florida over N. C. State; Richmond over V. M. I.; and Mississippi A. & M. over Howard.

cult time in defeating Bill Harrison, but accomplished it in two hard sets, and will engage Sid Weinstein in the quarter final. Weinstein easily swept through Corwith and is expected to give the highly ranked Whitaker a great deal of competition when they match shots.

Archie Henderson was the other seeded upperclassman to advance, doing so at the expense of Charlie Poe and is now to combat Singer in another interesting contest.

Landow will meet Johnny Dowd and Byron Abels will engage the winner of the Stein-Gold match in the remaining two quarter final matches.

Freshman Division

The freshman contests went as expected with the four seeded men entering the round of eight with little difficulty. Eddie De Gray drove his way through Johnny Yeomans in two straight sets, and is now paired with Seymore Fast.

Ray Bartelman and Gene Robinson joined De Gray and Foreman with impressive victories over Hines and Outlaw respectively. Robinson, seeded second, turned in love sets in his victory, and is expected to defeat Elwell in his next appearance. Foreman encounters Stewart Parker, who has made a fine showing in the tourney with his three wins.

It appears that De Gray has had two serious obstacles removed from his path with the inability of Frankie Rericha and Ramsey Potts to compete. However, many a threat faces him and many are keeping their eyes on him to see if he can fulfill expectations. Abels will also have trouble in winning his division with many a skilled racqueteer gunning for his scalp.

All players are requested to play their matches this morning if possible. The results of yesterday's play:

Upperclassmen. First round: Stein over Kirsch 6-2, 6-3; Corwith over Frank by default. Second round: Landow over Fletcher 6-3, 8-10, 6-3; Whitaker over Harrison 6-3, 9-7; Henderson over Poe 6-4, 6-2; Singer over Clover 7-5, 6-8, 6-3; Weinstein over Corwith 6-1, 6-1; Dowd over Brown 6-2, 6-3.

Freshmen. First round: Parker over Henggi 6-0, 6-1. Second round: De Gray over Yeomans 6-0, 6-3; Fast over Van Hecke 6-1, 6-2; Bartelman over Hines 6-2, 6-2; Robinson over Outlaw 6-0, 6-0; Elwell over Dalton 6-2, 6-2; Parker over Ellison 6-0, 6-2.

Pool and Weathers Will Speak at Duke

In continuation of the efforts of student leaders to promote good will and friendly co-operation between the student bodies of Carolina and Duke, Virgil Weathers and Jack Pool, presidents respectively of the student body and senior class, will address the Duke freshman assembly Saturday, October 27.

The visit by these representatives of Carolina is in reciprocation of a similar visit by Bill Burke, president of the student body at Duke, and Don McNeal, president of the senior class of that school.

Three Tag Teams Take Second Win

Daniel, and another toss from Pool to Yandell accounted for the last trio of scores.

A long pass from Blanton to Spencer in the dying minutes of the game accounted for a 7-0 victory for A. T. O. over Sigma Chi. Blanton added the extra point on an end run. Both teams played fine defensive ball in the first half, with the victors finally making four first downs while holding their opponents to none.

S. A. E. uncorked a fine passing attack in its game with Chi Phi to come out on the long end of a 19-0 score, after being in the van 13-0 at half time. The winners gained four first downs and all the scores on passes from the hands of Harris and Allen, who also aided in the scoring with a touchdown and an extra point respectively. F. Bahnson and Freeman went over for the other tallies.

With Phil Hammer pushing over a touchdown and Jennings being successful on a drop kick attempt for the extra point, St. Anthony came into its own to defeat Kappa Sigma in a well played contest. The winners outgained the opposition four to three in first downs.

Bolivia Magazine Describes Latest American Arms In Attractive Terms

By PETE IVEY

"There will be wars and rumors of wars," and the magazine, Bolivia, to be found in the library, abounds in both.

Containing advertisements of American munition makers, Bolivia presents everything from tear gas to dirigible bombs in its advertising columns, and many of the most readable features of the magazine concern the Chaco War between Bolivia and Paraguay.

On the inside front cover is an advertisement of the Curtiss-Wright Airplane Export Company. A picture of the latest Curtiss-Wright "Osprey" military plane appears. Beneath it is the following caption: "A considerable quantity of these planes are being used in the air forces of a number of Latin-American countries." The ad continues in rapturous recitation of the manouverability of the plane and its virtues for fighting.

Elsewhere, under the display caption, "Federal Gas Munitions," occurs a list of war implements. These include gas weapons, bullet-proof vests, armour plate shields, sub-machine guns, gas masks, aerial bombs, mortars, and smoke screen apparatus. Under this is the inviting sentence, "Write for descriptive catalogue."

Remington rifles and Colt automatic pistols are advertised as handy and inexpensive.

The American Armament Corporation of America, located in New York City, advertised its wares in the following way: "We are manufacturers and purveyors of aerial bombs, grenades, field, naval, anti-aircraft and airplane guns. Artillery ammunition of the most advanced designs for all types of American and European guns, rifles, machine guns and war vessels."

'Y' TO CONSIDER CURES FOR WAR

Professors Woodhouse and Pegg To Talk on Militarism and Nationalism Tomorrow.

Professors E. J. Woodhouse and Carl H. Pegg will continue the series of Y. M. C. A. discussions on war and peace at the sophomore and junior-senior cabinet meetings tomorrow night at 7:15 o'clock in the "Y" building, taking up cures for armed conflicts.

Professor Woodhouse will lead the discussion in the sophomore group on "Defense by Militarism," and Dr. Pegg will discuss "Nationalism: Is is the Way Out," in the junior-senior group.

Joint Supper

A brief pause will be made in the war and peace discussions October 29, when a joint outdoor meeting is scheduled at which members of "Y" groups from the Woman's college and State college will be invited.

This convocation will be the first Greater University of North Carolina "Y" meeting this year, but plans are being made to follow up the idea with additional sessions of this type.

Following the break in the series, the war and peace meetings will continue with "Is Socialism a Cure for War," on November 5. Dean Elbert Russell of Duke University will speak on the Monday following Armistice Day on "Should Christians Support War."

The remainder of the fall quarter meetings will be on disarmament, armed intervention, and international co-operation.

YACKETY YACK MEN

The student activities division of the Yackety Yack will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, it was announced yesterday.

The following are requested to be present: Dave Thorpe, Bob Howison, Bryan Caldwell, T. Daniel, W. C. Blackmore, Frank Justice, and Margaret McCauley.

KIDNAPER FACES ORDEAL CALMLY

Hauptmann Jokes with Guards While Awaiting Trial for Murder in New Jersey.

Flemington, N. J., Oct. 20.—(UP)—Housed in a bare cell on the second floor of Flemington's mob-proof jail, Hauptmann tonight calmly awaited arraignment on charges of murdering and kidnaping the Lindbergh baby.

The alien carpenter, who was brought here last night a few hours after his fight against extradition met a final defeat, will probably be arraigned Monday, it was indicated.

Appeal Debated

Hauptmann's appeal over Bronx Justice Hammer's refusal to grant a writ of habeas corpus after Governor Lehman had signed the extradition papers was denied by the appellate division of the New York supreme court last night.

Appearing less perturbed than at any time since his arrest in New York a month ago on charges of extortion in connection with the Lindbergh case, Hauptmann joked with his guards, ate and slept, and seemed ready for the ordeal which may end in the electric chair.

DUKE PROFESSOR TO TALK TONIGHT

Dr. Elbert Russell to Speak Here At Union Service.

Dr. Elbert Russell, dean of the school of religion at Duke University, will speak at the Methodist church tonight at 8:00 o'clock on "What My Religion Means to Me."

This is the beginning of a series of six special Sunday night services at the Methodist church. The church will invite a theologian, a scientist, a business man, a Catholic, a Negro, and a Jew to speak at these services on this same subject, "What My Religion Means to Me."

These programs will be union services. They are sponsored by the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian churches of Chapel Hill.

There will be a discussion period at the close of the address each Sunday night.

The public is cordially invited to these special services.

Former Playmakers Are Prominent In Broadway And "The Provinces"

The house lights dim, the music fades out from a crash to a whine, the audience stops rustling and murmuring—it is the moment before the curtain goes up. This drama within a drama is enacted hundreds of times every night all over the country—and often the curtain goes up on people who got their dramatic training in Chapel Hill with the Carolina Playmakers.

Sheppard Strudwick, whose work was reviewed in a recent DAILY TAR HEEL article, heads the list. He, however, is not the only home-grown actor playing leads at present. Bill Clifford, who left two years ago, is playing leads in Claire Tree Major's company. At present, he's in "Under the Lilacs."

Our Little Eva

Eugenia Rawls, who rose to fame here as "Little Eva" in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," has travelled with a children's Theatre company, also sent out by Claire Tree Major. During the past summer, she played on one of the show boats in New York harbor, in "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." Elizabeth Farrar, former Playmaker, is now playing in "A Ship Comes In," at the Longacre Theatre, New York City.

The roving instinct has smitten many a Playmaker. Whit Bissell, a versatile actor when here in school, is now touring with Eva Le Gallienne in "Alice in Wonderland." This summer he was with Late and Rollings company at Bar Harbor, Maine. Helen Dortch, chiefly remembered for her execrable puns and excellent plays, is now touring with the Jitney Players, as is T. P. Harrison, once a doughty actor and technician. Robert Proctor and Marion Tatum have both heeded the call of the open road, and are touring with Madame Borgny Hammer's Norwegian Ibsen company.

The former Playmakers do not

Murchison Visits Chapel Hill Over Week-end

"Strictly Pleasure Trip," He Says; Leaves Tomorrow.

Dr. Claudus T. Murchison, director of the federal bureau of foreign and domestic commerce and formerly a member of the University commerce school faculty, is a visitor in Chapel Hill this week-end.

Dr. Murchison arrived from Washington Friday night and attended the Carolina-Kentucky Homecoming game yesterday. "Here on no official business," he said. "Simply to have a good time this week-end."

The former economics professor will, however, go to Durham tomorrow where he will address the Rotary club on reciprocal tariff agreements at a luncheon. He plans to return to his duties in Washington tomorrow afternoon.

JURY CHARGES 3 STOLL KIDNAPERS

Mrs. Stoll's Testimony Brings Speedy Indictment by Federal Grand Jury.

Louisville, Oct. 20.—(UP) — A special Federal grand jury today indicted three persons in connection with the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll after hearing the testimonies of Mrs. Stoll and others involved in the crime.

Mrs. Robinson, Jr., and Robinson, Sr., who were indicted along with Mrs. Robinson's husband, are now held in jail here.

Quick Action

The jury acted quickly after Mrs. Stoll testified for more than a half-hour as to the treatment she received at the hands of her abductors.

This was the first public appearance that the young Louisville society matron has made since she was returned home.

Meanwhile Robinson himself is the subject of extensive manhunt as Federal and state authorities keep a close watch on the Canadian border as numerous reports indicate that the insane kidnaper has turned his flight northward.

N. C. Leaders Welcome Alumni and Kentucky

Governor and Other Notables Address Crowd of 2,000 in Franklin Street.

With a hearty welcome to Carolina's alumni, students, and friends, Governor John C. B. Ehringhaus, delivering the principal address to an assembled throng of 2,000 gathered on the main street of Chapel Hill, officially opened Homecoming Day exercises here yesterday morning.

The governor opened by complimenting the cheering of the students, who had just completed a series of "spell Carolina" and "spell Kentucky" yells.

Finds Carolina Unchanged

"In many ways," said the governor, "Carolina is the same. But when I was a student here we joined in giving the new students a rousing welcome, which usually lasted from sundown of their first day till the following morning. The faculty had a polite word for it. They called it hazing. But with the rise of Archibald Henderson and the advent of polysyllabic words over monosyllabic words, hazing was changed to 'helping freshmen get oriented.'

"Your president will probably tell you that the reason for his late arrival today was the meeting that he attended in Asheville," said the governor adding a touch of humor, "but there is no doubt in my mind that he was telling the story of Mrs. Spencer's bell-ringing to the football team.

Welcomes Alumni

"All we can say to you," said the governor in conclusion, "is that we looked for your coming to Chapel Hill, and we welcome you."

Governor Ehringhaus, who was editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL in 1901, the year of his graduation from the University, was co-author of Carolina's Alma Mater song, "Hark the Sound."

Major L. P. McLenden, manager of the Carolina football team on 1912, and former mayor of Chapel Hill, was the first speaker introduced by Master of Ceremonies Carl Goerch. He recalled how his old Negro servant, Bill Craig, who worked for him during his stay here, describes the police by saying: "Mr. Mayor, I thinks the law is just too darn scrutinizing.

"Chapel Hill," said Major McLenden, "is as old as the oldest state University, and as young as its freshman class. Today all of us will be rejuvenated, some in spirit, some with spirits. But all of us will feel at home."

House Speaks

Executive Dean R. B. House spoke for the University in "saluting her sister institution in Greensboro and her brother institution in Raleigh on this Homecoming Day."

Speaking for the student body of Carolina, Virgil Weathers of Shelby, president of the student body and outstanding southern athlete, extended an official welcome to the visitors in Chapel Hill.

Lieutenant-Governor Sandy Graham, graduate of 1912, and a trustee of the University, also addressed the group.

Following the governor's greeting, President Frank Gra-

PARAGRAPHICS

The bowling league, we hear remarked, is right down our alley, even if it doesn't strike anybody else that way.

And the way it ended up Friday night, that oil dispensed in front of the post office was finally poured on troubled rooters.

Popular news magazine reports that Dr. Connor was archivist of the state from 1913 to 1921 when facts in the case show that he served from 1903 to 1921. Just goes to show, maybe, that Time changes all things.

Carolina's Recognition

A distinct tribute to the Carolina football team and to Coach Snavely was the fact that Carl Goerch's The State carried a cover picture of the popular mentor last week and also a write-up of Captain George Barclay that mentioned him, as usual, as all-American material. This is only one of a number of compliments handed out by the press to Carolina's captain for 1934. Besides the regular praise of the coach of every team that he has played against, Barclay was recently called by the United Press a "one-man" football team in himself. Assuming this to be justly exuberant praise, but not forgetting the fact that it takes ten others well-co-ordinated, determined players to make a football team, the DAILY TAR HEEL nevertheless shares the pride of the University in these tributes to its football team. As for Coach Snavely, the guiding hand behind the scenes, his instantaneous success with the students here is proof enough that he is on the way to a well-deserved popularity in the state.

A Jolly Time

It was an inspiring time on old Franklin street yesterday morning with the Governor, the Lieutenant-Governor, the mayor, the coach, the president of the University, and state notables on hand to address a crowd of two thousand.

Perhaps the "school spirit" idea of Homecoming Day has been grossly exaggerated or, at least, highly over-publicized. But no student spectator at yesterday morning's ceremonies could help but feel that the alumni who spoke of their love for the University were sincere and steadfast.

There were no political implications in any of the speaker's addresses, there were no inferences of "talking shop." It was a thorough University program. Everybody was smiling and happy, not a little fortified in this respect by Mr. Goerch's and Major McLendon's good-natured wisecracks.

Homecoming Day represented the co-operation of every faction. It was a rousing success.

Change and Re-affirmation

There are a number of reasons why the contemplated amendment to the honor pledge is a good thing, and at the same time there is no reason that has struck us yet as being sufficient to make it undesirable.

In the first place, the change from "I have neither given nor received aid" to "On my honor I have neither given nor received aid nor observed any violation of the honor system," is not a change in the strictest sense of the word. It is purely a re-affirmation of the code that every student on this campus is supposed to conduct himself by on all quizzes and examinations. The essence of the honor system is this two-fold responsibility not only to refrain from violating the honor system, but to protect it from anyone else's doing so. Why this idea has not been written into the Carolina honor pledge before now, is beyond our comprehension. It should be a part of the pledge if for no other than the reason that it will serve as a continuous reminder of this fact.

Furthermore, the amended pledge would serve to commemorate the revival of the honor system that has taken place last year and this year. Proof of this has already been forthcoming in the student council's report on cases tried last year for violation of the honor system. These numbered more last year than year before last by an overwhelming majority, which shows that offenders against one of Carolina's most vital principles are rapidly being routed out.

A change, we believe, is imminent and would necessarily be for the best. Campus discussion of the problem, though, will do much to aid the student council in its decision.

Port of The State

The port of the city of Wilmington has never been the state's commercial outlet, even though a fair amount of business from the southeastern section of the state has been transacted utilizing the Cape Fear's facilities. The reason for this non-patronage on the part of the state's larger industrial interests has not been the fact that Wilmington is located a hundred-odd miles down the sand belt but because traffic freight rates have been prohibitory for North Carolina industries.

But the city of Wilmington does not believe that it costs more for the state to use the shipping facilities of the Cape Fear. On the 23rd of this month, its citizens will be the hosts to state industrialists in order to show them that savings can be effected by the use of North Carolina's only port of any size. An extensive program has been planned by which the many advantages of patronizing the Cape Fear can be displayed to the curious eyes of those whose patronage is desired.

Early history shows that the inaccessibility of the port from the upper state, cheaper rates via Charleston and Norfolk, and dangerous shoals at the mouth of the Cape Fear have caused its non-importance. But under present day conditions these objections have been materially disallowed, what with the new 30-foot channel, the railroad facilities, and the Wilmington docking arrangements. One of the greatest commercial advances this state could ever make would be the complete patronage by the state of the port of Wilmington.

Important Question

When the State Eugenics board Friday approved plans for the sterilization of 21 persons, it set a new record for this state. Prior to that time, the largest number of sterilizations authorized by the board at a single sitting was nine.

Under the 1933 sterilization law, we read that 75 operations have been authorized and 42 have been performed. These numbers do not indicate, to us at least, a particularly large activity along this function in a state where the law should eventually become one of the most important statutes in effect. But it does indicate that the trend is toward a betterment of the social conditions in which non-sterilization of the afflicted has obviously caused tremendous degradation.

Sterilization is one of the most pressing problems of the day, not only in face of the conditions which it is purported to ameliorate but also in the actual administrative difficulties attending its application.

Speaking The Campus Mind

(BRIEFLY AND LEGIBLY)

You're Another

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

For a long time we have known that certain indiscretions are overheard by those who pass by our dormitories during all hours of the day. At first we explained these as slips of the tongue, little breaks that even Carolina gentlemen are likely to make. "Boys will be boys," we've said, especially in their quarters after the strenuous mental exertion of the class rooms.

But an incident Wednesday night has convinced me that certain inhabitants of the dormitories on the upper quadrangle are giving their Alma Mater one of the blackest eyes she has ever had. For over a week certain objectionable residents of Manly and Grimes dorms have been indulging in little battles of obscenity. The usual procedure for these tilts has been for one dormitory resident to stick his head out the window and announce in a voice well above a whisper that all the guys across the way are so-and-so. This, I say, is the opening line. In righteous indignation the gentlemen accused rise to their own defense and, very casually, call their accusers a litter of male puppies. And thus it continues until everyone, having let off his surplus steam, is ready to settle back and tell the freshman next door how he bulled through that history course and "Cheez, guy, but I wish I was back in Joisey!"

So it was on Wednesday night that one of these contests of wit came to pass while the mother and sister of one of the dormitory residents were waiting for him out between Manly and Grimes. These two, who may or may not have been seen by the inhabitants of the dormitories, were the unwilling witnesses of the most disgusting incident of many years.

Now don't misunderstand me. These little mudslinging episodes can be attributed to the presence of certain elements on our campus, and may even be forgiven as long as no one overhears them. In fact, if we were as far from civilization as General Davie intended us to be when he founded this school, then we could continue to pose as "Carolina gentlemen" and yet drop our company manners at times. But we are no longer off in the woods. People are constantly passing our dormitories—the ones up on the campus and those in the quadrangles. And what they think of us for such misconduct no one can say.

JIM DANIEL.

THETA KAPPA NU HOLDS BANQUET; BROOKS TALKS

N. C. Gamma chapter of Theta Kappa Nu held its annual pledge banquet Friday evening at the Carolina Inn.

Dr. Lee M. Brooks, faculty adviser, cited interesting incidents of his visit to the British Isles in a short after-dinner talk. Dean Francis F. Bradshaw gave his views on the future of fraternities.

confine their activity to acting. Paul Green, fresh from triumphs in Hollywood, has recently gone to Broadway to witness the opening of his new play, "Roll, Sweet Chariot." Witnessing this play, Bernard Sobel, of the New York Daily Mirror, says: "I would not under any circumstances have missed 'Roll, Sweet Chariot.' And I hope you won't." Sheppard Strudwick, in a letter to Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, says: "It is beautiful, one of the finest things ever done that I've seen."

Al Kerr, whose play, "Sad Words to Gay Music," was produced in the spring of 1933 by the Carolina Playmakers, is at present engaged in completing the dramatization of "The Traipsin' Woman," a novel by Jean Thomas. It is a play of the Kentucky mountain peoples, and is, according to Kerr, a "perfect screech."

Frederica Frederick, one of the most prolific of student playwrights of recent years, is now in Pennsylvania with a stock company, writing plays and acting in them.

Foster Fitz-Simmons has the distinction of being the only representative of the Playmakers in the field of the dance. Students who were here last year will remember his work at Phoebe Barr's recitals. At the present, he is a member of Ted Shawn's Male Dancing Troupe.

Directors are also few. Lee Elmore, the best-known, is in Chicago, directing Margaret Anglin's company in Ivor Novello's English comedy, "Fresh Fields," which ran last winter in London. Elmore has directed many leading Broadway stars.

In addition to these outstanding people in the theatrical world, many ex-Playmakers are now playing minor roles throughout the country.

"Y" Officials at Meeting

J. D. Winslow, president of the University Y. M. C. A., and Harry F. Comer, general secretary, will attend an executive committee meeting of all the state Y. M. C. A.'s and Y. W. C. A.'s in Greensboro this morning.

ham welcomed the visitors from Kentucky. "As I came down through the hills of the western part of this state this morning," said President Graham, "I thought of that North Carolina boy who opened the trail across the mountains into Kentucky and how this state joined with her sister state, Virginia, in the settlement of Kentucky."

Coach Carl Snavely told the audience that they could expect to see a fighting Carolina team in the afternoon game.

Other notables who made short addresses at the exercises were: Will Carr, mayor of Durham; R. A. Eubanks, postmaster of Chapel Hill; George Stevens of Asheville, former president of the University Y. M. C. A.; J. Sprunt Hill, and Zeb Council, former mayor of Chapel Hill.

Chemistry Department Adds New Professor

Dr. C. W. Borgman, specialist in corrosion of metals, has been made assistant professor in the department of chemical engineering, announced Dr. White yesterday.

Dr. Borgman received his B.S. degree from the University of Colorado in 1927. He received his Ch.E degree from the same University in 1931.

He received his doctor's degree from Cambridge University, England, and since then has been connected with Technical high school, Trondheim, Norway, and Metallographical Institute, Stockholm, Sweden. It was from the latter place that Dr. Borgman came here.

TAR HEELS WIN BATTLE FROM KENTUCKY, 6-0

Dick Buck Counts On Pass From Dashiell; Shaffer And Johnson Are Stars

Wildcats Drive to Five Yard Line But Fail To Get Score.

Dick Buck, Tar Heel sophomore end, leaped high into the air to take a 25-yard pass from "Slippery Dick" Dashiell, sophomore halfback, and then raced 23 yards for the only score in a great football battle between Carolina and Kentucky in Kenan stadium yesterday.

The final score of the Homecoming game was Carolina 6, Kentucky 0, both teams failing to score after driving within the 10-yard lines. About 13,000 fans witnessed the contest.

Score in First

The lone tally came just before the first quarter ended on a play which netted 48 yards. The Tar Heels had done most of the gaining during the first part of the period and after an exchange of punts took the ball on their own 48-yard line. Charlie Shaffer on a reverse slipped through the line for 4 yards and Dashiell failed to gain.

Standing in punt formation Dashiell stepped back and then let loose a beautiful, well-timed heave straight down the field. Buck was off on the snap of the ball; he raced past McMillan the Wildcat safety man, took the ball on the very tips of his fingers without slowing up, and raced across the goal line with two men at his heels.

Babe Daniel, center, tried to make the extra point from place-

Hutchins Only Injury

Jim Hutchins, big sophomore fullback, was the only Tar Heel who received injury at Kenan yesterday. Hutchins had to be removed from the game during the first quarter as a result of some torn muscles in one of his hips. However, it is believed that the sophomore star will be in good enough condition to go against State here next Saturday.

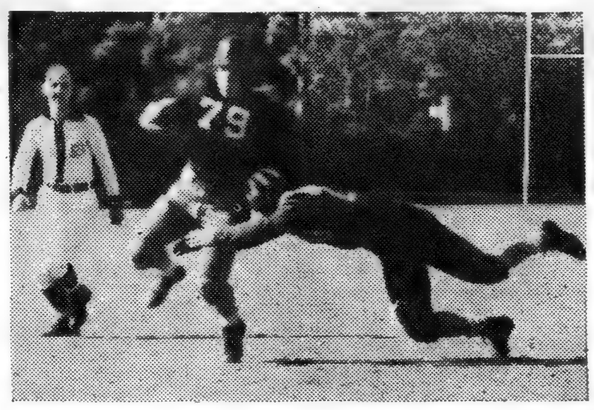
DEVILS TRIUMPH OVER WILDCATS WITH EASE, 20-0

Cornelius, Parker, and Whitner Score Touchdowns; Davidson Gets to 7-Yard Line.

DUKE IS STILL UNBEATEN

Scoring with ease in the first, second, and fourth periods, Duke kept its undefeated record intact as it swept through the Davidson Wildcats in Durham yesterday, 20-0. About 6,000 fans watched the battle.

The opening tally came midway in the first period as Corky Cornelius dashed around left end for five yards following a 50-yard drive. Cornelius also kicked the extra point.



The Blue Devils counted again just before the first half ended as a result of an intercepted pass by Alexander. The Duke fullback caught the ball on Davidson's 45 and ran it back to the 12. Cornelius gained a yard and Alexander got 3 more. Then Parker went around right end for the tally. Cornelius again booted the extra point.

Eighty-Yard Drive

After Duke's second team had battled the Wildcats on even terms throughout the third period, Coach Wade sent back most of the first string and it soon began a drive from its own 20 which netted the final marker.

DOWD ADVANCES IN NET TOURNEY

Robinson and Foreman, Freshmen, Also Win to Go Into Semi-Final Play.

Only three matches were completed in tennis tournament play before the invasion of the Kentucky Colonels yesterday afternoon, but these contests produced sparkling and hard fought tennis from start to finish.

Johnny Dowd and Irv Landow were the only upperclassmen to see action and they put on an exhibition of brilliant shots. Landow started like a horse on fire and after dropping the first game at love went on to win six consecutive games for the set. Dowd gradually got his shots under control and they waged long and bitterly contested volleys throughout the remaining two sets which Dowd took by 6-4 scores.

Seeded Frosh Advance

The other two matches saw two seeded freshmen advance into the semi-final round, but only after Gene Robinson had tottered on the verge of defeat at the hands of the up and coming Al Elwell. Johnny Foreman again used his offensive game in battering Stewart Parker out of the tournament. Parker failed to slow up Johnny and went down by 6-1 scores in both sets.

Elwell, in his match against the second seeded Robinson, had Robinson on the defensive at the start of their match, and ran through an easy set, dropping but one game. Robinson came back as strongly, and drove through to a 6-2 set, knotting the count. The final set was a thrilling fight from start to finish, but Robinson had just a little more of what was needed and finally won out in an extra game set.

The tournament has gone along smoothly, both divisions being brought to the quarter finals after three days of play. If the tourney continues at the same rate a champion will be crowned within a few days. Eddy De Gray has an opportunity of establishing himself as varsity timber if he can sweep through this competition.

Johnny Dowd, who has already entered the round of four in the upper bracket, played this summer in Glen Cove, Illinois, where, under the tutelage of Coach Kenfield, his game improved so that he is a serious threat in the present tournament.

FROSH GRID CLUB MEETS WOLFCUBS

Big Five Yearling Rivals to Play Under Lights at Greensboro Next Friday Night.

The Carolina freshman football team, which displayed considerable strength in its opening game, defeating Wake Forest, 33-7, will meet the N. C. State Wolfcubs in Greensboro Memorial stadium Friday night in its next test.

The Greensboro game between the yearling elevens was inaugurated last year with Carolina winning a 9-7 thriller. Many spectators expressed the opinion that it was better than some of the varsity games they saw last year, and the contest proved such an attractive feature that it is being continued this year.

Both Outfits Powerful

With both Carolina and State packing powerful freshman elevens, Friday night's game is expected to produce a battle of varsity proportions and all indications point to a record crowd for a freshman game in this state.

The Tar Baby eleven is big enough to take care of itself. In fact, it outweighs Carolina's varsity. It showed flash and power enough, too, in its opening game, combining a driving ground game with a clever aerial attack to gain at will against the Baby Deacons. It has yet to prove, however, that it can take it.

Rand Tops Tag Grid Scorers; "Y" Has Team Lead

Intramural Football Has Completed Two Weeks; Time Is Moved Up Half an Hour.

As the intramural tag football competition advances into its third week, the only important change is that of moving the starting times up one half hour, setting the new periods at 3:30 and 4:30 o'clock.

With several fine games played during the past week, the race for individual scoring honors became thicker as Rand of Beta overtook Daniel of the 'Y' for the campus lead; he raised his total up to 30, while the latter brought his to 24. Both boys led their respective divisions:

The four leaders in both groups follow: dormitory, Daniel (Y), 24; Pool (Y), 14; Farmer (Aycock) and McKinnon (Ruffin), 12. Fraternity, Rand (Beta), 30; Shores (Delta Tau Delta), 14; Reid (Beta) and Manley (Chi Psi), 13. Y. M. C. A. leads the team scores with 56 points.

The schedule follows:

Monday: 4:30: 1. Kluttz Bldg. vs. Law School: 2. Phi Alpha vs. Zeta Psi; 3. Theta Chi vs. Sigma Chi.

CAROLINA TURNS TOWARD BATTLE WITH WOLFPACK

Big Five Rivals Meet in Kenan Stadium Saturday; Both Have New Master Minds.

TWO TITLES ARE AT STAKE

Following the Kentucky game yesterday, the North Carolina gridders now turn their attention again to home affairs, meeting N. C. State here next Saturday in a game which promises to surpass the dogged "brotherly" battles for which this rivalry has been noted in the past.

The 1934 meeting of the Tar Heels and the Wolfpack draws added interest from the fact that the new coaches, Carl Snavely and Hunk Anderson, are leading exponents of the two rival football schools and systems, the Warner and the Notre Dame, respectively.

Indeed, Anderson was the man who was chosen to carry on at Knute Rockne's sudden death as head coach at Notre Dame. And Snavely "out-Warnered" Warner last year, leading his Bucknell team to victory over the old master's first eleven at Temple.

Master Against Master

This will be the first time that the two master strategists have matched wits on the gridiron, and with the Carolina-State rivalry as keen as it is, they can be counted upon to bend every effort towards a victory.

In addition to settling the question of Carolina-State supremacy, which is doubly important to the two teams since the Consolidated University came into being, Saturday's game likely will decide which is to fight it out with Duke for the Big Five and perhaps for the Southern Conference titles.

State has defeated Davidson, and Carolina got the jump on and surprised Wake Forest, which in turn came from behind with a last-quarter aerial attack to upset State, 13-12.

Many Stars

Saturday's game also will have an important bearing on the all-state hopes of several stars on each team. Among State's leading candidate for the honor are Rex and Farrar, backs; Sabol, center; Stanko, guard; and Redding, end. Carolina offers Captain Barclay and Eddie Kahn, guards; Jim Tatum, tackle; Don Jackson and Charlie Shaffer, backs, and several other players who are just about as good.

State will be the third team Carolina has met in a row which employs the Notre Dame attack. Saturday before the Kentucky game they met Georgia and pulled the biggest surprise in Dixie football by upsetting the Bulldogs, 14-0. State was playing at Tampa yesterday.

DRAMA FESTIVAL TO BE IN MARCH

State Dramatic Association Sets Date of Annual Contests Here as March 28-30.

The annual spring festival of the State Dramatic association will take place at the University March 28-30, it was decided by the association in conference here Friday night.

The business session followed a special luncheon in the Graham Memorial banquet hall. President W. K. Morgan of Biltmore Junior College, Asheville, presided.

After the meeting in Graham Memorial, the conference adjourned to the Playmakers theatre where a special rehearsal of Karl Capek's "R. U. R." was presented under the direction of Sam Selden.

Abolish Make-up Fee

The conference abolished the tournament fee for make-up, costumes, and stage design. The membership fee for the association remains $2. Tournament fee for the festival was set at $2 for county high schools and junior community groups, $3 for city high schools, colleges, adult community groups, and Little Theatre organizations.

In the coming contest the $2 group will present comedies; the $3 group, tragedies. Included in the latter group are the two new classifications added at last night's conference: the home demonstration unit and the E. R. E. dramatic groups.

Preliminaries in March

The preliminary contests for the festival will come off before the first week in March. January 15 was set as the deadline for all original plays.

Mrs. T. R. Everett of Seaboard was elected to represent the community theatre groups, replacing Robert Peal who has transferred from Conway to Wagram.

President Morgan appointed a committee to effect the revision of the course of study for dramatics and the inclusion of such a course for credit in high schools.

PROFESSOR'S BOOK IS WELL-RECEIVED

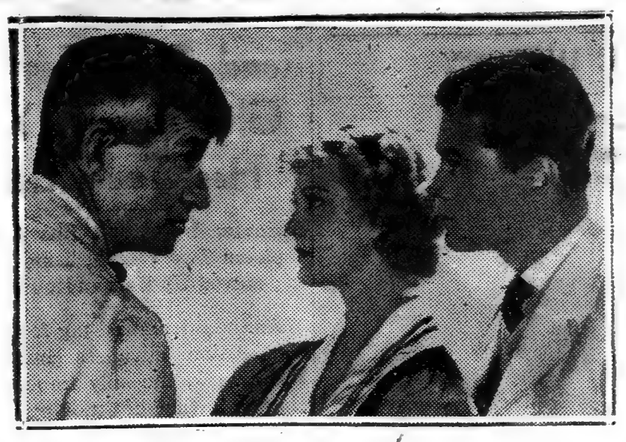
Hickerson Is Author; Published By University Press.

Robins Fleming of New York, emeritus engineer with the American Bridge Company, has reviewed favorably a new book by Professor T. F. Hickerson entitled "Structural Frameworks," published by the University press.

Fleming stresses the value of this work as a contribution to the literature of rigid frame structures, which he says is original, novel and practicable of application.

W. T. Couch of the University press reports a wide circulation of this book in the United States and Canada, particularly among the bridge departments of the various state highway commissions and in California where studies are in progress for designing structures to withstand earthquake forces.

BOUQUET



The flowers worn by the sponsors of the Carolina-Kentucky game were contributed by Doyle's Flower Shop, Chapel Hill and Durham.

There will be a band practice at 7:00 o'clock tomorrow night in Hill Music hall. It is imperative that all members be present.

Tar Heels Win Battle From Kentucky, 6-0

ment but it was blocked by "Honus" Wagner, the Colonel left tackle.

Shaffer vs. Johnson

After the opening fireworks

the rest of the the game was mostly a duel between Shaffer and "Man O' War" Johnson, Kentucky's fine triple-threat halfback. Shaffer outpunted the Kentucky halfback, 45 to 36, but Johnson was the big ground gainer of the afternoon.

Besides his great kicking, Shaffer got loose for several brilliant runs and played an excellent defensive game. On one occasion, "Shorty" stood on his own 22-yard line and booted to Kentucky's 7-yard line, a distance of 71 yards. Another time the Carolina ace punted 55 yards to the 2-yard line.

Johnson was the boy who kept Kentucky in the game all afternoon. His hard running and accurate passing time and again put the Tar Heels in danger. The triple-threat back carried the ball more than two-thirds of the time for the visitors and picked up close to 100 yards.

Johnson on Long Run

One time with the ball in midfield Johnson skirted his right end and dashed all the way across the zero line standing up. However, the officials ruled that he had stepped out of bounds on the 27-yard line. At that the play was good for 23 yards. At the opening of the second quarter, "Man O' War" again ran around right end, this time he cut back up midfield and was finally caught from behind after a 34-yard gain.

The Wildcats made their biggest bid for a marker in the final quarter, driving all the way to Carolina's 5-yard line, before the fighting Tar Heels were able to take the ball over.

Carolina's scare came just after Johnson had made his 23-yard gallop to the 27 line. On first down, Captain Barclay broke through to nail Pritchard for a 2-yard loss. Johnson made a yard; Barclay was in the way again. Buck knocked down a pass but on fourth down, Johnson tossed a long heave to Long, end, on the 9-yard marker. Jim McCachren, fullback, made the tackle.

Pass Fails for Score

Barclay and "King Kong" Kahn stopped Johnson at the line but Pritchard made four to the 6. Johnson tried the line again and Barclay and Daniel hit him after a yard gain. On fourth down Johnson attempted a pass but it was blocked down in the end zone and the ball went over to the Tar Heels on the 20.

On the very first play, Harry Montgomery, halfback, took the ball on a reverse around right end and went 23 yards for a first on the 43. After "Monty" had made 6 more, Shaffer tried to punt but Wagner broke through to block the kick, Shaffer finally tackling Bryant on Carolina's 37.

However, Kentucky did little good with this break as "Chilly" Childers threw Johnson for a 12-yard loss and then Shaffer intercepted a pass. Feeling a little hurt because of his blocked kick, Shaffer booted his next kick for the 55 yards to the 2-yard line.

Tar Heels Threaten

Carolina went to the 10-yard line early in the first quarter but was unable to count. After an exchange of punts for the first five minutes, with Shaffer holding the advantage, Carolina took the ball on their own 45.

Shaffer went around left end for 12 yards, Hutchins hit center for 2, and Dashiell got 9 at end for a couple of first downs. Hutchins made 3 more and had to be taken from the game with an injury. Shaffer picked up 3 and then on a reverse over tackle dashed 16 yards to the 10.

However, a moment later a lateral was tried to Childers on an end-around play; the sprint ace let the ball get by him and it rolled to the 31-yard line where Long, Wildcat end, recovered.

The Wildcats also made another drive, with Pritchard, fullback, doing some nice running, which took the ball to the 18. Here Carolina braced and took the ball over on the 21-yard line after four downs.

Snyder Looks Good

Besides Shaffer, "Hump" Snyder, blocking back, was the biggest ace in Carolina's backfield. Snyder blocked in his usual fine style besides doing a fine job of backing up the forward wall on defense. Dick Dashiell and Harry Montgomery did some nifty running.

Captain George Barclay just can't be stopped from starring. He was again practically all over the field and messing up Kentucky plays at the line of scrimmage. Both of the Tar Heel ends, Buck and Childers, had a big day's work as the Wildcats aimed the majority of their plays at the flanks, while Jim Tatum, giant tackle, was another power on defense.

"Honus" Wagner led the work of Kentucky's strong line as he was in the way of Carolina kicks twice. McClurg, guard, who backs up the forward wall, and Captain Rupert and Long, ends, also starred for the Colonels.

Five Tar Heels, Barclay, Childers, Buck, Shaffer, and Snyder, played the entire game.

FROSH GRID CLUB MEETS WOLFCUBS

Almost a score of players, including several leading performers, were on the injured list today as a result of frequent scrimmages with the varsity. Hence, Coaches Fetzer and James' big problems this week are to get the cripples in shape for use against the strong Wolfcub eleven.

Although the Tar Babies boast several stars who were attracted by Coach Snavely's record at Bucknell and followed him down from the Pennsylvania sector, it draws its material for the most part from North Carolina boys. The present squad of 61 numbers 35 boys from North Carolina, with the others scattered over six states.

Three Greensboro Boys

Three of the players will be performing in their own backyard Friday night. The Greensboro boys on the squad are Bill Boren, halfback; Branch Fields, another back; and "Red" Meroney, end.

Among the players who starred in North Carolina high school circles last year are Tom Burnette and George Thomas, a pair of hard-running halfbacks from Tarboro; Ben Maffitt, hefty tackle, and George Graves, speedy back, from Charlotte; Bruce Smith, star guard, of Lexington; and "Pete" Avery, first string center, from Morganton.

Some of the out-of-state stars are the 200-pound Keeney and the speedy Bershak, who play end; Juliper, a 220-pound tackle; Gaydos and Ax, a charging pair of pony guards; and Walborn, Ditt, and Bricklemyer, a trio of hard-running backs.

In the Wake Forest game, Ditt, Partin, Graves, and Oliver scored four of the touchdowns on running plays netting from five to 36 yards, and Ditt counted a second on a pretty forward pass from Burnette and a lateral from Walborn that was good for 24 yards.

Parker and Johnson led the drive with 33 and 22-yard runs, respectively. Whitner went over the goal line on a 5-yard buck.

Davidson pushed into Blue Devil territory on several occasions but lacked the necessary scoring punch. The Wildcats made their longest gain, 30 yards, on a forward-lateral pass from Mackorell to Morgan to Wingfield. Davidson once got as far as the 7 before the Blue Devils held.

BASIN OF LOCAL AREA IS STUDIED

McCarthy, Straley, and Johnson Conduct Investigation.

Dr. G. R. McCarthy, H. W. Straley and Ray Johnson of the geology department are investigating the Deep River triassic lowland, including the Durham basin on the north and the Cumnock basin on the south, to be investigated by means of geophysical instruments.

At present cross-sections are being made with magnetometer across the Durham basin between the Durham-Chapel Hill areas on the west side of the basin and the Wake Forest-Cary areas on the east side.

It is hoped that this survey will help to determine more fully the lithological and structural conditions in the triassic basin. If this survey is successful, it is hoped that it may be extended farther southward into the area where the triassic is concealed by coastal plain deposits.

FEDERAL AGENTS KILL DESPERADO NEAR OHIO FARM

"Pretty Boy" Floyd's Death Ends Search for Perpetrators of Massacre of Four Officers.

STRUCK BY 14 BULLETS

East Liverpool, Ohio, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, prairie desperado, was shot down by Federal agents here late today.

Floyd died as the result of a relentless search by operatives of the United States department of justice who shot to kill as soon as they saw the outlaw.

The notorious Oklahoma gunman lies tonight on a slab in a local funeral parlor with 14 bullets holes in his back and sides.

Hundreds of townspeople, many of whom served on the posses searching for him, struggled to view the body.

Killed Four Officers

With Floyd's death, Melvin Purvis, ace department of justice man who got Dillinger, virtually ended the search for the perpetrators of the Union Station masacre in Kansas City where four Federal officers and a prisoner were felled by Floyd and his cohorts.

Police found Floyd near the farm of Mrs. Ellen Conkle, seven miles north of here.

While searching the surrounding woodland, they saw Floyd about to enter the car of Stuart Dukes, brother of Mrs. Conkle, and recognized him.

The bandit made for nearby woods but was pursued and shot down by Purvis and his men. A few minutes later he was dead.

Floyd had last been seen near Wellsville, Ohio, where he escaped after a gun battle with Chief J. H. Fultz and two citizens who sought to arrest him.

At this encounter, Floyd's companion, Richetti, was taken and is now held at Wellsville where he denies that the man who escaped was Floyd.

After breaking loose, Floyd appropriated a car belonging to George MacMillan, who reported that the gunman had two bullet

PLAYMAKER STAFF TO HOLD TRYOUTS FOR STUDENT BILL

To Take Place in Playmakers Theatre at 4:30 O'clock.

Try-outs for the first bill of experimental plays to be produced by the staff of the Carolina Playmakers will be held in the theatre today at 4:30 o'clock.

These one-act plays, written by members of Professor Frederick H. Koch's playwriting class, will be presented November 1, with the cast that will be chosen this afternoon.

Casting will include 17 men, 3 women, and one little boy. The parts cover the five plays that have been selected.

Either by directing or acting in one of these experimental plays, students may win one point toward the Playmaker Mask award. A total of six points is required. A writer who has one of his plays selected for this experimental bill will receive two points toward the Mask.

Students who failed to be given a part in "R. U. R." will find this new bill another opportunity to become associated with the Carolina Playmakers.

Weekly Bets On College Football Exceed Total World Series' Wagers

Estimated That Betting Reaches $1,000,000 Mark Each Week; Grads Heavy Betters.

New York, Oct. 22.—(UP)—An unprecedented wave of betting on college football is sweeping the United States.

A United Press survey completed tonight disclosed that a wagering fever unequalled in football history from the day Princeton played Rutgers in America's first intercollegiate game back in the sixties, has gripped every section of the country.

Betting on each week's crop of football contests completely overshadows that on the entire World Series, according to those who make the sport their business.

Here in New York, the betting may be done with all the dignity attendant upon buying cotton bales, wheat futures, or blocks of Tel. and Tel.

$100,000 Turnover

Robert Darnell Company, a brokerage firm of nearly 20 years' standing, reports that it's a dull week which does not see a turnover of $100,000. This money represents wagers ranging from $20 each to $1,000. It covers all contests in which there is any serious fan interest.

The Darnell Company makes no bets itself.

"We'll accept any bet, no matter how large," a representative of the company told the United Press. "But we get a 'coverer' for it. We don't risk any of our money. Our profits come from the 5 per cent commission."

Darnell, incidentally, should show a neat balance in black ink. Figure it up: 5 per cent of one hundred thousand comes out right close to $5,000 which would

BANKERS ATTACK 'FIRESIDE' SPEECH

Roosevelt Unfair in Criticism of Bankers, Annual Convention In Washington Says.

Washington, Oct. 22.—(UP)—The American Bankers' association at its annual convention here tonight said that Roosevelt's "fireside" criticism several weeks ago was uncalled for and unfair.

Robert M. Hanes, Winston-Salem banker, was the first to accuse the administration and press, saying that their failure to distinguish between the good and bad banks had made the position and work of all bankers more difficult.

President Roosevelt's high praise of British bankers also came in for a great deal of criticism.

The convention was of the opinion that the President had injustly accused American bankers of not co-operating with the government in its debts and had been wrong in lauding English financiers when they hold only 11 per cent of their government's debt.

More than four thousand bankers of the United States are here tonight to participate in the important sessions of the convention.

Local Pilot Injured

I. M. Tull, proprietor of the University airport, was seriously injured when his plane crashed eight miles outside of Burlington at 4:00 o'clock yesterday. Tull was en route to Winston-Salem when the crash occurred.

He is confined in the Rainey hospital in Burlington where his condition is said to be critical.

Anti-War Conference Planned

"Call to Action" Issued to Campus Organizations; Demonstration Is Scheduled to Take Place November 9 and 10.

A "call to action" has been issued to campus organizations to co-operate in an anti-war conference to be held here November 9 and 10, under the instigation and auspices of the American League Against War and Fascism.

Bill Levitt, Carolina freshman and local representative of the league, recently sent notices to campus groups asking them to send delegates to an arrangements committee meeting next Tuesday night in Gerrard hall. Levitt at that time will discuss the plans for the conference and the committee will arrange details.

Endorsed by Leaders

The conference, which has been endorsed on this campus by Harry F. Comer, A. T. Dill, Joe Sugarman and Ralph Gardner, will be one of many planned on most of the major American institutions, according to Levitt. A country-wide organization is now at work in preparation for the various gatherings.

Last spring considerable interest was manifested on the campus in the problems of war, embracing a movement culminating in the establishment of the Foreign Policy league, of which Gardner is president.

This year the Y. M. C. A., through cabinet meetings and public programs, has endeavored to present a complete discussion of the question under the guidance of prominent faculty and administrative members and visiting lecturers.

The "call' which Levitt sent out included such phrases as "Now is the time for action," "The danger of war and Fascism is evident," and "To neglect sending a delegate to this committee (the arrangement group) will be criminal."

First Organized Effort

It is the first organized public effort to stage an anti-war demonstration on this campus, although the Foreign Policy league took definite steps in co-operating with the national student movement in petitioning Washington for arms reductions and a policy of peace.

Levitt is also attempting to gather a regional conference composed of delegates from neighboring state institutions to convene for such a demonstration. Such a conference might possibly be combined with the November gathering here, he stated.

All organizations which did not receive a notice of the meeting next Tuesday have been asked by Levitt to send delegates, their failure to receive the "call" being due to his inaccessibility of a complete roster of campus clubs which might be interested.

Internationalism Is Goal, Speakers Say

Pegg Condemns Nationalism While Woodhouse Upholds It If "It Is Properly Used."

"Nationalism is an emotional fusion of nationality and patriotism," stated Dr. Carl H. Pegg last night at a joint meeting of the sophomore and junior-senior Y. M. C. A. groups, in a discussion of "Nationalism: Is It the Way Out?"

Professor E. J. Woodhouse, University professor of government, also aided in the discussion.

"To be a way out, nationalism has to be made a stepping stone to internationalism, and internationalism is sure to come," Pegg went on.

Nationalism Detrimental

"So far down through history, the fruits of nationalism have been detrimental. Nationalism has given rise to narrowness and uniformity. It has directed the attentions of the people to war and preparedness for armed conflicts," he said.

Nationalism has also given rise to a new imperialism and has bound itself up with militarism, according to Pegg.

In his discussion of the definition of nationalism, Pegg stated that "patriotism" was an old characteristic of people, but that "nationality" was a comparatively recent force.

Woodhouse Speaks

In discussing nationalism and war, Woodhouse pointed out that it was just as easy for nations to settle arguments with armed force as it was for individuals to adjust disputes with their fists.

"Nationalism is a good principle if used properly," Professor Woodhouse said in considering the question as to whether nationalism could form a foundation for internationalism and world peace.

"To pave the way for internationalism, people have to treat nationalism with intelligence, not with emotionalism," he added.

"Only one person in a thousand is informed on international questions," Woodhouse said. This is the reason why people allow the armament firms, the merchants of death, to ply their

DEADLINE SET FOR JUNIORS, SENIORS

Yackety Yack Pictures Must Be Taken by November 1.

The junior and senior picture sections of the Yackety Yack will be closed on November 1, it was announced by Agnew Bahnson yesterday.

There are still about one hundred juniors and seniors who have not had their pictures made and unless the picture is taken before November 1 the photography fee must be forfeited.

Business staff men have been sent to see most of the delinquent juniors and seniors to remind them and it is necessary that they receive more co-operation than heretofore.

All sophomores and freshmen who are to have their pictures in the fraternity section must have them taken immediately. There will be a 10 per cent discount given to all organizations who pay their Yackety Yack pages before November 15.

PARAGRAPHICS

If Robinson was both insane and a college graduate, who's gonna blame him?

One of the more interesting of Homecoming tragedies: the old-timer who found a flock of Kentucky Kernels in his corn.

Then there was the fellow who was expelled because he had such a bad code.

A Call To Conference

Campus organizations have recently received a "call," issued by a local representative of the American League against War and Fascism, asking for delegates to an arrangements committee meeting next Tuesday night. At this session it is expected that full details, plans, and formalities will be worked out for an anti-war conference planned for November 9 and 10 on this campus.

The "call" advises that in every major university in this country these anti-war conferences are being planned for the same two days next month. It points out that "the danger of war and fascism is evident." It blares forth that "Now is the time for action!"

No doubt most of Carolina's unperturbable student body will become little wrought up over the idea, not only because it is something unprecedented on this campus in its bold initiative (and anything unprecedented is always lazily ignored) but also because students have evidenced before that it often takes more than a conference to stir them to any mass activity. The efforts of the Y. M. C. A. in presenting the war question to the campus has met with only meagre response; last spring's anti-war movement was only skin-deep as far as the Carolina student body was concerned.

It is apparent that this "call to action" is sincere, although throughout the state the folks will probably regard it as another "red uprising." In its very sincerity we believe it will accomplish much in the way of getting the campus conscious of the war problem and its attending evils, despite the previous response of the campus to discussions such as these.

To what extent the conference will act on November 9 and 10, to what lengths it will go toward a definite anti-war policy, will depend on the meeting of the delegates next week. All organizations should be represented to voice their opinions on this matter.

Where Does The Money Go?

They're doing something new at North Dakota. Student expenditures have been tabulated, filed, cross-indexed, and analyzed by the trained minds of the economics department, and the results published in a neat bulletin. As a result of this investigation, it is possible to determine how much a student of given sex, residence, class ranking, and fraternal affiliation will spend, with a reasonable allowance for the X or human factor.

The results of the North Dakota survey, covering the school year 1932-33, are rather interesting. For instance, fraternal women spend more than fraternal men, but non-fraternal women are more frugal than men who do not belong to a fraternity. For the average student, the junior year is the most expensive of the four. Non-fraternity men spend more for board, room-rent, and tobacco than do fraternity men, while the latter are more liberal with regard to shoe-shines, barbers, dry cleaning, and dances. The University as a whole spent seven-tenths of one per cent of its income for churches, one-tenth for charity.

In carrying out this survey, North Dakota has done more than estimate an expense account. Other colleges have done that—approximately. This survey is more—it is valuable to the prospective student, because he will know exactly how much he can plan on spending, and what he will probably spend it for. Parents are finding out (for the first time, perhaps) exactly how much their offsprings really spend for textbooks. Merchants are aided in placing their sales messages for various products before the student population. Any service of this sort which the college can render will be amply justified.

Though not precisely in the same category with the North Dakota survey, the work which is being done by many college papers in the east might be mentioned here. During the first week of school, the paper prints a thorough report on the fraternity situation, giving initiation fee, dues, board, if the lodge maintains a table, cost of rooming at same, and so on, of each fraternity on the campus. A graphic presentation of this sort would aid immeasurably in removing doubt from the bewildered rushee's mind, and enabling him to see the whole problem at a glance. The factor of intelligent selection, rather than blind trusting to luck, would also be stressed.

These two innovations, if carried out here at Carolina, would be of tremendous help in simplifying the problems that confront every freshman like bogies during the first days at the Hill.

Facing The Facts

Miss Myrna Loy is undoubtedly a very attractive young lady. Readers of the Diario Latina, daily newspaper of San Salvador, were somewhat surprised the other day to find a big front-page photograph of Miss Loy staring at them as they opened their only daily publication at the breakfast table.

The screen actress, it seems, had done nothing to warrant the free publicity. She had not even done the conventional Hollywood act of getting married that week. But there was her picture.

Its presence was all explained a few days later. It seems that the Diario Latina has a board of censors and was ordered stopped in press this particular morning for the suppression by the censors of a certain article in a conspicuous column on the front page. Being somewhat "up the creek" about how to fill the space on such short notice, the editors hit upon the idea of running somebody's picture and it happened that Miss Loy's was handiest; so her face beamed forth the next morning in true cinematic splendor.

Which was admirable to say the least, for it gives clear evidence that the San Salvadorans certainly know how to face the facts.

Expression— Free or Not?

In the anthology of modern prose, Robert Galbraith makes a comment that seems to express the general public opinion of undergraduate publications.

"We have an increasing respect for undergraduate publications, callow as they are. They are the real liberal journals of the country, because their editors are 21. At 21 an editor has the lovely tart quality of the unripe. Socially, he is conservative—more conservative, probably, than he will ever be again; but editorially he is a rainbow of radical thought, largely, we believe, because of the sudden orgiastic pleasure of literary expression. He has a distinctive literary style, instantly recognizable: a kind of pedantic sarcasm. The first flush of printer's ink is like wine. That is why campus papers are so alive, and they cause deans so much distress, worse than cramps of the stomach."

The author here is inclined to poke a little gentle fun at "rainbows of radical thought," whom he asserts are tartly "unripe." In accusing the college editor of pedantic sarcasm, Mr. Galbraith is overlooking the fact that only in college journalism does the writer attack the problem from a purely liberal standpoint, as opposed to the conservative angle which editorialists of the newspapers of the country necessarily have to take. The journalist at 21 is free, free to attack contemporary evils, whatever be their roots. He is free to be the mouthpiece of the coming generation, the coming citizens of his country, free to look into conditions into which policies of today may be leading us, and which will affect us in our maturity.

The inevitable reason for this lies in the fact that the college editor at 21 has nothing to limit his expression except the true convictions of his mind. He is not limited—and herein lies the difference—as is the metropolitan writer by any danger of losing his job by offending some influential interest, or by upholding a policy which might not be in accordance with the views of his subscribers, thus endangering his financial support.

The crux of the situation is this: the college editor is free to express his convictions, whatever they may be; the professional journalist, for various reasons, is not. Radical? Perhaps. Liberal? Naturally. College journalism is here for a definite purpose, and it is here to stay.

SPEAKING the CAMPUS MIND

Editor, the DAILY TAR HEEL:

In Saturday's DAILY TAR HEEL, a Mr. Question Mark wrote an article concerning the unfair manner in which one of his friends was being treated by the self-help office at the Y. M. C. A. It is indeed surprising what true friendship can do to a fellow's sense of right and wrong! Mr. Question Mark was so enwrapped in his quest for "justice," that he blindly launched an attack upon the veracity of the self-help officials, when he was armed with only a few "facts" which his one track mind had so completely distorted!

One of his first statements was that his friend was now working at Swain hall. May I call his attention to the fact that the manager of Swain hall is a member of the self-help committee, and that the work at Swain hall is one form of self-help? If he were aware of this while making that statement, then I gather that it must be unfair to give his friend only one job!

He continued by saying that his friend worked on the FERA for the better part of last year, but had not been granted a job this year. Just exactly what is strange or unfair about this? If the 289 students now having FERA jobs were to continue holding their positions until they graduated, just a mere handful of students, from the hundreds of needy applicants, would be allowed to fill the vacancies created by graduates each quarter. Then again, why think of the mass of students who need work, as long as our friends are well taken care of?

Then Question Mark continues his meaningless mutterings by declaring that his friend was promised a job this fall. I challenge that statement! The one thing that the self-help committee cannot and will not do, is to make any promises as to employment. The entire FERA project is too new and uncertain to allow these officials to express anything more definite than a hope that there may be some work in near future. If I were his friend, I'd confront the self-help officials with this promise, if it were in writing, and compel them to employ me. If, however, I had a verbal promise, I would at least go to the official who made it and tell him exactly how I felt.

Then Question Mark made the absurd statement that athletes and fraternity pledges were favored by the self-help office in the matter of assigning jobs. This is conclusive evidence that Question Mark is already in that hopeless stage in which all truth gives way to his overworking imagination. May I ask him what he believes to be the difference between needy athletes and needy non-athletes? Should needy athletes be deprived of the right to be given work merely because they are athletes? Speaking of favoritism, of the 111 men on the varsity and freshman football squads, 22 have been given work by the self-help office.

Question Mark must remember that the FERA jobs were assigned long before the fraternities pledged their men. A check-up of the list of fraternity pledges showed that 4 men had been assigned FERA work. These men were sent for by the office and asked to choose between joining a fraternity and working on the FERA. This is a splendid illustration of how impartially and fairly the self-help office executes its rather complex duties!

I am certain that if Question Mark had acquainted himself with the true facts of the matter, he would have hesitated before making his ridiculous, untrue charges!

JACK TRUGMAN.

Keeping Company At Night Serious Offense In 1798

The Chapel Hill-billies were in an uproar. The board of trustees was in an uproar. The University was being severely criticized. The trustees met and passed a law designed to prevent mass corruption of the student body due to "carryings on" on the part of one of its members.

It seems that on the night of October 4, 1798, a girl had actually been seen in the company of a student at the University, alone and at night! The shocked Puritanical villagers who saw this brazen demonstration immediately reported it and demanded action on the part of the University authorities. Gossip made the indecent incident assume gigantic proportions. Under the pressure of public opinion the miserable offender resigned from the University.

The board of trustees met and passed a law which specified that a bell should ring at 8:00 o'clock each evening, at which time the students "must repair to their respective rooms and continue there without making any noise or disturbance whatsoever."

The students rebelled at this, using their argument that, after all, this was a free country. Their liberty was guaranteed in the laws of the land, they said.

The board at its next meeting, heard the reports from the committee on the late riots at the University, and passed another ordinance to put the students in their place. The members of the faculty, they decreed, were to visit the rooms of the college every morning as well as in the evening to see that the students were "diligent and attentive to their business."

This was bad enough. But when the professors and tutors were required "to carry into strict execution the ordinance of the board respecting the reading of the Latin classics," the students were completely cowed.

Varsity Takes First Work In Preparation For 'Pack

Long Skirmish Features Practice as Shaffer Leads Offense.

Hutchins and Moore Are Back on Hand for Light Work.

Coach Snavely pushed the Tar Heel gridsters through a long drill on Emerson field yesterday in preparation for the strong N. C. State Wolfpack which comes to Chapel Hill this week-end.

A long offensive scrimmage with several backfield combinations taking turns at lugging the pigskin featured yesterday's practice.

Charlie Shaffer seemed to be the only back who was able to make much advancement with the ball. Paul Pendergraft and Emmett Joyce, guards in the opposing line, were two thorns in the flesh of the first string backs. They were constantly seeping through the line to nail the ball-carrier without giving him a chance.

Hutchins Back on Job

Jim Hutchins, who was injured during the early minutes of play against Kentucky last Saturday, was running at his regular place in the first string backfield yesterday. "Hutch" is still pretty sore, but he will probably be in top shape in time for the Wolfpack Saturday.

Bill Moore, who has been on the casualty list since the Georgia game, donned a uniform for a light workout yesterday. It is doubtful if he will be able to participate in heavy work for several days yet.

Coach Snavely was not greatly impressed by the Tar Heels' showing in the Homecoming contest with Kentucky last Saturday. If it had not been for the stubborn defense displayed by the Carolina line, last Saturday's 6-0 margin of victory might have been a different story.

PUGILISTS BEGIN WINTER TRAINING

Numerous Veterans and Sophomores Form Nucleus for High Hopes.

With five veterans from last year gathered around him, and a group of ambitious sophomores, all seasoned from work on the yearling squad last year, Coach Crayton Rowe gave the ring aspirants an informal talk yesterday.

"The most important thing to bear in mind," according to Coach Rowe, "is condition." All the ringsters were advised to start serious training today. Most of them have been taking light workouts daily, and the plunge into heavy training will not be minded in most cases. Regular supervised workouts will get underway this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

All boys interested in entering the intramural tournament, which is to be held shortly after the Thanksgiving holidays, should start working out now, so that they will be in fit condition when the tournament begins.

Coach Rowe with the able assistance of Captain Giddens and Jim Carruth has been teaching the freshmen the arts of self-defense, and many of them show signs of great promise.

LAW SCHOOLERS WIN CLOSE ONE ON MURAL GRID

Kluttz Team Downed by Lawyers While Sigma Chi and Zeta Psi Get Wins.

"Y" PLAYS RUFFIN TODAY

Only a trio of games were played yesterday among the intramural tag football circles, the feature contest being the scrap between the Law School and Kluttz with the former emerging a close victor.

In the other two battles, Sigma Chi scored 19 points to Theta Chi's none to win its game and Zeta Psi put full steam ahead to down Phi Alpha, 18-7.

Lawyers Win

The shysters and the Ku Kluttz Klan fought on even terms the whole afternoon, the men from Carr scoring only by the slippery steps of Halfback Kuykendall. In the first half neither team could make much headway. However, in the last period Law School managed to push over its score after this Kuykendall had led the way. Kluttz showed more steady good play by turning in more first downs than the Law Schoolers.

Sigma Chi ran wild over Theta Chi in the first half to mark up all its points, while the winners were outplayed during the last period. Neal was the spark plug of the Sigma Chi offense as he tallied a pair of the touchdowns with Rehm chalking up the other and adding the extra pointer.

Zeta Psi Takes One

Phi Alpha held the Zeta Psi's on near even terms during the first period of the game but weakened after the time-out, allowing the eventual winners to tally a pair of six-pointers and the margin of victory. The winners took to the air and scored two of their touchdowns by passes to the pair of flankmen, Carlyle and Parrott. Clark returned a punt 40 yards for the other big score. Goldman scored for the Phi Alphas on a pass and Greenberg drop-kicked perfectly for the point after touchdown.

Seventeen Teams Remain Unbeaten On Eastern Grid

Duke Leads in South on Scoring and Percentage.

New York, Oct. 22.—Seventeen teams in the east remained among the "400" today—that is, only that number were still ranked as undefeated and untied.

Dusquesne led the team scoring as its eleven tallied 217 points, winning four of five encounters. Holy Cross, winning five straight, took second honors with 141 tallies and was followed by Army with 128, Dartmouth with 125, and Princeton with 124.

An even dozen possess such a tight defense that they are unscored upon. The leaders in this group are Army, Dartmouth, Georgetown, Western Maryland, and George Washington.

Bill Shepherd of Western Maryland leads the individual scoring. His team tallied 40 points this past week and he scored 21 of the points to go into first place in the east over Kobrosky of Trinity. Shepherd has 57 markers to his credits to the latter's 54.

In the south, Duke University leads with four victories to no defeats and has tallied 106 points to just one touchdown for the opposition.

TAR HEEL PIGSKINNERS

The above are the firebrands of the Snavely backfield. Dick Dashiell is the slippery, elusive, hip-twisting halfback who squirms off tackle for many yards and who does most of the twirling for the aerial attack.

Big Jim Hutchins is the fullback, a line-driving and blocking battering ram. He was injured early in the Kentucky game but is expected to be back in shape for the State encounter.

Coach James Works Yearlings For State Contest Friday Night

Frosh Squad Takes Short Scrimmage; First String Runs Hot on Offense.

TO PLAY AT GREENSBORO

After a week-end of inactivity the Tar Babies resumed their strenuous campaign yesterday afternoon, in preparation for their forthcoming gridiron battle with the N. C. State Wolflets at Greensboro this Friday night.

The freshmen's first practice of the final week of preparation commenced with the customary grass drill which Coach James has employed to keep his charges in the splendid physical condition that they are in.

Immediately after the limbering exercises the squad split up into several groups, each intent on perfecting the fundamentals of their positions. Four backfields working as separate units lined up and ran the ball down the field executing an assortment of precision plays with a quickness brought on through weeks of constant drilling.

Good Passing

Passing appeared to be a strong department of the frosh attack as Tom Burnette, George Graves, and Ed Oliver heaved long and short forwards into the arms of waiting receivers.

Then with the first eleven in possession of the pigskin, a scrimmage was held. The very first play was a bullet pass from Tom Burnette to the heavy but speedy Kenney which was good for 20 yards. Without wasting any time the regulars pulled their surprise forward lateral pass play which left the second eleven helpless to do anything before the touchdown had been scored.

After the success of their favorite play the first aggregation threw passes all over the field and left their teammates bewildered by their accurate aerial attack. Burnette and Hoffer threw these forwards to Kenney, Bershak, and Bricklemeyer.

The second eleven then took the offense but met with little success against a sparkling defensive exhibition. The first team intercepted or knocked down all but three of the passes thrown. With their backs to the goal posts the first stringers proved the quality of their defense when they stopped a stubborn aerial attack and held the second eleven for eight downs without letting them gain an inch.

Duke's Blue Devils Climb Into Lead With Tar Heels

Game Saturday to Decide Big Five Lead for Several Weeks.

This past week-end Duke's Blue Devils climbed up into the select chair with the University of North Carolina on the top of the Big Five gridiron fight.

While the Tar Heels were remaining idle in state play, the Wademen turned under Davidson's fighting Wildcats, 20-0, for the Dukesters' initial Big Five game, hence giving them a clean slate.

One Big Five Game

This coming Saturday only one game is on schedule and that one is quite important. Carolina takes on N. C. State College in what seems to be a thriller. The Tar Heels will be attempting to hold their perfect record and go one game up on the Duke eleven. Hunk Anderson's men always fight harder when against either Carolina or Duke and are expected to give the Snavelymen a real scrap.

The other Big Five teams play out-of-state foes: Duke goes to Tennessee, Davidson to Citadel, and Wake Forest to George Washington for a Friday night game.

WHO'S AFRAID OF THE BIG BAD WOLF?

TAR HEEL DALERS TAKE HARD WORK FOR STATE MEET

Run with Wolfpack Will Be Ranson Runners' Debut; Prospects Are Good.

GOOD MATERIAL ON HAND

With only five days before their first meet, the hill and dalers are rounding into tip-top form for their debut against N. C. State.

Last year was the first time that the brother institution placed a varsity cross country team into competition. The meet last season was a decisive victory for Coach Ranson's aggregation, as his representatives took the first five places with considerable ease. State has not forgotten this clean cut defeat and with the majority of their last year's team back, they invade Carolina Saturday with all hopes of taking the Ranson runners into camp.

Originally, the first meet this year was scheduled with Tennessee, but it was cancelled by the request of the athletic authorities of the Vols. This has given the Tar Heel squad plenty of time to prepare for the State meet, and they will do all they can to make history repeat itself by placing the smaller end of the score under U. N. C. Saturday.

Captain Williamson will lead the harriers on their first run. He will have such valuable letter material as McRae, Waldrop, Curlee, Haywood, and Conte. His up-and-coming sophs are Gammon, Allen, Bower, Gardiner, Aderholt, Lynch, and Daniel.

Seeded Favorites Cop Matches As Net Tourney Nears Finals

Gene Robinson Advances to Final Round of Freshman Play In Hard Battle.

UPPER SEMI-FINALS TODAY

Abels, Whitaker, and Henderson Advance to Upperclass Semi-Final Matches.

Led by Gene Robinson, the tennis favorites advanced one step closer the University racquet honors, with well-earned victories over opposition that came near toppling two of the top-seeded stars from the running.

Robinson, the bespectacled Canadian youth, eliminated the hard-hitting Johnny Foreman in a hectic three set affair, and advanced to the final round of the frosh tournament well in advance of the field.

The upper section of the freshman bracket is being held up by the third round match between Eddy De Gray and Seymour Fast, which will take place early today. The winner, in all probability De Gray, will then take his place across the net from Ray Bartelman, in the quest for the vacant finalist position. Bartelman, one of three new boys from Glen Cove, Illinois, was forced to two extra sets in downing Berg, but came through by 7-5 scores to enter the semi-final.

The Robinson-Foreman battle was a spectacular contest and the aspect of the match changed rapidly as the lead shifted from one to another in the opening two sets. The first set went to Robinson 7-5, and it seemed as if Foreman was doomed to certain defeat as Gene swept into a 2-0 advantage in the next set with beautiful volleys and passing shots.

However, Foreman appeared to have found the missing link in his offense and opened with a barrage of powerful drives that had Robinson stepping from corner to corner. Foreman ran five straight games, before yielding one and then took his own service to even the match at one set all.

The final set was a disappoint-pay a lot of rent and salaries.

The heaviest betting is done by old grads who have made their piles and who prove their maintained loyalty to dear old Alma Mammy by betting in large chunks.

"A good average bet for this type of man is around $200," the Darnell official said. "It's often $500. We regard $1,000 as a 'good bet' but sometimes they go higher."

Allowances

The deluge of money comes in late each week. Darnell Company sends its lists of odds to the various college newspapers. Some publish them, giving the street addresses of the commission, and the undergraduate allowance money begins trickling in.

This betting is only a fraction of the total done in New York alone. Hundreds of offices conduct pools with the play ranging from dimes to dollars per game and covering some 30 or 40 games each week.

Then there's the "football card" method of betting which looks so easy on Friday and so tough late Saturday evening. This method could be turned into a grand racket if it wasn't for the profits which pour in "legitimately." The brave fellows who run this alluring venture must have heard Tex Guinan get off her nifty about not giving a sucker a break. They surely don't.

The card idea is like this: you get a duplicate list of 15 games. You can play as heavily as you like—50 cents, one dollar, five, ten, or more dollars. You can pick as many games as you like, but you must pick at least six. All right, suppose you put up one dollar on your card of six choices and suppose you are right. You will then, according to the terms on the card, get "ten points." "Points" of course, are dollars.

Few Collect

Pick seven right and you get $13. Eight nets $20, nine $30, twelve $90, 15, $150. Few ring the bell at even six, and the line of winners on the longer ventures narrows down to the diminishing point. Most betting is done on the basis of six winners. Most bets are at $1 per card. Many try it, few collect.

There are at least half a dozen different outfits handling the "football cards" and they are fairly safe. There is only one instance where the promoters "took a powder" and this occurred one Saturday, early in season two years ago. It happened the games ran amazingly true to form. The "powder," however, was only half a dose—they did pay off at 50 cents on the dollar.

One man's guess is as good as another and no positive statement can be made. It's fairly safe, however, to reckon the weekly handle of football wagering in New York alone runs up above the $1,000,000 mark.

Nor can there be any exact estimate made for other cities, although it is believed the turnover in Los Angeles—largely movie colony money—nearly duplicates the total here. St. Louis is another big betting town. So are Chicago, New Orleans, San Francisco, and, of all places, Lexington, Ky.

ing one in comparison to the first two. Robinson jumped into a 3-0 lead and was never headed, going on to a 6-1 victory and a place in the final. Robinson's forehand, although lacking the speed and finish of his opponent's, was decidedly superior in its consistency and accuracy.

Upperclass Section

Four players remain in the upperclass division and some real action will be realized when they match shots. With the exception of Johnny Dowd, who came through to his position in the place of Jim Johnston, the semi-finalists are all seeded stars. Byron Abels, top-seeded, and Archie Henderson advanced yesterday with impressive wins in straight sets, whereas Morris Whitaker fought three hard sets, before disposing of Sid Weinstein, in a long two hour exhibition.

Abels, after watching Tom Gold defeat Stein in a third round match, stepped onto the court and whittled a 6-3, 6-4 victory from Gold in a well played contest. Gold showed strength and often threatened with his sound game, but Abels was equal to his occasional spurts, and outclassed his opponent in all respects. Abels faces Dowd today and is expected to put an end to Dowd's advance over seeded players, but he will need all his mastery that brought him the top seeding, to overcome Dowd's game.

Whitaker's advance at the expense of Weinstein was difficult and at times it seemed as if Whitaker was going down to defeat before the steady stroking of his adversary. The opening set was the longest of the present tourney and provided thrill upon thrill as the games mounted to 8-all. At this point, Weinstein took his own service and broke through Whitaker after a deuce game. Weinstein had come from a 5-3 deficit to win the set, but Whitaker came back as strong and banged out a 6-4, 6-0 victory from the tiring Weinstein. Whitaker, bouncing about the court with his well-placed forehand, proved the superior of the two only after a bitter battle.

Whitaker's semi-final opponent is the consistent Archie Henderson, who again displayed a mixture of well-timed strokes and sound tennis, in easily doing away with Morty Singer. He won in straight sets, scoring at ease in a 6-1, 6-3 conquest, and never gave Singer the opportunity of providing trouble. Singer's bombarding service was muffled by Henderson, and from there on Archie was the complete master. Although Henderson was seeded two places behind Whitaker, there are many that are favoring him in the forthcoming meeting. At any event, it will be a tight battle and will contain many a tense moment before either one emerges into the final.

Yesterday's results were:

Upperclass—third round: Gold over Stein 6-1, 6-4. Quarter-final: Abels over Gold 6-4, 6-3; Whitaker over Weinstein 8-10, 6-4, 6-0; Henderson over Singer 6-1, 6-3.

Freshmen—third round: Berg over Brous 6-3, 6-4. Quarter-final: Bartelman over Berg 7-5, 7-5. Semi-final: Robinson over Foreman 7-5, 3-6, 6-1.

House Urges Frosh To Do More Writing

"Last Monday I stressed the importance of reading," said Dean R. B. House, speaking to freshmen at assembly yesterday. "Today I want to suggest that you do a little writing—some writing of your own.

"Writing is a test of whether or not one sees what he is looking at, actually comprehends what he is hearing, and has in mind what he thinks he has."

Dean House suggested that students carry notebooks in which to set down what goes on in their minds and what they think about things that occur daily.

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: Charles Hudson, Leroy Percy, Louis Riccardi, George Rowe, Walter Buffey, and Sue Jenkins. It was necessary for W. C. Lewis, who was in an automobile accident Friday, to go to Durham in order that he may be X-rayed at Watts Hospital.

ORIGINAL MUSIC COMEDY

The Carolina Playmakers' 1934 bill of plays has been tentatively outlined to include Karel Capek's "R. U. R." which will open at the theatre tomorrow night, a new Paul Green play, entitled "The Enchanted Maze," an original musical comedy, two original plays, and a Forest theatre production of "Hamlet."

On the second bill of the season, the Playmakers will present a world premier of "The Enchanted Maze," a comic drama of American university life, by Paul Green. Mr. Green is now working on the play and expects to give it in New York this season after its production here. In collaboration with the musical department the Playmakers will present an original musical comedy. Carl Thompson and Joe Brown, former musical comedy actor and now a student in

BANKERS WARNED AGAINST INACTION

Recovery Program with Liberal Doctrines Supported.

Washington, Oct. 23.—(UP)—Formally opening the sixtieth annual convention of the American Bankers association, Francis M. Law, president, warned that the nation would not tolerate a do-nothing program from its financiers.

He pledged the co-operation of the banker's board with a recovery program based on "liberal business doctrines and rational humanitarianism."

At the same time he warned that the depression is not ended and said, "There would be no greater mistake than for us to preach untempered or undue optimism."

U. S. FLYERS BOW TO DUTCH RACERS

U. S. Flyers Lose Neck and Neck Race with Dutch for Second Place in Air Meet.

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 23.—(UP)—In a dramatic air battle on the homestretch waged by American and Holland entries, the United States fought the Netherlanders down a rain-soaked country-side for second place in the Mildenhall England-to-Melbourne Australia race.

Both teams grounded. Rushing desperately to take to the air again in the final dash, the Americans were forced into a landing at Bourke, New South Wales.

Forced Landing

They hit the ground at 9:00 o'clock this morning, which is 6:00 o'clock in the afternoon eastern standard time.

Reason for the forced landing was a minor motor trouble. It put the Americans in the position of lacking 500 miles of overhauling the Netherland team, which was flying an American-built Douglas air-liner.

The Dutch plane bogged down in Albury, Australia, two miles from Melbourne. The team left at 9:54 o'clock this morning, which is 6:54 o'clock in the afternoon eastern standard time.

The second prize is about $6,000. The third prize is $2,000. The first prize of $40,000 was won by the British flyers.

Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn are piloting the American machine in the race.

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 24.—(UP)—The Dutch entry in the England to Australia air race arrived in Melbourne at 2:50 o'clock this morning to finish second. The time for the flight was 94 hours, 47 minutes, and 30 seconds; this time is unofficial, however.

FACULTY TO GET COPIES OF FIRST MAGAZINE ISSUE

Publications Board Discontinues Salary of Finjan Managing Editor.

COPIES FOR ALUMNI TOO

The Publications Union board voted yesterday to send each member of the faculty a complimentary copy of the first issue of the new Carolina Magazine, provided there are sufficient extra copies.

Any copies that still remain will be mailed out to a list of prominent alumni, which will be drawn up by Maryon Saunders.

Salary Discontinued

The board also voted to discontinue the small salary formerly paid to the managing editor of the humor magazine, acting upon the suggestion of the business manager of the Finjan.

The art editor of the comic magazine will continue to draw a salary of $2.50 an issue.

Editor Reminded

In order to insure co-operation between the Finjan and its board of censors the board ruled that the expense of resetting any material which is set up without the censors' approval, on which it is desired to change, will have to be borne by the editor.

Decision on the number of complimentary copies to be given to the editors and assistants on the University publications was postponed until the next meeting.

Well-Known Violinist And His Wife Visit Hill And University

Are Impressed by Beauty of Town and Campus.

"You don't know who Leopold Auer was? Well, I don't know who your Guy Lombardo is, either; so I suppose we are even." Youthful-appearing 50-year-old Alexander Bloch, violin concertinist, conductor, composer, and former pupil of the celebrated Russian violinist Auer smiled warmly as he spoke to the DAILY TAR HEEL reporter yesterday.

Bloch and wife, a concert pianist, who were both born in Alabama and since their marriage have lived in New York City and Hillsdale, N. C., were in Chapel Hill Sunday through yesterday visiting their friends, Mrs. A. C. Burnham and H. F. Frink, both of whom they knew in Hillsdale.

Leave for Atlanta

They left today for Atlanta, on a tour of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, and Florida, a tour which, they say, "is partly business and partly pleasure."

The musician, who has composed songs, a successful children's operetta, and a number of technical studies for the violin, plans to spend the winter with Mrs. Bloch in Sarasota, Fla.

Mrs. Bloch, who, just as she says, "manages her husband's interviewers for him," spoke of Carolina students and the campus as being "fine." "Your stadium is impressive and your library beautiful," added Bloch.

Piccards on Stratosphere Flight To Study Cosmic Rays.

Cadiz, Ohio, Oct. 23.—(UP)—Dr. Jean Piccard and his wife landed in a wood near here this afternoon after a stratosphere flight today. They were in the air seven hours and 38 minutes.

The scientists took off at 6:57 o'clock this morning at Dearborn, Michigan. They flew a distance of 200 miles. The balloon landed in a tree. It is believed that the Piccards gathered valuable information on cosmic rays.

JAPAN DEMANDS NAVAL EQUALITY

Delegates from U. S., Great Britain, and Japan Meet in First Of Parleys in London.

London, Oct. 23.—(UP)—The Japanese at the opening session of the naval parleys now in progress here warned that Japan not only intends to abrogate the Washington naval treaty of 1922, but demanded that the powers recognize Japan's equal rights to protect her national security.

The Japanese delegates to the conferences indicated strong terms such as the recognition of essential preliminary negotiations for the new naval agreement with the United States and England.

1935 Conference

The conferences now being held are intended to pave the way for the 1935 naval conference. Indications are that the parley will turn in to a free for all naval building race.

The conferences at this time are among delegates from the United States, Great Britain, and Japan only. The delegates from all three countries to the tripartite talks hoped highly for their successful termination, but these hopes were offset by the vast differences in the respective programs of the countries.

LATE BULLETIN

"Football Card" Promoters Make Usual Week-end Killing

Gambling Racketeers Take Estimated Profits of $250,000 in New York City; Navy-Columbia Upset and Detroit-Villanova Tie Ruin Betters' Chances of Winning.

New York, Oct. 23.—(UP)—The "football card" boys, operators of one of the rawest rackets connected with the gridiron or any other sport, made another nice killing this week-end.

Of the probable million dollars that changed hands in various forms of football gambling in the New York area alone, it was estimated conservatively that the card boys looped off a cool quarter-million.

This $250,000 is good money indeed for the "wise guys" to collect largely from city slickers with a racket that makes the old shell game look like matching pennies in Sunday school. It proves again how right Mr. Barnum was when he established his headquarters in the metropolis.

The Navy game was a godsend for the card boys. But they have godsends every week. In fact they anticipate godsends when they list 15 hair-line games from which the suckers are allowed to make their selections.

Borries Cut Profits

Concerning the Columbia-Navy game, it is recalled that just a week ago today Buzz Borries, Navy's ace halfback, was sniffling around Annapolis with what the academy physicians diagnosed as catarrhal fever. Borries was bundled promptly into the infirmary. There he

TULL'S CONDITION STILL UNCHANGED

Doctors Refuse to Predict Outcome; Blood Transfusions Administered Yesterday.

Montrose Tull, 29-year-old Chapel Hill air pilot, lay critically injured last night in Rainey Hospital, Burlington.

Tull was rushed to the hospital late Monday afternoon after the airplane in which he was flying to Winston-Salem, crashed between here and Burlington.

Serious Injuries

The pilot suffered from broken leg bones, a broken nose, broken arm, lacerated face and extreme shock. He was given several blood transfusions yesterday. Doctors would not predict the outcome of the treatments.

Tull who has been flying passengers and teaching here for the past six years had just received his commission to the United States air corps. He had planned to fly to Washington after leaving Winston-Salem, his first stop-over. He was a graduate of Brooks training school and held a reserve air corps commission in addition to his commercial license.

Farmer Was Eye-Witness

The farmer who reached the pilot after the crash explained that the plane was passing over his farm when the motor went dead. The plane began a slow glide when presently the motor picked up. Tull evidently "gave her the gun" but it soon went

PARAGRAPHICS

The magazine staff moved its desk from the Finjan office down to the Women's Association room. Kind of half a cousin of one and sex of the other.

Now that public enemy number one is done away with, number two can skip up a notch.

If everybody else talks about the President like Mr. Hanes did, the national executive won't even know whom he can bank on.

Snags in The Pool

As it has been pointed out in these columns before, it is fairly obvious that neither the state legislature nor the University itself nor interested alumni will be able to subscribe to a fund for the proposed addition to our campus, a new swimming pool. But a different angle to the financial side of the pool drive has developed, an angle which, although the students who inaugurated the campaign probably did not think of it immediately, is now considered, with the PWA suggestion, the most potent of the several planned methods of raising the money.

This method would be the accumulation of a fund by definite student contributions, administered through the University business office by adding to the student fees paid at the beginning of each quarter. Students who have brought out this plan recently state that if this could be arranged, credit could be obtained on the security of the student collections so that work on the project could be started immediately and the debt paid off in the course of a few years, with the students receiving the benefits of the pool in the meantime.

Nevertheless, despite the seemingly apparent ease of this plan toward the desired end, there are several serious snags. In the first place, it is extremely doubtful that the board of trustees would approve of an addition to the student fees; in the second place, in the event that it did approve, there would be the difficulty of obtaining money on credit with merely the security of future fee collections from the students. In the third place, who would be responsible for the debt? There is little possibility that the University, hard pressed as it is, would care to become a holder of an additional debt of around $135,000, regardless of the apparent security of future student payments. Then, too, the University, as a state school, technically is not allowed to hold property in this manner.

On the other hand, the plan offers definite advantages. If it goes through, the cost to the students will be much less than what is now charged for the use of neighboring pools which, on the whole, are unfit for use. Then, too, it will be a public University pool offering privileges to all students paying fees and also allowing ample opportunity for the development of a swimming team in this school.

If the mentioned difficulties can be worked out, the plan should be easily administered and should prove satisfactory in every way. But it is highly problematical that any one of the snags can be removed under the present conditions surrounding the University.

On the Straight And Narrow Path

Mother Nature, good old dame that she is, is coming to the rescue of the University and in her own simple way is doing a wonderful work in preserving the natural beauty of the University campus.

It seems that, as frosty fall comes on and sends a perpetual shower of acorns over the lawns, making walking over the "black jades" somewhat precarious, students HAVE to walk on the pathways. The danger of falling oak seed, also, places a premium on the undergraduates' heads, as it were, and chases the erring students from the bouncey turf. Not only these two grave dangers, but the pebble-like fruit of the old men of the forest can inflict plenty of punishment through a thin shoe sole.

If, therefore, we have been afraid to write in these columns about "students on the grass, alas," Nature gently comes along and pelts us with acorns and there we are.

Qualifying In Education

When the late Dr. Arch T. Allen was called from the departmental ranks to fill the vacancy of state superintendent of public instruction created by the appointment of Dr. E. C. Brooks to the presidency of State College, his choice expressed one school of thought in regard to the qualifications of the man for this particular office.

Dr. Allen was a man of great ability with an accurate knowledge of his post gained through direct experience in the department and his untimely death Saturday gives Governor Ehringhaus the big task of filling his post not only with a man as near Dr. Allen's personal ability as possible but also one whose experience qualifies him directly with the office.

There are apparent four distinct attitudes in educational circles taken toward the qualifications necessary for the position: one favoring a city school man, another a county school man, a third expressing favor of a successor from the department itself, and a fourth holding the view that the new superintendent should come from outside the ranks of public schools.

At any rate, Governor Ehringhaus is called upon for his first appointment to a vacancy during his regime. Interesting reports hint that he may be looking to the University for the man he wants. Drs. E. W. Knight and N. W. Walker, the latter head of the department of education here, have been prominently mentioned. Even President Frank Graham is believed by many to be the logical man, his advocates expressing the view that as a member of the state board of education and the council of the state he would be more valuable to the state than in his present capacity.

Eyes and Ears

Try as we could, looking under benches, behind alumni, and through the foliage of our lovely old oaks, we were unable to locate the newsreel cameraman during the Homecoming festivities. Nevertheless, we daresay he was present because we admit we didn't search in the locker rooms at Emerson or under the beds in Aycock.

Not being the "we-told-you-so" kind, we'll let our remarks be limited to the simple statement that it certainly was a wonderful week-end and fully worth the time which was spent upon it—especially getting the newsreel cameraman.

Surprise and Happy Birthday

The Finjan, which was once the Buccaneer but is now appearing under a cognomen not at all suggestive of the past, will not appear until October 31.

Quite as much a surprise to us as to the eager readers, we compliment the staff on being able to get it out at all, rather than condemn it for being late. After all the poor haggled editor and the forlorn business manager had to go through, it is a great wonder that the boys had the stamina to pull through with enough comic reserve left to publish the side-splitter.

The board of censors is performing nobly. It is hoped that the Publications Union board will amply compensate the censorial fellows for such inevitable maladies as writer's cramp, head-swimming, and abdominal complications caused by the intensity of bellowing at the jokes before censorship.

We Bet

Figures, which don't lie, tell us that over a million dollars a week is transferred from hand to hand each and every week in that great national institution known as "betting on college football."

Personally, we wouldn't think of laying filthy lucre on anything so flimsy as a college team's luck on the gridiron but we'll wager our spending money for this month and next that some unsuspecting Bronx expert is going to lose his new Essex Terraplane when Duke meets Carolina next month.

Around the Well

By VERMONT C. ROYSTER

Residing as we do in Cheltenham (Chelt-nam) Place just back of Dean House's new home, the domestic noises and kitchen odors of the household are wafted across our front porch. The other night as we were pondering weak and weary over a volume of Poe, we were startled back to our soul self by a horrible moaning sound that emanated from the upstairs. The effect was to make us slam the book in haste and sit quivering in sympathy for the soul so in agony. Could the burden of his new job have driven the Colonel to such desperation? It was some time before we realized that the groans did not come from a human soul but from a saxophone. Even now we sometimes wake up with a shiver and wonder if only in music the dean can find surcease from his trouble. O Iago, the pity of, Iago!

The dormitory whose destinies are presided over by Mayne Albright, et al, was the scene of a delightful poker game several nights ago. It was on of these intersectional games where one of the city boys of the north was taking on the provincial Tar Heels. As the game progressed into the wee, chill hours of the morning the Yank was losing heavily, and by the time the game ended he was as broke as Monday morning. Surprised and chagrined at the result of the intended-to-be prosperous evening, he arose sadly and moaned, "The north hasn't been able to beat you southerners since the Civil War."

Which shows the spirit of the U. D. C. in the younger generation.

Wandering into the inner sanctum of the Finjan yesterday, we tried to inveigle some pre-publication data out of its presiding deity but found ourself facing a morose individual who answered all our questions with unintelligible grunts. Nobody, it would seem, knows what the new child will be like except the printer because Pat wants to trick us into reading it. He gave us a nibble, however, by remarking that the size and shape will differ from the old Buc—an indication, we suppose, that if you can't be original in content you can at least use a new type. We suggested yellow ink on orange paper. If people don't see you when you're quiet, make a big noise.

was given the best of medical attention.

He was turned loose Wednesday, practiced a little on Thursday and Friday and actually played football Saturday. In fact he played so well that Navy beat Columbia 18 to 7. And the final whistle on that game at Baker Field piped down a nice mess of coconuts for the card operators. It blew flocks and flocks of cards right into the waste basket—cards on which suckers had picked the Rose Bowl victors of 1933 to submarine the Middies. Not that the operators would have lost money had Columbia won. They merely wouldn't have made so much.

The basic principle upon which the football card racket is operated is this: One loss or tie destroys your card and you lose the entire amount with which you backed your judgment, regardless of how many other winners you picked.

During the week the operators give you a card. You must make selections on at least six games, and you have the privilege of trying as many more games as you wish—up to the total 15 listed.

If you bet one dollar that you pick six out of six correctly—always remembering that you lose on ties—and if by some freak of fortune your six teams do win, you score 10 points, and get back $10. The more you pick the more you score if they all come in. Fifteen right out of 15 brings $150 for $1.

Speaking of ties, that Detroit-Villanova result also played a merry tune on the operators cash registers. Unquestionably thousands picked either Detroit or Villanova to win. These cards also were swept into the waste basket. And so on.

One young salesman of the cards specializes in newspaper offices. Let's call him Louie.

"Our worries were over early yesterday," Louie explained tonight. "Just as soon as Navy won, we knew we were away off the nut. All the other games could go on form, and we were safe. Everybody picked Columbia. Then when Villanova tied Detroit, we knew we had cleaned up."

And how many, on an average does Louie pay off each week?

The Pay Off

"Oh, anywhere from nobody to 30 or 40. I'll probably have more this week than last. Can't say for sure until tomorrow morning, but I know a few guys who dodged Villanova and Navy. Maybe their sizes didn't cover anything but form games that lived up to form.

"Last week I only had to pay off on five cards. Listen, I plant-

Coach Snavely Works Grid Outfit Long On Offense

Tar Heels Look Ragged In Kentucky Game; Fear Wolfpack.

Coach Carl Snavely spent almost all yesterday afternoon drilling the Tar Heel gridsters on offense in preparation for what the Carolina mentor feels will be one of the toughest games on the schedule, the battle with State here Saturday.

Carolina's offensive showing against Kentucky last week was rather disappointing to Coach Snavely. Except for the first quarter, the Tar Heels were clearly outplayed by the Wildcats.

Varsity Carries Ball

The first string worked with the ball most of the afternoon against the reserves. Bill Moore, end, was the only varsity star who didn't get into action, although Jim Hutchins and Hump Snyder both took it easy as a result of injuries.

With Hutchins and Snyder, the ace blockers, out, the Tar Heels found difficulty in making their plays click. However, Charlie Shaffer and Mac Bell, subbing at fullback for Hutchins, got off some nice runs for gains.

Shaffer in Long Run

In a short scrimmage on the field, the varsity managed to drive for one touchdown, Shaffer sweeping around end for some 30 yards and crossing the goal line standing up.

Carolina will have a chance to take undisputed lead in the Big Five race Saturday as its biggest rival, Duke, will be playing Tennessee. On the other hand, the Wolfpack would like nothing better than to put their sister institution out of the race. Carolina came out on top in last year's tilt in the mud, 6-0.

Ray Rex, 200-pound sprint man at fullback, will probably be the biggest worry for the home team. Last year Rex was the only back who was successful in gaining against the Tar Heels and he averaged about four yards a try.

LEADING SYSTEMS WILL MEET AGAIN IN FOOTBALL TILT

Notre Dame and Warner Styles As Coached by Anderson and Snavely Will Clash.

CLOSE GAME IS EXPECTED

The revival of the Carolina-State family feud here Saturday will write a new chapter into the age-old but ever-interesting argument as to the respective merits of the Warner and Notre Dame systems.

The new coaches, Carl Snavely of Carolina and "Hunk" Anderson of State, are disciples of Warner and Rockne, respectively, and rank with the leading exponents of the two most-used systems in football.

Snavely has been making open war on the Notre Dame-ites this year. The Tar Heels already have upset Harry Mehre and the Georgia Bulldogs and taken the measure of Chet Wynne and the Kentucky Wildcats.

Perfect Record

If they could do the same thing against State Saturday, Snavely would have a perfect record against the three teams on Carolina's schedule which use the Notre Dame system.

However, a victory over State is admittedly quite a lot to hope for. Anderson, who is just out of Notre Dame one year, had a big, well-drilled, and potentially powerful squad that must be re-

FROSH GRIDSTERS SHOW FINE FORM

Yearlings Demonstrate Plenty of Stuff in Practice; Burnette Looks Like a Star.

The Tar Babies yesterday gave promise of putting up a great fight against the ranking N. C. State Wolflets this Friday evening at Greensboro.

Although their practice at Emerson field consisted of nothing more than drills on passing, kicking, and play formation, they showed enough fight and precision to intimate that their coming battle with the strongest freshman team in the history of State, would probably turn out to be the outstanding yearling game of the season.

Burnette Looks Good

Tom Burnette, erstwhile frosh halfback, seems likely to be one of the most prominent first-year backfield men in the south. His kicking, passing and running form, pretty near perfect, stamps him as a comer well schooled in football tactics.

Yesterday Burnette practically stole the show by his display of punting, a la Shaffer. He consistently sent high punts booming down the field, averaging 50 yards.

Hoffer and George Graves also showed Coach James that his team had more than one kicker capable of punting a respectable distance. These two boys who have been coming along slowly, showed their improvement by getting off long quick kicks, and with more drilling they should be able to fill the punting assignments of Burnette, in case of an injury.

Burnette, Hoffer, Graves and Oliver have all given notice of their passing adeptness, and they have helped considerably in building up the powerful aerial attack that Coach James has developed.

Eight Carolinians On Football Team

Barclay, Kahn, Buck Only Gridsters That Are Not Native.

Seven of the 11 men who are playing on the University of North Carolina's first string team are North Carolina boys, and an eighth is a South Carolinian with family connections in this state.

Of the team that started the Kentucky game last week, only the guards, Captain George Barclay and Eddie Kahn, and the left end and tackle, Dick Buck and Jim Tatum, are from out of the state.

Tatum, who is from McColl, S. C., is a nephew of W. D. Carmichael, formerly of Durham, who is now vice-president of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., and whose two sons, Billy and Cart, won fame as basketball players here.

The number-one backfield is an all-Tar Heel affair listing Herman Snyder from Monroe, blocking back; Dick Dashiell of Chapel Hill, and Charlie Shaffer of Greensboro, halfbacks; and Jim Hutchins, of Winston-Salem, fullback.

The other men holding down regular berths are Babe Daniel of Charlotte, center; Tom Evins of Oxford, tackle; and Odell Childers of Rockingham, end.

Finjan Promised

The first issue of the Finjan will appear October 31, Editor Pat Gaskins announced yesterday.

WATCH THESE BIG BAD WOLVES

Here are a couple of State backs who may prove very dangerous to the Tar Heel hopes in the battle scheduled for Kenan stadium Saturday. Ray Rex, on the left, is one of the biggest men on the squad, but is also probably the fastest. Rex drove through Carolina's line at about five yards a try last year and is supposedly better than ever this season, his final. Venice Farrar, right, is the big boy who looked good at tackle last year but who now is even better in the backfield. He scored the winning touchdown in the State-South Carolina tilt a couple of weeks ago.

Whitaker And DeGray Win In Tennis Tourney

Henderson Drops Hard Battle; Semi-Final Round Reached.

Myers Whitaker, in the upperclass division, and Eddy De Gray in the freshman group, both advanced one notch closer to the tennis crown, with victories in the sole matches played yesterday.

Whitaker paced the upperclass men into the final, by virtue of a sparkling three set defeat of Archie Henderson in a match that produced the most sensational rallies of the tournament to date. Both boys packed wicked forehands and alternated throughout the contest in driving each other about the court. Whitaker's spinning placement drives and his sureness in finishing a volley, proved the margin of superiority between the two.

Henderson Gets Jump

The match opened with Henderson setting the pace by annexing the first two games in short order. In breaking Whitaker's service, Henderson won at love and for a moment it appeared as if he was well on his way to victory. However, Whitaker crashed through his oppont's service by a similar love score and then went on to even the set at 2-all by holding his service in the longest and most thrilling game of the entire tourney.

The count was deuced ten times before Whitaker could put the winning marker away. After Henderson took the following game, Whitaker blasted the next four games and set with a withering assortment of offensive drives that bewildered Henderson.

Henderson Gets Set

The second set began in the same manner and Henderson jumped into a two game advantage. Whitaker braced, taking his own service, but failed to hold and Archie ran out the set at 6-3.

With the start of the deciding set, it was evident that Whitaker was headed for victory. A tired opponent, with a gradually softening service that lacked the necessary punch, was gamely batting the ball back, and Whi-

ROWE DRILLS MIT TEAM IN TIN CAN

Boxing Mentor Spends Most of His Time on Yearlings; Wants More Frosh.

With the smell of resin in the air, the humming of punching bags bouncing off the backboards, and the sounds of grunts coming from those hitting the heavy bags, the Tin Can has assumed an atmosphere of a boxing training camp.

Coach Rowe is spending most of his time instructing the freshmen to feint, jab, and advance. He is working diligently with these boys who are already showing signs of improvement, and the mentor wants still others to report.

No Experienced Frosh

Due to the lack of experienced aspirants, those interested in securing places on the freshman team will find that they have an excellent chance to earn their numerals. Some men who have never donned a glove before will probably prove to be valuable material.

The routine being followed by the novice class consists of limbering up exercises, mass boxing, and shadow boxing. Each boy is given careful individual supervision by Coach Crayton Rowe. This plan will proceed so that the mitmen will know something about boxing before entering the ring. When they do enter it, their faults will be noted and corrected.

This work will provide potential intramural champions ample opportunity to get into good shape, and it will enable them to secure valuable information, which may prove beneficial to them later on.

JOHNNY LONG TO PLAY FOR CO-ED DANCE FRIDAY

The co-ed dance for this quarter will begin at 9:00 o'clock Friday night in the Tin Can.

Johnny Long and his Duke Collegians will furnish the music. The script, for co-eds, will be 50 cents.

The co-eds will sponsor three dances during the year, one each quarter.

T. E. P. AND PIKAS WIN GRID GAMES

Old West Gets Victory by Using Sleeping End Trick on Aycock; Phi Delts and L. C. A. Lose.

Three excellent games featured yesterday's session in the intramural tag football campaign as T. E. P. downed Phi Delta Theta, 14-0, Pi Kappa Alpha triumphed over Lambda Chi Alpha, 7-0, and a sleeping end play brought Old West a last period 6-2 victory over Aycock.

Though outgaining the opposition seven to three in first downs, the Phi Delta Theta team lacked the punch to push across any tallies and fell 14-0 before the T. E. P. gridmen. Len Eisenberg and Mort Ellisberg accounted for all points, the former scoring one touchdown and the latter being credited with the other and both extra points.

Final Period Score

Lambda Chi Alpha and the Pikas fought an even contest which was unsettled until the final setto when a touchdown by Fawcette and a conversion by Bullock gave the latter a 7-0 victory. Both teams displayed good form, with the losers gaining a four to two edge in first downs.

Old West succeeded in working the sleeping end play on the Aycock defense, and a pass from Horne to McNair sent the oval across for the only touchdown late in the game. The losers fought back hard to make up the deficit, but the only scoring they could register came when Ginsberg downed an Old West back behind the lines for a safety. The winners took first down honors five to four.

Harriers Will Make 1934 Debut Against State in Preliminary To Football Contest.

CHANCES APPEAR GOOD

Harry Williamson to Lead Large Group of Lettermen Into Action; Several Sophs.

The Carolina cross country team meets N. C. State's runners here Saturday morning in the Tar Heels' debut of a season which holds much promise for success.

Little or practically nothing is known of the Wolfpack squad. Cross country is quite a new sport at the Raleigh school and has not developed as fast as possible. Last season the Ranson runners met the State Collegians and turned in a perfect race, scoring the least possible points, 15.

Seasoned Stars

Coach Ranson will have working for him this season a group of well seasoned runners, all who have taken the required distance in good time and fine style. Last season Duke was the only opponent who could underscore the Tar Heels and this year the Devils are considerably weaker than last. The harriers are attempting a hard, full schedule, but hold prospects for a fine year.

Harry Williamson will captain this crew. Williamson, ranked among the first few of the nation's milers, is one of the best runners ever under the Blue and White.

Other Aces

Accompanying him among the letter group are Ed McRae, Ed Waldrop, Haywood Curlee, Louis Conte, and Fab Haywood. McRae was co-captain of last year's

SOPHOMORE HOP SET FOR NOV. 10

Date Is Only Tentative Due to Its Drawbacks; Committee Wants Class Opinion.

The question of the annual sophomore hop was the main topic of discussion at the meeting of the second year class executive committee meeting in Gerrard hall yesterday morning.

Several difficulties have presented themselves in connection with the dance. The chief problem that confronts the committee is the selection of a desirable date. The choice is rather limited because of the number of dances already arranged.

Considered Best Date

After discussing the possible dates at length the committee decided that the best date open is the week-end of November 10, two weeks from Saturday.

There are several drawbacks to this date, according to members of the dance committee. The greatest is the fact that the Carolina football team is playing in Davidson at this time and a number of the students will want to attend the game.

The executive committee requested that a statement of the facts be run in the DAILY TAR HEEL so that the date set can be commented upon by the members of the class.

Number Is Undecided

At present the committee is not certain as to whether a set of dances can be given or whether only one can be given. This will depend upon the condition of the class treasury.

In case there is only enough money to give one dance there is the problem of whether to give it Friday or Saturday night. It is thought that by giving it on Friday the boys going to the football game in Davidson will be able to attend. On the other hand it is thought the boys will be able to arrange their dates better if the hop is staged Saturday night.

Comments Desired

This is how the problem stands at present. Comments on the part of any member of the class are invited. If any sophomore wishes to offer a suggestion he may do so by speaking to any member of the executive committee. Julian Warren is chairman of the dance committee.

There will be another meeting of the committee Thursday of this week to make a final and binding decision. If there is anyone who has anything to say about the matter he must do so before this time.

conference track team and a great miler. Waldrop broke into the headliners at the S.I.C. meet when he upset all dope to win the two-mile affair over the favored Bird and Dunaj.

A fine group of rising sophomore material will also improve the standings of the team. The cake race winners last season, Graham Gammon, Marvin Allen, and Bob Gardiner, lead this new bunch. Jack Bower has steadily improved until he has placed himself among the leaders, followed by Marcus Aderholt, and Jack Lynch.

Yesterday all the men took a strenuous workout for probably their last real hard practice until the first meet. Each man worked over the shorter and the longer distances, ranging from the half-mile to the five mile grind. The whole team seemed to be in fairly good condition and is ready for the Wolfpack. this week-end.

SUMMER SCHOOL ENROLLED 1,592

Georgia Sent Most of Out-of-State Students; Graduates Outnumber All Others.

Total enrollment for the two terms of summer school this year was 1592 students, according to data released yesterday by Ben Husbands, associate registrar.

Of the 1592 students enrolled this summer, 858 were men and 734 women. The first term 943 registered, and 649 were enrolled the second term.

Orange County Leads

Individuals enrolled included 905 from North Carolina, 248 from other states, two from Cuba, two from Persia, and one from Panama.

Georgia led the out of state enrollment with 39, followed by South Carolina with 38, Virginia with 26, and New York with 25. Orange county led the counties with 71; Guilford was second with 56; and Durham was third with 43.

The graduate students numbered 501, almost half the total enrollment. The school of liberal arts had 474 and the school of commerce enrolled 115.

The crash occurred between 5:00 and 6:00 o'clock in the afternoon. Tull remained unconscious until yesterday morning when he gained semi-consciousness.

spected by any opponent.

With Duke, Davidson, and Wake Forest playing out of the state, the Carolina-State game, which will decide the team to fight it out with Duke for the title, will have the Big Five stage to itself, and is expected to draw the largest crowd of the present season here.

Veterans Return

The vets on the two clubs will be taking up where they left off in Raleigh last year, when Carolina won a dogged contest game, 6-0. All except one lineman who started the game for State that day are back, plus Ray Rex, 215-pound fullback, and several good reserves.

Carolina offers identically the same line from tackle to tackle, and has six of the nine backs who worked the game, including Herman Snyder, who started at full, Charlie Shaffer, who led the ground-gainers, Don Jackson, who had the 60-yard touchdown run called back, and George Moore, who scored the one touchdown.

With both clubs packing such an array of veterans and stars, Saturday's game is due to make and break all-state hopes. Among the outstanding candidates are Captain George Barclay, Shaffer, Snyder, Kahn, and Tatum of Carolina and Rex, Farrar, Redding, Isaacs, and Stanko of State.

Going, Going, Gone

Bull's Head to Hold Auction Week Before Thanksgiving.

The regular auction of second-hand books from the Bull's Head bookshop will come off during the week before the Thanksgiving holidays, it was announced yesterday.

Several outstanding new books have been added to the bookshop's shelves: "New Frontiers" by Henry A. Wallace, "The Taking of the Gry" by John Masefield, "Best Plays for 1933-34," edited by Burns Mantle, "Appointment in Samarro" by John O'Hara.

Noel Coward's new "Conversation Piece" and "The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze," a collection of short stories by William Saroyam, are expected to arrive this week.

taker rose to the occasion, beating Henderson time and time again with well-directed putaways. Henderson did rally, in a futile gesture, and took two games while trailing at 5-1, to bring the score to 5-3. At this time the energetic Whitaker, applied pressure and pounded Archie's offerings to the corners, sweeping into the final on the crest of a brilliant string of victories.

De Gray Is Easy Win

Eddy De Gray, for several days in retirement, returned to the courts with a sweeping win over Seymore Fast by the impressive score of 6-1, 6-2. This match was a quarter-final encounter and sent the Brooklyn star into the semi-final, where he will give battle to Ray Bartelman tomorrow.

De Gray found little difficulty in solving Fast's game and sent his slicing drives past his opponent with his characteristic ease. The match would not have been as emphatic a victory as it was, if Fast had been able to control his shots. At times De Gray would be pressed to win the point but throughout the contest, it was Fast's constant errors that terminated the volleys.

Today, Byron Abels will fight it out with Johnny Dowd in the upper bracket and De Gray, as aforementioned, will meet Bartelman. Both matches have color and promise; with the former one, the more outstanding of the two.

With the tournament drawing to a close, the doubles competition is emerging and taking its place in the limelight. All combinations are again asked to sign on the bulletin board, regardless of the fact that they had placed their names there before. There will be no separate divisions and upperclassmen may combine with freshmen in an effort to take the title.

Infirmary List

The following people were confined to the infirmary yesterday: Charles Hudson, Louis Riccardi, Frank Bowen, Sue Jenkens, Manny Kirschner, Mrs. H. L. Riddle, Raymond Holt, Walter Buffey, George Rowe, J. I. Munyan, Morris Moore, Margaret Siceloff, and W. Y. Wilkens.

HOBBS DESCRIBES MANLY QUALITIES

Tells Freshmen Code of Manners May Be Acquired by Learning To Respect Others' Rights.

"Manners, religion, loyalty, knowledge, ambition—when you have acquired these qualities you will have become a man," declared A. W. Hobbs, dean of the college of liberal arts, concluding an address to the freshman assembly yesterday.

Ambition Needed

"You may acquire a code of manners by merely learning to respect the rights of others," said Dean Hobbs, who took his text from the Bible: "When I was a child I thought as a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child. But when I became a man I put aside childish things."

Dean Hobbs stressed the need for ambition among young people so that they may see their way clearly forward. With the acquirement of knowledge through study, he said, you will be better prepared for the way.

SORORITY SCORES HIGHEST GRADES HERE LAST YEAR

Chi Omega Leads All Fraternities in Scholastic Average; Sigma Delta Is Second.

S. A. E. WILL RECEIVE CUP

Chi Omega sorority, with a scholastic average of 2.41, led all the fraternities in scholarship for the year 1933-34, Dr. G. K. G. Henry, assistant University registrar, announced yesterday.

Sigma Delta placed second, with 2.62; but because the society is not a national fraternity, the men's fraternity scholarship cup was given to Sigma Alpha Epsilon, which scored 2.64, ranking third.

Basis of Rating

The scholastic averages were determined by counting grades on the basis of one point for a grade of "A," two for "B," three for "C," four for "D," five for "E," and six for "F."

Grades for 397 fraternity students were available in the fall quarter, 471 in the winter, and 547 in the spring.

The three leaders were followed in order by Chi Phi, Beta Theta Pi, Pi Beta Phi, and Sigma Phi Epsilon.

The fraternity average was 3.03, as compared with the academic or general average of 3.12, the upperclassman average of 3.05, and the freshman average of 3.37.

1932-33 Scores

In 1932-33 Sigma Delta, scoring 2.16, led the list; Pi Beta Phi, with 2.46, was second; and Tau Epsilon Phi, leading the national fraternities with 2.66, won third place.

Figures for the spring quarter, released for the first time yesterday, showed Chi Omega scored 2.41, Sigma Delta 2.65, and S. A. E. 2.57.

PROMINENT FLYER DIES YESTERDAY

Funeral of Montrose Tull to Be Held Today at Home of Parents in Kinston.

Montrose Tull, Chapel Hill air pilot, died at 12:03 o'clock yesterday morning in Rainey hospital, Burlington, as a result of injuries received when his plane crashed near Burlington late Monday afternoon.

Tull lingered in semi-consciousness from the time of the wreck until his death occurred, several blood transfusions failing to rally him sufficiently. Doctors reported that he had received several broken leg bones, a broken arm, broken nose, lacerated face and a fracture of the pelvic bone.

Funeral Today

Funeral services for the flyer will be held today at the home of his parents in Kinston. The Rev. Leland Cook, pastor of the Christian church of Kinston, and the Rev. Robert Brown of the Methodist-Episcopal church of that city will preside at the exercises.

Greater University 'Y' Units To Meet

Local Y. M. C. A. Will Be Hosts To Raleigh and Greensboro Groups Monday.

A joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A., and Y. W. C. A. cabinets of the Greater University of North Carolina will be held here Monday night, it was announced yesterday by Harry F. Comer.

Representatives from the Woman's college, from the Raleigh unit, and from the Chapel Hill branch will make up the assembly which will hold its meeting in the form of a campfire supper at the home of Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the University Y. M. C. A.

A similar joint cabinet meeting for the Greater University will be held each quarter during the year, Comer stated. The several branches of the University will alternate as hosts.

To Secure Speaker

Attempts are being made to secure President Frank Porter Graham or Dean R. B. House to speak at the convocation Monday.

The delegation from the Woman's college will be headed by Miss Lucy Crisp, general secretary of the Greensboro division. Horace Cotton, president of the State college "Y," and Ed King, general secretary of the Raleigh division, will lead the State aggregation.

This idea of a joint cabinet meeting of the Greater University is an outgrowth of President Graham's plan for the consolidation of the Greensboro, Raleigh and Chapel Hill units into the Greater University of North Carolina.

Hitler Unifies Control Of German Industries

Berlin, Germany, Oct. 24.—(UP)—Reichsuehrer Hitler tonight issued a decree urging all former trade unions and employers associations into one common labor front, thereby unifying the control of industry.

The purpose of this move is to induce the employers to understand the just demands of the employes and to make the employes realize the present disturbed economic situation facing them and the employers, thus eliminating labor conflicts.

The new labor front will assist all members of both sides in the emergency and will help them to acquire real estate. Entertainment will also be provided in the free time labor front, considered a branch of the Nazi party.

Delta Sigma Phi to Meet

The North Carolina chapter of Delta Sigma Phi, honorary commerce fraternity, will meet tonight at 8:00 o'clock in Graham Memorial for a smoker.

Bids for the fall quarter co-ed ball will be placed on sale today from 10:00 to 11:00 and from 3:00 to 6:00 o'clock in 108 Graham Memorial, it was announced yesterday by Betty Durham, president of the Woman's association.

Tomorrow invitations may be secured from 9:30 to 11:00 and from 2:00 to 5:00 o'clock in Graham Memorial. In former years co-eds have been limited to two bids each but this year they may buy as many as they wish at 50 cents apiece.

Long to Play

Johnny Long and his Duke Collegians will supply the rhythm for this first co-ed dance of the year tomorrow night from 9:00 to 1:00 o'clock in the Tin Can. The dance will be formal.

Bill Allsbrook and his Carolina club orchestra, who are now playing at the Tintilla Gardens in Richmond and broadcasting from there, furnished the music for the spring quarter co-ed ball last year.

The co-eds give one dance each quarter. The one Friday night will be followed by another in the winter and one in the spring quarter. The co-eds buy their bids and invite their escorts to the affair.

Heath Stresses Need Of Knowing Economics

"The economist must understand thoroughly the tools of thought which are available for work in his field," Milton S. Heath said yesterday evening in addressing the economic seminar with a paper on the "Role of Economic History in Theory."

Heath stated that the burden upon economic theorists has increased tremendously during the last century as a result of the growth in complexity and scale of economic phenomena, and because of the weakening of reliance upon tradition and customary behaviors as guides to social actions.

"Though clarity is of greater importance than ever, simple systems that are easy to devise and teach are becoming of more doubtful value each day," the speaker said.

Ready, easy-going, uncritical reliance upon various methods, just because they have long been pursued, is inexcusable, Heath stated, pointing out that no contention is made that history has a value for social theory.

UNIVERSITY CLUB TO MEET

The University club will meet tonight at 7:00 o'clock in the club room in Graham Memorial.

Money for Yackety Yack pictures is due tonight, and all those who have not paid their dues should do so at the meeting.

All members are requested to be present, as new members will be elected to replace those who have not attended meetings regularly.

Rainey Calls Meeting Today

There will be an important meeting of the sophomore executive committee this morning at 10:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall, it was announced yesterday by John Rainey, second-year class president.

LEAGUE TO HOLD MEETING TONIGHT

Foreign Policy Group Formed Last Year Will Assemble for First Meeting of Quarter.

The Student Foreign Policy league will hold its initial meeting for the 1934 fall quarter tonight at 7:15 o'clock in 215 Graham Memorial.

The purpose of this group, which was formed last year, is to organize and make articulate student opinion on matters pertaining to the foreign policy of our government.

Student Expression

Opportunity will be given all students who attend these meetings to express their views in regard to the relations of the United States government with the governments of foreign nations.

The league does not aim at discussion alone, however. After discussion of the matter in question, the group will make a decision as to whether steps should be taken to press the views held by the organization upon those in authority.

Against Propaganda

Through debate and publication, the league attempts to combat the propaganda of interested groups, by seeking to bring to public notice the facts of the situation or problem in question.

One of the more important of the other aims of the group is the exchange of opinions and ideas with leagues and similar organizations in the state and nation.

League officers last year were: Ralph Gardner, president; Jack Pool, vice-president; and Robert Page, secretary.

The roll of the league last spring was: John Acee, Agnew Bahnson, John Barrow, Don Becker, Bill Eddleman, Albert Ellis, Ralph Gardner, William Garis, Ezra Griffin, John Gunter, Edwin Kahn, R. Langdona, Don McKee, Bob Page, Jack Pool, Reed Sarratt.

Jake Snyder, Noel Yancey, Paul Whitney, Lawrence Frank, Phil Kind, Charles Poe, Blucher Ehringhaus, Lewis Morris, Jack Dunn, W. M. Daniels, Brad White, S. W. Barefoot, Henry Darling.

Frank McGlinn, John Parker, Norman Kellar, J. D. Winslow, Phil Hammer, Herb Taylor, Bennie Carr, Frank Abernathy, Frank Kenan, Julian Warren, Vincent Whitney, and H. L. Bates.

JUDGES POSTPONE SELECTING TEAM

Candidates for Squad to Debate Oxford Narrowed to Five.

At try-outs for the University debating team in Graham Memorial Tuesday night, competition was so keen that Professors McKie, Olsen, and Woodhouse, acting as judges, decided to postpone picking a team.

The candidates were, however, narrowed down to five men, Durfee, Kirkpatrick, Kaplan, Russell, and Jordan. From these men will be selected the team which will meet a squad from Oxford University here on October 31.

CARROLL TALKS TODAY

Dean D. D. Carroll of the school of commerce will address freshman assembly this morning at 10:30 o'clock in Memorial hall, it was announced yesterday.

Bahnson Sets Deadline For Taking Photos

Senior and Junior Yackety Yack Pictures Due November 1.

All juniors and seniors who fail to have their Yackety Yack pictures taken before the deadline date, November 1, must forfeit the amount set aside in class fees for this service, according to Agnew Bahnson, business manager of the Yackety Yack.

All freshmen and sophomores who wish to have their pictures in the fraternity section must have them taken immediately.

All organizations are reminded of the fact that a ten per cent discount will be given on all bills paid before November 15.

Robot Radius' Revolt To Result In Revenge

Man's Successor to Appear in Memorial Hall Tomorrow At Chapel Period.

Man's successor will appear on the stage of Memorial hall tomorrow at chapel period, and will foretell the doom of mankind. Radius, the robot, although a machine, has become almost human in his desire for power, and plans a revolt against men and their subsequent destruction.

In his revenge against the cruel Dr. Gall, he is aided by a beautiful girl, who not only sympathizes with him but also loves him. In vain does she try to restrain Dr. Gall when he cuts off Radius' finger. She believes the robot to be human, but to Gall, Radius is only a machine.

The part of the girl will be played by Ellen Deppe; Radius the robot, Dave Lewis; Dr. Gall, Philip Parker. The curtain speech will be given by Carl Thompson.

This thrilling drama will be given its world premiere tomorrow, and will probably never be presented again. This is the one and only chance for the people of Chapel Hill to see this great play, in which the finger of the robot is actually chopped off in full view of the audience. This and many other thrills await the unsuspecting audience of the assembly.

Jones Warns Bankers To Co-operate Fully

Washington, Oct. 24.—(UP)—Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, today assured the American Banker's association that the economic storm has passed and warned them that unless they co-operate fully in the recovery program, the government will go further into the lending business.

Although many financiers believe that the wide breach between the administration and the bankers has been spanned, the more conservative members of the group are withholding their opinions until they hear President Roosevelt's views before the convention tonight.

SENIOR GROUPS TO POSE

All charter members of the University club who are seniors this year, and all members of the senior committee on freshman orientation are reminded that pictures of these groups will be taken this morning in front of Manning hall at 10:30 o'clock.

'R. U. R.' TO OPEN CURRENT SEASON OF PLAYMAKERS

Comedy of Mechanical Men to Be Presented Tonight, Tomorrow, and Saturday.

SPECIAL SCENES ARRANGED

Karl Capek's "R. U. R." opens tonight at the Playmakers theatre at 8:30 o'clock.

The fantastic comedy of mechanical men will be the first production of the Carolina Playmakers for the current season. The show is billed for three nights: tonight, tomorrow and Saturday night.

Special Scenery

"R. U. R." is one of the most unusual plays the Playmakers have ever attempted, according to Frederick H. Koch, director. Wilbur Dorsett and Henry Pearson have succeeded in creating scenic effects that mark the play's modernistic effect. The twelve robots, spectacular in their futuristic settings, are mechine-made men who act like humans.

The revolt of these mechanical men upon their inventors is hair-raising melodrama, and the story of man's probable annihilation and his fight to perpetuate human life is a convincing social satire.

Spann Plays Lead

Dr. Meno Spann, of the German department of the University, will play the male lead, Dormin. Helena Glory, daughter of the president of R. U. R., will be played by Ellen Deppe.

Officials of the company will be played by William Fletcher, Philip Parker, Pryor McFadden, Alan Waters, and Virgil Lee. Miss Sammie Ruth Bell plays Nana, Helena's maid.

PARAGRAPHICS

And nobody has yet nominated Will Rogers for our poet lariat.

This Saturday's game may turn out to be a battle of two units, but here's hoping it's just won.

Usually reputable daily turns up with calling Professor Heath's discussion "The Roll of Economic History in Theory." Not that Professor Heath called the wrong roll, but the DAILY TAR HEEL didn't answer to the right one.

Question And Answer

The whole idea of a swimming pool for the University, as impossible as it seems to us at this time, depends on the students themselves if it is to be, as suggested, financed through a loan on student fees. For that reason, the Di senate's resolution to "launch a campus-wide campaign to familiarize students with the bill" which it has passed, is a highly important and necessary way of going about arousing campus interest in the matter. The "campus-wide campaign" will take the form of a poll, we understand, conducted by questionnaire or some such similar means, which will give a cross-section of the willingness of students to make some small sacrifice (for it would entail a sacrifice) in order that the University might have a swimming pool.

Whatever our feelings on the matter, it must certainly be admitted that the Di is going about its purpose in the right way. If there is genuine sentiment in favor of the swimming pool coupled with a means to finance the project, it is reasonable to expect that even if the possibility of building a pool is remote at this time, the idea will eventually bear fruit.

Approval Of the Plan

Although efforts to inaugurate a student-faculty day began last spring and have continued uppermost in the minds of its originators since that time, little encouragement of their proposal was forthcoming until the faculty approved the plans for this observance and voted its sanction of it last Tuesday.

Now that this has been done, all disappointments should be forgotten, and in their place should grow a sincere desire to co-operate as a unit in the effort to make this novel feature of the University a success. Although a date has not been definitely set, it would be best to bear in mind the fact that preparations cannot begin too soon for what will eventually turn out to be a gigantic undertaking.

He's Got Your Number

If you were to wake Assistant Ben Husbands out of a sound sleep and ask him the number of women students from Florida in the graduate school, or what county has the most students in the school of applied science, the odds are heavily in favor of his giving you the correct answer almost as quickly as a ray of light can travel the length of a spade handle.

Before the year 1932-33, questions of this nature had to be answered by an exhaustive search through the files. Then Mr. Husbands, in the interests of efficiency, compiled a little supplement to the student list. It's called "The General Summary," and its title is no misnomer. If there is anything whatsoever that one wishes to know about who it is that's doing what, and where they're from, and how many of them there are, it's to be found in the Summary.

As the assistant registrar himself puts it, "these tables can have no great international significance. The destinies of nations will hardly be swayed on their account. However, it's just a little bit embarrassing to be asked a question that you can't answer, and that's why I compiled them."

At this point, it seems to us, we ought to make our best bow. Most people we know aren't in the least embarrassed by inability to answer a question; indeed, they seem to be rather complacent about it.

For a Rainy Day

Huey Long is up to his old tricks again. News reports from New Orleans depict the Kingfish passing out money to New Orleanians who promised to attend his big football party. An estimated $3,000 was handed out in "loans" of $7 and under, with more promised.

The money was supposed to go to Louisiana State (Huey's pet plaything at the present) students who were unable to pay their way on special trains to Nashville for the football game with Vanderbilt next Saturday, but when word of the manna from Huey spread over the city, men with gray whiskers, middle-aged women, all kinds of people who could never be mistaken for students, joined the line. And nothing was said about paying the money back.

Three thousand dollars would help a lot of boys through college, but the Kingfish sends half of New Orleans off to the football game instead. Doubtless the taxpayers in Louisiana realize that this money, so squandered, is coming out of their pockets, and doubtless they resent it. Such creation of ill will by the number one (according to Huey) politician of the country seems foolish, to say the least; but Huey thinks deeper than the surface. He intends to be in politics for a long time yet, and he knows that these same college boys will be the ones to keep him in office for years to come.

"Good-Will" And Fascism

Because students at the City College of New York protested a visit of Italian "good-will" students to its university, the administration of that institution went into action with the following results: five students were debarred from classes, eleven were suspended, the student council was suspended, a faculty investigation of the undergraduate newspapers was begun, and a freshman vigilante committee was established.

The administration had invited the Italian students to visit the school. When the spokesman of a student committee addressing the visitors started with "I bring a message to the enslaved and tricked student body of Italy," the committee was assaulted by members of the City College Italian club and private detectives with turmoil resulting. Five students were debarred from classes as a result.

The council was suspended because it protested the visit of the Fascist students; the eleven other students were suspended because they refused to answer questions put to them by Dean Gottschall. The newspapers are under investigation because they "attributed the disturbance to the administration in inviting the Fascists to the college against the express wishes of the student body.

The administration established a freshman "vigilante" committee to "purge the upperclassmen of their rowdyism."

The whole affair emphasizes the importance of allowing the American college student the privilege of expressing his own opinions on current movements.

We do not know how well informed the students of City College were with Fascism. But if reports were true, they knew enough to have established definitely their ideas to the extent that they resented what they thought was "administrative arbitrariness" in inviting the visitors against their will.

Choice of Superintendent

In the selection of Clyde A. Erwin as state superintendent of public instruction to fill the vacancy created on the death of Arch T. Allen, Governor Ehringhaus chose a representative whose experience embraces both county or town schools and the department itself.

Mr. Erwin, who attended the University in 1915, was chosen after a day of intense study and consultation on the part of the Governor. It is expected that his appointment will satisfy the different factions interested in the personnel at the head of this state department which has been the center of importance and some political quibbling in recent years.

Engine Failed

The engine of the new plane which he was flying failed twice at low altitudes and its pilot was unable to glide to safety. The farmer who soon reached the place of accident rushed the victim to the hospital in Burlington.

Parents Living

Tull is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Tull of Kinston; his widow, Mrs. Christine L. Tull of Chapel Hill; and by six sisters, all of Kinston: Rowena, Doris, Caroline, Winifred, Marion Tull, and Mrs. F. J. Ragland.

The young pilot was married July 15, 1933, in a big Ford trimotor monoplane flying a mile high over Charlotte. His wife was also an aviation enthusiast.

Tull was a graduate of the Brooks training school and held his Reserve air corps commission as well as his commercial license. He had lived in Chapel Hill 12 years.

Davidson alumni telegraphed their greetings to the University also. The Davidson telegram was signed by Joseph B. Johnston, superintendent of the Barium Springs orphanage and president of the Davidson alumni.

Dowd And De Gray Go To Finals In Net Tourney

Top-Seeded Abels Upset By Dowd in Battle; Finals Today.

Finals Are De Gray vs. Robinson, Dowd vs. Whitaker.

Both top-seeded stars swung into action yesterday, but whereas Eddy De Gray swept into the final by a 6-1, 6-1 rout over Ray Bartelman, Byron Abels, who topped the upperclass section, finally ran into a stone wall, and went down to defeat before the sound stroking of Johnny Dowd in two straight sets, 6-2, 7-5.

The Abels-Dowd match was Dowd all the way through, and Abels was in the struggle but once. The opening set was dominated by Dowd's brilliant play, as he kept the ball in play with remarkable control and a scarcity of errors. He broke Abels' service in the third game and then ran out the set, with the loss of but one more game.

Abels Gives Fight

The second set, although Dowd continued his fine play, witnessed a determined effort by Abels to stave off threatening elimination. Trailing at 2-0, he entered again into the struggle, by jumping into the lead with three consecutive games. This advantage was short lived as Dowd came back with sparkling strokes that sent him into a 5-3 lead.

With his back to the wall, Abels put new hope into his followers when he took his game at love and snapped Dowd's offerings to put himself once more into the thick of the battle. However, Dowd broke Abels' service and whipped through his own service to take the set and match.

In the other match played yesterday, Eddy De Gray simply swept Bartelman off the courts in his impressive win. De Gray sent his sweeping drives wherever he pleased, and Bartelman was pressed to the limit in an attempt to send them back, without a chance of ever opening up with his own offensive. De Gray seems to be improving as the tournament progresses and has gradually limited his opponents to less points in his advance toward the final.

Today he opens against Gene

YEARLINGS TAKE LAST HARD WORK FOR STATE GAME

Wolflets Recognized as Potential Foe for Jamesmen; Play in Greensboro Tomorrow.

TAR BABIES READY TO GO

As the day of the big game draws near, Emerson field is over-run with sweating Tar Babies, working hard and willingly taking in all the expert instruction that Coach James has to offer.

Apparently these football-minded yearlings seem destined to enter the fray, once again with the odds against them. Well-founded rumors have reached Chapel Hill concerning the goings-on of that stellar all-American back Berlinsky and his cohorts, who seem to think nothing of dominating the inter-class scrimmages by consistantly trimming the regular varsity aggregation.

Strong Wolflets

This squad of Wolflets, which meets the Carolina eleven at the Greensboro gridiron tomorrow evening at 8:00 o'clock, represents the foremost group of yearlings ever to take the field to uphold the name of our brother institution. They are a bunch of fast, heavy men, who have received special attention and drilling, due to the fact that "Hunk" Anderson will rely on them to form the nucleus of his next year's varsity, and that they will

STATE'S IRON MAN

Sabol has turned in quite an iron man stunt last year and this year. To date this season, he played every minute of State's four games except 30 seconds in the Florida game. Last year he played 525 consecutive minutes to set some kind of an endurance record. He was all-state and made the United Press all-southern.

Va. Cavaliers Go To Secret Drills

University, Va. Oct. 24.—Coach Gus Tebell closed the gates around the Cavalier football team today and prepared to give the eleven a week of hard work, all of which is scheduled as secret practice.

Yearling Harriers Get Ready For Run With State Frosh

The freshman cross country team began to work seriously yesterday afternoon for its coming meet with the State freshmen Saturday.

Only fairly well impressed with their showing as a whole in the recent cake race, Coach Dale Ranson sent them through a thorough work-out with several varsity men as supervisors.

The most promising prospects are Rivers and Davidson, who finished respectively first and second in the annual mural trot last week. Other men out for the squad are: Anderson, Bailey, Brown, Braxton, Bronitsky, Chaiken, Darden, D'Ascensio, Flynt, Garland, Gove, Jones, Manning, Morrison, O'Connell, Parnell, Pressly, Rabb, Wakely, and White.

MANLY EKES OUT CLOSE WIN WHILE LEWIS RUNS WILD

Manly Downs Grimes, 4-2, and Lewis Romps on Old East 55-0 in Highlights.

FOUR BATTLES FOR TODAY

Yesterday's session in the intramural tag football race provided an abundance of action with Manly winning a "pitchers' battle" from Grimes, 4-2, and Lewis swamping Old East, 55-0, in the outstanding contests.

The six-game schedule also saw Phi Sigma Kappa and A. T. O. fall from the ranks of the undefeated, and Swain Hall and Sigma Nu gain easy wins.

Manly Ekes Out Win

Without a doubt the Manly-Grimes setto was one of the roughest played in the intramural loop this season, with both teams fighting viciously throughout. The first half ended with the score knotted at 2-all as a result of kickers stepping behind the end zones to punt. However, with but a few seconds of play remaining, the Manly line broke through to drop on a loose ball behind the double stripe for Shaffer and Dashiell Make Long Runs Behind Superb Blocking of Teammates.

MOORE IS ONLY CASUALTY

Regular End May Not Participate in Game with State Wolfpack Saturday.

Charlie Shaffer and "Slippery" Dick Dashiell starred in the ball carrying role as the first string varsity ran five touchdowns past a freshman team in a tag scrimmage on Emerson field yesterday.

"Slippery" Dick took the ball on the first play and ran around the end for 60 yards behind the perfect blocking of his teammates. A freshman back ran him out of bounds about the 5-yard line; however, on the next play he carried the ball off tackle for the touchdown.

Charlie Shaffer accounted for two touchdowns a few minutes later—one on a long pass from Hutchins and another on a beautiful broken field run.

Barclay Scores

Captain Barclay made the last touchdown on a 25-yard jaunt with an intercepted pass. Babe Daniel kicked the extra point.

Shaffer may prove to be dangerous as a triple threat back. Besides his beautiful running and kicking, he displayed ability as a passer in yesterday's scrimmage.

The Tar Heels ran intact yesterday with the exception of Bill Moore, the regular end with the ailing leg. Moore is improving rapidly; however, it is doubtful if he will be ready for action against the Wolfpack Saturday.

RANSONERS READY FOR 'PACK MEET HERE SATURDAY

Tar Heel Cross Country Team Takes Final Hard Workout for Initial Race.

MEET TO BE IN MORNING

Under the scrutinizing supervision of Coach Dale Ranson, the varsity cross country squad went through a hard practice session yesterday afternoon in preparation for its opening run against the North Carolina State team Saturday morning.

Leading the Blue and White will be Captain Harry Williamson, who ranks among Carolina's outstanding trackmen, Edwin McRae, co-captain of last year's Southern Conference runner-up, and Ed Waldrop, two mile Southern Conference titlist.

Other members of the squad who are working at top speed before facing the snarling Wolfpack this week-end are Gammon, Gardner, and Allen, winners of the 1933 cake race, Haywood, Conte, Curlee, Lynch, Neel, Daniel, Aderholt, and Bower. All these men have been improving steadily in their daily workouts and promise to be at best form for the team's first match.

Manly Takes Close Win While Lewis Runs Wild

the victory. Grimes gained three first downs to Manly's two.

Lewis kept its record inviolate as it hammered away at the Old East defense to tally eight touchdowns, three extra points, and one safety, leading 27-0 at half time. It was Austin who carried the brunt of the attack for the winners, taking the oval across for five six-pointers and an extra. Touchdowns by Efland, Farrell, and Irwin, and conversions by Wiggins, Efland, and Cook accounted for the balance of the points. Lewis took four first downs while holding the losers to one.

After leading A. T. O., 7-6, at the intermission, the Phi Kappa Sigma eleven staved off whatever final threats their heretofore undefeated opponents might have put on by repushing the ball across late in the game for a 13-6 win. Barnhill and Queen tallied six-pointers, and Powell an extra for the victors, while Northcross went over for A. T. O.'s only marker. The winners led in first downs five to three.

It was a powerful Chi Psi eleven that sent Phi Sigma Kappa toppling from the select circle of unblemished records as the former scored in both periods to gain a 13-0 win. Despite the fact that the losers had only nine men in their lineup, they played brilliant ball, only losing out in first downs, five to four. Touchdowns by Freeman on a 35-yard run, Hagey via the pass route, with an extra point by Manley, accounted for the winner's scoring.

The strong Swain Hall gridsters kept up their fine record by taking Everett into camp, 12-0, as a result of touchdowns by Ruth and Fox in the opening half. Though outgained in first downs six to five, the winners were never in serious danger and breezed through the last stanza behind a comfortable lead.

After leading 18-12 at the mid-way mark, Sigma Nu stepped out and forced over two more tallies in the final half to send St. Anthony's nine-man-team down, 31-12. J. Bost led in the scoring for the victors with four touchdowns. Blount went over for the fifth and Glace added the extra point. Hammer and Jennings, beside playing fine ball throughout, each scored six-pointers for St. Anthony. Sigma Nu's offense gained eight first downs, while the losers were only able to penetrate its defense for a single first and ten.

of a big football occasion. Washington and Lee and V. P. I. also play on Saturday in Lexington.

Last week the Cavaliers travelled to New Hampshire, engaging Dartmouth, and came out on the wrong end. Although losing, the Tebell men put up a great fight.

But the Dartmouth game was quite costly to the home squad. Four regulars suffered injuries which may keep them from the coming game and possibly more. Captain Tommy Johnson and Randy Garnett, star backs, head the list of injured, together with Bill Zimmer, guard, and Cullen Wilkin, end.

Executives to Meet Today

The senior class executive committee will meet tonight at 7:00 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A., announced Jack Pool, senior class president, yesterday. Reports on work already done this year and discussions of plans for the rest of the year will be heard.

THE POOR DEERS

Dr. E. W. Constable, who is doing graduate work in the chemistry department, has returned from a successful hunting trip taken with a party of friends from Raleigh. Three deer were bagged, which, when dressed, weighed between 150 and 200 pounds.

Dowd and De Gray Go To Net Finals

Robinson, and the question arises as to whether the Canadian youth can slow up the fast-traveling De Gray with his steady placement game that has carried him to the final.

Dowd put on one of the finest exhibitions of individual play in his decisive win over Abels. The fact that they were using soft balls only added to his effectiveness, and he proved to be considerably more consistent than his rival. Johnny, as an unseeded player, has shown remarkable strength in his march to the final, and when he crosses racquets with the flashy Whitaker today, the fireworks are bound to fly. This match shapes up as a natural with either boy likely to walk off the courts as the upperclass champion.

The two final matches set for today are to be decided on the best three out of five and it will be a test of endurance in addition to tennis skill. The winners of these matches will then fire away at each other in the super-final which will definitely decide the school champion for this year. De Gray is given the inside track but among Dowd, Whitaker, and Robinson anything is likely to happen, and the few tennis fans who have been following the tourney will be out today to see the new freshman-upperclass champion crowned.

Prospective doubles teams are again reminded to sign on the bulletin board at the courts today or tomorrow.

YEARLINGS TAKE LAST HARD WORK

be the first really representative product of the Notre Dame system at N. C. State as preached by their erstwhile and renowned mentor.

Coach James has taught the team a lot of new tricks, which, along with the now polished old plays, have given the Babies quite an offense. On the line from end to end are: Bob Keeney, Ed Juliper, "Swede" Ax, Pete Avery, Al Gaydos, "Goldie" Maffitt, and "Birch" Bershak. This formidable line averages 190 pounds, and though they started out slowly, Coach Fysal has perfected them to the point where they are ready and willing to take on all comers.

The backfield men have all been through the wars before, and consequently know their responsibilities, which they are fully capable of taking care of. "Bunny Burnette, Art Ditt, "Shag" Thomas, and "Delly" Walborn, comprise one of the strongest yearling backfields ever at the University.

PHI DELTA THETA QUARANTINED BY INFIRMARY ORDER

Whole House Under Seven-Day Quarantine Due to Munyan's Developing Scarlet Fever.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

Members of the local chapter of Phi Delta Theta have been confined under a seven-day quarantine placed on them following the development of scarlet fever by one member of the fraternity.

The afflicted student, John Munyan, is in the infirmary with a slight case of the disease. Unless the malady breaks out among the other members of the group, they will be released from the quarantine next Thursday.

To Receive Test

The confined students will be given the Dick test today. This test is given to ascertain the susceptibility of anyone to scarlet fever. Any member who shows by the test that he is immune will be released from quarantine.

"Since the use of scarlet fever anti-toxin has become common the severity of the disease has been considerably lessened," said Dr. Berryhill yesterday, "and scarlet fever is not one of the diseases most easily caught from contact." He stressed the fact that there is no need for alarm.

It was announced late yesterday that University officials will make necessary arrangements for the quarantined students to make up all class work which will be missed during the quarantine period.

UNIVERSITY CLUB NOT TO SPONSOR CHEERING RALLY

Co-ed Dance and Freshman Game Conflict with Plans.

The University club met last night in its club room in Graham Memorial and decided not to sponsor a pep rally tonight. Since so many students will be occupied with the co-ed dance, and many will be going to Greensboro for the night game between the Carolina freshman and the N. C. State first-year men, it was deemed advisable to call the rally off.

Instead of having the rally, it was decided to send Lester Ostrow, chief cheerleader, and Francis Campbell, an assistant, to Greensboro to lead cheering at the game there.

The club unanimously voted down a request presented by the American League against War and Fascism that it send a representative to a local convention of that organization next month.

Several members paid their fee for the Yackety Yack picture and those who were not at the meeting are asked to pay that fee to Roy Wilder, treasurer, as soon as possible.

Frank Willingham, president, thanked all members for the fine work done on the Homecoming program.

Infirmary

The following students were ill in the infirmary yesterday: Charles Hudson, Margaret Siceloff, Manny Kirschner, Mrs. H. L. Riddle, Glenn Best, Carl Peiffer, John Munyan, Jean McKay, David Lewis, L. A. Brown, and George O'Hanlon.

Director To Address A. A. U. Convention

W. T. Couch, director of the University of North Carolina Press, will speak before a meeting of the Association of American Universities in Chicago today.

The subject of Couch's address will be "The University Press as an Aid to Scholarship." Couch received nation-wide fame last year as editor of "Culture in the South." He expects to be gone until November 1.

Lending Money Breaks Kingfish

Will Borrow from La. State Student Loan Fund to Send Students to Tennessee.

New Orleans, Oct. 25.—(UP)—It was rumored tonight in Louisiana political circles that Huey Long's using the football junket to Nashville means that he is announcing his candidacy for the Presidency of the United States on a "share the wealth" platform.

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 25.—(UP)—Senator Huey P. Long, benefactor of Louisiana State University students, ran out of money when hundreds of students called at his hotel suite for seven dollar loans to follow the Tiger football team and the cadet regiment to Nashville, Tenn., this week-end.

"I'm all out of money and all my gang is too," said the Kingfish. "However, I've arranged to get it from a student loan fund out at the University."

Senator Long said Business Manager E. N. Jackson of the university would have funds available Friday for all the students who wish to make the trip.

"The Payoff"

Long, discussing his "payoff" yesterday when he "loaned" seven dollars to each of several hundred students to make the football junket, said he thought nearly every person to whom he supplied money would make the trip.

Meanwhile stories were current of townspeople who got loans, of boys who went three and four times and got enough to buy a new suit, or shop girls posing as co-eds to borrow money from the Kingfish.

Long said he supposed that "15 or 20 thieves were run in on me and I made some loans which did not go to students.

"But I don't think I lost more than a hundred dollars like that," he said. "I'd rather loan money to students than anybody in the world."

FOOTBALL COACH SPIKES REPORTS

Men Will Be in Good Condition For State Game Tomorrow Despite Poisoning.

Rumors that a half-dozen varsity football players would be unable to play tomorrow due to accidental poisoning were spiked last night when Coach Carl Snavely reported that the afflicted players were in fairly good condition and would be in good shape for the game.

The poisoning occurred when dye in the indelible ink used in numbering the jerseys ran when moistened and was absorbed into the blood of many members of the team. The jerseys had been freshly marked and the ink presumably had not dried sufficiently so that moisture spread the dye over the players' skin.

Analysis

Dr. Berryhill's technical analysis last night of the poisoning episode was as follows:

"Physiologically the condition is a result of the partial replacement of the hemoglobin (the part of the red blood cells which carries oxygen to the tissues) by a more stable compound of methomoglobin. This compound results on absorbing analine dyes into the blood stream. The available oxygen supply to the tissues is reduced, a blue color of the lips, hands, and skin resulting. The symptoms of weakness, dizziness, headache, shortness of breath, and occasional nausea are evident."

The ink is being analyzed by Dr. McChesney of the medical school, as well as blood from some of the more severe cases.

Bicycle-U-Driveteer Invades Chapel Hill

He didn't ride twenty-three bicycles, one of them a "bicycle-built-for-two," all the way from Purdue. But somehow Mr. Phillips, bicycle-U-driveteer, arrived in the village Wednesday afternoon and parked twenty-three brown and blue vehicles in the front yard of the Tourist House next to Graham Memorial.

He is a slim, brown, out-door fellow with persuasive blue-gray eyes and he rents bicycles as though he had majored in bicycle-renting in his college days, a few years back. He has been in the business for a year, going into it because of the depression and the sudden increase in the popularity of bicycles.

Surprised

"I am surprised that the students here are not acquainted with bicycle riding. They seem to be puzzled and amused at my business. It's quite a rage up north, out west, and further south. While I was in Chicago this summer, everybody hired bicycles.

Phillips is on his way from Purdue University. From the time he arrived there until the evening he departed he seldom saw his bicycles, so quickly did the men and women students rent them out. Asked why he picked Carolina for his business, he said he had heard—(possibly from Agnew Bahnson?) of the appropriateness of Chapel Hill, with its woody lanes and level roads, for pedaling about. As soon as Jack Frost nips the noses and ears of his customers too severely he will journey, on his twenty-three bicycles, toward Florida.

LEAGUE TO HELP RELATIONS GROUP

Frazer and Griffin Speak at First Meeting of Foreign Policy League This Year.

The Foreign Policy league, at its first meeting last night, decided to co-operate with the Human Relations Institute, which will meet this spring under the sponsorship of the University Y. M. C. A. An attempt will be made to secure some nationally known speaker for the session.

Outlining the policies of the group for the coming year, Dr. K. C. Fraser of the University faculty said that besides co-operating with the Institute, the league would unite with leagues on other campi in their work.

Griffin Speaks

Ezra Griffin, a student in the University, then gave a short talk on the article "Arms and the Man." In his discussion, Griffin told of the tremendous influence that the munitions corporations in various parts of the world exert over their respective governments. "Approximately $1,500,000,000 is spent annually for armaments," Griffin said.

The meeting was presided over by President Ralph Gardner, who appointed Francis Fairley as the group's representative to the first meeting of the local division of the American League Against War and Fascism.

President Gardner said that he was pleased to see such a large attendance and that he hoped more students would attend in the future. The meetings are open to all students.

Future programs will be decided upon by the executive committee, headed by Agnew Bahnson. An announcement of the future programs will be made shortly. It was decided by the group that meetings would be scheduled for 8:00 o'clock each Thursday evening.

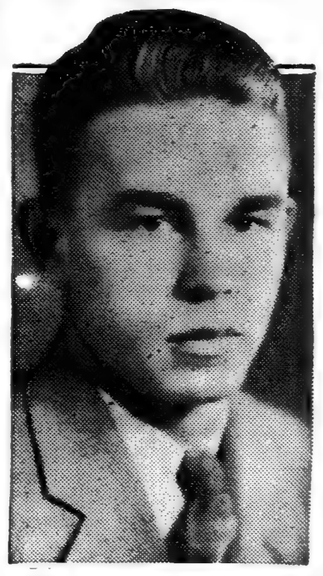
Legionnaires Demand Immediate Payment

Miami, Oct. 25.—(UP)—The American Legion aimed its full strength tonight in opposition to two Rooseveltian policies by voting in favor of immediate bonus payment and opposing Russian recognition.

Claiming control of three million votes, the Legion overwhelmingly passed resolutions demanding immediate cash payment of the bonus and a withdrawal of Soviet recognition if Russia continues to disseminate communistic propaganda in America.

North Carolina cast her 19 ballots solidly for the bonus.

Frank Belgrano, San Francisco banker, succeeded Edward Hayes of Decatur, Ill., as national commander by a unanimous vote.



Co-ed Elections

Sallie Page of Chapel Hill was elected president of the co-ed freshman delegation yesterday afternoon at a special meeting of the class. She was unopposed for the office.

Ruth Greene of Washington, D. C., was also unopposed in the vote for vice-president of the class.

Virginia Lee of Lockport, N. Y., was elected secretary over Helen Poole, and Nell Booker of Chapel Hill won the election for treasurer over Jean Walker.

Resigns Position

Simmons Patterson, senior prominent in University activities, who yesterday announced his resignation from the office of chairman of the Human Relations Institute.

'R. U. R.' OPENS '34 PLAYMAKER YEAR

Rossum's Universal Robots Inaugurate Stage Season with Futuristic Comedy.

The Carolina Playmakers opened their current season last night with a presentation of Karl Capek's "R. U. R."

Performances are scheduled again for 8:30 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night.

Dr. Meno Spann, of the University German department, and Ellen Deppe, a new student at the University from the Biltmore Players in Asheville, are playing the leads in the Playmakers' production of this fantastic comedy. They are supported by an admirable cast of fifteen men and three women.

17-Piece Orchestra

The music department of the University, co-operating with the Playmakers, are lending a 17-piece student orchestra under the direction of Earl A. Slocum to furnish music for the production each night. The orchestra, under the name of the Carolina Concert orchestra, plays from the theatre's submerged pit.

The spectacular costuming and scenery effects of the production mark it as one of the most unusual things that the Playmakers have ever done for a Carolina audience. Sam Selden, of the Playmakers staff, directs the play; Wilbur Dorsett and Henry Pearson are in charge of the furturistic settings.

The theme of the play is the revolt of the machine age, a prophecy made when the play first appeared in 1923. Rossum's Universal Robots, for whom the play is named, rebel against their inventors and the result is hair-raising melodrama. The story of man's probable annihilation and his fight to perpetuate human life is a convincing social satire.

OUR ERROR

In yesterday's issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL, it was mentioned that "Dr. J. B. Crutchfield" would address Tau Beta Pi last night and that Dr. Archibald Henderson was president of the local chapter and would preside.

Crutchfield has not received a doctor's degree and Dr. Henderson is in no way connected with the local chapter of Tau Beta Pi.

HUMAN RELATIONS GROUP CHAIRMAN RESIGNS POSITION

Too Much Work Forces Simmons Patterson, Outstanding Senior, to Quit Post.

NO SUCCESSOR IS NAMED

Simmons Patterson, prominent member of the senior class, resigned this week the chairmanship of the Human Relations Institute, it was announced here last night.

Patterson was elected to the position last spring and he would have been in charge of the Institute which will meet at the University, April 7-12, 1935.

He gave as a reason for his action the excessive amount of outside work that he was already doing, in addition to his heavy scholastic schedule preparatory to his entrance into the medical school next year. He felt that he could not successfully carry the responsibility of arranging for the Institute program due to these reasons.

No Successor Yet

No successor has yet been chosen for the post. Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., has been attempting to secure funds for carrying on the work from various philanthropic organizations including: the Carnegie Foundation, Phelps-Stokes Foundation, Weil Lecture Fund, and other such bodies.

These organizations will consider the University's proposals sometime this fall. A maximum budget of $5,000 has been set for the Institute.

When the Institute meets, the University will be host to the leading authorities in various fields from all over the United States.

PARAGRAPHICS

The Phi Delts may be quarantined on account of scarlet fever, but they're not the only frat that's caught in the red.

And 'tis said student-faculty day will work if we can keep the profs from cutting.

International question: If Hitler died, would he go straight to Abraham's bosom?

Sign of Encouragement

That the Di senate has approved the student council's proposed revision of the honor system pledge is an encouraging omen that campus opinion will be favorable to this change. Yet, as the DAILY TAR HEEL has pointed out on another occasion, the revision is not so much a "change" as merely a re-affirmation of the honor system code under which all examinations and quizzes are conducted. Be that as it may, we solicit opinion on the question with a view to having some early action taken on the proposal.

If it goes through, it should be encouraged to the utmost by every member of the faculty. Too little emphasis has been laid in the past on the wording of the pledge with the consequence that students have been lax about giving it, in many cases only signing the word "pledge" at the end of their papers. We are not quibbling in favor of a legally binding pledge nor picayunish about wanting to see careful observance of it. But at this time the students have a greater opportunity than ever before to bring to the attention of the entire campus, for now and henceforth, the true responsibility both of refraining from violation and reporting violations—upon which the best maintenance of the honor system depends. This responsibility has not always been absolutely impressed on the students, and if they have not in the past always observed it to the fullest extent, there is a great deal to be said for the fact that it should be advertised as a continual reminder of the duties of a Carolina student.

Wake Forest Goes Forward

Modernizing its system of publications, Wake Forest College recently adopted a publications board to govern all student publications. Members will be composed of the several business managers along with faculty advisers, who will have complete authority over the various publications.

This system, used at the University for some years, presents distinct advantages. All financial allotments are controlled by the board, eliminating to a great degree one of the richest of the collegiate rackets—publications graft. The board at Wake Forest is seemingly to be invested with the further powers of control of all rules and regulations concerning the publications. To what degree such sweeping powers will be of advantage remains to be seen, but Wake Forest is to be congratulated on taking a step forward.

At the University the board's powers extend only to financial control; Wake Forest's attempt at editorial dictate will be interesting.

Attendance And Activity

Naturally we all get a great kick out of seeing a long list of activities after our names in the Yackety Yack. It supposedly marks one as an active person on the campus, a leader, a student who finds time to enter into interesting outside activities as well as those coincident with the regular class work. Or so it should.

But those who merely join clubs, cabinets, leagues, and other departments for the sake of maintaining a pseudo-connection with those groups are students who are minor chiselers of a sort. They fail to attend the meetings of the organizations to which they are supposed to belong and, by their very inactivity and apparent lack of interest, they do campus organizations more harm than good. But when pictures are taken of various campus groups, these students who almost never attend the meetings are the first to flock to get into the picture. That is nothing more than pure falsehood.

One sure way to answer the problem with a solution would be for those students to become really active in their groups. The old lure that attracts many to assume the roles of campus big shots would in that way be dignified with true ambition instead of covered with speciousness and posing.

Co-operation Or Stubbornness?

The banking crisis between the nation's bankers and the present administration was brought to a crucial point Wednesday night in President Roosevelt's address to the American Bankers' Association. Answering the numerous criticisms of administration, relief, monetary, and financial policies, Roosevelt asserted that he expected the bankers to supply the credit need of the country, and to begin supplying it at once.

Bankers have been frankly critical of the administration's policy of lending money to industry. Roosevelt, in his speech, held out the promise to them that governmental lending activities will be curtailed as soon as banking is able to assume the responsibility, which, contrary to the assertions of the banking interests, they are not assuming at the present time, according to Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC. Jones asserted that leading records of the RFC showed the banks had been unwilling to make loans which that agency considered sound.

The banking interests, now in comparatively good financial shape, should remember that the entire banking situation was saved by the constructive policies of the Roosevelt administration. Without these policies, financed largely by the same RFC now coming in for so much criticism by bankers, many banks now sound and strong would have broken over the rocks of panic.

Without the co-operation so strongly urged by the President, a vicious circle will be maintained. So long as the banks refuse loans, industries must keep production at a minimum. So long as production is kept at a minimum, money in circulation tends to be restricted, and so long as circulated money is of a comparatively small amount, the government must of necessity keep up lending to industry.

Needed Reform In Public Taste

George Arliss' "Disraeli" is doubtless one of the biographical masterpieces of the films, but the majority of exhibitors refused to show it at the time of its release. Mae West, on the other hand, for the first time in the history of motion pictures, received not a single cancellation on any of the pictures in which she starred.

There we have a nutshell edition of the prevailing condition in the movie-goers' world. The movies of high historical, dramatic, or educational merit only engaged for short runs, while those films distinguished mainly for their shabbiness and salaciousness do an enormous business. Is this rueful situation the fault of the producer, the exhibitor, or the public?

The producer and the exhibitor are companions in the proverbial boat. No reputable producer will produce a slightly off color film merely to see how much sand he can raise, nor does any respectable exhibitor take great delight in showing shady pictures. Both are anxious to share in the good public opinion. Unfortunately, however, both exhibitor and producer are in the business to make money, and if such films as "Berkeley Square," "Oliver Twist," "Eskimo," or "Byrd at the South Pole" fail to start the shekels rolling, they must come forth with such box-office appealers as "Scarface," "So This Is Africa," "I'm No Angel," etc.

It seems that all the present trouble in the motion pictures devolves upon the movie-going public. It has been the tastes of this public which have dictated the types of pictures to be presented. The recent efforts at censorship of motion pictures, while curbing the production of undesirable movies, contain no provisions for dealing with the public tastes. Whether the ultimate effect will be to heighten such tastes is a matter of conjecture. Let us hope that such will be the case.

Sensabaugh Speaks Tuesday Afternoon On New York Satire

English Professor to Speak at Bull's Head Bookstore.

George F. Sensabaugh of the University English department will be the principal speaker at the regular Bull's Head lecture, Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, it was announced yesterday by Elizabeth Johnson, director of the bookshop.

Kaufman and Hart have a number of outstanding successes to their credit. Kaufman was a co-author of "Of Thee I Sing" and Hart wrote "As Thousands Cheer" to which Irvin Berlin added the musical score last season.

Mr. Sensabaugh is in close touch with the contemporary theatre and is considered an authority on late Elizabethan drama. At the close of his reading, he will conduct a discussion period, giving his personal comments on "Merrily We Roll Along."

Joe Sugarman, editor of the Carolina Magazine, will introduce the speaker.

Tar Babies Face Wolfcubs In Feature Yearling Grid Tilt At Greensboro Today

Both Freshman Outfits Are Strong; Contest Starts at 8:00.

Carolina's freshmen ended practice yesterday in preparation for their game with N. C. State frosh in Memorial stadium, Greensboro, this evening at 8:00 o'clock, with a spirited drill under the guiding hand of their head mentor, Coach George James.

Though James would make no predictions as to the outcome of tonight's gridiron warfare, he appeared satisfied with the manner in which his charges were playing yesterday afternoon.

Despite the fact that the squad has been bothered with quite a few injuries, it is likely that the starting eleven will be intact and in fine condition when the opening whistle blows. "Art" Ditt, "Ben" Maffitt, "Shag" Thomas, and "Paul" Dixon have caused Trainer "Chuck" Quinlan no end of trouble, but he has hopes that they will be well enough to play.

Wolfcubs Strong

Over at Raleigh, Coach Warren has spent the last week increasing the speed, tempo, and precision of his shifty aggregation. The State Wolfcubs have yet to reach their peak, and Warren expresses the hope that they will blossom forth when put face to face with the strong opposition that the Tar Babies are sure to offer.

The Wolfcubs are determined to repay Carolina for the 9-7 defeat that the University at Chapel Hill handed them in a nip and tuck battle at Greensboro last year.

The yearlings of both schools have played but one game each, Carolina trouncing the Wake Forest frosh, 33-7, and State defeating the Elon reserves, 7-0. Both squads are eager to start their schools off on the right foot in this annual week-end of competition.

Carolina, on the basis of their average heft, will out-weigh their opponents, but man for man the weight is rather evenly distributed. The Wolfcubs will combat the power plays of the Tar Babies with their own brand of speedy and deceptive formations which up to now have been successfully executed by their fast freshman eleven.

The Babies will line up with: "Birch" Bershak and "Bob" Keeney at ends; "Ed" Juliper and "Goldie" Maffitt alternating with "Hen" Bartos and "Reggie" Wolfe at the tackle positions; "Al" Gaydos and "Swede" Ax will be assisted by "Dixie" Dixon and "Bruce" Smith at guard; and "Pete" Avery at center. Due to the injuries the lineup in the backfield is still uncertain, but

New State Mentor

Coach Hunk Anderson, who took over the football duties at State for the first time this year. Anderson's club is due to surprise the Tar Heels tomorrow as the Wolfpack leader and his pupils have been especially pointing to this contest even before the season opened. None of the State players has been on a team that defeated Carolina and as a result they are out for blood at any cost.

BETAS GET 43-0 WIN IN TAG TILT

Kappa Sigma Falls Before Fast Attack; Delta Tau Delta Triumphs over Chi Phi, 11-2.

Behind the heavy scoring artillery of Rand and Blythe, Beta Theta Pi kept its slate unmarked yesterday afternoon as it trounced the Kappa Sigma team, 43-0.

In the only one other game played on the schedule, Delta Tau Delta gained a 11-2 win over the Chi Phi aggregation. The Z. B. T.-Lambda Chi Alpha contest was postponed until next week, while the Sigma Chi-Phi Delta Theta setto was forced out when the latter fraternity was placed under quarantine.

The Betas had things quite their own way on both offense and defense, scoring seven first downs while holding their opponents to two. The score stood 24-0 at the intermission. Rand pushed his own high scoring mark up to 54 as he took the oval across the double stripe on four occasions. He fell seven short of equalling the mark of Austin of Lewis, 31 points in a single encounter.

The second contest proved to be a bit more of an even battle as Shores continued to be the spark in the Delta Tau Delta lineup and led his team to a 11-2 win over the Chi Phi gridsters. The losers garnered whatever glory there is to be gained in outscoring the winners eight to six in first downs.

Chi Phi came back strong in the final session to force the victors' backs against the wall and tally a safety.

Today's games:

3:30—1. Phi Sigma Kappa vs. Theta Chi; 2. Kluttz Bldg. vs. Ruffin; 3. D. K. E. vs. Pi Kappa Alpha.

4:30—1. Zeta Psi vs. S. A. E.; 2. Swain Hall vs. Grimes; 3. Kappa Alpha vs. Phi Gamma Delta.

Chapel Hill Club To Play Roxboro Hi This Afternoon

Fresh from a victory over Sanford high last Friday, the Chapel Hill high Wildcats take on the Roxboro high team at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Emerson field.

Admission for this game will be fifty cents, or season tickets may be purchased for one dollar.

The local team has won only one game this season, the Sanford tiff, dropping the first two contests to Leaksville and Oxford Orphanage.

Chapel Hill high competes as a Class 'B' team in the eastern district. Today's tilt will not be a conference contest, however.

WHITAKER, DOWD TIE FOR TITLE IN TENNIS THRILLER

Crown Undecided After 10-10 Deadlock in Fifth Set; De Gray Gets Frosh Title.

CONTINUE BATTLE TODAY

Drama has often stalked upon the tennis courts, but never to such an extent as was witnessed late yesterday afternoon when Johnny Dowd and Myers Whitaker staged the most unique and thrilling match seen on the Carolina courts in a good while.

As darkness drew the curtain on the struggle, the two panting players, battling for the upperclass championship of the University, stood dead-locked at 10-all in the final set. After three hours of strenuous, tooth and nail play, each had captured two sets and both had come within one point of victory several times during the hectic final set.

In the other match, deciding the freshman championship, Eddy De Gray concluded his victorious splurge with a rapid three-straight win over Gene Robinson by the one-sided scores of 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

Great Comeback

The opening set in the upperclass final was a thriller in itself. Trailing at 5-2, 40-love in points, Dowd staged a remarkable comeback, overcoming three set-points, and going on to even the set at 5-all. However, Whitaker again battled his way to the front and took the set 9-7.

Whitaker let go in the second set and jumped into a 3-0 lead from which he was never headed. He pounded Dowd's returns to the corners and was clearly the better of the two throughout the set. Dropping this set, 6-3, Dowd, far from through and already famed for his doggedness when behind, slapped his way through the third set with an exhibition of steadiness that the confident Whitaker found difficult to overcome and Dowd came out ahead, 6-3.

Dowd then took a shower and the effects could be seen in his play as he fought Whitaker evenly throughout, and rallied from a 6-5 defeat to take the set, 8-6, and square the match.

Final Set Thriller

Eight consecutive breaks in services were recorded in the supposedly deciding set before Whitaker applied pressure and held his own offerings to step into the lead. Whitaker had radically changed his tactics and was now hitting with deadly accuracy. Dowd was gamely pulling back the ball with remarkable returns and stayed in the contest by sheer determination.

Dowd, one game from defeat, followed his serves to the net and knotted the set at 5-all. The games then went on service, with brilliant play by both players, but with the score 7-6 against him, Dowd was forced to stage the most thrilling rally of the match to stay in the battle. Trailing 0-40 on his own service, he won five consecutive points and for the second time during the day, he had turned away three set points in succession.

Dodw Almost Wins

At 8-all, Dowd snapped Whitaker's service, and then held point set at 40-15 on his own, only to have Whitaker come up with two hair-raising drives that nicked the chalk lines. Dowd, himself on the verge of victory, had lost two opportunities to end the contest.

Both held service and with the score tied 10-all, the match was called. The title play will be concluded today, with Dowd and Whitaker commencing at two sets apiece and replaying the entire fifth set.

HARRIER CAPTAIN IS INJURED ON EVE OF FIRST CONTEST

Harry Williamson Will Likely Not Compete in Opening Cross Country Race with State.

TO RUN IN THE MORNING

Coach Dale Ranson sent his Blue and White varsity cross country team through a light workout yesterday afternoon in its final preparation for the opening meet of the season against the N. C. State hill and dalers here tomorrow morning.

Carolina, 1933 Southern Conference runner-up, will enter the meet without the services of Captain Harry Williamson, it was pretty definitely thought last night. Williamson irritated a spine injury suffered in an automobile accident two years ago and it is considered best to keep him from competing in this engagement.

Although little is known of the strength of the visitors, it can be assured that the boys from the Raleigh institution will be out to even up matters, after being humbled so badly in last year's encounter. Practically all of its last season's squad has returned and a hard contest is certain to develop.

Despite the loss of its leader, Carolina does not face any hopeless outlook and will be led into the fray by the two Eds—McRae and Waldrop.

The balance of the eight-man entry will probably consist of Gammon, Gardner, Allen, Haywood, Conte, and Curlee. Coach Ranson requested all men not scheduled to compete against the Wolfpack to report this afternoon for a time trial.

DUKE LEAVES FOR GAME WITH VOLS

Devils Set for One of Biggest Battles in South; First Real Test for Duke.

Durham, Oct. 25. — Completing the stiffest series of preparations of the fall training period this afternoon, Wallace Wade's undefeated, untied Blue Devils of Duke entrained here tonight for Knoxville, Tenn., where on Saturday they will meet the Volunteers in the feature grid battle of the south.

Coach Wade has made every effort to get his team in the best possible condition for this battle, having installed new plays and formations and polished in hard workouts daily every department.

Captain Jack Dunlap, rated one of the south's finest guards, made the trip to Knoxville but it is still indefinite whether he will be able to play. He sustained an injury in the Davidson game last week and will not be at top speed if he does see action.

Devils' Biggest Test

It will be the Blue Devils' biggest test of the year. They have been able to defeat their other foes this season just about as they pleased but that will not be the case Saturday. Tennessee has one of the finest elevens in the south—rated by many as superior to the 1934 edition of Blue Devils.

The game promises to be a thrillingly close one. The past history of Duke-Tennessee

Several Have Injuries; Mac Bell Works at Fullback Post.

Carolina's football squad took a light but long workout yesterday afternoon on Emerson field, polishing both its offense and defense for the battle with State here tomorrow.

With several injuries, some of the major type, Coach Carl Snavely limited his scrimmage to the touch kind. Besides Bill Moore, end, Paul Pendergraft, reserve guard and understudy for Captain Barclay, will also be kept on the bench. The scrappy sophomore is bothered with an injured hip.

After Wednesday's drill "King Kong" Kahn, regular guard, came up with a bad knee. He was kept out of yesterday's work but will be ready to start tomorrow. Dick Buck, end, and Jim Hutchins, fullback, both still have minor injuries that may slow them up. None of the players showed any bad effects as a result of the ink poisoning.

Childers in Line

Except for Moore and Kahn, the entire Tar Heel team ran intact. Punchy Joyce worked at Kahn's position while Chilly Childers continued to hold down the end post.

Mac Bell, letter back, again showed some flashy form and alternated in the first string backfield with Jim Hutchins, fullback. Hump Snyder, Charlie Shaffer, and Dick Dashiell were at the positions.

Indications are that Carolina will meet one of its toughest opponents of the year in the Wolf-

CARROLL SPEAKS AT FROSH CHAPEL

Dean Stresses Importance of Learning Fundamentals as Opposed to Technique.

"Education is the means by which we make and enjoy a living," asserted Dean D. D. Carroll of the school of commerce yesterday in a speech at freshman assembly.

"The time spent on making a living is being reduced," he said. "This means that you must specialize in something and that you will have leisure time. Do not waste it; spend it on broadening your mind."

Dean Carroll stressed the importance of learning business fundamentals in contrast to technique, "because," he said, "if you learn a certain method now, by the time you get into the business world it will have changed."

Explaining the commerce curriculum, which is evenly divided into broadening elements and specializing elements, he showed how the University's school of commerce offers advantages over a purely business school.

Dean R. B. House introduced the speaker, and Dean F. F. Bradshaw presided over the exercises. Invocation was offered by Billy Yandell, member of the junior-senior cabinet of the Y. M. C. A.

most probably it will be the same quartet of "Bunny" Burnette' "Shag" Thomas, "Delly" Walborn, and "Art" Ditt which worked with great success in its first encounter.

Warren's regular backfield lists "Charley" Gadd, quarterback; Captain "Ed" Burlinski and "Clary" Haskell, halfbacks; and "Jake" Mahoney at fullback. The first string line consists of "Connie" Mack Berry and Milton Futernaksky, ends; "Erney" Helms and Metheney, tackles; "Cecie" Brownie and Piloseno, guards; and "Lou" Marks, center.

The Greensboro officials are making preparations to house the large crowd expected to view this feature freshman grid battle of the season. Coach Snavely will be on hand to coach the freshmen after the first half when Coach James will have to depart on a scouting tour.

pack. State still has the same big, rugged team that was favored so much during the preseason dope. The eleven has had bad breaks all year and its luck is certainly due to change.

Coach Snavely has been warning the Tar Heels all week against unexpected strength. He stated that the Wolfpack was badly crippled last Saturday and was playing a powerful team after a long trip on a hot day, its first day game of the season.

State's forward wall is one of the best in the Big Five, featuring Redding, end; Sabol, center; Stanko, guard; and Isaacs and Dougherty, tackles. This strong line held South Carolina to only 10 yards through running plays and also practically stopped the 'Gators. Florida's markers came because of an intercepted pass and a long punt return.

Pledges

The dean of students' office announced yesterday the following pledges: E. T. Bynum, A. T. O.; Lee Melvin, Sigma Chi; and James Dees, Sigma Phi Epsilon.

games reveals two of the most spectacular battles ever staged in the south. In 1932, Tennessee won with a dynamic finish that put them in position for a field goal and a 16-13 triumph. Last year, after holding a 3-0 lead from the first period, the Vols tallied a safety to make a 3-2 before Duke put across their final touchdown and extra point to make it 10-2.

There were 30 players in the Duke squad leaving here tonight. They will arrive in Knoxville tomorrow morning, work out on Shields-Watkins field tomorrow afternoon. Team headquarters will be at Whittle Springs hotel.

Bankers Co-operate With Recovery Plan

Washington, Oct. 25.— (UP) —Co-operating in Roosevelt's recovery program, Rudolph Hecht, new president of the American Bankers association, said that representatives of the association will meet tomorrow with officials of the Federal export and import banks to discuss the expanding of foreign trade.

Delegates started homeward tonight after adopting resolutions looking towards increased participation in the recovery efforts, emphasizing need of balancing the Federal budget, and calling on business and industry to utilize the credit which bankers have prepared to make available.

SOPHOMORE HOP DATE ANNOUNCED

Two-Dance Series May Be Given Together with Phi Assembly.

The date for the sophomore hop was changed from November 10 to November 24 by the sophomore executive committee at a meeting yesterday morning.

The difficulties surrounding the former date, which included the Davidson football game being away, necessitated a change in the date.

It was suggested at yesterday's session that the dance be given in a combination series with the Phi assembly dance scheduled for Friday night, November 23. If this is possible, the sophomores will hold a two-dance series with the same approximate costs.

Reports of the final decision on the merger proposition will be tendered at the next meeting of the class set for October 31 in Memorial hall.

The committee is endeavoring to secure Johnny Long and his Duke Collegians for the affair, with Jimmy Poyner and his State College orchestra the choice in the event that the Duke band cannot be secured.

Drama at Chapel

Students at assembly this morning at 10:30 o'clock will witness "man's successor" in the person of Radius, the robot, who will be the leading "man" in a thrilling drama of love and revenge.

Radius' revolt against man furnished the plot for the drama. The robot is aided in his fight by a beautiful girl, who helps him gain revenge over Dr. Gall, the cruel mortal.

Radius will be played by David Lewis; the girl by Ellen Deppe; and Dr. Gall by Philip Parker. Carl Thompson will give the curtain speech.

The new point system will be based on both athletics and other factors concerning dormitory life.

WESTERN POWERS OPPOSE JAPAN'S PARITY DEMANDS

United States and England Believe Japan Will Offer More Conciliatory Proposals.

ELSE WILL END PARLEY

London, Oct. 26.— (UP) — England and the United States today formed a united front against Japan's naval equality demands in the session of the naval parleys now in progress here.

It is believed that the two English speaking countries are ready to break off the preliminary naval conversations if the Japanese adhere rigidly to their present stand.

The only hope for the success of the naval conversations appeared to lie in the belief that the Japanese are prepared to produce alternative proposals more conciliatory.

Building Race Feared

These naval conversations are among the delegates from Great Britain, the United States, and Japan. They are supposed to pave the way for the 1935 naval conference. Indications are that the parley will turn into a free-for-all building race.

The Japanese delegates to the conference indicated strong terms at the opening session such as the recognition of essential preliminary negotiations for the new naval agreement with the United States and England.

The high hopes stated by the delegates from the various countries in their talks at the opening session for the successful termination of the conference were largely upset by the vast differences in the respective programs of the countries.

Japan threatened at the opening session of the conference to abrogate the Washington naval treaty of 1922, and also demanded that the powers recognize her equal right to protect her national security.

PHI DELTS GIVEN TEST WITH SERUM

Members Found Immune May Break Fever Quarantine.

Members of the local chapter of Phi Delta Theta were tested yesterday afternoon by Drs. Hedgpeth and Berryhill of the University infirmary with special serum rushed by air mail from Atlanta.

The test was given to detect susceptibility to scarlet fever. The fraternity men have been confined since Thursday following the development of scarlet fever by one of the members.

Results of yesterday's tests will be known late this afternoon. Those men who register non-susceptible will be allowed to break quarantine.

The University administration has made special arrangements for the Phi Delts to listen in on today's football game over a special system utilizing the Kenan amplifiers and the telephone line.

Sick List

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: David Lewis, Charlie Hudson, George O'Hanlon, Jean McKay, Margaret Siceloff, Carl Peiffer, J. A. Blum, J. I. Munyan, and A. M. Page.

NEGRO IS TAKEN AND HID BY MOB

Father to Deal with Girl's Alleged Murderer, Says Alabama Mob That Took Negro.

Mariana, Florida, Oct. 26.—(UP)—The mob which today seized the Negro accused of assaulting and murdering a white woman tonight played hide and seek with officers of the law.

The Negro, Claude Neal, 23, was arrested last week on charges of assaulting and beating to death 20-year-old Lola Cannidy, who was feeding hogs on her father's farm 10 miles from here.

"Whatever He Desires"

Reports said that the mob planned to tie Neal to a stake and let the girl's father do "Whatever he desires."

The Negro was spirited from the jail in Mariana to a jail in Brewton, Alabama, in order to escape mobs.

Today a hundred armed men forced open the cell in Brewton and took the Negro.

Requirement Explained For Rhodes Hearing

Committee Wants Applicants' Plans of Study at Oxford.

An explanation of necessary requirements for applicants' interviews with the preliminary committee on Rhodes scholarship was made yesterday by Dean A. W. Hobbs of the school of liberal arts.

Applicants should prepare for the local committee only a statement of their intentions in the course of study at Oxford in the event they should be chosen and may offer any recommendations they wish from members of the faculty here.

This is all for the information of the local committee. The regular preparation data stipulated on the application blank will be required only from the members chosen from this school to appear before the district Rhodes committee later.

Robot Mutilated Before Assembly

Radium Screams Hatred for Men And Lust for Power.

An impromptu skit representative of "R. U. R." was presented by part of the cast of this opening Playmakers' production yesterday at freshman assembly.

In order to prove to a girl that Radius, his robot, was only a machine, Dr. Gall cut off Radius' hand.

After the doctor's exit, Radius expressed hatred for men, saying that he would like to "divide Gall into three parts."

The playlet ended by the robot's shouting that he wanted "power! power! power!" and, kneeling, that "Allah is almighty! Allah is almighty!"

Connor, First National Archivist, Records U.S. History In The Making

Former University Kenan Professor Is in Charge of Hundreds of Priceless Documents Dating from Revolution; Articles Are Filed in Special Government Building.

Dr. R. D. W. Connor, former professor of history at the University, as the first national Archivist of the United States, will have complete charge of the records of our history in the making since this country was a tottering little nation newly freed from the yoke of Great Britain.

In Washington, D. C., at the apex of a triangle of government office buildings which would have put the Roman Forum to shame, his office facing on "the most beautiful street in the world," the former University professor will have in his care documents ranging in importance from the Emancipation Proclamation and the Kellogg Pact to a receipt for an old army payroll.

Carefully Protected

The thousands of priceless documents will be protected from light and too much dryness and careless exposure by every safeguard the government, working hand in hand with science, can devise for their preservation.

It will thus be possible for future generations as well as our own to view a letter from Stephen Decatur ("My country right or wrong, but always my country") which tells of a treaty made with Algerian pirates, John Adams' notification of his election to the Presidency, together with a draft of his inaugural address, records, diaries, log-books, treaties with every nation on earth, and even Great Britain's recent notification that she would be unable to meet her debt payment.

The declaration of America's entry into the World War cannot, for instance, begin to compare in glamor with the velvet box which holds the treaty between England and the United States at the conclusion of the War of the Revolution. Bound in velvet, decorated in gold, the parchment is trimmed with a red and gold cord and tassel, on the end of which is a silver box containing the great seal of England, and a beeswax reproduction of the personal seal of George III.

Decorated Treaty

Even the Kellogg Pact, bound in green morocco decorated with gold, tied with a red ribbon and a gold cord, and bearing names and seals of the fifteen signatory countries, cannot compare in interest with the letters of Louis XVI of France to President Washington. Louis XVI wrote to Washington as to a personal friend, telling him of the death of the dauphin, the birth of a princess, or a royal marriage. Another letter from France of a slightly later date carries the slogan: "Liberte, Egalite, ou la Mort," and the name of Robespierre.

GERMAN CHURCH RESISTS NAZISM

August Jaeger, Nazi Lay Counsellor, Resigns from Church Government of Mueller.

Berlin, Oct. 26.—(UP)—Opponents of the Nazification of the German evangelical church won a preliminary victory tonight with the resignation of August Jaeger, Nazi lay counsellor, from the church government of Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller.

Jaeger's activities as assistant to the Reichbishop and as extremist in the move to remodel the church along Nazi lines have led to serious internal dissension which is believed to have embarrassed the Reich government.

Conflict with Hitler

The Nazi government's program in regard to the church has long been a source of trouble, and this preliminary victory follows a dramatic crisis yesterday that led to an almost open break between Adolf Hitler and the Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller.

This is believed to indicate an early withdrawal of the Hitler government from church affairs.

CO-OP DIRECTORS TO BE INCREASED

Two New Members to Be Elected Within Next Week.

An election of two new members to the board of directors of the Student Co-operative organization will be held within the next week, it was announced yesterday by Harper Barnes.

Nominations will be made by the present board. Voters may also write the name of their choice on the ballots the day of election.

All members of either of the two divisions embraced in the co-operative system will be eligible to vote. Those members belonging to both divisions will be entitled to two votes.

The present board of directors is composed of Harper Barnes, Haywood Weeks, and Irvin Boyle.

Grail Dance Tonight

Long Will Play for Affair to Honor Golden Fleece.

Johnny Long and his orchestra will play tonight for the Grail dance to be given in the Tin Can between the hours of 9:00 and 12:00 o'clock.

Simmons Patterson announced yesterday afternoon that the dance tonight will be the last one to be sponsored by the Order of the Grail this quarter. Next quarter the Grail will give two dances, and three in the spring.

The dance tonight is being given in honor of the Golden Fleece. Tickets may be purchased either at Pritchard-Lloyd's or at the door.

"R. U. R."

Karl Capek's "R. U. R.", first Playmakers' production of the current season, will be presented in the third performance at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Playmakers theatre.

Directed by Earl A. Slocum, the Music department's 17-piece Carolina Concert orchestra will furnish music for the program.

Rebellion against their inventors by Rossum's Universal Robots and man's struggle to perpetuate human life is the theme of the drama, a social satire.

Exposition Day Approved By Departmental Heads

Two Named for Oxford Debate Wednesday

Team Composed of Kaplan, Jordan; Durfee Is Alternate.

Leon Kaplan and J. O. Jordan have been selected by Professors McKie, Olsen, and Woodhouse, who acted as judges at the try-outs last Tuesday, to debate against the team from Oxford University here Wednesday. Winthrop Durfee was named alternate.

The Oxford team, it is understood, is composed of two liberals, one a member of the English labor party, and one a member of the socialist party.

The question for debate is: Resolved, that a strong trade union on a national basis is essential to organized society.

WOODHOUSE ASKS PEACE EDUCATION

Professor Points to Present Rampant Nationalism as Possible Cause of War.

The records of history show that intense nationalism, when misused, has always led to war, Edward J. Woodhouse, professor of history and government, told the Chapel Hill Rotary club in an address Thursday night.

Professor Woodhouse does not agree with those who believe that man will always be a fighting race, but thinks that the dangers of war, particularly those dangers resulting from the type of nationalism rampant in some countries now, may be diminished through education for peace.

"The way to tone down nationalism to a sensible point," he said, "is to combine it with other peoples' nationalism, to consider their points of view. We should discourage smug Americanism, the belief held by some that we can do no wrong. We should combine with the British and French in efforts to promote peace."

The professor of government pointed out the proof afforded by history of the fact that war has always done more harm than good.

Service for Dr. Tayloe

Memorial Will Be Conducted Between Halves Today.

A brief, simple memorial service for Dr. David T. Tayloe, Jr., whose death occurred recently at his home in Washington, is to be held here between halves of the Carolina-State football game today.

Dr. Tayloe is regarded as one of the greatest football players Carolina has produced. He played on the varsity for four years, 1912, 1913, 1914, and 1915, being captain of the team in 1914 and 1915.

Plans for the service have been arranged by Robert B. House, administrative dean of the University, who was a classmate of Dr. Tayloe.

Members of the four football teams on which Dr. Tayloe played have been asked to gather at the Carolina players' bench after the first half when the service will be held. The group will walk to the middle of the field where a citation will be read over the amplifying system.

DATE DEFINITELY SET IN FEBRUARY

Celebration Will Present First Exhibition of University Intellectual Program.

22 DIVISIONS TO EXHIBIT

At a joint meeting of the special student committee and University departmental heads yesterday afternoon, the date for the first annual student-faculty day was set for the week of February 19-22.

The exact day in the week mentioned will be decided upon by a joint committee consisting of the student committee and a special group appointed by Dean House from the faculty.

The combined group, after deliberation, decided definitely on extensive plans for an exposition on this day embracing the departments of the University, their functions, accomplishments, workings, and administration.

The date originally set for the affair was November 7, but was tentatively decided upon in order to effect some basis for the development of plans.

This will mark the first all-University function presenting a complete exhibition of the intellectual program as embraced in the curriculum, administration, and student life.

Lawyers Recommend

A recommendation from the law school favoring some date in the future which would not interfere with the workings of that department was the first action which resulted in the creation of the new date. This statement expressed the desire that the law school and other professional divisions be exempt from participating in the day if it were to be held this quarter, due to interference in the regular work schedule.

Accordingly, discussion on a suitable day was begun. In order to make arrangements for the exposition, which will require an immense amount of work in preparation, the departmental heads decided that a date must be chosen which allowed ample time for this work.

Consider Legislature

Considering the expediency of holding the exposition during the legislative session in Raleigh, so that members of that group could attend, it was further agreed that some time during the winter quarter would be suitable.

Another point was the fact that Washington's birthday, recently omitted from regular University holidays, should be regarded and with these considerations, the group decided upon the week prior to this day.

A motion was passed asking all departments to begin plans immediately for the exposition, to decide upon methods of presenting the workings of each division as exhibits.

The exposition will not only serve the purpose originally presented of bringing a closer faculty-student relationships, but will also present to the students and the public an exhibition of the entire institutional program.

Outline Approved

A tentative outline was presented as drawn up by the student committee setting forth the entire program for the day. It

PARAGRAPHICS

And how, O co-eds, durst ye give a ball with George O'Hanlon in the infirmary?

The Kingfish's latest splurge might have something to do with changing his name. To goldfish, for instance.

"University Club Not to Sponsor Cheering Rally." It couldn't be that on reading this we heard cheers anyway?

Demise of An Honor System

State College has seen fit to abandon its honor system and substitute in its place a new plan of faculty and student proctor supervision. It provides for student proctors numbering not less than one-fifth of each class and, in case of small classes, not less than three students. Trial juries of three faculty members and the student council will settle cases involving a breach of honor.

We can understand how at the instigation of the faculty such a plan could be urged upon the students, but coming from the student council itself, the change is hard to reconcile with student principles and liberties. State College, however, knows whether its honor system has worked satisfactorily, and we assume that its student council was doing what it thought best for the morale of students.

Regretfully we observe the passing of any honor system, especially that of a neighbor and a nearkinsman. It is even more to be regretted since the head of that institution is and always has been such a staunch champion of the honor system. If we remember how President Frank Graham hailed the revival of the honor system here last year, it is hard to think that an institution which he heads should have to depart from one of his greatest ideals.

Whatever there is of student control in the new plan at State College we welcome as a vestige of what was tried and apparently failed. As to the provision that there should be "trial juries" of three faculty members who are to aid in adjudging innocent or guilty the accused student, we are totally out of sympathy with it. It is a complete negation of the student responsibility and freedom that should exist in any liberal college.

King's English

Londoners sputtered in protest over their tea and crumpets when British flyer C. W. A. Scott remarked that his flight back to England from Austria was "lousy," according to the United Press. Up in arms over this breach of good taste by a triple-initialed son, the Times changed his epithet to "dreadful" and another journal substituted "rotten."

Now, what is the land of saddle-of-mutton coming to when a man can't tear off an expressive word and not be censored? If Mr. Scott said "lousy" he meant just that; not "deucedly uncomfortable" or "dashed annoyin' " but just plain "lousy." And we'll defend to the last page of our dictionary of slang his right to say it. "Lousy" has a peculiar infested-with-disagreeableness quality all its own. Esto perpetuum!

Deplorable Tendency

In the resignation of Simmons Patterson from his position as chairman of the Human Relations Institute, that group has lost a valuable officer. Replacing him will be a hard task if the Institute's success is not to be impaired when it convenes here next April.

Patterson's reason for resigning brings up an important question in campus extra-curricular activities. He felt that he could not do justice to the chairmanship of the Institute because of the amount of work he was carrying in preparation for entrance into the med school. Add to this the numerous other important campus offices he holds, and it becomes apparent that his was simply the case of one campus leader's having too much responsibility on his shoulders. Patterson was completely justified in resigning.

Extra-curricular activities have a way of depending on a few students for leadership, and the deplorable result of this is apparent in the case of not only the chairman of the Human Relations Institute but many other student leaders who find that their work is impaired and their activities suffer from the simple fact that they have more depending on them than they can carry. If this tendency continues to be aggravated in the next few years as it has in the past, the dean of students' office or some other recognized agency will have to take the situation in hand.

Restricting the number of outside activities that a student can carry through the administration, however, is not to our liking. We would prefer to see this much-needed reform come about as a result of steps taken by the activities themselves. In some cases it is not their fault that this concentration of responsibility exists, but in any case it is their look-out that the men they choose are reasonably free from other duties.

Fraternities are also responsible to a large extent that a few should bear the burden of leadership on the campus. In their desire to acquire outstanding chapter members, they too often aid in securing honors that help the recipient up to a certain point, but do him definite harm when these honors are multiplied until they become unreasonably burdensome.

It is up to both fraternities and activities to curb this tendency, which, if carried to its ultimate conclusion, will result in producing a paucity of over-worked campus leaders.

Are We Going To the Dogs?

Mr. J. B. Pool, a gentleman with two sons to send to college next fall, visited Chapel Hill last week-end in the midst of the preparations for beating Kentucky. In yesterday's Chapel Hill Weekly, he commented:

> Friday evening, I walked about the campus, talking with bright young men. What is the central interest of the student? I asked. Football, three answered. . . .
> Then Saturday came. Imagine our surprise to find the main street closed. . . . Classes on the street? No, no . . . this is the "new way." We want to beat Kentucky. . . .

Mr. Pool, unfortunately, came at one of the worst times during the year for observing the Carolinian at his studies. "As likely as not, Mr. Pool will go to some other college on a Monday or Tuesday," commented Editor Graves, "when there is no week-end exhiliaration, no Homecoming Day festivities, and will find the sort of atmosphere he is seeking."

Graves defended the present-day Carolina student in his comment on Mr. Pool's letter. Looking back to the year 1901 or thereabouts, he recalls that there were "rooms, equipped with thick curtains, where poker was played with great frequency and devotion." Recalling apple orchards and grapevine robberies, beer-keg celebrations, and the enormous consumption of whisky in the "good old days," he concludes that the present-day student is no worse than his ancestor of a few decades, and probably "there is more work now in proportion to idleness and general hell-raising than there was thirty years ago."

It seems to us that Mr. Graves is absolutely right. We're interested in football, of course; with the team we have, who could blame us? At least we're not monomaniacs on the subject. We seem to remember seeing in the files for 1909 or thereabouts, a great headline in red ink, "CAROLINA DEFEATS VIRGINIA," and underneath it, in small type, "Woodrow Wilson Speaks in Gerrard Hall."

The Kingfish Goes A-Partying

Now that Kingfish Long has played with every formidable politician in Louisiana and found same little more entertaining than his first set of blocks, he has decided to throw a big party with the students of Louisiana State University. Huey has loaned from his personal funds (we blush to think where he got 'em) some $3,000 in six and seven dollar lumps. Nothing has yet been said about the repayment of these "loans," and only a signature on a blank sheet of paper was necessary to secure a touch which Huey felt would make it possible for hundreds of additional students to join the jubilee who would not have been able to do so in their existing financial condition.

We don't know whether the politician extraordinary wished by this sudden burst of generosity to gain favor in the sight of some co-ed or was merely getting rid of some extra rocks which, for some unknown reason, he was skeptical about keeping. We rather think that Huey was dishing out of the Louisiana meal barrel with a view to pleasing posterity's voters.

By WALTER TERRY

With new talent, a fine play, and much dramatic gusto, the Carolina Playmakers have opened their '34-'35 season. "R. U. R." was a happy choice—a fast moving melodrama with truly fine touches of the grotesque throughout. And above all, "R. U. R." was "good theatre."

Mr. Selden's direction carried the play to one of the most thrilling climaxes that this reviewer has ever seen on a Playmaker stage, the end of the third act, when the robots have completed the conquest of man, their creator.

The atmosphere created by Selden's directing and the portrayals of the actors was enhanced by the settings designed by Henry Pearson and Wilbur Dorsett. Pearson deserves special credit for his design of the set used in the second and third acts, and Dorsett for the setting used in the epilogue. Once again Ora Mae Davis showed her originality and skill at costume designing. Miss Deppe's dresses were unusually beautiful and startling, particularly the one she wore in the second and third acts. The robot costumes, by their somber uniformity, added much to the effectiveness of the final scene in the third act. The robot make-up, done by Mrs. Davis and her assistants, created an eerie and inhuman effect and supplemented the mechanical movements of the robots.

The most polished performance of the evening was given by Philip Parker in the role of Dr. Gall. It was a delight to hear his excellent diction, and to watch the effective, yet controlled, use of his body. In surety of performance and in technique he far surpassed the others.

Meno Spann acted the leading role of "Domin" more than adequately and created a very interesting and believeable character. His one fault was his isolation. One felt that he was not always completely aware of the other characters on stage, and did not respond completely to their presence and their emotions.

Although Ellen Deppe was very lovely to look at and had a fine voice, she was somewhat disappointing as "H e l e n a." There were scenes when she gave a fine interpretation of her role, but all too often did she drop out of character and weaken the scene. She was at her best in the second act.

The role of the quiet and unassuming "Alquist" was expertly played by Virgil Lee. To give a prayer on the stage is undoubtedly one of the most difficult demands on an actor's ability, yet Mr. Lee succeeded admirably. His uttering the prayer in the second act of the play was a great personal achievement. With a fine sense of the dramatic and a lack of theatricality, he alone throughout the epilogue sustained the dramatic pitch that was created at the end of the third act.

On the other hand, the fiery climax of the third act was well tempered by the superb acting of Nan Norman, an expert technician, and Lawrence Cheek, both of whom demonstrated their complete understanding of their parts and the significance of the play. Miss Norman has not been over-rated; the prospect of her in a full-length role is extremely pleasant. Likewise Mr. Cheek merits leading roles.

Alan Waters was good in the part of Consul Busman, and did his best piece of work in the third act before he went out to his death at the hands of the robots. Fred Howard, Ella Mae Daniel, and Sammie Ruth Bell were outstanding in minor roles. Miss Daniel was especially fine and interpreted her role so coldly and stiffly that she actually appeared to have shed her humanness and to have become a machine.

The Playmakers seem to have recovered a spirit that has been missing for several seasons, a vigor and an interest in their work that is necessary to their success. With the production of "R. U. R." they have presented the campus with a live drama, acted with the freshness and enthusiasm that are the finest features of the amateur actor.

LIBERAL EDUCATION

A freshman had occasion to wander into the office of His Excellency, the Dean of Students. Patient Miss Mabel, secretary to Dean Bradshaw, greeted him, and then asked: "What school are you in?"

"Huh?"

"I say, what school are you in? What course are you taking?" demanded Miss Mabel.

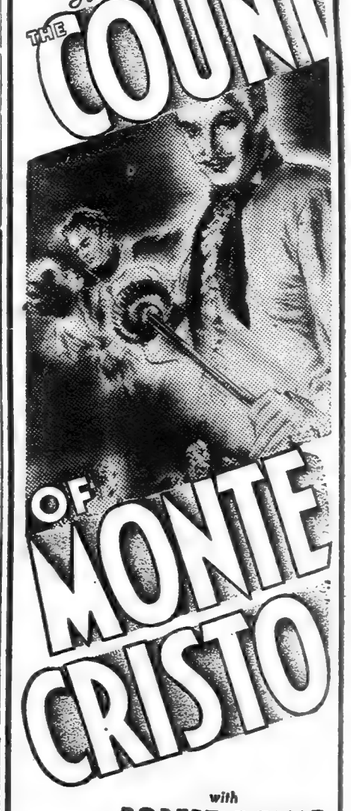
He thought for a minute, and then the answer rumbled out: "Me?—I play football."

IT DOESN'T TAKE BRAINS

The "call to action" of the American League Against War and Fascism, concludes with the following: "This conference is endorsed by: Mr. H. F. Comer, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Mr. A. T. Dill, editor DAILY TAR HEEL, Mr. J. Sugarman, editor Carolina Magazine, Mr. R. Gardner, president Foreign Policy League, and several of the faculty, and intellectual leaders of the student body." We wouldn't go so far as to say that the American League, etc., overestimates the standard of intellectual leadership on the campus, but, even with campus-wide election to offices, there must be some requirement for the holding of major campus offices. A high school education, for instance.

THEY ALSO SERVE

"Wimpey" Durfee, infamous local debator and Philanthropist, wandered into the office of "P. G." Woodhouse, professor of government, early one afternoon last week, and found only his secretary.



"Where's Mr. Woodhouse?" demanded Wimpey.

"He's out for the day," came the courteous answer, "but I'm expecting him in tonight. Won't you sit down and wait?"

STARS FELL ON TIN PAN ALLEY

Carl Carmer's book, "Stars Fell on Alabama" is said to have made a good many people in Alabama, especially those around Birmingham, pretty mad. We're wondering if they like the tune of the same name any better. Our own favorite of the moment happens to be "The Continental" from the movie of "The Gay Divorcee." We haven't been able to discover whether or not Cole Porter, who did the score for the stage production—principally "Night and Day"— had anything to do with the Hollywood version. "I'll Follow My Secret Heart" from the new Noel Coward play with music, "Conversation Piece," is a dismal disappointment after some of the Cowardice we had in "I'll See You Again" and "Someday I'll Find You." It borrows heavily from a half-heartedly lugubrious favorite of a few years back—"Blue Roses."

With a chance that the Southern Conference and Big Five championships may depend on the outcome, Carolina and State meet in Kenan stadium this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in what is expected to be one of the finest battles of the season.

The Tar Heel hopes dropped another notch yesterday as Hump Snyder, brilliant blocking back, was reported sick as a result of the recent ink poisoning. Snyder spent most of yesterday in the infirmary and if he improves as quickly as the rest of the squad he will likely be ready for action by game time.

Moore Still Out

The rest of the Carolina first string, with the exception of Bill Moore, end, out with a bad knee, is in good shape; that is, if the effect of the poisoning doesn't slow them up some.

Coach Snavely has been grooming both Chilly Childers and Buck McCarn to fill in at Moore's post and it is still a question which will start. Jim McCachren will go in the backfield along with Jim Hutchins, Charlie Shaffer, and Dick Dashiell if Snyder is still sick.

Wolfpack Improving

Showing marked improvement all week the powerful Wolfpack is expected to play the Tar Heels on just about even terms. The only injury reported for State is Dominic Cara, sophomore end, and if necessary he will be replaced by Co-captain Stephens.

The two outfits will be meeting each other for the first time under their new coaches, Carl Snavely and Hunk Anderson. Anderson is probably the best-schooled mentor in the United States in the Notre Dame system, having been first assistant

FACTS AND GUESSES
By
Bill Anderson

Coach "Hunk" Anderson and his N. C. State football team will invade Kenan stadium today. It will not be the same Wolfpack that has faltered and floundered through its last four games. The alumni of the Raleigh branch of the institution were, as is their annual custom, over-enthusiastic concerning the Techs' gridiron hopes. They are disappointed with the results "Hunk" has produced.

But today it will be a victory-hungry Wolfpack which will trot on the field. These boys have not seen Carolina go down in defeat at their hands since the halcyon days of the immortal Jack McDowell—way back there in 1927. That day the Wolves played an inspired and fighting brand of ball before a Homecoming Day crowd at Riddick Field, Raleigh, and licked the pants off Carolina 19-7.

Frankly, we do not believe that Ray Rex (the back with the movie star monicker) or any

These two gridders are Hunk Anderson's fine pair of flankmen, co-captains of the Wolfpack. Ray Redding (left) is ranked among the best ends of the south. Florida failed to make a yard around him last week. He can snag passes in quite a nice fashion.

Kenneth Stephens (right), playing left end, is another capable man. His 193 pounds come in quite handy on the 'Pack's defense.

Tie of Last Week Still Unbroken; Phi Sig Kaps, S. A. E.'s, And Pikas Win.

RUFFIN AND SWAIN WIN

Kappa Alpha and Phi Gamma Delta took the field yesterday afternoon in an attempt to break their absolute deadlock of last week in the intramural football league, and when the smoke of another fiery battle had settled, both teams were scoreless and the first downs read two-all. They'll go at it again soon.

The other games saw Ruffin downing Kluttz, 18-0, Swain Hall burying Grimes, 20-0, Phi Sigma Kappa beating Theta Chi, 19-0, S. A. E. taking a close 7-0 win from Zeta Psi, and Pi Kappa Alpha taking a scoreless tie over D. K. E. by virtue of seven first downs to four.

WHITAKER WINS UPPERCLASS NET TITLE OVER DOWD

Whitaker Takes Final Set After Long Scrap with Dowd; Doubles Tourney Next.

DE GRAY IS FROSH CHAMP

Myers Whitaker, the bounding racqueteer, brought the annual tennis tournament to a close with a 6-4 victory over Johnny Dowd in the deciding set of their postponed match, early yesterday afternoon.

This set completed their match and brought the final score to 9-7, 6-3, 2-6, 6-8, 6-4. The match having been halted at 10-all in the fifth set, both agreed to replay the entire set and Whitaker, playing just a bit better than Dowd, went on to the upperclass championship.

The set yesterday was in direct contrast to Thursday's sparkling exhibition and painted a drab finish on an otherwise superb battle. A brisk wind played havoc with the ball and caused unusual errors from the

Varsity Harriers To Run N. C. State This Morning

Frosh Lose

Greensboro, Oct. 26.—(UP)—N. C. State's powerful frosh team put on full steam here tonight to down a likewise strong Tar Baby eleven, 6-2.

The Wolflets completely outplayed the Tar Babies in every department of the game except the punting division, in which Burnett excelled. Frequent fumbles spoiled State's chance of further scoring and nearly caused a late score by the Carolina team.

State fumbled on its own 20-yard line and Carolina recovered. But Ditt, Tar Baby fullback, in turn fumbled on the one-yard line. Gadd was downed for a safety on State's first play.

State scored in the third quarter on a long 50-yard pass from Gadd to Berlinsky and Gadd missed the try for point.

Carolina tallied five first downs to State's 11, and made only 54 yards from scrimmage to State's 147. State likewise led on passes, gaining 125 yards from this attack to Carolina's 11. Bershak stood out for the Tar Babies and Berlinsky and Mahoney for State.

Virginia Turns Red

University, Va., Oct. 26.—(UP)—Head Coach Gus Tebell, of the University of Virginia, was actually forced to learn the names of football candidates under his supervision.

At practice recently, he shouted, "Hey there, Red, come here." Out of a group of eleven men, five responded.

Wrestling Notice

Coach Quinlan has issued the call to all members of the varsity wrestling team. Any new men who wish to try out for the squad and all freshmen interested report with the varsity at the Tin Can, Monday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

Starts at 11:00 O'clock On Emerson Field; Frosh Run Also.

Veteran Carolina Team Slightly Favored over Opponents.

This morning at 11:00 o'clock the Carolina varsity and freshman cross country squads will open their 1934 seasons as they play hosts to the hill and dalers of N. C. State.

Despite the fact that Carolina enters the meet without its star performer, Captain Harry Williamson, the outlook for today's contest is exceptionally bright, as five of the 1933 lettermen are slated for the start. Among this group will be two of the men who so completely smothered the Wolfpack 15-51 last year.

Team in Shape

The harriers were supposed to have opened their season three weeks ago against Tennessee, but the latter was forced to cancel the match. Since then Coach Dale Ranson has had ample time to bring his team to tip-top condition for the match, which is certain to develop into more of a battle than the last session with State.

Carolina's varsity representatives will be picked from the following: Ed McRae, Ed Waldrop, Fab Haywood, Louis Conte, Haywood Curlee, all 1933 letter winners, Marvin Allen, Graham Gammon, Jack Bower, and Bob Gardiner.

Like their older brothers the Tar Babies will meet their first test under fire today; and although not quite as favored to win are certain to give the opposition plenty of trouble. Heading the list will be Joe Rivers and Johnnie Davison, first and second place winners, respectively, in last week's cake race. Bronitsky is also looked upon as an outstanding contender for the frosh runners.

The remainder of the team will be chosen from Braxton, D'Ascensio, Eichorn, Flynt, Gove, Rabb, Rowley, and White.

CHAPEL HILL HI'S BEAT ROXBORO 7-0

Locals Score as Result of Blocked Punt; Second Consecutive Win for Local High.

The Wildcats of Chapel Hill high marked up a close 7-0 win over their rival Roxboro high eleven, yesterday afternoon on Emerson field.

A break in the third quarter led to the only score of the encounter, when the local youngsters blocked an attempted punt on the visitors five-yard marker, and then carried the pigskin over on a line plunge.

The victory was well-earned and showed a marked improvement in the defensive play of the Wildcats, as they pushed the Roxboro aggregation backward thus enabling them to score the touchdown which proved to be the margin of victory. This was the second successful conquest for the Chapel Hillians, as they defeated Sanford high last Friday.

Granger Rough Cut

"Why—I don't believe I have used a pipe cleaner in three or four weeks

Granger leaves no gum in the bowl of my pipe —or moisture in the stem. It burns down to a clean dry ash."

In the manufacture of Granger Rough Cut Pipe Tobacco the Wellman Process is used.

The Wellman Process is different from any other process or method and we believe it gives more enjoyment to pipe smokers.

... it gives the tobacco an extra flavor and aroma

... it makes the tobacco act right in a pipe—burn slower and smoke cooler

... it makes the tobacco milder

... it leaves a clean dry ash —no soggy residue or heel in the pipe bowl

ting away for one touchdown in the opening half and two more in the closing setto, to win the game practically single-handed. The winners also led in first markers seven to three.

Swain Hall's strong combine wasn't just what the doctor ordered for Grimes, and pushed over a 20-0 win, leading 13-0 at the intermission. Ruth, Hearn, and Sawyer took the oval across for six-pointers and the latter added two extras. Swain took eight first downs to four.

With Kaveney, Vick, and Mahoney leading the onslaught, Phi Sigma Kappa returned to the victory highway and stormed to a 19-0 win over Theta Chi. The above trio all tallied for touchdowns, with the husky Kaveny booting a drop kick for the only extra point. The winners garnered six first and tens to a single one for the opposition.

S. A. E. kept its record unblemished as it repulsed the strong Zeta Psi combine, 7-0, with a late second half drive. Freeman went over on a pass and Harris added the point to take the victory. The winners were considerably stronger on the offense, gaining an eight to three margin in first downs.

The second scoreless tie of the day found the Pikas taking the game by virtue of their seven first downs to four for the Dekes. Both teams threatened several times, but lacked the necessary punch to take the pigskin across the double stripe.

other State star will be good enough to beat those fighting Tar Heels. Rex in the past has been highly-touted and has amounted to just another ball player . . . we believe this will be true today. Carolina showed last Saturday quite definitely the effects of the Georgia game; it took a lot of fire out of the University eleven. But today we look for another story. Coach Snavely's charges will be in there fighting, and will send the West Raleigh boys back home, beaten again and this time by at least six points!

Virginia will meet the V. M. I. Kaydets in Lexington and although Virginia showed plenty against Dartmouth, we believe it will be the same old story . . . too much "V. M. I. Spirit."

Vanderbilt-L. S. U.; Huey Long is hard to beat at anything whether it's politics or football. We pick L. S. U. to take over the honors . . . Biff Jones' boys are just too tough.

Duke's head football coach, Wallace Wade, made a special trip last Saturday to see Alabama lick Tennessee in Birmingham. He believed that the Vols are good, but we think the Blue Devils will take over Tennessee in full stride . . . too much Cornelius and Parker.

The other games: Kentucky over Auburn; Ole Miss over Sewanee; Alabama over Georgia; Florida over Maryland; Mississippi A. & M. over Mississippi College; Rice over Texas; Arkansas over Missouri Mines; Furman over Centre; Davidson over Citadel; Richmond over Hampden-Sydney and Howard over Oglethorpe.

racquets of both players.

As the final ball fell off Dowd's outstretched racquet in the far corner, a tournament packed with brilliant, tense tennis was brought to its conclusion. Two champions, both having successfully passed through five rounds of play against the best that Carolina has to offer, have been crowned after a week of intensive action. Whitaker and De Gray will not meet in the much discussed super-final and will remain instead individual titleholders of their respective divisions.

Starting early next week, a doubles tournament will be the main attraction on the courts. This competition shapes up as an even finer tourney than the completed singles. With the varsity players eligible, there are several combinations that carry sufficient power to blast their way to the school doubles title.

to the great Knute Rockne for many years.

To Use Everything

Snavely, on the other hand, uses the Warner style as he has modified it. It will be the first time these leaders have matched wits on the gridiron and it is expected that each will need everything he has to stay in the contest.

This year each team will have seven of last year's starters in addition to a number of fine rookies. Captain George Barclay who will lead the home team into action will continue his bid for all-American post.

Coach Snavely polished his charges both on defense and offense yesterday afternoon at Kenan stadium. The squad worked on its defense against State's formations and then took a long dummy scrimmage, brushing up its attack. Believing that a single point may decide the outcome, Coach Snavely sent the first string through a place-kicking practice before excusing it.

With the forecast for weather fair and cool the largest crowd of the home season to date is expected to witness the struggle. Big delegations of fair rooters are expected from the Woman's College at Greensboro and St. Mary's in Raleigh.

was approved yesterday embracing 22 divisions as exhibiting units on the program.

The exhibits are only one of eight divisions of the program. The first will be the convocation exercises and a third will comprise various activities embracing historical spots and physical characteristics of the campus.

Other features will include luncheons, athletic events, music presentations, various stunts, and a special issue of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

Work on the project will be begun immediately by the departments and the student committee, which will act as the integrating unit in arranging for the exposition.

Let's find out why Turkish tobacco is so important to a good cigarette Native tobacco grower telling American tourists how Turkish tobacco is cured.

On the sunny slopes of Smyrna . . . in the fertile fields of Macedonia . . . along the shores of the Black Sea . . . grows a kind of tobacco that is different from any other tobacco in the world.

THESE Turkish tobaccos are the only tobaccos of foreign cultivation that are used to any great extent in making American cigarettes.

Turkish tobaccos are famous for their spicy aroma, and a blend of the right kinds of Turkish tobacco with our own home-grown tobaccos is better than any one kind used alone.

In Chesterfield we balance mild, ripe tobaccos grown in this country with just the right amounts of the right kinds of Turkish.

It is by blending and cross-blending these different tobaccos that we make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

Turkish tobacco hung in the open air to be cured.

GUARD STATIONED AFTER LYNCHING OF CLAUDE NEAL

Troops Guard Against Disturbances in Negro Lynching; Negro Dies.

VICTIM'S BODY RECOVERED

Atlanta, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Two southern anti-lynching societies in a telegram tonight urged Roosevelt and Attorney General Cummings to apprehend and punish "to the limit" the Florida mobsters responsible for the lynching of Claude Neal.

Marianna, Florida, Oct. 27.—(UP)— Two National Guard companies set up machine guns around the courthouse here tonight to guard against racial disturbances as a sequence to the lynching of Claude Neal, 23-year-old Negro slayer and attacker of Lolo Cannidy, 23-year-old white girl.

Machine guns were stationed at each corner of the Jackson county court house where the mob collected this afternoon determined to "get" the unidentified Negro who hit a white man on the head with a bottle following the lynching.

Body Recovered

The body of Neal hung today, knifed and bulletridden, from a tree in the court house yard when officials finally recovered it from the frenzied mob.

After having been taken to a remote spot in the Chattahoochee river swamps for execution, the lifeless Negro was dragged through the streets of Marianna early this morning and his body suspended to the tree on the court house lawn by the self-appointed guardians of justice.

Meanwhile, Governor Dave Sholtz ordered the Jackson county sheriff and the state attorney to conduct an investigation of the lynching and report to him.

Extension Library Issues Garden Book

Program of Study on "Southern Gardens" Prepared.

A program of study on "The Southern Garden," planned for members of garden clubs who are interested in the subject for practical purposes, has just been issued as a new Extension library publication, according to announcement by Miss Nellie Roberson, in charge of the University extension library.

The subjects for study are based on selected references and are intended to furnish directions for group discussions.

Ideas for every type of garden and information as to what flowers, shrubs and birds thrive best in southern gardens are presented. The subject of what pools are appropriate for a particular type of garden, what color flowers harmonize and the best methods of caring for house plants and grooming lawns are all set forth in an interesting and stimulating manner.

All But 15 Members of Phi Delta Theta Released from Confinement Last Night.

Following thorough tests made by Dr. Walter R. Berryhill, University physician, all but 15 members of Phi Delta fraternity, confined since Thursday under a scarlet fever quarantine, were released last night.

Members of the chapter who reacted negatively to the Dick test, which was administered Friday night, were released from the quarantine. Those making positive reactions will be confined until Tuesday through the University physician's orders.

Armistice Day Plans

Armistice Day, which falls on Sunday this year, will be observed by University faculty, students, and townspeople in connection with the regular church services, according to a program recommended by a joint committee of members of the University faculty and the local American Legion post.

Dr. John M. Booker is chairman of the committee. Ministers of the various churches have been requested to have their congregations observe the two-minute period of silence as near 11:00 o'clock as possible, to have them sing the national hymn in the course of the services, and to bring their sermons to bear upon the aspirations and sacrifices that Armistice Day represents.

Organizations Will Choose Representatives to Meet Tuesday.

All organizations which did not receive the "call" to attend the arrangements committee meeting for the proposed anti-war conference next month are asked by Bill Levitt, originator of the plan on this campus, to select representatives to attend Tuesday night.

The committee meeting Tuesday will be devoted to making arrangements for the conference, which has been set for November 9 and 10.

Numerous campus organizations have already selected their representatives for the arrangements session. About 40 students are expected to attend.

COUCH DISCUSSES PRESS ACTIVITIES

A. A. U. Convention Is Told That Education Is Now Dominated by Techniques.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 26.— "The great weakness of modern scholarship is that instead of commanding its techniques and methods, it is dominated by them," W. T. Couch, director of the University Press declared here today in an address before a general session of the Association of American Universities, a group made up of 30 colleges and universities that are generally regarded as the foremost in America.

Taking as his central theme "The University Press As An Aid to Scholarship," Couch asserted that modern scholarship has "become departmentalized," and ossified, destroying the free play of the mind. "It has split into numerous departments and has exhausted its energies in developing techniques," he said.

Press Important

Scholarship should not involve any segregation or emphasis on any particular discipline of education but should strive for synthesis of all disciplines toward a correlated and well-rounded education, and in effectuating this ideal the University press is a definite aid, stated Couch.

Summing up ways in which, he said, a university press may aid scholarship, Couch said, "The press can encourage writing of manuscripts on important subjects not already adequately treated; it can organize experimental publishing projects; it can help to raise the quality of scholarly publications by adopting a more critical attitude toward works submitted.

"The press can offer an economical and efficient mode of publishing manuscripts of lim-

LOCAL STUDENTS WRITE IN "STATE"

Ivey and Marlow Contribute to Goerch's Publication.

Articles by Pete Ivey, last year's Buccaneer editor, and by Otis Marlow, who is connected with the University news bureau, have been published in Carl Goerch's "The State," weekly magazine dealing with this state.

Included in Ivey's "A New Venture in Movies," is Paul Green's discussion of "The Little Cinema Movement" and its likelihood of being started at the University of North Carolina. He also gives his impressions about some of the present-day stars and censorships.

"The Wandering Corner Stone of Old East" is the title of Marlow's article, which deals with the disappearance and return of the corner stone tablet of Old East dormitory. Another story by Marlow was carried a few weeks ago in the "Literary Digest," dealing with self-help work here.

Winslow to Appoint Institute Head Soon

Man to Be Named This Week to Replace S. Patterson.

J. D. Winslow, president of the University Y. M. C. A., announced yesterday that he will appoint a new chairman this week to head the Human Relations Institute.

The chairmanship of the institute was left vacant by Simmons Patterson, University senior who was named to the post last spring, but who resigned the position Thursday because of excessive work.

Due to the immense amount of work and responsibility required for the position of student chairman, Winslow has been proceeding with care in making the final selection for the post.

Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., has been negotiating with various philanthropic organizations to secure funds for carrying on the Institute which will be held here April 7 to 12. A maximum budget of $5,000 has been set for the institute.

CRITIC APPOINTED FOR PHI MEETING

Woodhouse to Comment at Session of Assembly Tuesday.

Professor E. J. Woodhouse of the University history and government department has been secured by Speaker Robert Smithwick to act as "efficiency expert" at the meeting of the Phi assembly Tuesday night at 7:15 o'clock.

Professor Woodhouse will give his critical report of the entire meeting and speak briefly on the bill for discussion, Resolved, that the next state legislature take definite action towards the repeal of the Turlington Act.

Speaker Smithwick urges that all members be present as the official list for the Yackety Yack will be taken by the reading clerk.

Nine in Infirmary

The following students were confined in the infirmary yesterday: F. E. Culvern, Charles Hudson, Thomas Chears, M. E. Smith, Helen Rosser, Manny Kirschner, Raymond Holt, John Munyan, and Eloise Shepherd.

HOUSE TO SPEAK TO 'Y' DELEGATES HERE TOMORROW

Cabinets of Greater University of North Carolina Will Meet at Comer's.

STEWART IS ON PROGRAM

Dean R. B. House, administrative head of the Chapel Hill unit of the Greater University, and the Rev. Donald Stewart of the Chapel Hill Presbyterian church, will be the principal speakers tomorrow night at the joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. cabinets of the Greater University.

Representatives and visitors from the Greensboro and Raleigh units will be present at the meeting which will be held at the home of Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the Chapel Hill "Y."

Campfire Supper

The meeting will be held in the form of a campfire supper with the local organization acting as host.

Visitors and cabinet members will meet at the "Y" building at 6:15 o'clock and will go out to Comer's in a body.

The delegation of 25 girls from the Woman's College will be headed by Miss Lucy Crisp, general secretary of the Greensboro division.

Horace Cotton, president of the State College "Y," and Ed King, general secretary of the Raleigh division, will lead the State aggregation.

A similar joint cabinet meeting for the Greater University will be held each quarter during the year, Comer announced here this week. The idea is an outgrowth of President Graham's plan for the consolidation of the Greensboro, Raleigh and Chapel Hill units into the Greater University of North Carolina.

Members of the local sophomore and junior-senior "Y" cabinets are urged to be present.

PLAYBOOK ISSUED BY PLAYMAKERS

Publication Features Original Play by Colorado Student, Formerly Under Koch.

The Carolina Playbook, issued quarterly by the Carolina Playmakers, will appear next week, Professor Frederick H. Koch announced yesterday.

At the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, the Playbook was represented in the international exhibit of periodicals and was one of only three theatre publications. The other two were: The Stage and The Theatre Arts Monthly.

Professor Koch stated that a special feature of the current issue of the Playbook would be an original play by Margaret Radcliff of the University of Colorado.

The play, entitled "Sigrid," was written and produced experimentally at the University theatre in August 16, 1933, while Miss Radcliff was a member of Professor Koch's playwriting class there. The story is a tragic account of the lonely life of a Dakota farm woman.

Last year the Playbook boasted of subscribers from 30 states and from various foreign countries, including the Philippines, China, Porto Rico, England, Jamaica and others.

PARAGRAPHICS

"Requirements Explained for Rhodes Hearing." Tout simplement, depends on whether you're deaf or not.

If Professor Woodhouse really wants peace education, would the anti-war council please take his case under consideration?

And the lack of bicycles built for two seems to be pretty well explained by the fact that just so many campus pedestrians can be caught on the handle-bars.

No Money, No Advance

Guy B. Phillips, president of the North Carolina Education association, speaking before its initial general session, described educaton as "the main business of a community, state, or nation."

The foundation for true education, Mr. Phillips says, is an expanding curriculum. A curriculum should never be a static or fixed thing. The minute a curriculum is applied without reference to individual needs, it becomes a deadening influence.

The University, in changing the required curriculum in the liberal arts school, is keeping step with Phillips' idea of an elastic system of course requirements. However, such expansion and modernization of University courses cannot be indefinitely continued without the necessary financial support.

With financial conditions continuing at the status quo, the University curriculum and all the agencies that go to make it what it is, can at best only remain static. The problem becomes a question of increased appropriations or of relative standstill.

Convinced Of Its Value

The whole-hearted support of the departmental heads with the proposed student-faculty day, which embraces an extensive University exposition, was not only gratifying in its co-operative sympathy but also was a concrete evidence that the faculty believes in the fraternal aspects of the affair as well as the intrinsic value of it to the University in objective scope.

At the meeting Friday the exposition was fully discussed in regards the original motive of bettering faculty-student relations and even more fully analyzed in its purported effects on the state in general and the legislature in particular. It was felt that the exhibit of what the University is doing, has been doing, and will do will lead to some sort of permanent exposition enlightening to a critical state and an uncertain legislature.

Of course, the fact that the exposition will serve the purpose of spreading word of the University's undertakings will not lessen the importance of or interest in the student-faculty relations motive. Through the common medium of the University, which should bring students together in contact with the faculty in a survey of the University program, the exposition will carry out the original intentions in the most effective possible manner.

The exposition idea was not a compromise; it was the logical result of attempts to provide the most beneficial and constructive means of bridging the faculty-student gulf and at the same time of enhancing the University program. If the students capture the same serious and sincere enthusiasm for the event that the departmental heads manifested, there is no reason for the first annual student-faculty exposition day not proving the most important all-campus function ever attempted.

Figures And Words

Apropos of education expenditures, President Frank Graham made some very pertinent and startling revelations at Currituck last Wednesday where he spoke before that country's federation of home demonstration clubs.

Comparing per capita expenditures of states on their school children, he said:

> In the days of prosperity New York spent $107 on each child in the public schools; the average American state spent $58; North Carolina spent $28. Today North Carolina is spending only $16 per child. A people who become complacent about how little they are investing in their children, whatever else they are doing or think they are doing, are going down hill. A people who know what they owe themselves and their homes will no longer delay in a statewide uprising in behalf of their schools, their children, and the future quality of life in North Carolina.

President Graham was not making false comparisons with the education expenditures of that fabulous era known as prosperity. He was stating past and present expenditures impartially, and they speak more eloquently of the plight of education in the state than any words that might be put on paper.

Little Cinema For Chapel Hill?

Another aspect of the movie industries' advent into North Carolina is brought out in Pete Ivey's article, "A New Venture in Movies," written for the current issue of The State. Paul Green, according to Ivey, discussed the practicability of producing amateur movies in Chapel Hill by an organization such as the Carolina Playmakers.

Such organizations have already been begun at Harvard University, and Green believes that the University of Michigan and the University of North Carolina are the most likely places to be chosen for the continuance of the movement.

Paul Green's idea of a Little Cinema for the University is a far cry from the Chamber of Commerce secretaries' brain child of bringing the movie industry into North Carolina if Upton Sinclair succeeds in driving it out of California. Green pointed out that the only expenses would be for materials and the faculty director. Carolina, leader in the Little Theatre movement, stands an excellent chance of taking the lead in what appears to be the next important outlet of collegiate dramatic expression.

Old Songs Are Resung

The hectic convention of the American Bankers' association ended yesterday on a paradoxical note typical of the critics of the Roosevelt administration. After pledging close co-operation with the President, for which he plead in his speech the preceding day, the entire gathering rose to its feet in a voluntary expression of appreciation for a speech made by David Lawrence severely criticizing some of the presidential policies.

"The Brain Trust," said Mr. Lawrence, "is lacking in the technique that comes out of actual experience with economic courses and currents."

Now the Brain Trust (if Mr. Lawrence insists on capitalization) has already been pretty well discredited, and the fact that the most brainy of the brain trust, meaning Berle, Moley, et al., have drifted from the White House, shows that President Roosevelt is not of a mind to lean too heavily on their charts.

Rex Tugwell and his immaculate collars appear as the sole survivors so far as the original publicity given to the brain trust is holding out Secretaries titter when he walks into the room Washington correspondents whisper in their daily columns that the White House darling keeps 40 suits in his wardrobe, and every now and then some southern senator pops up with the brilliant remark that he couldn't make a living down on the farm, suh, if he was a-starvin'. Besides this and, in last analysis, other inconsequential publicity, the brain trust is quiet on the newspaper front. Tugwell's speech in Rome was the last instance of a brain trust skyrocket; few people craned their necks to see.

But coming back to Mr. Lawrence's remarks, he forgets that President Roosevelt possibly had in mind a group of advisers, when he selected the brain trust, who made a study of economics not as it pertains to a certain individualistic group, but as it pertains to society.

It is not possible for an individual, possessed of that "actual experience with economic forces" for which Mr. Lawrence makes his plea, to treat the economic situation from any angle than that with which he is personally familiar. To be free from predilections, the President was getting away from this partial side when he selected as his advisers men whose general knowledge, theoretical as it may be, enables them to plan economic reconstruction for the benefit of society as a whole, and not for the benefit of any one division of industry or business.

ited interest; it can solve special regional publishing problems and it can raise the standards of scholarship in general.

Is Organizing Force

"And, finally, since it is forced to give some careful attention to the more general problems of scholarship, it may succeed in helping to bring some order into what at first appears to be chaos, and it may succeed in securing the wider adoption of the methods and spirit of scholarship."

Couch said that through the medium of scholarly periodicals and books a university press can assist the various disciplines "to use their tools and carry their work as far as it can go; and, equally important, it can encourage the writing of books that cut across the various fields of knowledge and make channels for communication between the now tightly separated departments.

"One of the major purposes of the University of North Caroline Press," he said, "is to correct erroneous conceptions and to stimulate scholars to dare to think, to draw conclusions, to strive for synthesis, rather than to continue exercising only their fact-gathering proclivities."

TWO PLAYMAKER DRAMAS CHOSEN

For Production at East Carolina Teachers' College.

Two Carolina Playmaker authors have had their plays selected for production by the dramatic department of East Carolina Teacher's College, announced Mary Dirnberger, director of the E. C. T. C. dramatic group, this week.

The first bill of plays which will be produced by the Greenville school is scheduled for November 2 and includes three plays: "Counsel Retained," an eighteenth century sketch; "Cloey" by Loretta Bailey of the Carolina Playmakers; and "Third Verse" by Wilbur Dorsett, present general stage manager of the Playmakers.

Miss Dirnberger, who is producing these plays at E. C. T. C., was a former director of the Bull's Head bookshop and a student at the University.

"A Complete Surprise" Is Editor Gaskins' Statement.

The first issue of the Finjan, comic magazine, will appear Wednesday, Editor Pat Gaskins announced yesterday.

"A complete surprise" is how Editor Gaskins describes the new publication. He refused to commit himself further under severe cross-examination.

He did admit, however, that three pages have been left "intentionally and unavoidably" blank, the original contents of which can be determined by interested students who will see the editor or Joe Sugarman after the publication has made its appearance.

There will be a meeting tonight at 7:00 o'clock of the business staff of the Carolina Finjan at the office of the publication in Graham Memorial. All members not attending the meeting will be dropped from the staff unless they have a reasonable excuse.

Carolina Is Held To 7-7 Tie By Wolfpack

Visitors Rally In Second Half To Deadlock Score; Shaffer Counts On Pass

Farrar Gets Tally for State on Long Run In Erratic Tilt.

An inspired and victory-hungry N. C. State Wolfpack came from behind yesterday to knot the count with Carolina 7-7 in one of the most erratic and yet thrilling football contests ever staged in Kenan stadium. More than 13,500 fans witnessed the contest.

Carolina scored first. The Tar Heels' tally came early in the first period after only five minutes of elapsed playing time. Charlie Shaffer kicked to Lawrence McCulley, 'Pack safety, who fumbled the ball which was recovered by Tom Evins, star Carolina tackle, on the visitors' 20 yard stripe.

Jim Hutchins, Carolina fullback, carried the ball to the line of scrimmage on the first play, being stopped by John Stanko. State called time out. With the resumption of play Dashiell passed to Shaffer who was run out of bounds on the 11 yard line. Hutchins made it a first down and goal to go. Dashiell was hit for a five yard loss. But on the next play, "Slippery Dick" tossed a neat pass to Charlie Shaffer who scampered across the Wolfpack goal unheeded. The pass was good for 14 yards.

Daniel Makes Good

"Babe" Daniel, Carolina center, pulled out of the line, and place-kicked the extra point with Shaffer holding the ball.

The proteges of Coach "Hunk" Anderson missed a golden opportunity to score shortly afterwards. After an exchange of kicks, Venice Farrar, State fullback, got off a beautiful kick which rolled out of bounds on the Carolina two yard line. Shaffer kicked out with a high but short punt which Dashiell downed on the Tar Heels' 24 yard line. Rex and Bardes conspired to make a yard apiece. Farrar, back to pass, failed to find an opening, ran, and was stopped at the line of scrimmage. Captain George Barclay batted down Farrar's attempted pass. Carolina took the ball over on downs and kicked out on the Technicians' 38 yard line.

An exchange of kicks gave the ball to the Wolfpack on their own four as the result of a quick kick by Dashiell. Farrar kicked out to Dashiell who was stopped on the Tech 46 yard line. On the next play, Shaffer swept the State right end for a touchdown, but the officials ruled that he had stepped out of bounds on the 29.

VOLS RALLY AND DOWN DUKE, 14-6

Tennessee Scores Twice in Third Quarter to Overcome 6-0 Lead; First Loss for Devils.

Knoxville, Oct. 27.— Coming back sensationally, as it is a habit with them, the Tennessee Vols handed the highly-touted Duke team its first defeat of the season, winning 14-6 here this afternoon before an almost capacity Homecoming crowd.

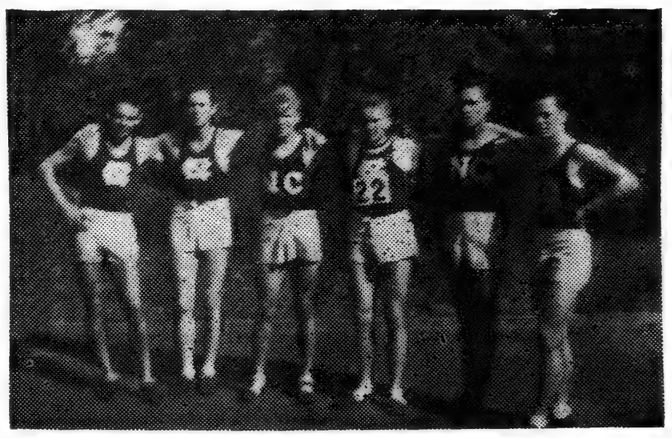
The Blue Devils got off to a 6-0 lead late in the opening quarter. Dickens, Vol back, attempted to punt on his own 30 but it was blocked, Tarrall, Duke end, scooping up the ball on the 18 and dashing across the goal line with the marker. Corky Cornelius failed to kick the extra point.

Tennessee put on its steam in the third period pushing across the margin of victory. Toby Palmer took a 18-yard pass from Dickens and then raced 30 yards through an open field to tie the count. Dorsey made a placekick for the extra and winning point.

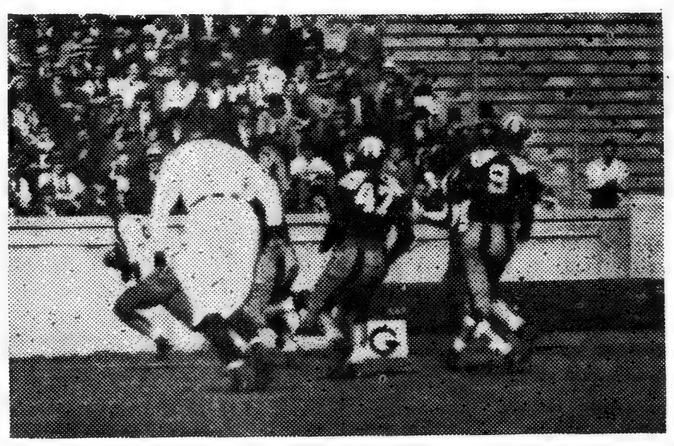
Vols Make Another

The Vols tallied again a few minutes later. Rose kicked to Parker who fumbled and Pounders, Tennessee end, recovered on the Duke 23-yard line. On a steady march Tennessee got to the two-yard strip, but the Duke line rallied and took over the ball on downs.

However, Parker's punt out of the end zone was blocked, the Vols recovering on the two-yard line. This time on the very first play, Vaughn smashed the line for a touchdown. Craig booted the extra point.



Wallace Wade's forces tried desperately to get back in the game during the final period but with no success. Coach Neyland mixed his large squad freely and held the tired Blue Devils in check almost with ease.



Alabama Runs Over Bulldog Eleven, 26-7

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 27.— Alabama continued its determined march towards the Rose Bowl here yesterday by crushing the Georgia Bulldogs, 26-7, before 15,000 fans. The all-American Howell was again the spearhead in the Crimson attack, running and passing brilliantly. The winners led at halftime, 13-0. Alabama is yet to meet defeat, its most spectacular victory coming over Tennessee last Saturday.

YESTERDAY'S POINT-MAKERS

Tar Heel Staff Photos.

The above photos show two of the highlights as far as Carolina rooters are concerned in the cross country and football battles between the Tar Heels and Wolfpack here yesterday. The top picture is of the harrier group that crossed the line before any State man was able to finish, giving Carolina an easy victory. Left to right are Ed Waldrop, Haywood Curlee, Graham Gammon, Ed McRae, Fab Haywood, and Jack Bowers. The first five completed the course holding hands in a tie, while Bowers was just about 300 yards behind.

At the bottom is an action shot of Charlie Shaffer, Tar Heel halfback, as he crossed the goal line with Carolina's lone touchdown. The scoring play was good for 14 yards, Shaffer receiving a neat pass from Dick Dashiell. Al Bardes is the State halfback on Shaffer's heels, while Ray Rex (47) and Laurence McCulley (9) are also shown in the photo.

Six Frat And Five Dormitory Outfits Still Undefeated

Rand of Betas Continues to Top Individual Scorers with 54.

With three weeks of play gone by in the intramural tag football competition, the records show six fraternity and five dormitory teams still comprising the circle of the undefeated, and a merry race taking place in the battle for individual scoring honors.

Rand of Beta Theta Pi added four touchdowns to stay far in the lead in both the fraternity and campus scoring, while Austin of Lewis and McKinnon of Ruffin overtook Daniel of the Y. M. C. A., whose team remained inactive for the week, to lead the dormitory loop with 31 and 30 points respectively.

To Shores of Delta Tau Delta goes the honor of scoring the first and only field goal of the season, and to Austin that of being high scorer for a single contest, all his points coming in the Lewis 55-0 win over Old East.

Cross Country Boys Place First Six; Whip State, 15-49

Waldrop, McRae, Curlee, Gammon, and Haywood in Tie.

The Carolina varsity cross country team opened its current season in a most auspicious manner yesterday morning as it turned in a perfect 15-49 triumph over the hill and dalers of N. C. State, to almost duplicate its last year's victory to a point.

With the Blue and White leading the Wolfpack throughout the contest, five of its color bearers rounded the turn from Hillsboro street into the Emerson track together; and a few seconds later, locked arm-in-arm, broke the tape in 17 minutes, 24.6 seconds.

Bower Beats Fallom

The tying quintet was composed of Ed McRae, Graham Gardner, Haywood Curlee, Ed Waldrop, and Fab Haywood. Jack Bower, who was running unofficially, came in next, breasting the tape about 100-yards in front of Fallom of State.

At the outset of the race McRae and Gammon stepped out into a short lead and passed the one mile mark in 5:05, with the remainder trailing fairly well packed together. However, Coach Ranson's boys soon began to all pull away, and at the halfway mark, seven Carolina boys were up in front.

McRae Has Trouble

Along about the three-quarters mark, Haywood, Waldrop, and finally Curlee came up at even stride with the two leaders, and a perfect score seemed certain, until McRae began to falter and a side stitch almost forced him to quit. Fallom and Bower, who made it a real dual race the entire distance, almost caught up to McRae before he overcame his fault and set out to rejoin his mates.

As the leaders left the Raleigh road for the final spurt, McRae caught up and the quintet breezed across the line about 300-yards ahead of Bower, who had successfully staved off the final threats of Fallom. Conte, and Gardner took the seventh and eighth positions for the victors, and Womble, Curry, and Davis of State finished in order. Allen, of Carolina, had just enough push left to cross the line ahead of Hines, of State, for the 12th place.

FOOTBALL TEAM PLAYS GA. TECH NEXT SATURDAY

Large Group Expected to Follow Tar Heel Gridsters to Atlanta Next Week-end.

LAST SOUTHEASTERN FOE

The Carolina football squad journeys to Atlanta Saturday to engage Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado with indications that the Tar Heels will lead a heavy invasion of Georgia by Carolina students and alumni.

Only a small band of the faithful followed the team on its previous sortie into Peachland. Those who stayed home went wild when the news arrived that Carolina had upset Georgia, 14-0, and vowed the next trip to Georgia would find them anywhere except home.

The Tar Heels know they will find a fine team and a tough game awaiting them. They saw enough of Tech when it was up to meet Duke to expect that. But they figure that the Tar Heels are going to give the Tornado a whale of a scrap and want to be on hand for the fireworks.

Last Atlanta Tilt Tied

This will be Carolina's first appearance in Atlanta since 1931, when the two teams fought four furious quarters to a 19-19 deadlock. On the visit before that in 1929, the Tar Heels gave Tech's 1929 team its first licking of the season, 18-7.

Tech won the two games played in 1932 and 1933 by scores of 43-14 and 10-6. Carolina gave the Tornado a great fight last year and came within inches of winning when Brandt dropped Jackson's pass in the end zone.

The licking they took in 1932, however, still rankles, and the seniors on the club can be counted on to play their hearts out in an effort to pay the Yellow Jackets back.

Veterans on Hand

The Tar Heels offer a new coach, Carl Snavely, formerly of Bucknell, with a veteran team. Eighteen of the 27 men who played against Tech last year are back, including Jackson of the brilliant passing, Bell, who

FIVE FAIL TO ROB BANK IN WENDELL

Wake County Officers Surprise Five Attempting to Break Safe Near Raleigh.

Raleigh, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Police tonight held five Raleigh men in the Wake county jail who made an attempt this morning to rob the Bank of Wendell about 8 miles from here.

Police surprised the five about 3:30 o'clock this morning in the act of burning a hole in the bank's safe with an acetylene torch. Two of them were watching outside.

Although the Ford sedan in which the thieves attempted to escape carries the marks of no less than 75 direct hits, no one was injured in the shooting which followed the discovery of the attempted robbery.

A newspaper statement two days ago that the bank had $750,000 on deposit, the largest amount of money ever placed in the bank, is thought to have been the signal for the robbery. However, it is reported that only $25,000 in cash was on hand last night.

Philip R. Whitley, Wake county Democratic chairman and attorney for the Wendell bank, led the surprise attack on the thieves.

scored Carolina's one touchdown, and Captain George Barclay, who played such a brilliant game at guard.

The line is identically the same from tackle to tackle that was starting the games at the close of last season. Daniel is at center, Barclay and Kahn man the guards, Tatum and Evins are at tackle, and only the ends, Buck and Childers, are new.

Charlie Shaffer, Don Jackson, Herman Snyder, and Jim Hutchins have been standing out in the backfield. Shaffer averaged 45 yards for his punts against Kentucky.

Scouting Tech this year has been a problem. After playing at Michigan last week, the Tornado jumped to Tulane yesterday. And Carolina sent Athletic Director R. A. Fetzer all the way to New Orleans to get the dope.

Coach Fetzer and Coach Bill Alexander, the Tech coach, are great friends as well as intense rivals. And Coach Bill is a great admirer of George Barclay, the Carolina captain.

"That boy is dynamite. He is all-southern, all-American, all-anything," he said of Barclay after the Carolina captain stopped three-fourths of Tech's rushes single-handed last year.

GLEE CLUB ISSUES CALL FOR SINGERS

Additional Singers and Pianists Can Be Used; Call Final.

The University glee club issues a final call for student singers and pianists.

A number of additional singers can be placed and several pianists are needed to accompany the club on trips. Students interested should report at the Hill Music hall at 5:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Practices are Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

Keys are given for five quarters' participation.

The glee club is attempting to regain the prestige which it held several years ago. During the Thanksgiving holidays, the club will tour the state. Longer trips are planned for longer in the year.

At present there 52 active members.

Cleopatra imported European snow to chill Marc Antony's wine. Cleopatra and Marc were fond of frequenting disreputable taverns in Alexandria slums. secondary napping. Hutchins made it a first down. But State thwarted this scoring chance when Farrar intercepted Dashiell's intended pass to Shaffer. After another exchange of kicks, Carolina was knocking on the door for a touchdown. Barclay recovered Hayden's fumble on the State 17 yard line. Hutchins made two; Jackson failed to gain; Jackson attempted a pass which was grounded. Shaffer picked up seven yards, lacking inches of being a first down.

Carolina elected to defend the west goal, State to receive, in the second half. The lineups of the teams were the same, save Joyce replaced Kahn in the Tar Heel line. Tatum kicked off deep into the Tech territory, but Rex returned the ball to his own 30 yard stripe. After several line plunges, Farrar kicked 37 yards to Carolina's 21 yard line where Daugherty downed the ball. Shaffer kicked out on the Carolina 49.

Here the Wolfpack got hot and showed plenty of fire. Farrar dropped back and tossed a 24 yard pass to Bardes who was tackled on the Carolina 26 yard marker. Farrar picked up about two yards at the center of the line. On the next play, Farrar on a reverse sifted through the whole Carolina team to score standing up. Regdon was sent in to do the kicking, replacing Stanko. Regdon kicked a neat placement with McCulley holding the ball. Score: Carolina, 7; N. C. State 7.

The rest of the game found both teams trying to gain some advantage by their kicking game. The only other real threat of scoring came in the fourth period. After repeated assaults at the State forward wall, Carolina attempted a placekick from the Tech 40. Tatum's kick was accurate enough but the ball fell short several yards, McCulley returning the ball to the visitors' 25-yard line.

Both teams resorted to a vain effort to capitalize on their aerial efforts, but neither club could gain a decisive break. Shaffer intercepted Farrar's pass and returned the ball to the UNC 35. Dashiell passed to Shaffer for a first down. Montgomery failed to gain at the center of the line, and Dashiell's intended pass to Montgomery was incomplete. Martin got off a beautiful kick to the State 3 yard line where Childers downed the ball. As the teams were lining up for another play, the game ended.

For State, Isaacs, Redding, and Stanko looked best in the line while the brilliant play of Farrar stood out. He did everything well, passed, kicked, and ran to a degree which must have warmed the cockles of "Hunk" Anderson's heart. Rex continued to be a disappointment running, but he was all over the field on pass defense.

Carolina's whole center of the line functioned well with Evins, Tatum, Barclay and Kahn shining brightest. In the backfield, Shaffer on the offense and Hutchins played fine games. Snyder was the bright light of the Tar Heels' defense.

SERVICES HELD AT GAME FOR LATE DAVID TAYLOE

A memorial ceremony in memory of the late David Tayloe, Jr., class of '16 and captain of the football teams of 1914 and 1915, took place between the halves of the Carolina-State game yesterday.

In the presence on the field of a few members of the four teams on which Tayloe played while at the University, Dean Francis Bradshaw, president of the class of 1916, read a brief citation over the amplifying system. Dean R. B. House, also a member of Tayloe's class, acted as announcer for the ceremony.

Local Y. M. C. A. Entertains at First Greater University "Y" Meeting.

VISITORS MAKE REPORTS

Marking a significant step in the consolidation of the Greater University, the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. cabinets of the three branches were entertained at a buffet supper and meeting last night in the Episcopal parish house.

State College was represented by a considerable delegation, and the Woman's College brought over a group of 25 students and Y. W. C. A. officers, led by Miss Lucy Crisp.

House Speaks

Administrative Dean Robert R. House made the principal speech of the evening after the Rev. Donald Stewart of the Presbyterian church had led in the devotionals.

Pointing out the error of thinking of the "Y" movement as just another campus activity, Dean House stated that Christianity is not a fraternity or supplementary organization but is one's philosophy and mode of living.

After Dean House, Mary Woodburn, president of the Y. W.C.A. at Greensboro, was asked to report on her organization and its program. The secretary of the "Y" at State College followed with another report.

Harry F. Comer, general secretary of Y. M. C. A. here, also told of his recent trip to the meeting of the national council at Cleveland and the proposal which was discussed there of uniting the "Y" and similar college organizations into a national united Christian movement.

J. D. Winslow, Y. M. C. A. president here, presided over the session.

A. & P. DISPUTES WITH OHIO LABOR

Relations Board to Consider Tea Company's Closing of 300 Cleveland Stores.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 29.—(UP)—The jobs of 2,000 depended tonight on the ability of the national labor relations board to bring peace to the dispute which caused the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company to close 300 stores here.

Local efforts failed to persuade the federated labor of Cleveland to temper its demands for absolute closed shop or cause the tea company to rescind its drastic decision to quit business rather than submit to labor.

To Seek Solution

Representatives of the company and seven labor unions which are involved in the strike will meet with the relations board tomorrow afternoon to seek some solution to the problems.

Meanwhile William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, signified his intention of conducting an investigation of the disturbances.

Milwaukee and other cities of the middle west are also threatened with strikes among the employes of the Greater Atlantic and Pacific company and in allied industries.

NEGRO TROUPE TO SING HERE ON NOVEMBER 25

The Sedalia Singers, Negro chorus from Greensboro, will present a musical program in Memorial hall, November 25, sponsored by the University Y. M. C. A. committee headed by Harry Riggs.

The Sedalia Singers come from a colored school on the outskirts of Greensboro and have made an admirable record singing all over the country. They are especially famous for their chorus singing Negro spirituals.

DI WILL CONSIDER THREE NEW BILLS

Senate to Meet Tonight at 7:15 O'clock in New West; Questionnaire to Be Read.

The Dialectic senate will meet tonight in New West at 7:15 o'clock to take up three bills.

Bills for discussion are as follows: Resolved, that the Dialectic senate go on record as favoring a law requiring driver's licenses in North Carolina; Resolved, that the Dialectic senate send a delegate to attend the arrangements committee meeting for the proposed anti-war conference which will meet next month; Resolved, that a strong industrial union, organized on a national basis, can not be successful in the United States.

Questionnaire

The questionnaire that has been prepared by officers and members on the proposed swimming pool will be read at the meeting.

The senate's proposal as set in questionnaire is as follows: "If permission of the legislature is obtained, the University may borrow federal P.W.A. funds to finance the project. The total cost will be from $100,000 to $120,000, P.W.A. contributing one third as a gift, the remaining two-thirds payable over a term of ten to 12 years at six per cent.

Student Fee

"To finance this remaining two-thirds, it has been suggested that a student fee of $1.00 per quarter be levied, summer school included.

"The pool is to be of adequate size, and is to be equipped with modern heating and cleaning facilities. It shall be built as a wing to the future physical education building, plans for which are already drawn, although construction cannot be financed as a whole for several years."

The questionnaire asks if each student would be willing to pay $1.00 each quarter to finance the building of the pool.

POOL SETS MEETINGS FOR SENIOR EXECUTIVES

The senior class executive committee will meet every Thursday night at 7:00 o'clock in the lounge of the University Y. M. C. A. to discuss class policies and activities, Jack Pool, senior class president, announced yesterday.

The members of the entire senior class are especially invited and urged to attend these informal meetings, and it is hoped that they will take part in the discussions.

Anti-War Group to Meet

The arrangements committee for the proposed anti-war conference, to be held here November 9 and 10, will meet tonight at 8:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall.

Quiet Ceremony Held Sunday Afternoon in Venable Home.

Dr. William Chambers Coker, head of the department of botany, and Miss Louise Manning Venable, daughter of the late Dr. Francis Preston Venable, former president of the University, and Mrs. Venable, were married Sunday afternoon in the Venable home.

The Rev. Alfred S. Lawrence of the local Episcopal church officiated at the service.

Those attending were Mrs. Venable, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sutton, and Miss Sarah Sutton of Raleigh, Miss Mary Manning and Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Coker, of Chapel Hill.

Dr. and Mrs. Coker departed immediately following their marriage on an automobile trip south.

AVIATOR EFFECTS PACIFIC CROSSING

Kingsford-Smith Is First Flyer To Accomplish Trip from Australia to Honolulu.

Honolulu, Oct. 29.—(UP)—Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, first flier to conquer the west to east crossing from Australia to Honolulu, predicted tonight that five years of hard work will be required before planes suited to trans-Pacific commercial service can be developed.

Completing a 3,100 mile flight through threatening storms and uncomfortably warm weather, Kingsford-Smith and Co-pilot Captain P. G. Taylor landed this afternoon at Wheeler Field at 1:55 o'clock (EST).

Plane Up 24 Hours

Their plane, "Lady Southern Cross," was in the air for a total of 24 hours and 45 minutes before landing at the army air base about 30 miles from Honolulu.

Commander Kingsford-Smith, who was knighted in 1928 for his flight from California to Australia, said that he would stop here until the weather took a turn for the better.

From Honolulu, he will take off for California, expecting to make the trip within 18 or 20 hours.

PHI TO TAKE UP TURLINGTON ACT

Speakers Appointed Last Week; Woodhouse to Be Critic.

Resolved, that the next state legislature take definite action towards the repeal of the Turlington Act, is the bill to be discussed by the Phi assembly at 7:15 o'clock in New East.

Speakers for and against this bill were appointed last week in order that the fundamental issues might be well-defined.

Professor E. J. Woodhouse will act as "efficiency expert" for tonight's meeting and will comment briefly on the bill for discussion at the completion of the student members' speeches.

Since the official list for the Yackety Yack will be taken, Speaker Smithwick urges all members to be present.

PHOTOS DUE THURSDAY

Thursday will be the last day that juniors and seniors can have their pictures taken for the junior and senior section of the Yackety Yack.

DEAN GIVES TALK ON GOOD MEMORY

R. B. House Addresses Freshman Assembly Yesterday.

Administrative Dean R. B. House spoke on the importance of good memory yesterday in his regular Monday morning address to freshman assembly.

"By tracking back over what has been said in classes, one can fix in his memory the most important facts to be learned in a course," he said.

"Unless you are sick, your mental faculties can be developed into a good memory," the dean stated, citing several methods for memory development. "Examinations are good, for they are tests of what you have stored in your memory."

Roscoe Fisher, an alumnus and graduate student of the University, took charge of the devotional exercises.

LOCAL AUTHORS ENTER CONTEST

University Press Here Submits Five Books for Mayflower Cup Award.

Five books published this year by the University press have been submitted in competition for the Mayflower cup, to be presented by the North Carolina Mayflower society at the meeting of the North Carolina literary and historical society December 4 and 5 in Raleigh.

The Mayflower cup has been presented annually since 1930 to the native North Carolinan who has produced the most outstanding original work during the preceding year. Last year it was won by Dr. Rupert B. Vance of this University.

Five Books

The five press books are: W. T. Couch's "Culture in the South," which in 32 chapters by a selected group of authors describes the more important aspects of present-day life in the south; "Trees of the Southeastern States," by W. C. Coker and H. R. Totten, intended for the use of both the amateur and the student.

"Birds of the South," by Charlotte Hilton Green, described by F. M. Chapman, the well-known American authority on birds, as "a most acceptable addition to literature on birds"; "The Story of the South," by A. M. Arnett with the collaboration of W. C. Jackson, a sixth-grade textbook with the emphasis on social forces and developing ideas of government; and "Lynching and the Law," a legal treatise written by J. H. Chadbourn, assistant professor of law here.

A tennis tournament for women students will be held here next week.

FINJAN APPEARS FOR FIRST TIME

Humor Magazine Distributed Last Night; Additional Copies To Be Given Out Today.

The Finjan, long-awaited successor to the ill-fated Buccaneer, made its initial appearance on the horizon of what some people fondly call humor last night.

Only one half of the copies of the publication were distributed last night, according to Bernard Solomon, business manager of the publication, but the other copies will be given out tonight.

The business staff will receive complaints tomorrow from students who do not get their publications.

New Format

The Finjan differs radically from the Buccaneer in type-face, the dimensions of the columns and the magazine itself. The type is now 10 point century type where formerly it has been 12 point caslon type.

The magazine is the cleverest parody ever done of the "Ladies' Home Journal," by virtue of the fact that it is the only take-off ever presented of that magazine. Especially noteworthy are the fashion plates by Dorothy Dix on page 49.

"All that I am and all that I have I owe to my mother and the student loan fund," said Editor Gaskins in an interview yesterday afternoon. "The magazine will be as clean in December as in October."

Sensabaugh to Talk At Bull's Head Today

Will Discuss Current Play, "Merrily We Go Along."

A discussion of the current New York play, "Merrily We Roll Along" will be conducted by George F. Sensabaugh of the University English department at the regular Bull's Head lecture program this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

The play, which is achieving great success in New York today, was written by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart. The satire presents the origin and growth of the present day intellectual.

Kaufman and Hart have a number of outstanding successes to their credit. Kaufman was co-author of "Of Thee I Sing" and Hart wrote "As Thousands Cheer" to which Irving Berlin added the musical score last season.

Sensabaugh, considered an authority on late Elizabethan drama, is in close touch with the contemporary theatre. In his lecture he will include readings from "Merrily We Roll Along" and, at the close, will personally conduct the discussion period.

Confirms All Names Students Suggested

Faculty Group Will Aid Student Committee in Planning Its Program.

EXACT DATE NOT NAMED

Dean R. B. House, administrative head of the Chapel Hill unit of the Greater University, approved yesterday the faculty advisory committee for student-faculty exposition day, as submitted by the previously appointed student committee.

Dean House confirmed the appointment of each of the eight men who were suggested by the student committee. The members of the new body are: Wm. de B. MacNider, W. M. Dey, A. W. Hobbs, E. L. Mackie, J. P. Harland, E. J. Woodhouse, F. F. Bradshaw, and Wm. S. Bernard.

To Advise

The faculty members will act as an advisory board to assist the student committee composed of Agnew Bahnson, Albert Ellis, and J. D. Winslow. They will contact the various departmental heads of the University and direct the exhibits program. Together the two committees will complete the final plans for the exposition day.

The exact date for the gala occasion has not been set but it was announced by authorities yesterday that the date would occur within the week of February 22, Washington's birthday.

The appointment came as a result of a meeting with the student committee of departmental heads last Thursday, at which time it was unanimously agreed that a special faculty group be appointed to collaborate with the students in the exposition. Work by the departmental heads has already begun.

McMULLAN TALKS ON N. C. FINANCES

Chairman of Industrial Commission Addresses North Carolina Club Last Night.

At a meeting of the North Carolina club in the library building last night Harry McMullan, chairman of the North Carolina Industrial commission, spoke on North Carolina fiscal policies.

McMullan outlined the financial expenditures of the state for roads and schools for the past several years and compared them with the sum of all the sources of revenue.

Deficit Named

The speaker presented the statistics pertaining to revenue from each source and the deficit confronting us today. The recently inaugurated sales tax was given much attention.

"On the whole" said McMullan, "North Carolina's condition is good in comparison with other states, but there is still vast room for improvement."

McMullan was formerly director of the sales tax and has held several responsible positions with the state.

The North Carolina club is composed mainly of North Carolinians who are interested in the affairs of their state. The club meets regularly twice a month. The general public is invited to attend.

PARAGRAPHICS

Histrionic note: Delmar is making his play but Koch keeps on Playmaking.

The delayed appearance of the Magazine couldn't mean that the editor is trying to keep something from us?

We see where the co-op directors will be increased in number. Which, we imagine, shows that the co-op will not be under-roled.

Buying a Brown Derby

The announcement by the Harvard business school administration of the inauguration of a school of public administration is a welcome note, evidence of the trend toward educational preparation eminently fitting the youth of America for fields hitherto apparently neglected by institutions for training.

The only contact which most undergraduates ever have with public administration in its preparatory stages is through general government courses and limited law studies offered for the most part only to law specialists. Practical training for public service has long been the greatest need of democratic institutions.

We undergraduates have heard for years that there is a growing need for young men in politics, that there is an increased demand for new blood in the political and administrative departments of our local, state, and national units. But we are just beginning to realize that training for this field is specialized and must be administered in addition to a broad cultural training.

This Harvard has apparently realized in adding this course to its graduate business school. This, we hope, our administration has realized and will continue to realize in the immediate appointment of a dean for our headless school of public administration here.

Expediting Its Business

We see where Professor E. J. Woodhouse is going to act as "efficiency expert" for the Philanthropic assembly tonight. Professor Woodhouse, we understand, will give a critical report of the entire meeting.

Now, we've heard of "parliamentarians" and "critics" and lots of other fellows with the unpleasant task of telling the rest of the lot what they did wrong, but when it comes to "efficiency experts" in a forensic battle, we yield the floor to the local representatives.

When Representative Stammer shifts to his right foot instead of his left, will Professor Woodhouse excoriate the unhappy lad for his awkwardness? Will he make fellows who hiss for no apparent reason self-conscious about their "p's" and "q's" and pre-disposed to the nonsibilants? These and many more momentous questions hang in the balance when Professor Woodhouse goes to bat tonight.

His is either the position of critic under an assumed name, or a novel status quo that may make parliamentary history. In either case, we look with eager anticipation to the Phi's venture in borrowing from big business to put parliamentary procedure on its feet.

Cutting Formality

The innovation of Jack Pool, senior class president, in proposing regular informal "get-togethers" of the class executive committee, is constructively an important move in class administration.

Gathered in a group at regular intervals, discussing in the most informal manner the problems of the class and the possibilities of its development, the committee will become a potent force not only in the promotion of class enterprises but in the creation of a real class spirit. Class problems will cease to appear as routine hindrances; they will turn up as interesting items upon which the committee members can direct their efforts and consolidated thought without official red-tape, with the best interests of the class which they represent in their mind.

The informal meetings will replace the formal committee convocations and the unruly and inefficient class meetings; efficiency and class interest, conducive to putting the committee's ideas across with the most possible success, should result from the new arrangement.

Like Yours Straight?

To Don Marquis' Old Soak, the problems of living were simple. "None of your innovations for me," said the Old Soak. "I always held by three things: straight whiskey, calomel, and the old-time religion."

But the life of the modern student is more perplexing. Especially his religious life. Mere unthinking belief is out of the question; his learning will have taught him the absurdity of blindly accepting the precepts taught him in childhood. He will have learned that "the old-time religion" no longer gives him the solution to his ethical and moral problems.

It is this fact, among others, which has given rise to the serious charges launched against the University; that it is a hot-bed of atheism; that agnosticism and skepticism are encouraged; that honest virtue is snubbed, artistic villainy fondled.

Your student, however, is only bewildered, or no longer interested. Threats of hell-fire leave him cold. The religion which appeals to him must do so through reason, not by virtue of emotionalism. He desires an ethical concept, a return to the moral idealism of Plato and Aristotle.

It is for this reason that the churches in a University town have an unusually difficult problem. They must abide by the tenets of their faith; and they must appeal to minds that are in the most critical period of their thought. They must present material for intelligent thinking; but they must not fall back too strongly on the Revivalist. The student, in an enthusiasm of scorn for what appears to him an outmoded structure, is all too apt to overlook its strong foundations.

The Union services, now being conducted on Sunday nights by many of the churches of Chapel Hill, seem a step in the right direction. Dr. Elbert Russell, of the Duke theological school, was the first of a series of speakers, drawn from all creeds and professions, to tell "What My Religion Means to Me." The student should draw something from the discussions applicable to his own problems.

The Episcopal half-hour of organ music on Sunday nights, which has been called "the most beautiful service in Chapel Hill," is also popular with students. The sombre church, lighted only by the altar-candles, the strains of the organ, alike induce a reflective mood.

To those who like their brimstone "straight," this may seem a sugar-coating of religion. However, it seems to us that sincerity is the main thing—outward form is of secondary importance.

Admittance And Denial

The editor of the Stanford Daily was to say the least frank in his proposal that the college adopt a policy of open financial support for athletes. Advocating this in all earnestness, he was affording at the same time in inadvertent simplicity a far-reaching criticism of modern collegiate football, which at many universities is a sport whose participants are shamelessly subsidized.

But in contrast to the Stanford editor's suggestion, the issue has generally been not whether athletes should be paid, but whether they should not be paid. Such at least has been the case on this campus, which maintains no distinction between a needy athlete and a needy non-athlete.

It is generally recognized, however, that numerous other colleges violate the supposedly amateur standing of their athletes by a clandestine policy of keeping them "on the pay-roll" in one way or another. It is for this reason that the Stanford editor's proposal to pay athletes, give them "open and above board" financial support, is more to be praised for a candid admission of a situation that exists than condemned for its essential denial of the non-professional status of college athletics.

The Parker Vacumatic contains none of these—that's why it's guaranteed mechanically perfect!

The only transparent style with VISIBLE ink supply that doesn't LOOK transparent. Says Everett Genther (student at College of Physicians and Surgeons, Boston)—"When we medics used rubber sac pens, we had to carry bottles of ink to lectures and exams. Tar Heels Will Be Worked Hard This Week For Ga. Tech Contest

Coach Snavely Highly Disappointed at Showing Against Wolfpack Last Saturday.

CHANGES IN FIRST STRING

Coach Fetzer Reports that Ga. Tech Looked Plenty Good In Losing to Tulane.

More than disappointed at Saturday's game, Coach Snavely intends to push his charges hard all this week in preparation for a certain battle when Carolina meets Georgia Tech at Atlanta Saturday.

Coach Snavely stated that without a doubt, the Wolfpack eleven was the weakest opponent the Tar Heels have faced this season. Carolina was doing all right, according to the new mentor, until it made its lone tally. After that there was a letdown from which the club never recovered.

Carolina Is Listless

However, Coach Snavely believed that the Tar Heels gave all they had but it just wasn't there. Whether the poisoning had anything to do with the outcome cannot be ascertained for sure. It was the first contest that Charlie Shaffer, brilliant running and kicking halfback, became completely exhausted, while many of the other members of the team felt listless after the first half.

In yesterday's practice Coach Snavely indicated that he was planning to shake the first string up quite a bit and several new faces may be in the starting lineup against the Golden Tornado.

No lineup was at all certain this early in the week but just as a starter Harry Montgomery and Randy Cooner were moved up to alternate at the left halfback position and Mac Bell was tried at fullback on the first varsity.

Mainstays Stick

Of course the old mainstays, Charlie Shaffer and Hump Snyder, remained at regular posts in the backfield. In the line Buck and McCarn were at ends; Trimpey and Evins, at tackles; Captain Barclay and Stevens, at guards; and Gardner and Kanner, alternating at center.

Eddie Kahn, regular guard, was the only new injury in the State game. He re-hurt a bad knee but will probably be ready to start Saturday. Trainer

TAR BABIES DRILL FOR FUTURE TILTS

Coaches Lecture Charges on Mistakes of State Battle.

Still smarting from their defeat at the hands of the N. C. State Wolfcubs in Greensboro last Friday night, the Tar Babies yesterday plunged desperately into a stiff drill in preparation for their three remaining games.

The session started with a long grueling dummy tackling drill, to improve their defensive game which fell off so badly against the freshmen of State. The boys were tackling savagely yesterday afternoon, and egged on by the coaches, hit the dummies with a renewed vigor.

The coaches, James and Fysal, stated the yearling mistakes of Friday night in a long lecture.

They were told that hereafter practices were going to be harder and more taxing and those who felt that they would not be able to co-operate should waste no time in turning in their uniforms.

Coach Fysal impressed them with the idea that hereafter all positions were open and that their playing in the past would not in any way determine the future lineup.

Ace Though Sick

Hump Snyder, great blocking and defensive back on the Tar Heel grid team. The junior letterman spent all day Friday in the infirmary and against doctor's orders started and played the entire game against State Saturday. Coach Snavely stated that even if Snyder could only crawl he would still be one of the best on the Carolina eleven.

BETAS CONTINUE WINNING STREAK

Frat Champs Down A. T. O. as Rand Gets Four Touchdowns; Lewis Whips Everett.

With its brilliant high scoring end, Trip Rand, going on another scoring spree, the strong Beta Theta Pi team captured its fourth straight intramural football victory yesterday afternoon as it snowed an A. T. O. eleven under, 39-0.

In the defensive feature of the session, Everett outplayed itself in holding the strong Lewis aggregation scoreless, but lost out after the former had registered seven first downs to its two. Sigma Chi did not experience any great trouble in taking Phi Alpha 20-6 in the only other game on the program.

With some beautiful blocking exhibited by his fellow linemates, Rand turned four passes into scores and sent his individual scoring up to an unchallenged leadership of 78 points. Blythe also went over once and added three extra points, to give the Betas a 33-0 lead at half time.

Everett Shows Fight

Lewis set out to win its fourth straight game of the year without expecting an awful lot of opposition from its lower quadrangle opponents, but found a tartar in a hard fighting Everett eleven and was able to take the win only by virtue of first downs. Despite the fact that Lewis did register seven first downs to Everett's two, the latter showed remarkable improvement over its past performances and made several fine stands when opposing backs threatened its goal.

Sigma Chi continued to make a better showing as it turned the tables on Phi Alpha by a 20-6 margin. A strong forward wall enabled the victors' backs to break loose for seven first downs, while holding the opposition to four.

Lipscomb, Hubbard, and Neal accounted for touchdowns, while the latter converted two free tries for the winners' total.

Today's Games

4:30—(1) Aycock vs. Kluttz Bldg., (2) Delta Tau Delta vs. T.E.P. (3) Grimes vs. Old West.

LIGHTWEIGHT ACE WILL TRAIN WITH CAROLINA BOXERS

HAS WON 101 STRAIGHT

With a beautiful southpaw boxer in their midst, the leather pushers indulged in a short, snappy drill yesterday afternoon. The boy who throws them from the port side is one of the cleverest lightweights in the country today.

He is known to fight-goers as one of the busiest two-fisted scrappers in the boxing game. This boy is Eddie Dolan, who hails from Waterbury, Connecticut, and has engaged in over 150 scraps. He has been defeated but a few times and these setbacks occurred while he was still young in the art of ring warfare. To date, Dolan has won 101 consecutive victories.

Victories over Stars

Some of the boys he has beaten are Paris Apice, sixth lightweight in the National Boxing association ranking; Harry Carleton, twice conqueror of Benny Bass and Andy Callahan; and Harry Emond.

Dolan has become the leading lightweight of the New England states and has been signed to fight Sammy Fuller. Fuller, hearing of Dolan's knockout of Tommy Bland, ex-Canadian champion, asked for more time to train, and the match fell through.

Dolan is spending the winter in the south and stopped at Chapel Hill on his way to Florida. While in Chapel Hill, Dolan will stay with Coach Rowe, who will guide his career for the remainder of the winter.

To Help Tar Heels

Coach Rowe has announced that anybody interested in learning something about boxing should not hesitate to report to the Tin Can immediately as he, Dolan, and Captain Giddens will be ready to aid them.

Through the efforts of Coach Rowe, Dolan has consented to remain in Chapel Hill for a while and help him by sparring with the varsity men.

Both Joe Fisher, 145 pounder, and Tom O'Flaherty, who fights at 135 and hails from Dolan's home town, went two fast rounds with Dolan. Both boys looked good, showing much improvement in their timing and stepping along rather briskly.

"Lammie" Alderman, heavyweight prospect, and the veteran Jimmie Carruth sparred for a few rounds with both boys counting several times.

Mural Additions

In addition to the intramural tabulations listed in Sunday's DAILY TAR HEEL, the following may be inserted: Shores of Delta Tau Delta ranks third in the fraternity league and sixth on the campus with a total of 23 points. Phi Gamma Delta has won one game, but has played two scoreless ties with Phi Alpa.

Fencers to Meet

There will be a meeting of all students interested in fencing, whether experienced or beginners, at 7:00 o'clock tonight in 215 Graham Memorial.

Among last year's team back this year are Captain F. C. Litten and John Elmendorff. The latter was undefeated last year.

Shepard Calls Practice

Candidates for the basketball team are requested by Coach Shepard to report at the Tin Can for practice today at 4:00 o'clock.

DOUBLES TENNIS TOURNEY STARTS THIS AFTERNOON

Captain Levitan and Eddy De Gray Will Head Large Group In Annual Tournament.

MANY OTHER GOOD PAIRS

Headed by the powerful combination of Walter Levitan and Eddy De Gray, twenty-one doubles teams will unleash all they have in an attempt to annex the school tennis title. The struggle will get underway this afternoon. With varsity players eligible to compete, an array of outstanding pairs have entered and a tournament packed with action is expected.

Levitan, varsity captain and recent winner of the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate doubles crown, and De Gray, present freshman champion and one of the most promising players on the courts, present a nigh unbeatable team, and are seeded first.

Other Ranking Pairs

However, plenty of troublesome moments will face the top-seeded pair, as there are a group of threatening rivals that are capable of topping most any combination on a good day. Next in the seeding, is the formidable frosh pair of Ramsey Potts and Johnny Foreman.

There are doubts as to whether Potts will be able to play, but if he does, this team shapes up as a hard-hitting dangerous duo. Potts, with his remarkable all-around game, and Foreman, with his heavy offense, are two of the best freshmen to come to Carolina in recent years.

Third ranked are Harvey Harris and Byron Abels. Harris is co-holder of the Middle Atlantic doubles title with Levitan, and was the outstanding varsity racquet wielder last year. Abels, seeded first in this year's singles tourney, is a dependable partner and together with Harris forms a strong team.

Fourth Seeded

The present upperclass champion, Myers Whitaker, crowned but a few days ago, is paired with Larry Jones, a varsity player of last year. This team holds the fourth rung in the seeding, and is also looked to for serious competition.

Besides these four top-notch combinations, there are several unseeded teams that carry punch in both racquets. Archie Hen-

COURT PRACTICE GETS UNDERWAY

Coach Shepard to Hold Drill This Afternoon; Weathers And McCachren Missing.

Coach Bo Shepard announced yesterday that he will begin practice for the 1935 basketball season this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock in the Tin Can. Some of the equipment has been given out, while more will be issued today.

In starting his fourth year as coach of Carolina's quint team, Shepard will face a new problem. He will be without the services of two aces, Virgil Weathers and Dave McCachren. These boys were sophs when Coach Bo took over the duties and have since been regular members of his fives.

Three Veterans Out

However, there are still three fine regulars left to build the 1935 outfit around, Captain "Snooks" Aitken, forward; Jake Glace, center; and Jim McCachren, all-southern guard. Both Aitken and Glace have been stars for the past two years, while McCachren was probably the ace of the club last season.

The outstanding candidates for the remaining positions are two letter reserves, Mel Nelson and Ben Blood. Both of these boys played quite a bit last year, Nelson working at guard and forward and Blood featuring at guard.

Wrestling Notice

Anybody interested in wrestling, whether a freshman or an upperclassman, is asked to report to Coach Chuck Quinlan this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock in the Tin Can.

Carolina Cross Country Club to Run W. and L. Saturday And V. M. I. Monday.

BOTH OPPONENTS STRONG

Dunaj Will Be on General Team; Captain Williamson Expected to Make Journey.

Fresh from its perfect run against a harrier team of N. C. State College, the Ranson runners embark on a week-end invasion of Virginia this Saturday.

On Saturday and the following Monday, the cross country men meet Washington and Lee and V. M. I. Both Dominion squads have fairly strong teams. The Generals boast such a fine runner as Dunaj, a leader in S. I. C. distance circles for the past several seasons. W. and L., however, lost by a close score to Davidson's strong group of runners several weeks ago.

Carolina in Good Shape

The Tar Heels came out of their race this past week-end in fine shape. Although the time for the three-mile course was nothing to brag about, the quintet who tied for first looked good for their initial run. Most of the team took extended workouts over the longer courses yesterday and turned up in fine condition.

Captain Harry Williamson, who did not run in the State meet, was not out for practice yesterday but is expected to run this week on the Virginia courses.

By their showing in the Wolfpack run, the Carolina runners lived up to all pre-doping that this season is to be one of the best. Last year the Tar Heels were runners-up to Duke in the S. I. C. meet, but this year the Ransoners stand a good chance of passing the Blue Devils.

Quarantine Will Be Lifted for Others Tonight.

Joe Grier and Tip Jervey were released yesterday from the quarantine at the Phi Delta Theta house, it was announced last night.

Thirteen men and Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson are still confined in the lodge under the quarantine for scarlet fever and are scheduled to be released some time tonight.

The confinement, resulting last week after John Munyan contracted the disease, kept all members of the chapter from leaving the house. All but 16 of the Phi Delts were released Saturday by Dr. W. R. Berryhill, following thorough examinations.

Heels Will Be Worked Hard This Week For Georgia Tech Contest

Chuck Quinlan also stated that Paul Pendergraft, reserve guard, would be back in shape for Saturday but that Bill Moore, end, would likely have to stay on the sidelines at least until the Davidson tilt.

Yesterday Coach Snavely spent most of the afternoon running his reserve backs behind a third string line against the freshmen. The varsity club managed to get one marker when George Moore crossed the goal line on a buck from the two.

Coach Bob Fetzer, who scouted the Georgia Tech-Tulane tilt, reported that Tech played a great game and put up as courageous a fight as he had ever seen any team make.

Tulane got all the breaks, scoring one touchdown with 20 seconds to go in the first half and another marker with 30 seconds to go in the last half.

Georgia Tech led 11 to 9 in first downs and outgained the Greenies, 379 to 239 yards. Trailing at halftime, 13-0, the Golden Tornado came back with a great show of power and pulled up to 13-12 on Tulane.

RELATIONS BOARD FIGHTS TO SAVE PEACE OF LABOR

Night Session Marks Efforts of Board to End Dispute Between A. & P. and Labor.

INDUSTRY IS CONCERNED

Washington, Oct. 30.—(UP)—The National Labor Relations board battled into the night tonight to save the Roosevelt industrial truce menaced by the bitter dispute between the A. & P. Tea Co. and labor unioners.

A noisy five-hour round table conference with company executives and labor representatives recessed at 7:15 o'clock tonight for dinner. The discussions were resumed at 9:00 o'clock.

Cleveland, Oct. 30.—(UP)—Industry looked anxiously to Washington tonight as the Labor Relations board sought to settle the controversy which may mean the removal of one of Cleveland's largest merchants, the A. & P. Tea Co.

The weekly A. & P. payroll here, according to company figures, is $60,000, which means that 2,000 people with an average earning of $30 per week now have nothing to spend.

The great chain of retail grocery stores has stated in no uncertain terms that it will not submit to labor, and that rather than do so it will quit business.

Meanwhile Milwaukee and other cities of the middle west are also threatened with strikes among A. & P. employees and in allied industries.

BAND PLANS TWO TRIPS WITH TEAM

University Musicians Will Accompany Football Squad to Davidson and Virginia.

The University band, conducted by Earl A. Slocum, will accompany the football team to Davidson and Virginia this year, it was announced by "Bo" Shepard of the University athletic department, yesterday.

In order to make a good showing against Davidson's crack band Saturday a week, Slocum has announced a special program of rehearsals between now and that time.

This program begins tomorrow night with a full band rehearsal in the Music hall at 7:00 o'clock.

The athletic department once considered sending the band to Atlanta for the Georgia Tech game, but the enormous cost of transporting the 70-piece organization caused the department to reject the plan.

Davidson Trip

The trip to Davidson will be made in three specially chartered Greyhound busses, and the band will return after the game with the members of the football team.

The band will make the Thanksgiving game trip to Charlottesville on the special pullman with the coaches and team. Their tickets, it is understood, will be valid until the end of the holidays, so band members may spend several extra days in Charlottesville.

Director Slocum will pick the University concert band at the close of the football season. This band will give recitals during the year and will play for University celebrations.

Paul Green Foresees Little Cinema Movement In Colleges

University Should Be Pioneer in Production of Films for Purpose of Raising Movie Standards, Says Playwright-Scenarist.

"Think of the fun we could have making movies on this campus. That's what appeals to me," said Paul Green, professor of philosophy at the University, playwright, and scenarist for numerous Hollywood productions, on his return from New York where his play, "Roll Sweet Chariot," was recently produced.

Enthusiastic about the future of the movies, Green looks to the colleges for the production of intelligent pictures. "Within the near future," he said, "a little cinema movement is certain to come." Green, who is familiar with the movie industry, having written scenarios in Hollywood, is convinced that the development of the cinema as an art will be accomplished by amateur groups.

"With a few thousand dollars we could rig up a studio, buy cameras and other equipment, and import a technical expert or two from Hollywood," Green explained. "Classics in scenario writing would supply us with stories to film. Everybody would have a part. Those who did not take leading roles would serve as extras. Camera try-outs, scene shooting, developing and assembly of the films, trial showings would all lead up to the first night performance just as in Hollywood."

Would Produce Classics

"With sufficient financial backing," he continued, "any little theater group could set up a studio and produce films of great artistic value. Not having to please the masses for financial success as do the professional producers, the amateurs will be free to experiment at will with the cinema. The classics and high class contemporary works will furnish their subject matter; the educated few, their audiences."

Green pointed out that the films could be carried to neigh-

PHI DISAPPROVES TURLINGTON ACT

Assembly to Petition Governor; N. C. Whiskey Bottle Is Flourished in Debate.

The Phi assembly, at last night's meeting in New East, carried by a vote of 43 to 11 the bill: Resolved, that the next state legislature take definite action towards the repeal of the Turlington Act.

A vote on the question was taken only after a spirited debate by Alfred Kaplan and Kenneth Young, who favored the bill, and by Jesse Lassiter and Gene MacIntosh, who spoke against the measure.

Evidence

The debate reached a climax when MacIntosh, who was questioning Kaplan, took issue with the latter on his statement that "good whiskey cannot be bought in North Carolina." MacIntosh flourished an empty bottle which he claimed had previously contained "'Four Roses Whiskey,' one of the best brands in America," and which he claimed, had been procured in North Carolina.

After the bill had been carried, the assembly unanimously voted to petition Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, informing him of the Phi's opinion.

"Efficiency Expert"

Professor E. J. Woodhouse, who acted as "efficency expert" for last night's meeting, commented briefly on each of the speeches, warning against generalization in public statements.

"Youth," he said, "is especially prone to use the words 'never,' 'ever,' and 'forever'."

The bill for discussion at next week's meeting is: Resolved, that every person convicted by the student council be given another chance.

Tom Hull and Harry MacMullen will uphold the affirmative side of this question, and W. E. Simmons and Laighton Dudly will support the negative viewpoint.

Sophomore Committee

Members of the sophomore executive committee will meet at 5:45 o'clock today in the "Y."

"Y" Cabinets Consider New Institute Head

To Be Picked This Week; Comer Carries on the Work.

The appointment of a new chairman for the Human Relations Institute is under consideration by the junior-senior Y. M. C. A. cabinets at present.

They are expected to confirm the appointment this week.

The chairmanship was left vacant by the resignation of Simmons Patterson, senior, last week.

Patterson was elected to the post last spring but was forced to resign because of excessive work this year.

Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the University "Y," has been conducting the regular business of arranging for the Institute, in lieu of an acting chairman.

FROSH ELECTION DATE ANNOUNCED

First-Year Men Make Nominations November 6; Elections Will Follow Thursday.

Freshmen will pay their first visit to the polls at Graham Memorial for the election of class officers on Thursday, November 8, Virgil Weathers, president of the student body, announced yesterday.

Voting, which will be done by the Australian ballot, will be under the supervision of the student council and last from 9:00 o'clock in the morning until 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Nominations Tuesday

Nomination for the offices of president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer will be in order from the floor of the freshman assembly next Tuesday morning.

Candidates nominated Tuesday will meet for their campaign speeches at freshman assembly on the following Wednesday.

At last year's election, the "New Deal" party swept all four of its candidates into office by a large majority. Nate Lipscomb was elected president; Ed Herring, vice-president; Wilborn Davis, secretary; and Joe Grier, treasurer.

DEAN WILL TALK TO SOPHS TODAY

Bradshaw to Speak at First of Series of Programs; Budget Will Be Presented.

There will be a meeting of the entire sophomore class this morning in Memorial hall at 10:30 o'clock.

Dean F. F. Bradshaw will speak and Freddy Johnson and his orchestra will render several musical selections.

A business matter of very great importance to the class will also be brought up at the meeting. A budget for the class for the current school year will be presented and voted on.

Budget Approval

It is necessary that the class approve a budget, which will be presented to the student activities audit board, before there can be any expenditure of class funds.

A budget was presented at the last meeting of the class executive committee by George MacFarland, sophomore treasurer, and was approved. It will become effective upon a majority vote of the class.

The program today is the first in a series of three which has been planned by the class program committee of which Herbert Osterheld is chairman. The next program will be held on Armistice Day. The last will be a musical program. Definite arrangements have been made for neither of these programs, however.

Members of the sophomore executive committee are especially requested to attend the assembly today to consider the band which will play for the sophomore hop.

DOCTOR RELEASES OTHER PHI DELTS

Scarlet Fever Quarantine Lifted Late Last Night.

The quarantine placed on the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house last Thursday for scarlet fever was officially removed late last night by Dr. W. R. Berryhill, University physician, following another thorough examination of the remaining occupants confined to the house.

John Munyan, member of the chapter, entered the infirmary a week from last Monday and, when it was found that he had developed a slight case of scarlet fever, the entire house was quaratined the following Thursday.

All of the members of the fraternity were subjected to the Dick test and a throat culture was also taken of each occupant. All but 16 men were released from confinement Saturday afternoon when their tests showed that they were immune to the disease. The remaining members were released last night.

Munyan was reported as improving rapidly but will probably be confined to the infirmary for another two weeks.

Freshman English Chairman Here Still Recalls Mississippi Ballads

Dr. A. P. Hudson's Folksong Course Is Made Interesting by Professor's Intimate Knowledge of Songs of His Native State.

Many students know Dr. A. P. Hudson in his executive capacity of chairman of freshman English. But few who have not taken the tall Mississippi professor's ballad course for upperclassmen and graduates know to what an extent he is interested in the culture and people of the south and especially of his home state.

Living until he was 16 years old the life of a country boy on a farm in the hills of central Mississippi, Dr. Hudson often listened to the ballads and folksongs of his native people; and, although he has been since his graduation in 1913 a teacher and professor of English literature, he has never forgotten his people and their music.

When in 1930 Dr. Hudson took his Ph.D. degree in English here, the title of his thesis, which won a Smith research prize, was "Folk-Songs of Mississippi and Their Background."

The introduction, written in verse and called "Songs of My Homefolks," to this book has been included in "Mississippi Verse," a collection of lyric poems by Mississippi poets published this summer by the University of North Carolina press. Dr. Hudson is also the author of the introduction to this volume.

His love for the "Songs of My Homefolks" and something of his life in relation to them are mirrored in his poem, which begins:

"Songs of my homefolks, living bonds
With dim, dead yesteryears
Of forthright knights and

Building Up Southern Enrollment

The rapidly increasing number of out-of-state students has given rise to a situation which is causing the University administration to shake its head and which, sooner or later, will require action on the part of University trustees.

This institution has been steadily gaining in out-of-state enrollment in the past few years, but the prevailing influx has come from northern states. This is evident in figures published by the Alumni Review. New York freshmen are second in number to North Carolina freshmen for the sixth consecutive year, says the Review. Other state delegations, ranked in importance according to the number of students they send here, are as follows: New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusetts, South Carolina, and Illinois (eight each), Georgia, and Virginia. Whereas formerly most of the out-of-state students came from the south, in recent years the number of southern students has been far overshadowed by those from the north, especially those from the northern seaboard states.

North Carolina's University is proud of the reputation it enjoys in the northern states, and the enrollment that they send is at all times welcome here. But the crux of the problem is that the University could also enlist a larger enrollment from southern states. The reason that the number of students from southern states has not been as large as that from the north is a uniform out-of-state tuition differential, which is in many cases prohibitive for the southern student. It is not prohibitive for the northern student because the cost of living and the cost of going to college in the north is much larger than in southern states. Southern states, furthermore, generally have state-stupported institutions, like the University, whose doors open for fewer dollars than do the institutions of northern states. To quote from the Review: "We know that prospective students living in Virginia and South Carolina have found the $100 differential for out-of-state students to be the deciding factor in choosing some college other than Carolina."

This, therefore, is the situation in the University's enrollment which has grown up recently. The DAILY TAR HEEL is not qualified to say just what should be done about it, but several suggestions of merit have been made, notably by Ben Husbands, assistant registrar, and Dr. W. C. Coker. This much can be said: that the remedy will lie in an adjustment of the tuition differential to conform with the ability to pay, probably on a sliding scale. Action must be taken in the near future.

Cups Without Handles

After running the gauntlet of a new student board of censors, the recently-created Finjan, the "Buccaneer under an assumed name," made its first appearance Monday and yesterday. And what the campus thinks of this comic, featuring clean and clever humor, is and will be for a few issues a matter for conjecture.

Editor Gaskins succeeded admirably in accomplishing his purpose; he established firmly the tenet on this campus that there are clever writers whose attempts at being funny don't splatter the results with filth. Adverse comment is naturally rife in many quarters, but, as certain student leaders expressed it at the second student council session, it takes time "to educate anybody to anything."

We are glad the Buccaneer is no more. Now that a successful first issue of its successor has come into our midst, we expect to see clever innovations appear concurrently with a trend in the student attitude toward the higher type of humor (however punnish) for which the new comic stands.

The Luxury Called Education

For the year ending July, 1934, the nation's bill for soft drinks, radios, cigars, cigarettes, and automobiles is approximately four billion dollars whereas the expenditures for the training of 26,000,000 school children is only two billions, or one-half that amount.

However, supporters of education are not always following the right policy in attempting to make an issue of what is spent for the aforementioned luxuries and thereby to strengthen their arguments for increased expenditures for education. Those who spend the four billions for luxuries, which under a rapidly rising standard of living border on necessities, simply prefer to do so rather than to bolster education with a part of it, regardless of how lopsided the figures may seem.

Americans like their cigars and radios. They also like their schools, but second to the smoke rings and Wayne King's melodies. The reason for this illogicalness may probably be laid to the superior salesmanship of those producing the luxuries. If this be true, the logical course to be pursued by the educators would be to brush up on their own salesmanship and fight fire with fire. This is not always possible due to the domination of the schools by external forces and the lack of tangible appeals by which education may state its case.

Looking at educational expenditures from a different angle, statistics offer the embarrassing statement that North Carolina ranks fourth from the bottom in the union in the amount of money spent per year on each pupil in the public schools. This state allots only $42.85 per child, or slightly less than half the $86.69 which is the average for the nation. Friend Huey Long's state tops North Carolina, with $48.89, which, though not much of an increase, doesn't allow much room for this state's progressives to have any too much to say about the backwardness of the bayou district.

History and Preservation

Dr. Archibald Henderson has constantly pressed the point that one of the major needs of the state and the Consolidated University is an adequate art and historical museum. Current opinion, as revealed in several state papers, advocates as the best plan the encouragement and development of those museums in existence now, holding that to begin more little museums in a state which is already failing to render adequate support to those which exist, would be a grave mistake.

This opinion cannot affect the University's work on Person hall as a new museum, because it is merely a rehabilitation of one of the campus historical show-pieces so that it can hold the treasures of the past and present for the interest and experience to the future. A University museum is significant for this reason: museums serve as guides in the future, by showing concrete evidence of the past to those of the present whose lives lie ahead of them. Thus, students at the University are more directly benefited by a museum than any other single group of people; it represents to them the experience which is to be given them for their own tasks of making the world's history.

While we agree that more support should be tendered museums by a state with an historical background such as that of North Carolina, we are steadfast, at the same time, in our belief that this campus is the logical site for the development of collections preserving the traditions and achievements of this state.

Over Hill And Dale

Henry and Louis Sullivan, former co-captains of Carolina's cross country forces and now working in Anderson, S. C., wired a telegram of encouragement to the varsity harriers before the State meet Saturday morning.

The telegram itself does not mean as much to the campus as the universal spirit which it represents. Cross country is a minor sport; yet these plugging distance runners pant along for three or five miles almost every day. And when they leave, they cherish their attachment to the most gruelling of Carolina sports to the extent that they wire encouragement to the next batch of men.

The Mississippi professor, who was head of the English department at the University of Mississippi before he became a member of the faculty here in the fall of 1930, is a recognized authority on the southern folksong; and almost all of his publications deal with this field.

Among his publications are "Specimens of Mississippi Folk-Lore," published in 1928; his afore-mentioned "Folk-Songs of Mississippi and Their Background," which has been accepted for publication by the University of North Carolina press; and a number of shorter articles, such as "Folk-Songs of the Southern White," which appeared as a chapter of "Culture in the South," published by the press last year. He is also author of "Git Up and Bar the Door," a folk play presented by the Carolina Playmakers in 1930.

Charlie Shaffer Injured In Scrimmage Yesterday

Hurt Knee May Keep Tar Heel Ace from Ga. Tech Game.

Cooner, Martin, and McCarn Score in Scrimmage.

Charlie Shaffer, Carolina star halfback, suffered a knee injury in yesterday's scrimmage at Kenan stadium. The Tar Heel ace was injured after ripping off a ten yard gain during the early minutes of play. Yeager made the tackle.

The seriousness of Shaffer's injury may not be determined for a day or two; however, it is doubtful if he will be able to participate in the game with Georgia Tech Saturday.

The teams resumed scrimmage after the delay with "Pepper" Martin replacing the injured Shaffer in the first string backfield.

First String Scores

The first stringers were able to carry three touchdowns over the reserve eleven. Randy Cooner, who held down the left halfback post on the first team, accounted for the first score by a sensational 65-yard run through the line. "Pepper" Martin made the second touchdown on an end run from midfield.

After the running of Cooner, Martin, and Hutchins had placed the ball on the opponent's 10-yard stripe, Buck McCarn carried it over on a trick lateral pass for the first team's final score.

Kanner and McIver booted the extra points in yesterday's scrimmage.

Several tentative changes were made in yesterday's lineup. Randy Cooner and Dick Dashiell alternated at the left halfback position on the first team. Martin went to the first string backfield after Shaffer was injured. Murray Kanner was the center for the first string outfit.

Star Is Injured

Charlie Shaffer, great runner and kicker on the Tar Heel football team, who yesterday injured his left knee when tackled during scrimmage. Coach Snavely stated last night that the extent of the injury had not been determined but that the senior was being treated at Durham. If Shaffer is unable to play in the Georgia Tech game it will leave Carolina with a weak spot in its backfield. Besides being the most consistant ground-gainer on the eleven, Shaffer has a punting average of over 40 yards and is a star on defense. The Greensboro boy is so valuable that he played the entire 60 minutes in both the Georgia and Kentucky games and was removed from the State battle only after he was completely exhausted.

FENCERS PREPARE FOR EARLY WORK

Fencers Hold Meeting Last Night; Start Work Next Week in Tin Can.

With a flashy array of crosses, fencing team held last night at Graham Memorial, a group of 22 men reported to sign up. All but five of these men were newcomers to the sport, the rest being veterans of last year's team.

Manager Brad Tobey outlined the plans for the year, and announced that practice will begin Monday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock. This practice will be held once a week at that time for the rest of the quarter. Practice sessions will be held as last year in the Tin Can. Tobey also mentioned letters that have been received, requesting matches, from Georgia Tech, William and Mary and others.

The meeting adjourned with brief comments by several other members of last year's team, who seemed much pleased at the number turning out.

Creative Amateurs

All those interested in forming a club to foster the arts of architecture, painting, sculpture, commercial designing, or any other type of creative art are requested to meet in 209 Graham Memorial tonight at 7:45 o'clock. The meeting will not conflict with the Oxford debate.

Phi Beta Kappa

The meeting of the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, scheduled for tomorrow night, has been postponed until the second week in November.

Pugs Battle Pro In Initial Scraps; Dolan Aids Rowe

Fisher and O'Flaherty Mix with Dolan in Boxing Bouts.

With o flashy array of crosses, hooks, and jabs, both Joe Fisher and Tommy O'Flaherty showed mid-season form in their two-round tiffs with Connecticut Eddie Dolan. Fisher showed a dazzling exhibition of footwork as he side-stepped and waded in. Dolan is noting the faults of the boys working out with him and is referring them all to Coach Rowe.

O'Flaherty looked good as he scored repeatedly with right hooks. He seemed fresh at the outcome and is rounding into form with comparative ease.

In an interesting two-round setto, Marion Diehl, 118-pound ace of last year's freshman squad, and Maxie Frucht, former 125-pound frosh star, set fast paces. Both boys worked hard and with a few more hard workouts should be ready for competition.

Heavier Fights

Among the heavier boys, "Spike" MacDonald and "Flash" Medynski mixed it up for a few rounds. MacDonald fought at 145 last year and is aiming at a varsity berth this year. Medynski was undefeated on last year's crack yearling squad and is also endeavoring to secure a place at 155 pounds on this season's team.

In the last bout among the seasoned men, Bill Dickson, bantamweight soph, stepped two fast rounds with O'Herron, freshman lightweight.

Many of the freshmen took their first workouts inside the ropes, and Coach Rowe was more than pleased with their first attempts.

DALERS PREP FOR VIRGINIA TEAMS IN LONG WORKOUT

Whole Squad Takes Run over Longer Distances; Getting Ready for Hard Trip.

MEET GENERALS, CADETS

Everything seems to be in fine condition among varsity cross country circles as the team gets into shape for the hard trip into the Shenandoah Valley this week-end.

All the team took a hard workout and finished the afternoon in good condition. As in Monday's practice the longer courses were used so that the runners may get in shape for the four and five mile runs in Lexington this week.

Both W. & L. and V. M. I., whom the Tar Heels meet on Saturday and Monday, respectively, have fairly potential harrier outfits. The Generals are led by Dunaj, a great distance runner, and have a well-balanced team. Little is known of the Kaydets' strength, but it is remembered that the military institution nearly always sends a good team on the course.

Longer Distances

The General course is to be five miles while the run on Monday is just four. This past Saturday the Tar Heels ran only a three-and-a-half mile course but will be ready for the longer distance. The weather in the Dominion district may also be much colder than it is here.

Wrestlers Work Out In Initial Practice

Under the guidance of Mac Auman, a star of last year's varsity wrestling team, a squad of about 35 men took their initial workout of the season. The practice yesterday in the Tin Can consisted mainly of limbering up exercises.

Many of the men who worked out yesterday were there merely for training for the intramural matches. In the squad were seen the following active matmen of last year's squad: Ward, Douglas, Umstead, recipients of numerals last year; Greengold, a letterman; and Macphee, Northcross, Miller, and Herring.

Practice will be held every day at 4:00 o'clock in the Tin Can. All men are invited to participate in the workouts whether they intend going out for the varsity or frosh teams, or whether they intend taking part in the intramural matches which are to be held in the near future.

FROSH GRIDDERS HOLD BIG BATTLE IN HARD SKIRMISH

Yearlings Fight to Kill as Coaches Announce Free-for-All for First-String Berths.

WHOLE TEAM IS REVISED

The Tar Babies showed signs of returning to the playing form which they displayed in their first encounter, when they went through a long, hard, and fierce scrimmage yesterday afternoon on Emerson field.

With the announcement that all positions were open, the entire squad was eager to show its worth and make the first team. The outcome of this was a scrimmage between the former first and second elevens, which resembled an actual gridiron affair between rival schools, each man out to kill. The battle was hard fought from beginning to end, with the first aggregation holding the upper hand throughout.

Revised Backfield

The revised first string backfield, consisting of Burnette, Oliver, Fields, and Hoffer, was working with a sweet precision, which might bring the entire quartet a place on the starting eleven in the Duke game.

Little 150-pound Paul Dixon was a tower of strength on the defense for the second team. This plugging guard proved his worth and furthered his chances of becoming a first stringer, when he repeatedly split the offensive line and broke up the numerous passes tried.

The beginning of the scrimmage found the first team unable to gain much yardage against the strong defensive display of the second stringers. As the scrimmage progressed the offense of the regulars began to function and they started to make long gains through the line and around the ends.

Burnette got off the longest run of the game when he took the ball on a reverse and went around right end, reversing his field, and shaking off would-be tacklers for a gain of 35 yards.

Track Notice

Regular fall track practice will begin today on Emerson field. All men of last year's varsity and frosh teams and any others interested should report to Coach Ranson today.

A special practice for high jumpers will be held at 12:00 o'clock with Coach Ranson giving special supervision at the jumping pit on Emerson field. New men are urged to try out.

ACTION FEATURES SESSION IN TAG FOOTBALL LOOP

Delta Tau's, Phi Sigma Kappa, Kluttz Klan, and Grimes Score Victories

MANLY vs. LAWYERS TODAY

Yesterday's session in the intramural tag football loop saw plenty of action as Delta Tau Delta defeated T. E. P. by virtue of nine first downs to four, Phi Sigma Kappa took the measure of the Dekes, 19-6, Kluttz Building downed Aycock, 37-8, and Grimes won over Old West, 13-2.

The Delta Tau Delta grid team continued to be a potential threat in the fraternity division as it easily outgained the heretofore undefeated T. E. P. aggregation to take the win. Its defensive play succeeded in stopping the Ellisberg-Eisenberg combination, which had previously led T. E. P. to two straight victories and a total of 27 points. Shores again was the spark-plug in the winner's offensive, while all the Delta forwards did yeomen work.

Dekes Lose Out

After holding a single touchdown lead at the end of the first half, the Phi Sigma Kappa team pushed across another six-pointer late in the contest to take the Dekes into camp by a 19-6 margin.

The offensive attempts of both teams, as far as first downs were considered, were fairly even with the winners copping seven to its opposition's six. Touchdowns by Vick, Grantham, and Fuller, with a drop kick conversion by Kaveny, comprised the Phi Sig total. Pruden took a pass from Woollen for the lone D. K. E. tally.

Kluttz Building showed a reversal of recent form and pounded away at the Aycock defense to come out on the long end of a 37-8 score. The victors opened with a fast attack that put them in the van, 25-0, at half time. Kluttz took a total of five first downs to Aycock's single.

McCrary was the leading man in the Klan sway as an intercepted pass, a line buck, and a long run netted him a brace of touchdowns. Passes paved the way for the winner's other touchdowns as Terry intercepted one and Beam caught another to take the oval across twice more. Beam also added the sole extra point with a drop kick. Aycock fought back hard in the dying minutes as Chaiken was respon-

POTTS, MINOR WITHDRAW

Bartelman-Clover Eliminate Parker-Yeomans; Kasen-Fiore Also Victorious.

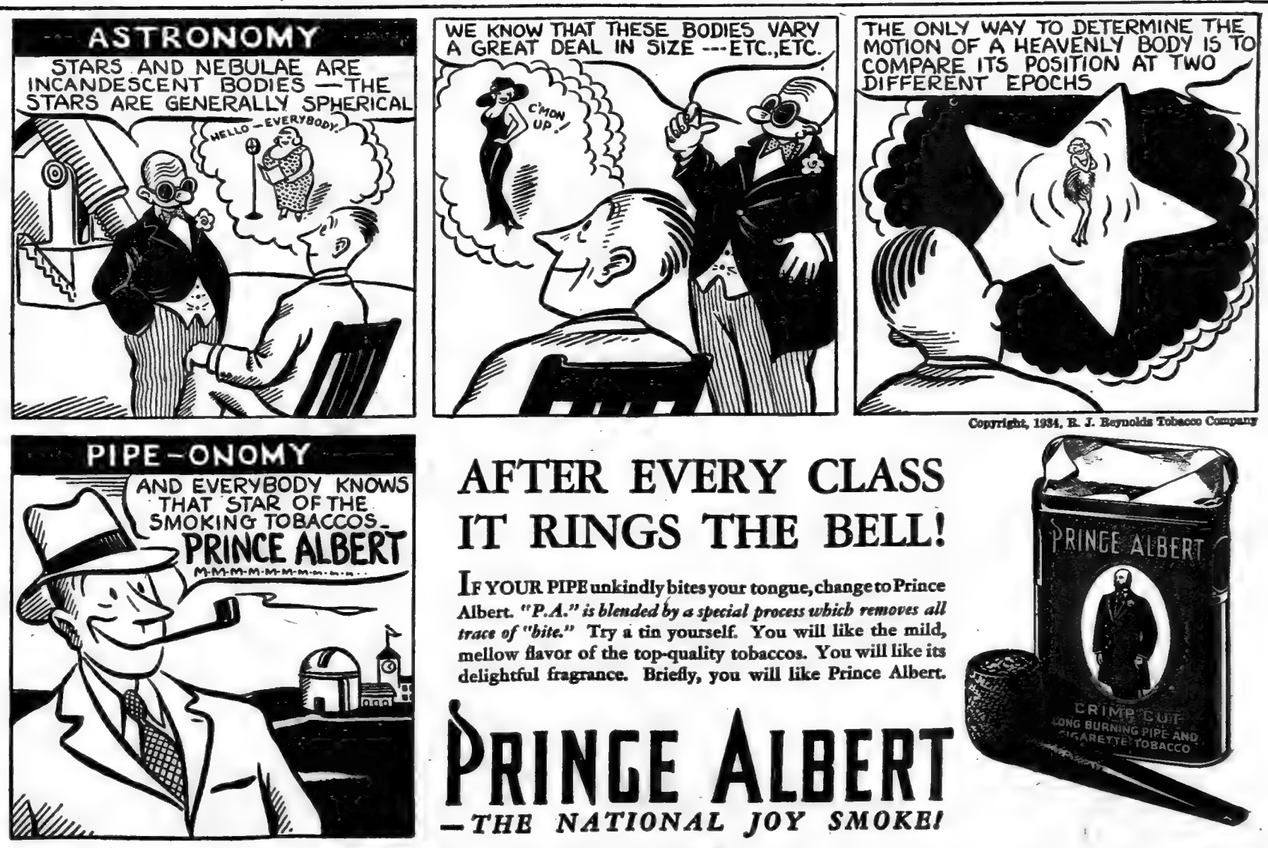
Larry Jones and Myers Whitaker, fourth seeded doubles team, were the only ranking players to see action yesterday afternoon in the doubles tourney, and paced the field into the third round with a closely contested win over Johnny Dowd and Jimmy Johnston.

The match was an exhibition of sound tennis, and many prolonged rallies resulted as Dowd and Johnston threatened often but to no avail. The losing team, having advanced to the second round on the withdrawal of the Robinson-Minor combination, were in the battle every inch of the way, but were finally humbled in straight sets by 6-4, 7-5 scores.

Two Other Matches

Two other matches were played and the first witnessed the advance of Ray Bartelman and Bill Clover, the Illinois pair, at the expense of Stewart Parker and Johnny Yeomans, in a listless two set affair. Both teams played poorly and although the lead shifted constantly throughout the opening set, it proved to be a dull tennis contest.

The frosh combination rallied from 5-3 in the opening set, but after evening the count, dropped the set 11-9. Bartelman and Clover picked up in the next set and found no difficulty in clinching the contest with a 6-2 win.



The tightest struggle of the day came when Kasen and Fiore downed Bobbit and Hicks in a match that went to the limit of three sets. The winners scored at 6-3, 1-6, 7-5 and the contest was in doubt until the last ball dropped into the net.

Other developments in the tournament was the shifting of teams due to the dropping out of Ramsey Potts and Bill Minor. Potts' inability to compete had stranded Johnny Foreman and Gene Robinson received the same dose when Minor decided to give his time to varsity basketball try-outs. Foreman and Robinson, therefore, have united and

MENTAL FREEDOM IS DEAN'S TOPIC

Importance of Keeping Eagerness to Get Most Out of Life Stressed in Talk to Frosh.

"Be self-governed, be free, be an individual, think for yourself, but do not cut yourself off with the class of those who always want to do something contrary to what the faculty advocates," said Dean of Students Francis F. Bradshaw to freshmen at assembly yesterday.

"Do not lose eagerness to make the most out of life here," he said, after portraying the "distressing change of attitude in the freshman class."

Changed Attitude

"At the first of the year freshmen usually show eagerness, a determination to get out of college what is in it; but before long comes a change in attitude. 'How many "cuts" per quarter am I allowed?' you say. 'How many subjects must I pass to be able to return next quarter? When do the Thanksgiving holidays begin? How long do we have for Christmas?'

Personal Responsibility

"The University provides educational facilities, but it can't educate you. That is your job. No one can educate another person.

"A prominent alumnus once said, 'The University is a good place for one to grow into a man or a fool. Its freedom permits either.'

"This is one opportunity in your life to be wise and intelligent. Develop a perfect love of freedom and a knowledge of how to use it."

The Reverend Donald Stewart offered invocation.

A pair of touchdowns by Umstead and Teal, with an added marker by the latter, in the last half enabled Grimes to come through with a 13-2 victory over Old West. boring towns and shown in order to defray production costs. It is his opinion that the widespread use of these art films will tend to elevate the taste of the public, developing a demand for better professional productions with the consequent improvement in the quality of the professional movies.

"Schools and universities have not begun to make use of the moving picture as a medium for teaching," the dramatist said. Instead of students having to listen to professors explain how something should be done, a film will show them exactly how it is done. These films will be made at great educational centers by experts in all fields and will be easily available.

"Why don't people, instead of criticizing the movies so much, get out and make some for themselves? Then everybody will be pleased," concluded Green.

The Raleigh News and Observer of Monday, commenting upon this movement, said: "Certainly some appreciation of higher values than that mass production for profit which motivates Hollywood is needed in the movies. Such a plan as Mr. Green proposes might give to movies those higher artistic values."

ANTI-WAR GROUP HOLDS SESSIONS HERE NEXT WEEK

Arrangements Committee Schedules Anti-War Convention For November 8-9.

DUKE STUDENTS INVITED

Plans for a students' anti-war conference to be held here Thursday and Friday, November 8 and 9, were made at the meeting Tuesday night of the anti-war arrangements committee, composed of representatives of 22 campus organizations.

Acting on the principle that war and Fascism, which it considers as being closely related, are menaces to civilization, the committee set the purpose of the conference as the education of the campus on anti-war and anti-Fascist issues.

The prevention of war and Fascism, according to the committee, is only possible before the danger from them becomes acute.

Not Political Move

Bill Levitt, chairman of the committee, was careful to make it clear that the conference will not be a political move. Its name will be simply the Students' Anti-War Conference.

The conference will be open to the general public and the Duke University student body and faculty; and, in addition, official delegates will be present as representatives of various organizations on this campus.

Tuesday night the committee selected special committees to take care of credentials, speakers, publicity, and delegates. An executive committee was also appointed.

Two Sessions

The two meetings of the conference will begin at 8:00 o'clock each night and will be divided into two sessions with short recess periods between. The opening session of the Tuesday night meeting will be given over to speakers on war and Fascism. Discussion of the speeches of these men will occupy the second half of the meeting.

A. & P. DIRECTORS DEFER DECISION

Board Orders 11 Cleveland Supervisors to New York For Information.

New York, October 31.—(UP)—The board of directors of the A. & P. Tea company tonight postponed the decision about re-opening its Cleveland stores until "the situation has been reviewed further."

The board, which had met to discuss the formula for settlement proposed by the National Labor Relations board, ordered its 11 Cleveland supervisors to come to New York tomorrow to furnish information on which a decision may be based.

$60,000 Payroll

The executives of the A. & P. company had originally stated that they would rather close their Cleveland stores than yield to labor. There is a $60,000 payroll to 2,000 people in jeopady if they follow this plan.

In the meantime a tense situation has grown up in Milwaukee and other cities of the middle west that are threatened with strikes by A. & P. employes and employes in allied industries.

GEORGIA TECH TICKETS

All students and members of the faculty can secure tickets to the U. N. C.-Georgia Tech game for 50 cents. The tickets are on sale at the athletic office, 210 Graham Memorial.

ECONOMICS GROUP HEARS J. G. EVANS

Professor Speaks to Economics Seminar in Interesting Discussion Last Night.

Professor J. G. Evans addressed the meeting of the economics seminar last evening on "The General Theory as an Approach to Economics."

Evans stated that all those elements of the environment which help to provide goods for meeting human needs are resources—human, natural, and cultural.

Basic Problems

"In the utilization of resources every human society is faced with certain basic problems which must be solved in some manner through individual and collective organization and action," Evans stated. "One problem is the combination and control of resources so as to produce as many needed goods as possible and at the same time to give proper recognition to the influence of work and working conditions of those who labor," he remarked.

A second problem brought up by the speaker was the determination of the kinds and quantities of various goods that are produced and their divisions among the members of society for consumption.

"The basic principle of economy in resource utilization is that the natural and technological environments shall make the greatest possible contribution to the attainment of social objectives," said Evans.

Consequently it is necessary to assume a particular set of social objectives and a particular natural and cultural environment before concepts of social effectiveness can be formulated.

"Economics, then, is the science of the effective use of resources through social organization," he said. "It is a study of the phenomena of resource utilization to the end that, through understanding and control, social effectiveness in the production, division, and consumption of goods may be achieved."

Dr. MacNider Talks At Sigma Xi Smoker

Dr. W. deB. MacNider of the medical school delivered an address Tuesday night to the chapter of Sigma Xi at a smoker in Graham Memorial.

Summarizing his lecture on "The Acquired Resistance to Injury on Fixed Tissue Cells," Dr. MacNider stated, "If the epithelium is slightly injured and it repairs in abnormal fashion, then it does not acquire a resistance to a variety of chemical substances."

All persons planning to write articles for the next issue must call by the Magazine office in 108 Graham Memorial this week or next week.

Contrary to statements announced last week, this month's copy of the Magazine was delayed at the request of the editor and not because of late work at the printing office.

NAZI BISHOP SAID TO HAVE RESIGNED

Rumor Reports Ludwig Mueller To Have Given Up Position In German Church.

Berlin, Oct. 31.—(UP)—Unconfirmed rumor here tonight stated that Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller had resigned his position in the church government of the Nazi state because of growing dissatisfaction with his program for Nazification of the German church.

The rumor followed an announcement that Bishop Hans Meiser of Bavaria and Bishop Theophil Wurh of Wurttenburg, both of whom have opposed Mueller's program, would resume their posts tomorrow.

Church Left Out

It was learned from reliable sources that the re-instatement of the two bishops was effected without consulting the church government.

Mueller's resignation climaxes a growing split between the administration and the church government. The movement to remodel the church along Nazi lines received so much opposition that it is believed to have seriously embarrassed the government.

The first sign of the withdrawal of the government from the church was given when August Jaeger, lay counsellor for the church government, resigned his position last Friday.

BAND WILL HOLD PRACTICE TONIGHT

Leaders Will Plan for Football Game with Davidson.

A full rehearsal of the University band will be held in the Music hall tonight at 7:00 o'clock, announced Earl A. Slocum, conductor of the band, yesterday.

Leaders are planning for the band to put on a good show when the 70-piece organization goes with the football team to Davidson.

Davidson has just outfitted a new band and the competition between the two organizations will be keen. Director Slocum has planned a series of special band drills, beginning with the rehearsal tonight.

In addition to the Davidson trip, the band will go to Charlottesville on Thanksgiving to play for the Carolina-Virginia annual football classic.

League Meets Tonight

The Student Foreign Policy league will meet tonight at 8:00 o'clock in Graham Memorial.

Suicide's Life Restored For Two Minutes.

Physicians Make Dead Man Breathe with Heart Pump.

Moscow, Oct. 31.— (UP) — High Soviet medical authorities reported today that life was actually restored to a dead man by artificial means for two minutes after the man had been dead for three hours as a result of a suicide by hanging.

The report released today said that life was restored by an artificial heart invention of Professor Sergi Bruikhanenko, one of the country's leading scientists.

The artificial heart pumped blood through the circulatory system for several minutes. Suddenly the man began breathing and showed other signs of life for two minutes.

PROUTY SPEAKS TONIGHT

Dr. W. F. Prouty will speak tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the fraternity room of New East to the local chapter of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, national geographical society.

The subject of Dr. Prouty's address will be the geology of the Roanoke area of Virginia. All students interested in geology are invited to attend.

Library Displays Boone Collection

Exhibitions Are in Lobby of Building; Dr. Archibald Henderson Submits Material.

In celebration of the bi-centenary observance of the birth of Daniel Boone, the University library now has on display, in the hall adjoining the main entrance, an extensive collection of Boone material.

The exhibition was drawn from the valuable private collection of Dr. Archibald Henderson and from the North Carolina room of the library.

Among the pieces of particular interest in the exhibit are a cane and paper weight made from the wood of the beech tree on which Boone cut with his hunting knife the words, "D. Boon cilled a bar on tree 1760."

Also shown in the exhibit is an original Boone letter dated 1785. Together with other manuscripts concerning the Boone family, this letter has been used by the many men who have chosen the famous hunter as the subject of their biographies.

Included in the collection are many portraits of the explorer, and photographs and sketches of his birthplace and residences.

Sophomores Approve Annual Class Budget

A budget for the current school year was presented and approved at the meeting of the sophomore class yesterday morning in Memorial hall.

After the brief business session Fred Johnson and his orchestra gave several musical selections. He began his program with "Hark the Sound."

Other selections rendered included "Twenty-four Hours in Georgia," "Here Come the British," and "Pardon My Southern Accent." The vocalist for the orchestra was Miss Peggy Wood.

The lighting will be arranged by John Dacey. Technicians include Juanita Green, Willard Miller, Hester Barlow, Jean Walker, and Mary Blackburn.

The Playmakers conduct two of these experimental programs each quarter. The second one for the fall quarter is scheduled for sometime in December.

SENIORS TO HAVE MEETING TONIGHT IN Y.M.C.A. LOBBY

Members of Class to Discuss Future Plans and Policies At 7:00 O'clock.

WILL TALK OVER SMOKER

The first of a series of informal meetings for members of the senior class will be held tonight at 7:00 o'clock in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. building, it was announced last night by Jack Pool, president of the fourth-year class.

Informality will be the feature of the session, and discussions will be held on class policies and activities.

To Plan Smoker

Plans will be taken up for a formal meeting of the entire senior class which will be held at the beginning of next week and for a smoker which is tentatively scheduled for the middle of this month.

President Pool made a statement last night urging all students of the fourth-year class to attend the session. Members of the executive committee are especially asked to be in attendance.

Brief Session

The convocation will be a brief one and students not on the executive committee may come and go as they please.

These meetings of the senior executive committee and senior class members will be held every Thursday night at 7:00 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. lounge.

Planned to bring members of the class of '35 into closer fellowship and to give all seniors a part in class government activities, the meetings will be a part of the program sponsored this year by officials of the senior class.

STUDIO SEEKING YOUNG WRITERS

Koch to Recommend Three to Five Students for Tryouts In California.

Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, has been appointed by the Metro Goldwyn Mayer studios to recommend from three to five young playwrights of the University for a six week tryout for the junior writers department in Culver City, Cal.

Professor Koch was asked to co-operate with the studios in selecting promising dramatic students for the purpose of establishing a staff of competent and talented young men and women writers for the movies.

Salaries Given

If those selected for a trial of six weeks prove worthy, they will be given positions as junior writers for the studios at generous salaries. Train fares will be paid to Culver City from whatever point the applicant is located, and a salary of $25 a week will be assured for the six weeks period of probation. In case the applicant's services are not retained, his fare home will be paid by the studios.

Professor Koch will choose several persons with whom he has come in contact here at the University and whom he considers exceptionally talented as dramatic writers and critics.

PARAGRAPHICS

Who said Representative MacIntosh dinna ken good whiskey when he sees it? And bottling up the opposition the way he did. . . .

Phi takes up the Turlington Act and puts it down again just as the legislature has been doing for some time now.

This idea of having class executives meet is a thoughtful move. The boys were getting tired of having nothing to do from election to election.

New Leaf For October

October's football battles are over, and the November schedule, starting this Saturday, is usually the time when most football teams hit their strides.

Carolina's eleven, however, has four obstacles in its path before rounding out a successful football campaign, two of which, Georgia Tech and Duke, might easily be stumbling blocks in the way of a very fine (when it plays as it can) football machine. Although Georgia Tech lost to Tulane last week, it impressed sports writers as being a powerful, smooth-running eleven. And the team will be hungry for victory this Saturday, having been playing good football only to be beaten by critical and inopportune breaks against opposition that included some of the best teams in the country. Georgia Tech intends to play even better football beginning with its first game in November.

Likewise, Carolina, with a different October background, begins its November schedule. Snavely's men on the whole played good football throughout October. However, since the Georgia game and beginning with the Kentucky game, the team's showing has been below average. Injuries, maybe the psychological effects of the "poisoning" last week, had some effect, to what extent cannot be determined. One of the results was that an inspired, but mediocre, State College team held Carolina to a 7-7 tie.

Carolina has had another tough break in the loss of Charlie Shaffer, one of the best backs in the south. But—Saturday is another game. The outlook may be dark, yet Carolina has established a reputation as a fighting team on Georgia soil and as hard to beat against heavy odds.

Little Cinema Bound to Come

Playwright and philosophy professor Paul Green has put on a prophetic robe in his advocating for colleges a little cinema movement. In time we believe he will be proved correct in his statement that a little cinema movement is certain to come in the near future. For the present it affords interesting speculation, at least.

The increasing interest displayed by a critical public, even if manifested in such abortive attempts as the League of Decency, proves that the time will eventually come when work-shops for an experimental cinema will spring up throughout the country. There is no more logical place for it to start than in the colleges, and Paul Green recognizes this. The one draw-back that may hamper the movement from the start, however, will be the cost of installing movie equipment, and the lack of leadership in what must be at present a pioneering movement. It would be our own guess that Hollywood would hardly encourage the idea, but, carefully nurtured, it will eventually come into flower.

Confusion Of Loyalties

Frank Smethurst, commenting in the News and Observer on the decease of State College's honor system, points out the multiple standard of honor which he believes is possibly the cause for it. "It may be that the honor system at State College has bogged down in a certain confusion of loyalties," he says.

I daresay that college students, even those who cheat on examinations, make a very sharp distinction between the lad who looks over his neighbor's shoulders for the proper answer to the question: "Who invented the steam engine?" and the lad who sneaks a look at his neighbor's full house before he throws in his pairs.

It is entirely possible that a boy who walks into an examination with illuminating notes scribbled on his shirt sleeve might be considered clever and amusing while the boy who sits down to a poker game with an ace up his sleeve would be ostracized.

Not having ever attended State College, we confess inability to judge whether it is possible that a cheat there might under any circumstances be considered clever and amusing. If that is the case then the Raleigh unit's honor system failed because it was not deeply rooted enough in the lives of the students and in the traditions of the college. State College's honor system was in operation only three years prior to the time it was abandoned. The reason why it was given up, the reason why it failed, was possibly that the students were not sufficiently imbued with its ideals. A number of student generations are required for that, and it is regrettable that State College students abandoned the honor system after as short a period of trial.

Carolina's ancient code permits no smugness in the statement that a cheat, whether in a poker game or classroom, is looked down upon by all except his own kind.

Tragedy Due To Negligence

The lynching of Negro Claude Neal in Greenwood, Florida, again brings to the fore the pressing problem offered by these tragedies of the south. The appalling feature of the Neal lynching is the apparent complacency with which authorities sat by and watched the train of events.

It is evident that some sort of violence was expected since the Negro had been moved from a jail in Florida to one in Alabama in order to escape the mob which had demanded that he be given up to them. Even after the mob had forced their way into the jail and kidnaped the victim, little was done to prevent any further violence. Florida's Governor Scholtz authorized the calling out of the national guard if the local authorities thought it necessary. These gentlemen thought it unnecessary—and look what happened. Hundreds of visitors moved toward Greenwood after the mob had issued an invitation for "all white folks to attend the slaying." Even then the national guard wasn't called out.

If they had the least knowledge of Florida's record of lynchings, both the Governor and the local officers of the law were guilty of gross negligence in not affording adequate protection for the accused Negro. Figures furnished the DAILY TAR HEEL by the University department of sociology show that Florida leads all other states in the south with nearly one and one-half lynchings per 10,000 population over a period of the past three decades. While statistics may in this case be questioned on the grounds of making a hair-line distinction between Florida and other southern states running it a close second, the fact holds good nevertheless that the probability of lynching in Florida certainly leaves that state's law-enforcing officials no excuse for not foreseeing the Neal lynching. And the appeals that have been made for an investigation into it undoubtedly have competent grounds on which to proceed.

More to It Than Humor

In one of the most humorous episodes of the year, Representative MacIntosh quashed the argument of Representative Kaplan in the Phi Assembly Tuesday night by flourishing an empty whiskey-bottle bought in this state, thus effectually refuting the latter's argument that "good whiskey cannot be bought in North Carolina."

Aside from the comical aspect of this argument which at least had the virtue of novelty, there is a more significant aspect. There is no doubting the fact that Representative Kaplan is badly misinformed on the subject. Whiskey, good and bad, is abundant. If a person is really interested in curing a cold, or warding off chills and fever, or soothing a sort throat, he is fairly well assured of obtaining good whiskey for medicinal purposes—and for other uses.

The fact that the Phi assembly not only went on record as favoring repeal of the Turlington act by the state legislature, but also voted unanimously to petition Governor Ehringhaus, seems fairly significant. The men in the literary societies on the Hill are representative of the type who will have a large voice in state affairs in a few years, and their attitude may therefore be considered as an indication of the turn affairs will shortly take.

STUDIO SEEKING YOUNG WRITERS

have emphasized the fact that they want writers more mature than college undergraduates but who are not fully established in authorship. It is also important, the firm says, that they have writers of versatility in order to deal with more than sectional conditions.

Those between 23 and 30 years of age are preferred and they must be mature in mind and experience, and well-grounded in legitimate drama.

The applicant must supply necessary information as to his education and experience. Professor Koch is requested to supply the commentary for any selections he makes. Applications will be ignored that do not come through Professor Koch or someone else who has been appointed by the studios to make these selections.

Debate Try-outs Announced

Try-outs for the debate November 15 with the University of Georgia will be held in Graham Memorial Tuesday night at 9:00 o'clock. The query of the debate is: Resolved, that peace is impossible under capitalism. North Carolina will support the negative.

Troop School to Meet

"C. M. T. C. Training" will be the subject for the class of the troop school, 316th Field Artillery, at the meeting of that unit tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Davie hall.

Revised Backfield Works Hard For Tech Battle

Martin and Montgomery Alternate at Half; Shaffer Is Out.

Star Back Definitely Lost for Contest in Atlanta.

With Charlie Shaffer definitely out for at least a week, Coach Carl Snavely faces a big task in getting together an eleven which will even be able to play the fast-moving Georgia Tech team to a close score.

Besides the injury to Shaffer, several other minor ones have cropped up which will slow up the team some. Shaffer's knee will likely heal fast and the veteran kicker and star ball-carrier may be able to go again by the Davidson contest.

Eddie Martin and Harry Montgomery, both lettermen, are the boys whom Coach Snavely is expected to use at the open right halfback post. Martin at present is running on the first string because of his punting ability; however, Montgomery is the more finished runner and defensive player.

New Backfield

The Tar Heel mentor has also juggled the rest of his backfield some, moving Randy Cooner up to the first left half position. Cooner has been showing fine form so far this week both in running and passing.

Hump Snyder, great blocking back, and Jim Hutchins, sophomore fullback, still held on to their regular places and look like the only veteran regulars who will start in the backfield.

Yesterday Coach Snavely worked his charges until dark both on offense and defense. He ran the first and second strings through a long dummy scrimmage, brushing up and making a few changes on the offense.

The practice on Emerson field was concluded with the second and third stringers taking a hard scrimmage. The first string was let off with a defensive drill against a freshman team using Georgia Tech plays.

During the scrimmage Montgomery and Jim McCachren both looked good in the second club's backfield. McCachren got off for a couple of lengthy runs.

The Tar Heels will take their last workout here this afternoon and will leave for Atlanta early tomorrow morning so as to reach Georgia Tech by nightfall. The squad will stop off at Greenville, S. C., for a short workout on the Furman field tomorrow afternoon.

Frosh Gridders Priming For Tilt Against Clemson

Changes Made in Entire First-String Lineup.

The freshman field was the scene of the revision of the Tar Babies yesterday afternoon, as Coach James repeatedly changed the lineups, while sending his charges through a long blocking scrimmage in preparation for the game with the Clemson yearlings at Asheville.

The changes, though threatening the positions of some of the regulars, fired the entire squad with a new vigor, and as each one in turn was called into the scrimmage, they plunged into the fray and gave all they had in an effort to wrest the disputed position from their rivals.

Keeney to Tackle

Some of the changes made today will undoubtedly benefit the team, and make them a more formidable outfit. Two hundred pound Bob Keeney, former star end, was installed in the tackle position, in the place of "Reggie" Wolfe, who was in turn shifted to end, where he appears to be very much at home. This change will most assuredly increase the offensive and defensive qualities of the Babies, as Keeney, with his weight and blocking ability, should be a natural at tackle, while Wolfe, a sure tackler and a fast man, is suited for end.

YEARLING DALERS PREP FOR DUKERS

Frosh Run Devilets Early Next Week; Will Go to Davidson November 10.

The Tar Baby hill and dalers are gradually rounding into shape for their first dual meet which is with Duke next week.

The squad has been working over the three-mile course mainly and seems to be in fair condition. The men who have shown up best are those who finished in the lead in the cake race.

The team has three meets with the Duke frosh, the first being either November 6 or 7. The runners journey to Davidson on the tenth to race the Wildkittens. Duke's second dual is scheduled for November 17 and a meet with High Point Hi on the 24th.

The men who have turned in the best work to date are Braxton, Bronitsky, Chaitken, Darden, D'Ascensio, Davison, Eichorn, Garland, Jones, Manning, Rabb, Rivers, Rowley, and White.

BOXING WORKOUT CENTERS ON FAST SPARRING BOUTS

Captain Giddens Takes Initial Ring Work of Year and Shows Good Form.

WHOLE TEAM IN RING

Entering the ring for the first time this season, Captain Giddens presented an interesting two-round exhibition with Jules Medynski.

Giddens has been working out with the freshmen and showed some effects of his long layoff. In a few wild flurries, he gave a good account of himself by throwing lefts and rights into Medynski's face. Medynski left no doubt as to his ability to counter-punch as he continually planted rights to the midsection. His determination to make the squad is clearly evidenced by his good condition at the termination of the setto.

Light Men Scrap

Parrying and blocking each other's blows with the deftness of veterans, Marion Diehl and Maxie Frucht, bantamweight and featherweight respectively, scampered through two fast rounds.

Not looking at all like a heavyweight, but moving around with the agility of a lightweight, Jimmie Carruth landed frequently on his sophomore opponent, Alderman. Alderman was not to be outdone, as he repeatedly retaliated with telling blows to the face and head. Both boys looked very impressive.

MURAL GRIDIRON FEATURES FOUR TAG ENCOUNTERS

Snakes Eke Out Close Win as Zeta Psi, K. A., and Lawyers Cop Easily.

"Y" HITS RUFFIN TODAY

Four tag football games featured yesterday's intramural session with Kappa Alpha, Zeta Psi, Law School, and Sigma Nu turning in victories.

The Sigma Nu-Phi Kappa Sigma contest was outstanding on the program with the former coming through in the last two minutes of play to knot the score at 6-6 and win the game by virtue of an advantage of five to three in first downs. Phi Kappa Sigma went into an early lead as Barnhill carried the oval across, and held this margin until the ebbing minutes when Bost took a pass and traveled 35 yards to score.

Shysters Win

Law School's well experienced team came from behind an early 2-0 deficit to register 26 points and gain a triumph over Manly. The losers went into a short-lived 2-0 lead as Shedd blocked a punt for a safety in the first three minutes of play. Bryan snagged three passes at the right end post for six pointers, and Jones made the fourth. Morgan was credited with two drop kicks for the balance of the lawyer's total.

While pushing across for four first downs and holding Theta Chi without a single one, Zeta

Blue And White Harriers Face Severe Tests In Busy Week-end

Captain Williamson to See Action In Monday's Match with V. M. I. Cadets

TEAM LEAVES TOMORROW

Tar Heels Run W. and L. Generals Saturday on Five-Mile Course.

Facing the task of meeting two opponents in three days the Blue and White varsity cross country team is working at top speed before leaving tomorrow evening for Lexington, Va., where they will meet Washington and Lee and V. M. I. on Saturday and Monday, respectively.

From the present squad of about 15 men a full team will be taken for the W. & L. meet, with a trio of replacements joining the squad on Sunday to participate against the Cadets the following day. Thus about four or five men will get in a double program of competition for the week-end.

Though the Chapel Hill squad should come through with a win over the Generals in their first week-end match, it will have to do some fast stepping if it expects to have one of its men break the tape first. The reason—and a plenty good one—is the presence of Captain Dunaj, holder of the Southern Conference cross country title, who is without a doubt one of the outstanding men of this sport in the south, if not the entire country.

Monday's match with the strong V. M. I. team will find the Carolina squad with Williamson back in the game.

Seeded Pairs Move Into Third Round Of Tennis Doubles

Levitan and De Gray Open with Impressive Victory.

The doubles tournament moved into the third round yesterday with two seeded teams showing the way. Walt Levitan and Eddy De Gray, at present seeded at the top of the heap, made their debut in drubbing Gene Goodes and Doug Cartland in a straight-set victory.

Foreman and Robinson, seeded directly behind, also reached the third round, encountering difficulty in doing away with Gold and Harrison. The other pair to gain a foothold in the round of eight was the Bartelman-Clover combination, which scored its second victory of the tourney in trouncing Bob Hagey and Irv Landow.

No. 1 Team Wins

De Gray and Levitan displayed their expected power and although Goodes and Cartland played heads-up, the seeded pair was always in the lead. The winners ran easily through the opening set, but with Goodes and Cartland playing a finer brand of tennis in the next set, they were pressed before they could take the set in extra games and clinch the match.

The advance of Johnny Foreman and Gene Robinson was a hard fought struggle and the favorites dropped a set before Psi also took time to force across three touchdowns and an extra point to score a 19-0 shutout. The victors led 12-0 at half time and were never in serious danger. W. Carr, Laxton, and Drane made touchdowns, with the latter also adding an extra via the place-kick route.

With Everett and Shriver doing the major honors, the Kappa Alpha team took the Chi Phi gridsters into camp by a 19-0 margin. The winners garnered six first downs to three, with Everett scoring two touchdowns and Shriver one, plus a single marker to account for its 19-point score.

they could hit their stride and emerge victorious. Gold and Harrison captured the second set and it was only a determined brand of better play that carried Foreman and Robinson to a win. They appeared as a well-balanced and powerful unit as they completely outplayed their opponents in the final set.

Yesterday's results were as follows:

First round:

Goodes-Cartland over Kind-Slavin, 4-6, 7-5, 6-0; Gold-Harrison over Kirven-Herbert, 6-2, 6-1.

Second round:

De Gray-Levitan over Goodes-Cartland, 6-1, 7-5; Foreman-Robinson over Gold-Harrison, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1; Bartelman-Clover over Hagey-Landow, 6-3, 6-1.

SCHOOL OF ACTING

Warning!!

To my friends, neighbors, and patrons: I beg leave to warn you of malicious and dangerous ads appearing recently in this paper. Week after week we warn young girls and boys to stay out of Hollywood unless well financed because the chance of becoming a movie star is so remote. But fakers run fake movie schools, take your money and give you nothing in return. Using down-and-out directors, and the names of those once great but unfortunate as references they entice ambitious young women and men into parting with their savings, for nothing. Be warned in time.

GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

ROBERT FEDDERN '35. He says: "I'm interested in every phase of flying—majoring in aeronautics. It takes a lot of mental concentration. Three or four hours of intense study is enough to tire anyone. I light up a Camel frequently. Camels always give me a 'lift' that quickly chases away any tired feeling. And what a flavor Camels have—so rich and mild!"

Here's the way to get back your energy quickly when you feel glum and weary! Thousands of smokers have adopted the way of combating low energy and low spirits mentioned by Feddern. When their energy sags down they smoke a Camel and get a delightful "lift!" It's healthful—delightful—enjoyable. Smoke Camels as often as you want them. Their finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS never get on the nerves!

RELATIONS GROUP HEAD ANNOUNCED BY 'Y' PRESIDENT

Charles Aycock Poe Succeeds Patterson as Head of Human Relations Institute.

NAMES COMMITTEES SOON

J. D. Winslow, president of the University Y. M. C. A., announced the appointment of Chas. Aycock Poe, Carolina senior, to the chairmanship of the Human Relations Institute here last night.

Poe will fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Simmons Patterson who was elected to the post last spring.

Having spent the last several days in conference with Patterson, Poe is prepared to take over the work of arranging for the Institute where Patterson left off. He will announce his appointments to the various committees within the next few days.

Meeting

Poe has planned a joint meeting of all the new committees in the "Y" building Monday night at 8:00 o'clock. The committees will be made up of 20 representatives from the University faculty and the student body.

The new Institute head has made an enviable record during his three years' stay at the University. He was made a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity, last spring. At present he is a leader in the Phi assembly, a member of the senior executive committee, a contributor to the Carolina Magazine, and a participator in Playmaker activities.

He is the son of Dr. Clarence Poe of Raleigh, editor of the Progressive Farmer and Southern Agriculture.

Won Contest

Several years ago, young Poe won recognition in a literary contest sponsored by the Atlantic Monthly. During his first year at the University, he was a member of the DAILY TAR HEEL staff.

Poe was a student here in 1931 when the Human Relations Institute last met. He went through the Institute course where he received his first knowledge of the work.

The Institute, a now famous organization throughout the country, was first organized by the University Y. M. C. A. in 1927. The original program studied international relations, social and industrial problems.

The second meeting of the Institute was held at the University in 1931, during the week of May 3-10.

The 1935 session is scheduled for April 7-12.

Prouty Makes Talk To Geology Group

Dr. W. F. Prouty spoke last night at 7:30 o'clock in the fraternity room of New East to the local chapter of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, national honorary geological society, on the geology of the Roanoke area of Virginia.

The subject of Dr. Prouty's address concerned chiefly what the members of the University will find in their trip to the Roanoke area in Virginia, and the different rocks peculiar to the Roanoke area. The address was illustrated by pictures and diagrams of rock formations which were drawn by Dr. Prouty.

BOARD SETS LIMIT ON GRATIS COPIES

P. U. Board Settles Question of Complimentary Copies for Publications Staffs.

The Publications Union board settled the question of complimentary copies for the members of the various publication staffs at its meeting yesterday in Graham Memorial.

The scale which was drawn up was designed as a workable plan for the granting of extra copies and as a precedent for succeeding boards to follow when allowing staff members subscriptions.

Editors' Copies

The editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL will be allowed to put four names on the mailing list of that publication, as will the other editors on their own mailing lists.

The managing editor of the paper will receive three extra subscriptions, the chairman of the editorial board will have two, and each of the two sports editors will be given two subscriptions.

Each of the four business managers and the managing editor of the annual will be allowed two extra copies of his publication.

The Finjan editor will have 20 copies and the Magazine editor will have 15 copies to be distributed among their staffs but not to be put on the mailing list. The editor of the Yackety Yack will be allowed to mail four copies to people other than students who have aided him.

Among the other matters which were taken up were requests for salary advances and minor expenditures.

ROOSEVELT TRIES TO KILL MENACING INDUSTRIAL CLASH

Confers with Auto Code Authorities; Trouble in New York.

Washington, Nov. 1.—(UP)—President Roosevelt struck swiftly tonight in an effort to prevent one of several potential clashes between capital and labor threatening his hopes for industrial peace.

He conferred twice today with Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of the board of General Motor's Corporation, Walter P. Chrysler, head of Chrysler Motor's Corporation, and S. Clay Williams, head of the governing board on extension of the automobile code which expires Saturday.

The United Press was informed from a reliable authority that the administration will likely yield to industry's demands that the code be extended in its present form without amendments favoring labor.

Meanwhile trouble glared in New York as master builders and contractors angrily returned home after protesting that union workers had broken their 60-day truce with the building trades industry.

University Club

Plans were advanced last night by the University club for the Duke game. A complete program of events to take place in the stadium was set forth.

In addition to the events at the time of the game, a radio program over station WBT, Charlotte, will be given the Thursday before the game. The presentations to be included in the broadcast have not as yet been decided upon.

TEACHERS' GROUP TO HEAR CRANE

Psychologist to Speak in Charlotte and Greensboro.

Dr. H. W. Crane, professor of psychology, will speak this afternoon at the Central high school in Charlotte, to a number of teachers of special ungraded rooms and to officials of the high schools in Charlotte.

His talk will concern "Needs for Provisions in the State Department of Public Instruction for Special Instruction to Backward Children."

Dr. Crane will also speak tonight to the Altrosa Club at the King Cotton Hotel in Greensboro. He will make some introductory remarks to a speech being made by Dr. Sylvia Allen on "A Special Course of Lecture in Mental Hygiene."

KOCH ANNOUNCES PLAYMAKER TOUR

Troupe Will Begin State Trip November 19; Will Also Appear in Maryland.

Professor Frederick H. Koch will lead his troupe of Carolina Playmakers on their 32nd tour, starting with a performance at East Carolina Teachers College, Greenville, on November 19.

The Playmakers will make a week's tour, playing in various schools and colleges over North Carolina. Their one engagement out of the state will be a performance at Hood College, Frederick, Md.

Other Engagements

After their opening night at E. C. T. C., the Playmakers will show in Nashville, November 20; Kinston, November 21; Oxford, November 22; Hood College, Frederick, Md., November 23; Flora McDonald College, Red Springs, November 26; Campbell College, Buie's Creek, November 27.

The plays that have been selected by the troupe for production are taken from the Playmakers repertory. "The Loyal Venture," a play of Revolutionary times in North Carolina, was written by Wilkinson O'Connell.

Paul Green is the author of the other two selections: "Fixen's," a tragedy of a tenant farm woman; and "Quare Medicine," a comedy of a country quack doctor.

Koch's 29th Season

This season's tour will mark Professor Koch's 29th year in the field of theatre work. He organized and conducted the first tour of the Playmakers here at Carolina in the spring of 1921. Under his leadership they have established a name for themselves over the United States, have played from Boston, Mass. to towns in southern Georgia, and have been received by dramatic organizations at Columbia University, Yale University, and various other schools in the country.

In the past, the Playmakers have made as many as three tours during the school year. As yet, they have not announced a later tour for the current season.

Finjan Deadline

The deadline for all copy of the Finjan is Monday night at 8:00 o'clock. Travel will be the theme of the second issue.

Associate and assistant editors will be appointed from the staff members who do the best work on this issue.

INSULL ABSOLVES 16 CODEFENDANTS

Former Utilities Magnate Attributes Collapse of Vast Empire to "Own Mistakes."

Chicago, Nov. 1.—(UP)—Samuel Insull today absolved his sixteen co-defendants in the trial now in process here against the former utilities magnate of responsibility for the fall from power of his giant corporation.

Tears rolled down his cheeks as he testified in federal court where he and his associates are charged with mail frauds aggregating $43,000,000.

Sole Arbiter

The 75-year-old defendant pictured himself as the sole arbiter in the $2,000,000,000 utilities field he controlled, attributing its collapse to his "own mistakes."

He said that he thought the crash of October, 1929, was purely a stock market episode and would not affect the country decidedly. He said that even John D. Rockefeller thought the same.

The former head of the great utilities empire also said that when stocks reached the astounding highs of 1929 he warned that public stocks weren't worth more than $30 a share, but they kept on buying and sending prices up.

GAMES REVIEWED BY SUPPLEMENT

Alumni Review Supplement Has Pictures of Game and Memorial Citation.

"Carolina and State Battle to 7-7 Draw" read the headline of the latest Alumni Review football supplement, which came out Wednesday.

The supplement also carried a play-by-play account of last Saturday's game, as well as brief stories of the Tar Babies' 6-2 loss to the State Wolflets and the Carolina cross country team's win over the State harriers by a "perfect 15-49 score."

Shaffer's Work Noted

Charlie Shaffer, star Tar Heel halfback, was given a special paragraph in recognition of his excellent performance this year as Carolina's foremost kicker and runner.

Pictures of the two touchdown plays top the first page; and other pictures show a State play at the line and a full-length view of Shaffer.

There is also a picture of members of the football teams on which the late Dr. D. T. Tayloe, Jr., played, posing with Deans House and Bradshaw, who were members of Dr. Tayloe's class, and Foy Baker, Negro trainer of Dr. Tayloe's teams. The picture was taken on the football field between the halves during the memorial citation in honor of the Washington physician, who was captain of the football teams of 1914 and 1915.

Ransom Rascal Terrorizes Two Delighted Dorms

Everett and Lewis Roomers Flee, Hide, Pray as Phantom Celebrates Allhallows' Eve.

Hunchbacked, noseless, swathed in a somber cloak, with dreadful eyes peering out from under the brim of a slouch hat, two yellow fangs protruding from the corner of its mouth, the figure stands in the doorway. Is it man, beast, or devil? The phantom of the opera, or the hunchback of Notre Dame? Is it the shadow of remorse, or too much shrimp for supper?

No, it's only Jack Brown, freshman, of Ransom House, doing his best to celebrate Allhallows' Eve in due and becoming fashion, and to drive dull care away from Everett country club.

Close Inspection

Even on closer inspection, Brown was an object to command awe. He was wrapped in a dark plaid shawl, under which a pillow made a very realistic hump. Two artificial fangs protruded from the corners of his mouth, and his nose was bound down flat on his cheeks by two rubber bands. Clever use of grease-paint made ghoulish highlights and hollows in his cheeks. A slouch hat and steel-rimmed spectacles completed his make-up.

His little comedy was enacted many times Wednesday night. Beginning on the top floor of Everett, he popped into one room after another. As soon as one student was frightened out of his wits, he came out to watch the fun and laugh at the next victim. In this way, Brown assembled a considerable following from the third floor, increased it on the second floor, augmented it on the first, and set off for Lewis dormitory with most of Everett at his heels.

Reticent Phantom

"Phantom" Brown was rather reticent when interviewed. "Shucks," he said, "it ain't much

Ericson, Woodhouse To Address Cabinets

Dr. Eston E. Ericson of the English department and Professor E. J. Woodhouse of the government department will lead discussions in the junior-senior and sophomore Y. M. C. A. cabinets Monday night at 7:15 o'clock.

"Danger Points in the World Today Where Wars Might Start" will be the subject of Professor Woodhouse's talk to the sophomore group.

Dr. Ericson will take up socialism as a cure for war and will show how armed conflicts are caused by economic systems and practices used at the present time, before the junior-senior cabinet.

All But One Section Rated As Excellent

Copy Written by Deans Criticised as Vague and General; Senior Section Praised.

The National Scholastic Press Association has awarded the 1934 Yackety Yack an "All-American Honor Rating," the highest ranking given by that body, Alex Andrews, editor of last year's edition, announced yesterday.

Fred L. Kildow, director of the press association, in a special delivery letter to ex-editor Andrews wrote: "The Yackety Yack received an All-American Honor Rating. Congratulations! The 'Razor Back' of the University of Arkansas was the only other book in your class to receive All-American."

Competition Keen

The class in which the University year-book competed includes schools with an enrollment of between 1,000 and 2,500 [illegible]. Competition is necessarily keener in this division since it includes most of the better known colleges in America.

"Scores, in general," wrote Kildow, "run lower this year than before. More books have dropped from a higher to a lower rating this year."

The Yackety Yack received a score of 935 out of a possible 1,000 points. The only department which the judge scored the publication below "excellent" was in the special activities section, where, he claimed, complete coverage had not been effected due to the financial policy of not accepting unpaid-for representation.

Snapshots Good

"Faculty and administration are well covered pictorially," commented the judge, "but the copy written by the deans is too vague and general. The senior section is unusually fine. Your pictorial record of school life as presented by snapshots is one of the best submitted this year."

"The Vanity Fair section is beautiful," he wrote. "The layout of the book is excellent, and the balance well handled. Congratulations on a fine piece of work."

SENIOR CLASS HAS INFORMAL SESSION

Executive Committee and Class Members Plan for Year.

The executive committee of the senior class, together with other interested class members, held an informal discussion of plans for the class future, in the Y. M. C. A. last night.

The projects considered by the group last night will be taken up at the regular class meeting Tuesday night in Gerrard hall at 7:15 o'clock.

Jack Pool, president of the class, presided at last night's meeting and led the discussion of various class projects that will be considered at the regular class meeting. Among the topics discussed were the plans for Senior Week, the senior class gift, class smoker, and the class meeting.

Pool has planned a series of these informal discussions for every Thursday night in the fall quarter to be held in the "Y" lounge at 7:30 o'clock. "We are aiming to foster a better class spirit," Pool said.

PARAGRAPHICS

Suggestion for FERA work: helping Proff Koch applaud at Playmaker productions.

News flash: Carolina stags will dress to kill at the fall German. Sounds like another international crisis.

We notice where no decision was rendered in the Oxford-Carolina debate. From inside sources, we understand the British had it coming to them.

Moving the Engineers

The DAILY TAR HEEL fell for the common misapprehension that the engineering school should be moved to Raleigh in the interest of efficient consolidation. The type of reasoning which is leading the average person in the state to argue in favor of this move is a wide-spread mistake, used, however, to great effect by proponents of the plan. The Chapel Hill engineering school, they say, should be moved to Raleigh because the cultural division of the Greater University is located here; the practical side should be concentrated at State College. A prevalent report is also that the transfer would be all in favor of a more economical arrangement. This is untrue.

A recent paper by Dr. H. G. Baity, former dean of the school of engineering here, presents some arresting facts in regard to the problem. These views, says Dr. Baity, were not written to engage in controversy. "They are written," says Dr. Baity, "since there seems to be a growing misunderstanding on the part of the public regarding the matter. It seems proper and timely that certain facts regarding engineering training at the University should be stated."

The most obvious reason why engineering training should not be concentrated at Raleigh is the problem of economy. (Usually reliable, the News and Observer has grossly erred in presenting this as one of the foremost reasons why it should be moved. The dissemination of such information through its editorial columns has done much to create the false impression that exists in the state.) Dr. Baity estimates that the total cost of moving the entire engineering school to Raleigh would be about $700,000. That would be the cost of reproducing the equipment facilities alone, neglecting all other values. At this time it would be practically inadvisable for the state legislature to spend that much money when it is so burdened down with other problems.

Another reason against moving is that the educational facilities here, aside from those directly associated with engineering training, are far superior to those in Raleigh. It is generally recognized by industrial concerns such as the Bell Telephone Company that engineers need broader training rather than the limited, technical education that they get in the usual engineering school. The University is prepared to offer engineerng students this training, which State College is not equipped to give.

Removal of the engineering school to Raleigh could only result in weakening both institutions involved. To take this step might seriously affect the success of consolidation.

The Correct Approach

Leaders of the students' anti-war conference now in the process of preparation for sessions next week, have succeeded admirably in presenting the correct approach to the problems of war and fascism to an uninspired campus.

The committee set the purpose of the conference as "the education of the campus on anti-war and anti-fascist issues." Clearly this is the most suitable method of carrying out the program; it is education that will inspire students on this campus to think and think hard of the issues to a possible formation of individual anti-belligerent ideals. Inspiration itself in the form of fiery speeches and torchlight parades would create only an ephemeral interest in a problem which demands intense thought and analysis and definite conclusions on the part of America's youth.

The prevention of war and fascism, as the committee pointed out, is only possible "before the danger from them becomes acute." A conference based on factual presentation and mental digestion, with resultant concreteness of opinion, will crystallize whatever hazy thought on the question now exists on this campus.

Youth And Peace

Oxford University's debating team's trek to the University drew more students to an oratorical combat, students who had never before attended a debate here, than any other such engagement we remember. The attraction of listening to a pair of brilliant Britishers with the background of Foot and Cripps gathered in students in droves. The international flavor was apparently irresistible.

F. H. Sill, headmaster and founder of Kent school and one of the foremost figures in the country on the question of international relations between youths of America and England, has always held as his greatest hope the fostering of a friendship and an understanding between the boys and men of England and our own country. Sill, you remember, was the first American school master to send a crew abroad to compete in the Henley race at England.

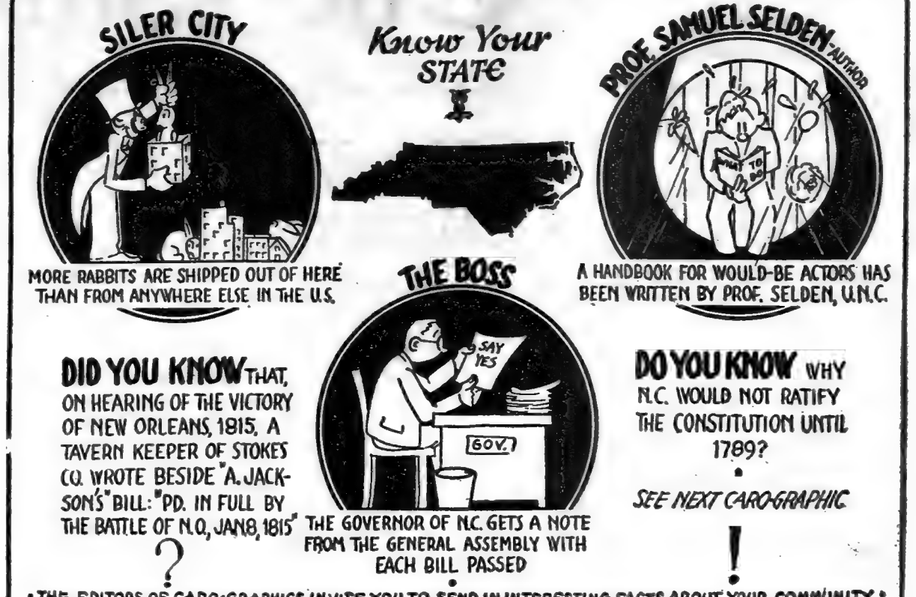
The Kent headmaster said this: "Anything that can be done along these lines by athletic organizations, visiting delegations, scholarships, and fellowships will, I believe, be worth more and more as time goes by."

This comment calls to mind also, along with the recent Oxford "invasion," the proposed anti-war conference for this campus, which will embrace an understanding of international problems. Both local events, one a friendly discussion between international representatives and the other a serious discussion by representatives of one nation relative to the future international relations of that nation, are integrally connected in emphasizing the necessity of international cooperation of the youth of the world so that relations may work out for future peace between the nations these youths represent.

All-American Yackety Yack

Alex Andrews' 1934 Yackety Yack, undergraduate annual, was awarded by the National Scholastic Press association an "all-American rating," one of the two yearbooks in its class in the entire nation to receive this honor rating.

"All-American" signifies the highest achievement in yearbook artcraft. The class in which the Yackety Yack competed (composed of books published by schools of from 1,000 to 2,500 students) was the division of the stiffest collegiate competition. And the University of Arkansas' Razorback was the only other publication to stand so undisputedly out from the rest.



The honor is a signal testimony not only to the achievement of Andrews and his staff but to the local publications system of which the Yackety Yack organization is a part.

Case of Kleig Eyes

Beset by prophecies of a little cinema movement and supposedly seduced by the temptation of J. Walter Delmar's school of Hollywood acting, campus outlook could hardly be blamed if it acquired a very acute case of Kleig eyes.

However, this is not the case. E. Carrington Smith's gesture on behalf of saving the hard-earned money of scenario-struck students was noble—but hardly justified. The majority of students are not naive enough to believe that they can become Frederic Marches or Clark Gables; nay, nor are co-eds self-estimated as potential Greta Garbos or Joan Crawfords. Rounding prosperity's corner as most students are, they are more careful than some would give them credit for with their money, and are a little less wary of get-famous-quick schemes than they were in the days when it was more plentiful. The chances of becoming a movie star are, as Mr. Smith said, few and three thousand miles between. As for Mr. Delmar's advertisement, therefore, it speaks for itself.

SPEAKING the CAMPUS MIND

TO THE EDITOR:

The Phi Delta Theta fraternity wishes to express its appreciation to the University Athletic association and to Mr. I. B. Rush, general manager of the local telephone branch, for their co-operation in making it possible for this group of students to hear the Carolina-State football game last Saturday.

At that time the fraternity house had been placed under quarantine for scarlet fever. University officials could not allow any of the members to attend the game. However, the University physicians immediately got in touch with the Athletic association to see if some arrangements could not be made in order that the fraternity men would not miss the game entirely.

The Athletic association voluntarily decided to bear whatever expense might be involved, and, after consulting Mr. Rush, found that it would be possible to relay all announcements made through the stadium amplifiers to the radio loud speaker in the house via the local telephone system.

The arrangements were completed Saturday morning and the play-by-play account of the game was enjoyed by the entire group. As a group we wish to express our whole-hearted thanks once more to the people making this broadcast possible.

of a trick. I learned it from a guy in Ransom House who used to do it all the time." His victims, however, differ as to the first statement; his acting was almost too convincing.

Each visitation of the Phantom was funnier than the last. One chap opened his door, took one look and fled into the closet, and was not to be coaxed therefrom. Bob DuFour, '38, was wrestling with John Henry Johnston, '36, when the Phantom walked in. "My first impulse," said DuFour, "was to crawl under the bed." Charles Lloyd, '35, cool as a colonel of Life Guards on parade, observed the Phantom, knelt, and began the Lord's Prayer.

At last the Phantom vanished, a little after midnight, taking with him the thanks and most of the residents of Everett dormitory.

Barclay Makes U. P. Mid-Season All-Southern Selection

Carolina Captain On Way To All-American Choice

Earl Wentz, Duke, Only Other N. C. Player On First Team.

Raleigh, Nov. 1.—(UP)—George Barclay, stellar guard and "one-man football team" player on the University of North Carolina squad, was picked today by United Press sports writers for a berth on a mid-season all-southern football outfit. A fast, diagnostic defensive player, Barclay is well on the way to all-American recognition. Earle Wentz of Duke was the only other player from the state named by the United Press.

Atlanta, Nov. 1.— (UP) — Alabama's mighty Crimson Tide places no fewer than four players on a sort of tentative all-southern football team which the United Press has been brash enough to select on the basis of performances through the first half of the 1934 season.

Tulane, sharing the Southeastern Conference leadership with Alabama and Louisiana State, fills two berths on the mythical team, and the remaining posts are distributed among North Carolina, Auburn, Duke, Vanderbilt and L. S. U. with one position apiece.
